West German Minister Is Suspended

BONN (AP) — The West German refugee minister, Hans Krueger, 61, was suspended from office on his own request Wednesday until charges that he committed war crimes can be investigated.

Krueger's decision was disclosed at a press conference after he met with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard. Erhard ordered an investigation of the charges, which concern Krueger's activities in occupied Poland.

The minister was an admitted member of the Nazi party but claimed when he was appointed last October that he committed no war crimes.

Government Press Chief Karl Guenther von Hase did not say when the investigation will begin.

The charges against Krueger were raised Dec. 6 in East Berlin by Albert Norden, member of the East German politburo and top propagandist for the Communist regime.

Norden asserted that Krueger served as a special judge at Chojnice and headed the local Nazi organization.

Norden said evidence in East Berlin showed that about 2,000 Poles from Chojnice were murdered during the first weeks after Krueger assumed his office. Krueger has denied he imposed death sentences or knew anything about mass murders of Poles.

CFA Opposes Canal Tolls In Any Form

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture will oppose the reimposition of tolls "in any form" on cargoes and shipping going through the Welland Canal.

Representations on that score will be made to the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, the federation decided Wednesday at its 28th annual meeting here.

The federation will also oppose increasing the present toll charges on cargoes and shipping using the seaway from Montreal to Lake Ontario as well as the principle of recovering capital or improvement costs of the seaway through a tolls system.

RCAF Corporal Failed to Report Car Accident

An RCAF corporal who failed to report the fact his car had driven across a Bayside lawn and crashed into a tree, today was fined $75 by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Cpl. Joseph Masse pleaded guilty to the charge — laid after an OPP cruiser discovered the accident five hours after it happened.

OPP constable W. O'Hara said Masse needed 11 stitches for face cuts after the mishap December 23. Masse, who lives at 14 Jones Creek, was treated at the Trenton air base hospital. Masse reasoned he hadn't called police because he was injured.

"How did he get to the hospital?" asked the magistrate.

"I don't know sir."

The accident happened about 11 p.m. and was discovered at 4.30 a.m. by the crew of a passing OPP patrol car.

A Rising Star

We shall have to wait for the Ottawa pundits —perhaps The Ontario Intelligencer's own Richard Jackson of "Ottawa Offbeat"—to explain to us all the inferences which can be drawn from Prime Minister Lester Pearson's shuffle of his cabinet.

Meanwhile, only one point of importance is clearly self-evident—that Hon. Guy Favreau of the riding of Montreal Papineau has been given increased responsibilities.

Mr. Favreau's first portfolio was the ticklish one of citizenship and immigration, the job from which Hon. Walter Harris rose to be finance minister of the St. Laurent Government. When Hon. Ellen Fairclough held it during the days of the Diefenbaker Government, she often found herself in hot water as she time and again was faced with the task of choosing between the letter of the law and what many Canadians felt ought to be its spirit. Mr. Favreau appears to have been more fortunate during his tenure of office—he did not have any new sailors without a country, White Russian language teachers or Chinese mothers with Canadian-born sons to plague him. Still, he tidied up a lot of red tape and generally cleaned house in a manner which caused eyebrows to raise and tongues to wag.

Here was a man, said the political gossips, who was performing above his expected potential.

Mr. Pearson appears to have shared the opinion, for Mr. Favreau is the new leader of the House, succeeding that scrappy fighter from Bonavista-Twillingate, that disciple of Mackenzie King, Hon. J. W. Pickersgill. Moreover, where Mr. Pickersgill had the sinecure portfolio of secretary of state to go with his delicate task as House leader, Mr. Favreau will undertake the additional duties of Minister of Justice, a position which in the Diefenbaker Government exercised the talents of the capable Hon. Davie Fulton.

It looks as if Mr. Favreau has had quite a load placed on his shoulders. Yet there is speculation in some quarters that this is no more than a workout for future chores. Mr. Pearson may be grooming him not so much for the role of the new Louis Laspolion, a Quebec lieutenant, as the future new St. Laurent.

Canada may yet find itself in dire need of a French-Canadian federal politician who has earned the trust of English-speaking Canadians. It may be that only such a man will be able to avert a disastrous split. Mr. Favreau has already shown his courage. Speaking as a Quebec citizen and a father, he has supported the Lesage Government's bill to create a ministry of education and thus remove education from domination by the church. He has thus proven that he is in step with the new spirit abroad in Quebec, yet his allegiance to the idea of Confederation is unquestioned.

Mr. Favreau is a big man; the trouble is he may have come on the scene too late.

Retribution for the Watutsi

Ruanda-Urundi has become Rwanda and Burundi and the Watutsi have been transformed from the oppressors to the oppressed.

Most people who have read any books about Africa, or seen any films, are familiar with the Watutsi, though perhaps the name does not ring a bell. They are those mile-high warriors with the haughty mien whose mere-mention love to show waving their long spears in earth-shaking dances. Though dark-skinned, their features have a cast which suggests that they are not of Negro stock, but perhaps are descendants of the people of the ancient Pharaohs. Their stature, with seven feet commonplace, their warlike habits and their inclination led to them lording it over the smaller, meeker Bahutu tribesmen and there does not seem to have been much done about it by the nominal white bosses, of late years the Belgians under a United Nations trusteeship. But the winds of change have swept the Belgians away and the Bahutu, perhaps out of sheer fright at being left to the not-so-tender mercies of the Watutsi, have suddenly struck back at their age-long persecutors. Thousands of Watutsi men, women and children have been massacred in Rwanda.

Some may find in this additional reason to deplore the manner in which the white man is laying down his task of keeping peace over lesser breeds without the law. Such people are asking the impossible. There is bound to be some retribution. The significant thing is that today such things are news, while for hundreds of years similar occurrences were accepted as routine.

Nothing the black man is doing in Africa today begins to equal in ferocity and in scope what the white man did to other white men in Europe during the years of the religious wars following the Reformation.

Tory People-Eaters Find Toronto Not All Beyond

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Seems like the rebellion in the Conservative rank and file that was supposed to have followed the palace revolution in the party's Cabinet Command has turned out just as most professionals who keep tabs on such things figured out all the time that it would.

All those well-publicized plans to scalp John Diefenbaker as leader now pretty plainly appear to have been carefully confined to a few high-spirited young Tory bucks in the outer circles of the party's camp fires and to that strange tribe of Conservative "people-Eaters" who pitch their political tee-pee in and around Toronto-Metro.

The term "People-Eater" is a good and sharply pointed descriptive once used by former Liberal Air Minister, now Senator, C. G. "Chubby" Power, to aptly define that certain cannibalistic element in the Conservative executive echelon that, ever since the days of former Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, has seemed always to devour and destroy the party's leaders.

One by one from Bennett through a long and successful succession to George Drew, the Conservative chieftains have been consumed by the party's "People-Eaters."

EVEN GIRTS AGHAST:

What they all set to butcher and parboil Dief, but in such frantic attempts to carve him up all they actually succeeded in doing was cut their party down and out of Federal power.

When the Tories were in the West and the Maritimes closed ranks around him, the "People-Eaters" shied away from him, suspecting they could scalp him only at the price of tearing the party apart.

So what was really never more than a very amateurish conspiracy has died aborning and the chances now of leadership convention in the near future are zero to zilch.

As Dief has said: "... why should there be a convention when there's no vacancy ... and as you can see, there's no vacancy at the moment."

Even the Liberals were astounded at what the young Conservative bucks and the old "People-Eaters" were attempting.

For only recently, the director of the National Liberal Federation, Senator Keith Davey, Prime Minister Pearson's Right-hand Organization Man, said it was an "incredible spectacle" to see certain Tories scheming to belch Dief's head.

Mr. Davey noted that in 1958, soon after the Liberals chose Lester Pearson as their leader to gain, he suffered the greatest, the most utterly calamitous defeat of any leader in the party's history.

But cut him down, assassinate him, give him the axe, the Liberals "No," said Keith Davey with understandable satisfaction, "we're not that kind of people."

A WINNER:

"We stuck with LB. Sure he lost, badly, but we figured he turned out. But we figured he could win. And he did."

With Dief, the Conservatives don't have to "figure" he can win. They know it. He proved it. As the greatest vote-getter in servative or Liberal, has proved it, with that ever-astonishing 208-constituency win of 1958.

And he did, after 22 years of exile in the political wilderness, lead them to the promised land of Federal power.

For those achievements alone he deserves nothing for in politics, nothing succeeds like success — John Diefenbaker is the man with the Tory party's confidence. Ask Keith Davey—he knows how hard winners are to come by.

So, regardless of whether there is a secret ballot on the leadership at the party's annual pow-wow — and such a vote is extremely unlikely — on whether there is a stand-up, back-counted resolution of confidence, Dief will still be tribal chief when it all is over.

The impatient young bucks and the ancient "People-Eaters" of the Tory tribe could almost have been expected to have known that from the beginning.

They didn't have Stratford's Jay "Waldo" Monteith, or Oshawa's Mike Starr, or PEI's Angus MacLean, or Manitoba's Gordon Churchill or any other of the warriors with them who had fought beside Dief through the long and hungry years before '57.

And they should have known that Toronto is really just a big city in Ontario and not the brain nor even the heart of Canada.

Code on Sea Outperforms Code on Land

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Short of a miracle," said a friend of mine who is an ardent sailor, "there is no way to avoid the next, and last, war — and that's to put everybody in boats."

"What's the joke?" I asked, a little impatiently. Gags about the next war don't exactly leave me heaving with laughter.

"No joke at all," he answered. "I'm perfectly serious. People on water are entirely different than people on land. The noblest code ever devised by man is the code of the sea.

"How often nowadays is it promulgated — although a sailing-man needs no prompting to talk about his code.

"A few weeks ago," he explained, "when that Greek liner blew up off the Canaries, every ship in the vicinity came to it help — an Argentine freighter, a British steamship, and whatever craft of other nationalities that happened to be in the neighborhood.

"Nobody cared which flag the Greek liner was flying, or that the passport and visa lists were composed of English, Irish Greek, German, and Italian. Nobody needed a passport to get helped — all they needed was to be in trouble."

"What makes the code of the sea so much nobler than the code — or lack of it — of the land?" I asked.

"It's quite simple," he said. "At sea, everyone is a natural ally against a common enemy — the elements. The fraternity of sea-going people is so strong not because they are better people than those on land, but because their aggressive energies are drained off in fighting the winds and waves, the icebergs and the reefs, and the dangers they share together.

"This is the only thing that will unite people, for a time, at once. "On land, we acquire a false sense of security. We think we are safe and insulated from catastrophe — except for an occasional explosion or fire or landslide or flood. And at these moments, of course, land people become just as courageous and cooperative as sea-farers. But that mood does not last long after the incident. We forget awfully fast."

"Let's take to the boats then," I suggested.

"It's not so funny," he replied. "We have to realize that the whole world now — land and sea both — is a stormy ocean, and all of us are rocked by violent and dangerous waves. In fact, we're all in the same boat, and some are drilling holes in their section of it, as we came out of the water — and it's possible that the only way he will survive is to go back in it. Know of a good ark for sale?"

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 22rd, 1944.

With the turn of the year and through the reason of ice hooses becoming depleted of last year's pack, local dealers are again preparing equipment for the saving and storing of next summer's ice supply. Smith Coal and Ice Company, which with Culligan's, supplies the majority of the needs for the city, today indicates that a start on the annual harvest was expected to be made next week.

Sub-zero...temperatures of a week or so ago served to create a depth of ice on the Bay of Quinte, there being approximately twelve inches of good-clear ice in the area ordinarily used for ice cutting purposes. The almost complete absence of snow this season has resulted in there being absolutely no snow ice which normally is evident in other years.

The Belleville General Hospital is included in the recently released list of hospitals published by the American College of Surgeons, which shows full and provisional approval by that College for the year 1943, as revealed through the annual survey, which was concluded in December.

The list of approved hospitals in the United States and Canada was officially released at the annual meeting of the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons, which was held recently. The listing indicates hospitals of 25 beds and over which have complied satisfactorily with the minimum requirements that assure the best care of the sick and injured.

January 23rd, 1934.

The golden jubilee of the Belleville Corps of the Salvation Army is to be celebrated commencing February 3rd and lasting until February 6th, and extensive arrangements are being made for the event. Commissioner Sturgis Feridrich, of Toronto, will conduct the jubilee campaign. Mayor George O. Fox will preside at a citizens' mass meeting to be held on Sunday during the jubilee activities.

Eighty members of Belleville branch of the Retail Merchants' Association are expected at the dinner meeting of the branch which was held at the Y.M.C.A. last night. Clarence Hanley presided, assisted by Mr. R. J. Wray, the vice-president; J. E. Logan acted as secretary in the absence of Will Doyle. The meeting went on record as being favorable to daylight saving time, and a special grievance committee composed of J. E. Logan, H. Clarke Hanley and G. Tyndall was appointed to act in certain emergencies whereby grievances which may arise to the attention of the proper authorities. Special speakers of the evening were R. Frame of the parent organization, Toronto, and Mr. Jupp, of the Brantford branch of the Retail Merchants' Association, Toronto. Vocal solos by James Hankfer and orchestra by the quartet composed of Harry Moorman, J. Arnold Thompson, Alfred Evans, and James Balzer added much to the enjoyment of the evening. Leo Riggs acted as accompanist in his usual pleasing and capable manner.

Mr. Charles Samuel, of Coe Hill, reeve of Wollaston township will be warden of Hastings County for the year 1924; he was unanimously elected at the opening meeting of the first meeting of the council at Shire Hall.

The Chamber of Commerce and the City Council have arranged to hold a joint banquet at which the members of the county council will be present. The banquet will take place at Hotel Quinte on Friday evening. Dr. Bruce Taylor, of Queen's University, Kingston, will be the guest speaker.

Fish Flour Defended

Charlottetown Guardian

While exporting it to numerous areas should under-developed nations, the United States continues to ban the sale of fish flour at home. The reason, as given by the food and drugs administration commissioner, George P. Larrick, is that fish flour is repulsive and unpalatable.

This has stirred the wrath of Senator Douglas, an Illinois Democrat who challenges the commissioner to defend the esthetics of other food available in the United States. You can buy rattlesnake meat in cans, h. points out. You can get chocolate covered baby bees and grasshoppers. Fried caterpillars are canned and sold as a delicacy. Beetles are admired by some. Or take caviar—it's the eggs of sturgeon, and much esteemed. Oysters and clams are eaten raw, digestive tracts and all. And so are snails.

Why, then, Senator Douglas demands, not fish flour which is demonstrably nutritious, palatable easier on the eyes than ants, squid, silkworms and bird's nests and pure substance that is very high in protein value, and can be seasoned to suit the palate. If it were a scarce foreign commodity, instead of a cheap home product, perhaps it would make just as snobbish an appeal as fried spiders or rattlesnake meat.

Warning Signs for Migraine Sufferers Can Be Useful

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have never seen a doctor about a migraine sufferer who complained of the "warnings" such as zigzags lights in the vision, or blind spots, or numbness in one hand or the mouth, or inability to think, or severe depression. These are all very frightening. Are these sensations uncommon? — Mrs. W. H.

No, they are not uncommon at all. They are called aura.

They may occur singly or in any combination, and may be quite different. Each person will, however, keep his own aura or "warning signs." You will find these warnings discussed in my booklet, "How To Tame Headaches." Anyone may have a copy by sending 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

To most migraine sufferers, once they understand the facts, these warnings are very useful. Taking the proper medication (usually ergotamine tartrate in combination with caffeine) at the when the warnings first appear will ease or even prevent the impending migraine attack.

Yet after the headache itself has started one of the worst "head ache" phase (i.e. vomiting) has occurred, it is too late to expect this medication to help you. You then have to let the migraine run its miserable course.

In your case, apparently, the warnings are extremely unpleasant in themselves. I know of no medication which will prevent the warnings from occurring. But I do suggest that you start keeping a "headache diary" very similar to the diaries which are often so helpful to people with food allergies.

Invest a dime in a small notebook, and keep a record of the date of each migraine, along with any other facts that may be pertinent. There are many things which can trigger migraines. It may be food, excessive fatigue, menstruation, anger, or (quite common) a period of pressure because you have a great many things to do and it bothers you because you want to get all of them done as perfectly as you wish.

There may be some other upsetting factor, quite unlike those I have mentioned. But anyway, with each attack, write down as much as you can about the things you have done, your emotions in the time preceding the attack. Gradually a pattern will tend to appear, and you will get an idea of what to avoid in order to prevent the whole trouble from recurring.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any 35 cents per pound, chickens 75 cents to $1.40 per pair; ducks $1.50 to $2.00 per pair; turkeys, limited supply, 25 cents per pound.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to deepen the voice, I don't know of anything that — some boys' voices "change" later than others. But if you really mean to strengthen or project the voice, to learn to speak out more loudly — perhaps, you can do something. But it's not a matter of learning a few lessons from a voice coach (maybe there's a dramatic coach at school) can give you some pointers.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother, in her early 60's, has had arthritis for two years now in her hip and leg. She suffers on some ex pain but is very sore and stiff. Why is this? I always thought arthritis was painful. Do you suppose she has something other than the different kinds of arthritis? — E. V. B.

Arthritis may be either mild or severe. It may be quite painful or it may manifest itself principally in stiffness of the joints.

Yes, there are different kinds of arthritis: Rheumatoid, osteo-arthritis, gouty arthritis and others. A decline in stress whether your mother has arthritis or something else, but I will say: Merely assuming that aches and pains are arthritis isn't the best policy. When you find out for sure it is causing a chronic pain or lameness, many times it turns out to be something that can be readily corrected.

Insurance Made Costly

Detroit Free Press

While boarding a Great Lakes vessel at Superior, Wis., one of its crewmen took a tumble, fractured a shoulder and some ribs. Subsequently a jury awarded him $54,000.

That seems pretty lavish for the injuries, though permanent impairment may be borne in mind as well as medical costs and lost pay.

Be that as it may, the plaintiff had once owned the vessel owner for $50,000. The jurors gave him $4,000 more than even he thought his broken bones were worth.

Probably the jurymen would rationalize if some other way, but if they were typical of a lot of today's jurors their reasoning ran this way.

The defendant is insured. Not he but the insurance company will have to pay. Insurance companies have more gold than Fort Knox. Let us take advantage of an opportunity to make our hearts feel warm by handing a bundle that's a prosperous sum of somebody else's money.

Now of course insurance companies do have a great deal of money. But they wouldn't be around long if more than a few of them did't take in more than they pay out. And this makes the nibs responsible for a contributor to what it costs you to live.

That makes him seem rather less like a jolly Robin Hood.

If you own an automobile, you pay for his untrammeled magnificence directly. Your insurer has to charge you enough to take care of the premiums that your car may hurt somebody, and that a jury will award him far more than his injuries call for.

It isn't only how many people get killed or badly hurt by cars that regulates the insurer's premiums. It's also how much he must pay to settle the victims who suffer relatively little disrepair, but are compensated by jurors as if they had been killed or gravely maimed.

At the supermarket checkout (among an assortment of places) you pay indirectly for this juror attitude.

That raises the cost of the policy. Insurance premiums have to be included in the price tag of doing business, and those costs are covered by the prices you pay at the checkout.

We can't suggest a way to halt this epidemic of lavishness in jury rooms, and the problem is probably just going to have to go on bearing its burden. If there is any solace it is that the reckless juror is soaking himself along with everyone else, even though he doesn't understand how it all works.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Sinart E. Rosenberg

Without empathy, we never become fully human.

The simplest way to explain empathy is to describe what happens to us when we engage in or observe an athletic event where the body is involved. Actually much more than the body is involved whether we bowl or watch someone else bowl, play football or see a game from the stands. The bowler sways in the direction he hopes the ball will roll, as if to influence its course with his bodily motion. People in the grandstands watching a game of football, heave with the forward motion of the line, swing their own hips with the runner, as if they were themselves helping the teams to win.

CARRIED AWAY

In virtually all true artistic experience, empathy is also present. If the individual is to experience an artistic feeling, he must, in some way, identify as well as communicate with the object. This is why people are "carried away" by music, or "moved to tears" by the beauty of a violin, an actor's performance, or a colorful and dramatic sunset. Aristotle taught that a dramatic tragedy purges the soul of the viewers because the tragedy is "enacted on the stage of his soul" as he watched it on the real stage.

But the way in which we converse in parties the most telltale way in which to gauge and understand how empathy works. In every good conversation, where there is real dialogue, empathy is present. Our conversation must take something out of us if we are to enter the very heart of the other person. If we are to be successful in truly meeting another human being, we must be able to "walk with him along the very deepest chambers of his soul."

IMPERSONAL COGS

Alfred Adler, the eminent psychologist, got to the very core of the meaning of empathy, when he wrote:

"Empathy occurs in the moment one human being speaks with another. It is impossible to understand another individual if it is impossible at the same time to identify one's self with him. If we seek for the origin of this ability to act and feel as if we were someone else, we can find it in the existence of an inborn social feeling. It is an inescapable characteristic of being a human being" or

If we meet other people merely as "its", as impersonal cogs in a gigantic wheel of life, we never really know them. Only when we can address them intimately, as an "I" speaking to a "Thou", is there a possibility of entering into their lives and of establishing a sense of interrelatedness.

WANTS VETS INCREASE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The national president of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association said Wednesday he will ask the federal government for a 33 - per - cent increase across the board in all veterans' pensions. Jack Lundberg, here for the annual meeting of the British Columbia provincial command, told a press conference that the increase would put 60 per-cent pensions to $2,800 a year.

Correspondent Tipped Police On McDonald

TORONTO (CP) — Correspondent Vivienne Jones of The Telegram told Wednesday how she tipped police that John Frederick McDonald, 46, of Newmarket, Ont., a friend of hers, might have been the man who abducted 10-year-old Thomasina Baker.

Inspector James Harris of the provincial police, who headed investigations that led to McDonald being sentenced in Barrie Tuesday to life imprisonment for slaying Thomasina, said Mrs. Jones' information was the first indication police received that McDonald might be the man they were seeking.

"Her information, and other information we obtained when we checked it out, eventually led to McDonald's arrest," he said.

Mrs. Jones, correspondent for Newmarket, said she had known McDonald for about a year, often drinking coffee with him in a downtown restaurant, when she learned he was being held for shooting a Hamilton policeman.

"I was flabbergasted," she said, "but it was news and I went to work to get the story."

I learned he had been in Beeton at the time young Thomasina Baker disappeared (Aug. 19, 1962). I also found out that a car he borrowed had been towed out of a swamp in the Beeton area. It was beginning to make a pattern."

Mrs. Jones said she called police "and they moved fast."

Truck Driver Dies in Crash

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—An oil tank truck driver was killed today when his truck skidded on an icy road east of Millbrook and landed on its roof in the ditch.

Extra Service In Beverage Rooms Helps

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hotel and Motel Association was told here Wednesday that uniformed waiters, extra service and light meals have given several beverage rooms a cocktail lounge atmosphere.

During the 1950s, consumption of beer dropped from 8.4 gallons per capita to 5.4 and wages and spending on goods and services rose about 90 per cent, Ernest Kneisel of Belleville said.

The beverage room now is frequented by white - collar workers whose tastes have improved with the job, he said.

A Sudbury hotel manager, David Caswell, told the meeting his company tries to create a cocktail lounge atmosphere in its beverage rooms and hot, pizza is served in some.

"We find we need the second or third beer just to put out the fire," he said.

peace-keeping police force. De Gaulle believed in direct alliances between countries rather than a collective system where each country yielded some sovereignty.

Pearson said French recognition of Communist China would cause some problems in the UN, especially on the question of the Chinese seat now held by Nationalist China. He indicated again that Canada wouldn't be willing to consider recognition of Peking as recognition involved acceptance of the mainland's authority over Formosa. The Formosans had the right to decide their own future.

Pearson noted also that de Gaulle is always very insistent" that Europe speak up loudly and clearly and not be drowned out by North America.

He said he detected some softening in the Soviet attitude on the question of allowing international inspection as part of controlled disarmament. He favored strongly any proposal that would help limit the spread of nuclear weapons and eventually eliminate them as part of an international agreement.

The president asked Pearson whether Canada would join the Organization of American States and the prime minister said he replied that Canada is still giving the matter careful consideration. He added with a smile that either the president or one of his advisers was "unkind enough" to remind Pearson that he favored Canadian membership in the OAS when he was opposition leader.

While the two leaders touched on world issues, cross-border economic issues appeared to give them most concern. Pearson raised the issue of the proposed U.S. tax on foreign securities still before Congress.

Johnson raised what U.S. officials have described as the "discriminatory" Canadian move to increase the withholding tax on certain U.S. - controlled companies which don't offer at least 25 per cent of their stock to Canadian purchasers. Pearson called this latter problem an "immediate" issue but he gave no indication whether his government plans any revision.

The idea of exploring the possibility of establishing special guidelines or principles to form the basis of Canada-U.S. economic relations was developed on the U.S. side last September and won immediate support by Canadian authorities.

But the more the Americans looked at it the more cautious they became. Some U.S. government departments don't like the idea of shaping special deals with Canada which could cause resentment among other allies. But Pearson at least got Johnson's agreement to explore the topic more fully.

In their communique they said they "appreciated that any such principles would have to take full account of the interests of other countries and of existing international arrangements." But they agreed it would be worthwhile to have the possibilities examined by a senior working body, which would make its preliminary report to the next meeting of the joint cabinet committee on trade and economic affairs next April.

As for the bilateral air arrangements, Canada has long maintained it is not getting a fair share of the North American air market, especially on continental trips to U.S. points originating in Canada.

American authorities had been reluctant to reopen negotiations on the grounds Canada did not have much more to offer in the form of lucrative traffic as an attractive swap for a bigger share of the U.S. market.

But Johnson decided that renegotiations should be undertaken "almost immediately, with a view to working out satisfactory arrangements on a North American basis."

Corporation Tax Assailed

TORONTO (CP)—F. S. Capon of Montreal, vice-president of DuPont of Canada, said today the corporation tax should be eliminated.

"It is harmful for our people, it bears heaviest on the lower income groups because it is highly regressive by nature, and government spending would be forthcoming through alternative direct tax routes at a much lower cost to the country as a whole," he said in a brief to the Ontario committee on taxation.

The bad incentive effects of this tax and direct costs of enforcing, complying with or evading it cause waste and extravagance, he said.

Big Grant Made Trent College

PETERBOROUGE (CP) — A special provincial grant of $158,000 has been made to Trent University toward the purchase and renovation of its arts and administrative centre, Education Minister William Davis announced today.

The grant has been made from a fund set up by the province to assist universities in renovating temporary quarters.

Plans call for the construction of a $100,000 science wing to begin shortly and for the renovation of the present building to equip it as the arts and administrative centre of the university.

Medicare

paid would be set by the doctors and the premium rates for standard physician-care outlined in the bill would be set by the insurers.

Committeeman Chairman J. Gerald Hagey was asked outside the hearing if he felt the committee was prevented from advising changes in the bill's basics by terms of reference saying it could discuss matters "consonant with" Bill 163's principles.

He said the committee had been told by Health Minister Dymond that its job was to "put flesh on the skeleton" — fill in details around the basic principles of Bill 163.

But Dr. Hagey and other committee members have said that their hands are not tied by any prior decisions on details of the plan. The chairman made a special announcement Wednesday to describe as inaccurate a report indicating the committee had decided the maximum premium for the standard plan, to be set for the first two years by the government, would be $180 a year.

"This has not been established," he said.

However, the $180 figure probably is not far off the initial maximum under which commercial and non-profit insurers can set varying premium rates based on risks.

Committeeman Carman Naylor, a London Life Insurance actuary, said insurance companies have safeguarded the maximum premiums for the standard physician-care plan should be about $180 for a family of three or more, $70 for an individual.

Just how the insurers will fulfil the government's intention of competition beneath the maximum is unclear, but it could take the form of competing in benefits. Bill 163 does not bar an insurer from offering plans with benefits greater than those outlined for the standard plan —"necessary professional services of a physician, wherever rendered," with a list of exceptions such as periodic checkups.

But there will be some form of co-operation among the insurers in sharing the risks of at least the high-cost elderly and chronically ill subscribers.

Bill 163 says all insurers will be organized into a body called Medical Carriers Incorporated. But details are sparse on MCI's role beyond saying it will set maximum premiums after the first two years and each member will pay an assessment in proportion to the number of its subscribers "for the operation of the corporation."

However, committee members made clear Wednesday that risks will be at least partly shared.

"There will be some type of statistical averaging so all carriers across the province will be expected to carry a reasonable load," said W. S. Major, general manager of Physicians Services Incorporated. He added that non-profits service plans have been negotiating and have decided they can work along with the commercial indemnity insurers.

Mr. Naylor said MCI will "operate a pooling arrangement" whereby all carriers together will bear the high-cost risks.

Essentially, Bill 163 as it stands is unlikely to change the pattern whereby more than half of Ontario's residents purchase medical insurance now.

The chief feature of the bill is that the government will purchase insurance for people judged to need help and pay part of the premiums. Others needing assistance. These groups are not identified precisely and the Bill makes the government responsible for the decision on who needs help.

Dr. Dymond has estimated the cost of buying insurance from taxes will be about $30,000,000 annually, which would make the government the largest single purchaser of group.

The fact that taxes will pay the premiums of an estimated 10 per cent of the population and contribute to the premiums of another 15 per cent indicates finally balanced co - operation will be needed between the government on one hand and on the other the insurers, who set the premiums, and the doctors, who designate the benefits.

Miss Taylor and Burton flew here from Mexico Wednesday. They are to go to Toronto later in the week where Burton will open a pre-Broadway run in a modern-dress version of Hamlet.

They landed at Lee Angeles International Airport to be greeted by a seething, shouting throng of reporters. Airport police tried to form a circle around the pair, but microphones and cameras were pushed at them from all directions.

"Get me out of here," Miss Taylor said fearfully.

"Where is the way OUT?" said her fifth husband-to-be.

The Burton - temper flashed and he gave a sweep of his hand to a photographer who was pressing close. Irritated by a microphone before him, he snapped at a radio man: "Get that filthy thing out of my mouth."

The mob continued shoving and shouting through the long passageway to the parking lot, where Burton and Miss Taylor got into a limousine and sped away. They made one stop for martinis at a bar, then headed for the presidential suite at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

John Grant, 18, and James Alfred Scott, 20, both of Toronto, were passengers in a car driven by a 20-year-old woman who was injured.

Child Needs His Parents And Not So Many Toys

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — While we are working my little boy is with my mother and father. The trouble is that he loves his grandparents more than he does us parents. This hurts us so much that we don't know what to do.

He comes home every night as soon as we finish work; we rush to pick him up. There is always this or that which we bring him home to make him happy. He has all the toys that he can ever wish for and he never plays with them, only if I am there playing with him.

When I try to correct him my mother tells me, "Oh just let him be, no harm done." This is the case at all times: my little boy does whatever he wants, and if I punish him he goes to my parents, and I am in the wrong. What can we do to make my little boy realize that all we live for is him, and for him to become a good boy and love his parents the way we love him? — LOST PARENT.

DEAR LOST PARENT — Your statement, "He never plays with them (the toys), only if I am there playing with him" suggests the trouble. A toy will never make up for the time he doesn't have with you.

Without the love and fun you (his mother) could be giving him, your discipline is only something to resent. For these early years, give up some material things, give up your job, and give yourself to your most precious possession — your boy.

DEAR DORIS — Any suggestions regarding this type of situation: where a person is visiting another couple and the hostess makes audible remarks about her guest to her husband without even pausing to see if her guest is within earshot. One does not take offence when a remark is honestly and openly made, if one is allowed time to understand the meaning of such remarks. I find men as well as women guilty of such oversight.

Now the infuriating part is that these people often make remarks that are not true. How do you get across the fact that you find it most unpleasant and wish they would confine their conversation to some other time and place? So many sensitive people are hurt this way, and interfered with — how do you make it known? I always thought courtesy was first with guests. — HURT FEELINGS.

DEAR HURT FEELINGS — Such rudeness is inexcusable. But are you imagining some of this?

When we overhear a personal remark, we can do one of three things: ignore it; challenge it at once; or think it over. Suppose it pointed up a shortcoming we didn't suspect in ourselves? We seldom have a chance to "see ourselves as others see us!"

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Last year I got friends to phone this guy and fool around on the phone. I think he knew it was me.

But that is not the worst. Last summer holiday friends of mine phoned him and this really gave it away. He knew I had something to do with it. My friends and him had a big fight over the phone. I did not know that they had phoned him until the phone call had been made. Now he will pass me in the hall and won't say a thing to me.

All I want is for him not to know of the phone call. What shall I do? — GOING CRAZY.

DEAR GOING CRAZY — Since he was on the other end of that phone call, how can he help but know about it? All you can do is live it down by beginning to adopt more mature ways of communicating with boys.

Congregational Meeting

CANNIFTON UNITED CHURCH

The annual congregational meeting of Canniffon United Church was held on Monday, January 20th, in the church Sunday School room.

The business meeting was opened with prayer by the minister, Rev. P. Packman, followed by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Mr. Harry Pound.

The church treasurer's report was given by Mr. Manley Mitchell. Financial reports of the afternoon and evening units of the U.C.W. were read by Mrs. D. C. Brenton and Gladys Brenton respectively. The Mission-ary and Maintenance report, given by Mrs. C. Ellsworth showed a good response to the missionary work of the church.

Mrs. D. Milton's report for the C.G.I.T. and Mr. Harold Putman's report of the Hi C showed a successful year in both groups. Mrs. H. Pound gave the choir report.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RECORD

A brief resume of each group's activities during the past year accompanied the financial reports. Mrs. G. Brenton, treasurer of the Sunday School reported that the recently installed bus service had increased the Sunday School attendance to a record high.

The elder's, stewards, and trustees of the church were unanimously re-elected to their offices for the coming year.

Many phases of the church's work were discussed, and several recommendations were made to be presented at the next official board meeting.

The minister and his wife were thanked on behalf of the congregation, for their able leadership in the community; a vote, of thanks was extended to the floral committee, choir, caretakers and all others who contributed to the work and maintenance of the church.

Long Jackets Were Mostly Belted Close

A normal waistline prevailed. Long jackets were mostly belted close by Carosa, and molded by Enzo.

Beautiful pastel wool jacquards were used for molded belted suits. Their small geometric patterns were worked in turquoise and pink; rose and yellow; orange and apricot.

HATS PRETTY

There were pretty cocktail hats by Canessa. A pile of pink and lime pom-poms was worn on top of the head with a dress of lime gauffre silk. Black, back-tilted domes were either artichoke or covered with shiny cherries. Those last went with a navy bodiced white silk print.

Galitzine had little dash, compared to her former designer Fouquet. Her look was almost bulky after the trim, controlled look prevailing here. Blouse bodices and soft sashes didn't help.

Forquet had much the newer look and his colors were the palest of the pale—watercolor greens and blues, combinations of both, beige and ecru, white, and white combined with beige.

Loud Colors Highlight Cotton Show

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — The all-day versatility of sportswear costumes, many in loud colors and off-beat prints, highlighted the cotton fashion award show here Wednesday.

Full - length patio costumes covered matching shorts, swimsuits came with matching capes or coats in gay prints and sleepwear doubled as lounge wear.

Top award for the "most creative and merchantable use of cotton" went to a Montreal manufacturer, Canal Sports-wear, for a three-piece sport set in hot pink poplin with an overlay of white cotton fishnet on the bare-midriff bodice and on the shorts. The set was repeated on the pockets of a flared, wrap-around skirt.

FEMINITY SHINES

The award for the most creative use of Canadian cotton also went to a Montreal firm, Beatrice Fizes Inc., for a two-piece beach set of polka-dot satteen in shades of navy and bright green. The jacket had long sleeves with ruffled cuffs, and the ruffle—an indication of the season's return to femininity—was repeated at the neckline. The matching swimsuit had a halter neckline.

The two winners received silver trophies and $1,000 and $500 awards in cash.

HOUSED PEDLARS

At one time the Rotunda of the U.S. Capitol was used by pedlars to sell their goods because neither the House nor Senate would assume responsibility for it.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

I'VE ALWAYS LOVED CLOTHES

A recent widow writes for some advice, Reading her letter "I've always loved clothes." She finds that she must augment her income, somehow, and she would like to work in the fashion field. She is 45 and has a 16-year-old daughter. Her problem is common to any woman in middle life, who plans to reenter the business world after an absence of nearly 20 years. What can she do? What is she trained to do?

This lady's problem is a little more complex than the average middle-aged woman's as before her marriage she was employed as a receptionist. At that time her responsibilities did not call for any typing or shorthand and she has no business course diploma. She resists the idea of working in an office, but she would like to put her interest in fashion and her eye for color to work. Naturally, she asks how she can find a niche for herself in this highly competitive field.

Ordinarily I would be most skeptical of the average middle-aged woman's chances for success in the fashion field. But this reader has an abundance of energy, enthusiasm, and lots of common sense. She herself doubts if she will make it as a buyer, as she is starting so late, but she feels sure that she would be useful in the fashion department.

I suggested that first she try her wings in a smaller type of shop, where she will feel more a part of the "family." In a smaller store, she would gain all sorts of experience from ticketing and receiving the new fashions, right through whole process of stock-keeping, selling and markdowns.

POSITION IN SMALL STORE

Failing a steady position in a smaller store, she might try the larger stores, perhaps in a shopping centre, starting as contingent help during the busy season. This will give her a feeling for the work and all that it entails. Naturally, in a larger store, the discipline is more impersonal, which is perhaps a good introduction to a business career.

While she is trying out retailing, either on a part-time or a full-time basis, I suggested that she take a business course at night, as extra insurance. I have just received a letter objecting to this part of the plan, because she feels that such a course could have nothing to do with fashion. An organized sense of business procedures, however, is one of the requirements for a successful fashion operation. Aside from the fashion career, there are many interesting jobs which call for a knowledge of business. What about travel agencies, the complaint desk of any store, service positions in a public utility company? All these jobs, varied as they are, call for good judgment, patience, humor and common sense. And this lady has all these qualities, but she has always loved clothes.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers in care of this paper.

Judith, Countess of Listowel, Speaker at Canadian Club

"January of 1964 may well be the turning point in the history of the East African countries of Zanzibar and Tanganyika" stated Judith, Countess of Listowel as she addressed the Canadian Club of Belleville and District at their regular meeting held in Queen Elizabeth School last evening.

Lady Listowel the first woman political editorial writer in Hungary, who was introduced by the club president, Mrs. J. Forrester changed her previously announced topic to "Background of Recent Troubles in East Africa" in keeping with recent happenings there. The speaker illustrated her talk by the use of a large colored map of the continent of Africa, pointing out the troubled areas.

Having spent three months in Tanganyika in 1961 and three months again in 1963, Lady Listowel who is now writing a history of Tanganyika with the book to be completed this autumn is well aware of the turbulent conditions as they exist today.

BEAUTIFUL ISLAND

She described the island of Zanzibar, where she visited a year ago, as an exotic land with fairylike palaces of Arab architecture with beautiful Arab houses - a work of art. Here there is a population of 310,000 with one third Arabs and the remainder Africans. There is great resentment due to their making money out of slave trades. It took five lives to capture one slave as only one would reach the coast which as a result meant that in Tanganyika the population would have been 30 million instead of the present-10 million.

In the speaker's opinion, she felt that the Chinese Communists were not responsible for the revolts in Tanganyika as what they really want to do there is expropriate the big land owners and these are plentiful few as the land is owned by the tribes. There is practically no privately owned land as all land is held on a lease basis of 33, 66 or 99 years with the chiefs or councils having to agree to sale. The Africans have control in this country as there are only 3,000 European farmers. Communist expropriation would mean little, as there is no one to expropriate.

The Nationalists were basically the same up to 1959 as at this time few Africans were educated but as a result of the Second World War many of the young people were affected. The speaker remarked at this point that, "We owe an enormous debt to all missionaries for the magnificent piece of work they have accomplished in educating the natives."

BIRTH PLACE OF NYERERE

In compiling material for her most recent book on Tanganyika's history, Lady Listowel told of the trip to the birth place of that country's president, Julius Nyerere, who was born the son of a chief, in a little tribal village in 1922. She told of chartering a plane in order to visit the village and of the difficulty in making arrangements for same which was only a distance of 25 miles. From conversation with the natives there she was told that President Nyerere was born in a little grass hut in the shadow of the sacrificial stone, and as most natives are pagan he knew of nothing else until he reached the age of 12. At this time he was asked by another chief's son to accompany him to a White Fathers Missionary School. Here he learned as much in two years as one would normally in five.

RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP

In 1925 Sir Donald Cameron became governor and during six years 1,000 elementary schools were established but only sons of chiefs were permitted to attend these. Nyerere eventually became a prefect and even scored against the head master. In 1941 he received a scholarship to attend school in Uganda. Here the school was divided into what was known as the aristocrats and the commoners, the former being the sons of chiefs and the others having not a penny to their name and Nyerere preferred to associate with the commoners and through this association began to talk of the development of their positions in the world. They dreamt of a different kind of Tanganyika and he wanted other students to shoulder responsibility. They talked of their future and decided they did not want to remain as second class citizens with so many restrictions.

The speaker went on to say that Nyerere dreamt of forming his own political party but did not make much headway. He received some help from the former Governor Cameron which resulted in the formation of the Tanganyika Rifles, 1,100 strong.

RECEIVES DEGREE

In the late 40's many young Africans received helpful advice from the former governor. Eventually Nyerere was awarded a scholarship to enter Edinburgh University, Scotland and in 1953 was the first Tanganyikan to receive a degree. He studied politics and history and later, founded his own political party but there were many difficulties to overcome as there were no means of fostering publicity to entice new members, but through the use of the two railway systems in delivering pamphlets the party grew to 100,000 members. It was still feared that the country would not get its independence from Britain; but there was a change in British colonial policies when there became a joint interest of Europeans and natives. The Labor party of Britain introduced a new policy to enable the natives to develop their own country but Britain could not afford his which resulted in the possibility of giving the country its independence. Following a talk in mutual trust, Tanganyika received full independence in March of 1961.

Nyerere, upon learning that many members of his party were receiving sums of money decided to "clean up" the party and he resigned the premiership and went on a long political safari. In December 1962 he was elected President with an overwhelming 96 per cent of the total votes.

In closing the speaker noted that a very poor country like Tanganyika where the average annual salary is roughly $46, per person per year is bound to be open to corruption. The government feels that the Chinese can trade as long as they like without trying to undermine the present constitutional methods.

A brief question and answer period followed, after which Mrs. R. S. Marsh on behalf of the party expressed sincere appreciation to Lady Listowel for a most interesting and timely address with added thanks from the president, who announced the next meeting for Febuary 10 and reminded the members of the forthcoming ballet on January 29. Mrs. K. Bird presided at the piano for the opening and closing numbers.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

VON Plans 39th Annual Dinner Meet

Mr. Frank Follwell presided at the monthly meeting of the Victoria Order of Nurses held Monday night January 20th at the Y.M.C.A.

Afternoon. D. P. Boyle has been appointed as the member from City Council to attend V.O.N. meetings. Correspondence also revealed that due to pressure of work, Mr. Frank Murray has found it necessary to resign from the Board. The news was regretfully received.

The executive of the Trenton V.O.N. has invited members of the Belleville branch to attend their annual meeting on January 29th at Canterbury Hall. Miss Dorothy Connor, Miss C. Rook and Mr. L. Lynch will accept this invitation.

In a report from a recent V.O.N. Ontario meeting, it was learned that 18 V.O.N. branches extended their boundaries during the past year. Seventy-two per cent of the entire Ontario population is serviced by the V.O.N. nurses, and 36 of the Ontario branches charge $3. to $4. per visit. In the Homemaker-Nurse's Services Act, it was recommended that an increase be made in the fee paid to the nurse. The annual meeting for V.O.N Ontario will be held early in April.

ANNUAL DINNER

The 39th annual dinner meeting of the V.O.N. will be on February 3, at St. Columba Presbyterian Church. Dr. James Mellies and Mrs. Mellies will, and the St. Columba girl's intermediate choir will provide the entertainment.

The report of the nursing activities for December, 1963 showed that 861 visits were made to 177 patients. Medical and surgical patients were 42 percent of the caseload and 58 percent of the visits. Maternity and newborn were 24 per cent of the caseload and 42 per cent of the visits. Patients, other than maternity & newborn for Health Instruction only, represented 34 percent of the cases and 20 percent of the visits.

Homemade Rye Bread

by Mary Moore

We are receiving so many requests for the recipe for Homemade Rye Bread that I gave here August 27, 1962 that I have decided to repeat it in this column. I am ever so pleased about this for it means quite a few of you have taken up the gratifying hobby of making your own bread.

HOMEMADE RYE BREAD

1 package granular yeast,
¾ cup lukewarm water,
1 teaspoon sugar,
½ cup molasses,
⅓ cup lukewarm water (1 cup less 2 tablespoons),
4 teaspoons salt,
1 tablespoon caraway seeds (or less or more - or none at all);
2 tablespoons soft margarine or shortening,
2¾ cups sifted light rye flour (including residue in sifter)
6 cups sifted all-purpose or bread flour.

Into a little bowl measure the ¾ cup lukewarm water, add the sugar and sprinkle yeast over top. Give this one stir and let stand 10 minutes. Into your large mixing bowl measure the molasses. Measure the water in the same cup including any molasses that sticks to the sides. Add the salt, caraway, margarine and stir well. Stir in the sifted and measured rye flour. Stir in the risen yeast liquid. Now add 3 cups of the sifted white flour. Now the going gets harder for this is a stiff dough and it should be. Mix it as well as you can, then sprinkle your baking board with ½ of the remaining cup of flour and turn the dough out on it. Now knead it until it is satin smooth. I had three helpers to do this kneading so I got 400 punches at least. The more kneading the better. (Reserve remaining ¼ cup flour for last kneading.) Grease bowl, shape dough into ball, and put in bowl. Grease lightly and let rise. Mine required 3 hours to double and to become light. Punch down on floured surface with remaining ½ cup flour and knead until remaining flour is worked in. Mine got 100 pushes and kneads at this stage. Give yours more if you have the strength. Shape into smooth uniform loaf nearly as long as your baking sheet. Roll it under your palms to achieve a professional finish. Park diagonally on greased cookie sheet. Brush top with paste of 1 tablespoon cornstarch stirred into ½ cup water over heat until thick to achieve a hard crust. Let rise on the cookie sheet until doubled and light. Very gently brush with glaze before putting in the oven. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes or until done, brushing it once more with the paste at half time.

You should not attempt to increase amount of rye flour. These proportions are exactly right. This makes a perfect very large loaf of rye bread. Excellent for toast.

Hartnell Opens London Show For Summer

LONDON (Reuters) — Royal dressmaker Norman Hartnell produced a collection of mouth-watering clothes in ice-cream colors when he opened the London couture spring and summer showings here Wednesday.

Lime and sherbert - green linen, pastel - pink wool and cream silks were used for his classic elegance collection.

Smoothly feminine suits and coats had curved fronts, elongated into short stand-up collars. Suit jackets had wide, hooked or dropped shoulder lines and gently-fitting waists. Knee-length skirts were cut from an easy fit.

FIFTY YEARS OF HOSE — Model holds disjointed mannequin legs clad in stockings that represent 50 years of Canadian hosiery fashion. The multi-toned stocking on her shoulder (right) illustrates the various weights of nylon hosiery yarn used since its introduction. (CP Photo)

NEW STYLES IN NEW FABRICS — Pastel hostess gown from Montreal (left) and evening gown from Paris (right) have something in common — both contain man-made fibres. The print by Vail of Montreal is of silky Arnel surah, while the gown with matching coat by Jacques Griffe of Paris blends man-made Terylene with wool worsted. (CP Photo)

NYLON AT NIGHT — A new type of nylon tricot called satinette was specially developed for lingerie such as this nightgown. By special process of pressing fibres the fabric is given permanent polished smoothness. (CP Photo)

The Wonderful Fashion World Created by Artificial Fibres

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — At the 1889 Paris Exhibition, women saw the first man-made fibre—a silk-like material called viscose. The perfection of viscose, or "artificial silk," by France's Count Hilaire de Chardonnet began a revolution in textiles.

Viscose, or rayon, was first manufactured in Britain at the turn of the century. It came to Canada in 1925 when Courtaulds (Canada) Limited built a rayon filament plant in Cornwall, Ont.

The "wonder" fibres of today are manufactured from cellulose (viscose, acetate and Arnel) or from man-made chemical compounds (nylon, Orlon, Terylene). Cellulose is the fibrous substance that gives body to plants.

Rayon made life easier for the Canadian housewife. It was crease-resistant and relatively inexpensive. Today it is used for a variety of products from clothing to tire fibre, and is especially useful in "blends."

Blends are yarns made with two or more fibres, or fabrics woven with different yarns. Fabric manufacturers combine what they call the "talents" of different fibres to make superior products. Usually 65 per cent or more of a man-made fibre give fabric the "easy care" properties.

MOTHS AVOID IT

Acetate, on di-acetate of cellulose, was the second man-made fibre to appear on the market. Also a silky feature, it was first produced in Canada in 1928 by Canadian Celanese. Acetate gives fabrics a soft shine. It is easy to drape, strong, smooth and moth-resistant. It melts at high temperatures. Used primarily for wearing apparel, sheets and drapories, it is also a good "blend" fibre.

Twenty-five years ago the Du Pont company in the United States announced a new miracle fibre called nylon. It was created in the 1930s by an American chemist, Dr. Wallace Carrothers. Du Pont of Canada Limited opened a nylon plant in Kingston, Ont., in 1941. The first nylon slips worn by Canadian women were made from parachutes left over from the Second World War.

There are several different nylon fibres. Nylon today can be found in anything from delicate hosiery and lingerie to life jackets and automobile tire cord. Experts at Du Ponts Montreal offices say it has a "memory because of its elasticity. This is why nylon exclusively is used for hosiery. It bends when the leg bends, and goes back into its original shape. Nylon is "thermoplastic. This means it can be altered in form by heat, and set at a certain temperature level. This is how permanent pleats are made.

BUILDS UP STATIC

Nylon comes in several fabrics ranging from tricot (knit) to fun-like pile. Stretch nylon, used for swimwear and foundation garments, is nylon yarn coiled like a telephone cord. Nylon is lightweight, and crease, moth and mildew resistant. It is sensitive to heat, and tends to develop static electricity in a dry atmosphere because of its chemical properties.

Orlon belongs to a group of man - made compounds called polyacrilics. It has many of the same properties as nylon, and is known for its soft luxurious texture and ability to take dyes well. Sweaters, fluffy rugs and pile coats are made of Orlon.

Lycra, a new fibre manufactured by Du Pont, has a wide elastic range. It is a segmented or "spandex fibre that stretches like a watch-band.

Terylene was created in Britain in 1941. The first Terylene plant in Canada was built in 1954 at Millhaven, Ont. Canadian Industries Limited experts say it has an unusually high resistance to stretching and deterioration from sunlight through glass. It can be permanently pleated and is resilient (it sheds wrinkles) but hasn't the same memory (elasticity) as nylon. Terylene is used for stuffing in padded jacket, pillows, clothing, draperies and often in blends.

Tri-acetate of cellulose, better known to Canadian housewives as Arnel, was developed in 1954 in the United States. Trylan, also a tri-acetate of cellulose, is used for making carpets. Both are manufactured in Canada by Chemcell (1963) Limited.

Arnel experts say it is more static - free than other man-made counterparts. It isn't affected by dry-cleaning solvents and its reaction to water gives it the quick drip-dry qualities. Like nylon and Terylene, it is thermoplastic and can be permanently pleated. The "safe ironing" temperature is higher than for other man-made fibres, although good results can be achieved with an iron set as low as "wool." Pure Arnel comes in several fabrics. Some popular blends are Arnel and cotton, brushed jersey of Arnel and nylon, and Arnel and viscose flannel.

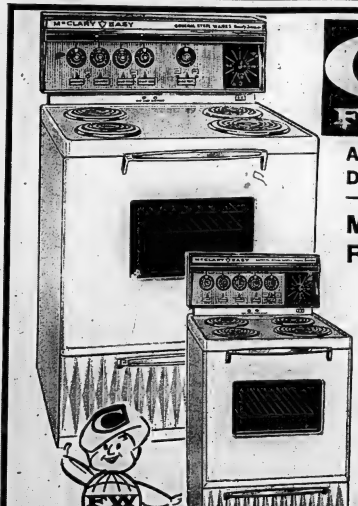
Chemcell farms 2,000,000 acres of British Columbia forests to make Arnel. Cellulose is extracted from wood chips and converted into sheets, flakes and finally into liquid form with the use of petrochemicals. The liquid is poured into a machine called a spinneret that employs roughly the principle of a apidaer's spinning apparatus. Warm air transforms the liquid into filaments through tiny holes. Spun together, the filaments make Arnel yarn.



REALLY MAN-MADE

While cellulose is found in nature, nylon is described by its makers as the first "truly" man-made fibre. Chemical compounds used to make nylon, Orlon and Terylene have no counterpart in nature.

A common misunderstanding, Du Pont officials say, is that nylon is made from "coal, air and water."

It's true that carbon, oxygen and hydrogen, used to make nylon, are found respectively in coal, air and water. But making nylon is another matter. It involves building up "long-chain" molecules synthetically. Chemicals are combined to make nylon salt which goes through a process called polymeriation — the formation of the long-chain molecules. The spinneret then makes nylon fibre.

One of the ingredients used to make Terylene is anti-freeze, CIL officials say. It combines with an acid to make the fibre that belongs in the group of man - made compounds called polyesters.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

TIMELY BOOK TO TEEN - AGERS

When Jimmie and Janie enter their teens, they enter a very sensitive phase of their lives.

They want to win approval among adults and contemporaries, but often don't know how to go about it. Frequently, they won't take their parents' word about how to dress and behave correctly, and it's at moments like this that a conscientious mother wishes she had an authoritative book to hand out giving the up-to-the-minute scoop on teen-age fashion and manners.

With the publication of "One Hundred Ways to Popularity," by Joan O'Sullivan (Macmillan, $3.95), such wishful thinking is no longer necessary. Written in a brisk, easy style, it touches all bases — from diet to grooming, to personality and manners and contains as many tips for the teen-age boy as for the teen-age girl.

One chapter, for instance, offers the oft-forgotten young man pointers on hair care and haircuts as well as how to shave and the most efficient techniques.

It also gives him some ready-made tips on things that girls admire in boys, which usually are learned the hard way, through trial and error. To make a courteous impression right from the start, Miss O'Sullivan offers such sage tidbits of advice as: "Don't make last-minute invitations. Give five to seven days' notice for a casual date; three weeks for a big prom. Don't break dates. Pick a girl up on time. Be pleasant with her parents. Make a neat appearance and don't try to make her house your headquarters.

If a girl wants to be popular, Miss O'Sullivan advises her to be feminine, not to keep her date waiting, not to keep calling him on the phone, and, as far as personal appearance is concerned, not to go in for "far-out" looks. Giggling, gossiping over-possessiveness, gold digging, flirting and nagging are other unattractive traits she warns about.

CHAPTER ON MANNERS

The chapter on manners is equally down-to-earth and, because she doesn't preach, Miss O'Sullivan states the case of courteous behavior far better than Mother could.

"Etiquette," she states, "couldn't be a more matter-of-fact word. What is it, after all, but a guide for making yourself socially acceptable, not at Buckingham Palace, but within your very own circle of friends and acquaintances."

In addition to tips on acceptable behavior at school, at table on the street and even at the teen-age banquet, she brings her carefully-aimed points close to home with reminders about etiquette in using the family phone ("It's not fair to tie up the wires or run up the bill for small talk"); the TV (Don't hog it!); the family car ("As a teen-ager you're low man on this particular totem pole"); and on lending a helping hand ("Be agreeable about tackling tasks assigned to you and occasionally surprise Mom by volunteering for a job.")

Charmingly illustrated by Archie Vassiliadis, "One Hundred Ways to Popularity" makes a timely and welcome addition to a teen-ager's library, and a workaver for mother since it takes "the word" right out of her mouth and translates it to the teen-ager in a winning, direct way he'll appreciate, enjoy and profit by.

No Need to Smell Rotten To Prove One Is He-Man

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The man I was engaged to left town suddenly and I was so heartbroken I refused to date for almost two years.

Recently I began to keep company with a man who works with me. He has rekindled my interest in the opposite sex. My father met Kermit for the first time last evening and he pointed out something that made me feel uncomfortable.

Papa said there must be something wrong with a man who "smells as good as Kermit does and wears nail polish — even if it is colorless."

Frankly, I like the pleasant scent that Kermit has about himself. It's after-shave lotion. I think his fingernails look very nice too.

Am I wrong? Is there something sissified or effeminate about a man who has beautifully manicured nails and smells good? — ANOTHER ANN.

* * *

DEAR ANN — A he-man doesn't need to smell like a stable-hand and have a half acre of soil under his fingernails to prove it. Kermit gets the nod from this Ann, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 16 and ready to make a reservation in The Old Ladies' Home. My life is ruined and I never want to see another boy as long as I live.

I will call the rat Troy because he looks like Troy Donahue. We started to go steady Labor Day weekend. Troy gave me his picture and wrote on it, "Love, forever." We exchanged sweaters, I. D. bracelets, I put a peroxide streak in his hair, he painted my name on the door of his convertible and we were like soldered.

I should have guessed when he gave me an 87c bottle of cologne for Christmas, but the cookie didn't crumble until he told me he had to take a third cousin out New Year's Eve — his mother's orders. I told him to come and get his junk, that we were through. His answer was, "Fine. Going steady is like being in jail. Good-bye Wanda."

What do you think of a skunk who would treat a girl like that after she gave him the best five months of her life? — RED EYES.

DEAR RED — Welcome to the Free World. The advantage of not going steady outweighs by far the advantages. What some teens mistake for social security in reality is social paralysis.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My brother Lanny is 23, a college graduate, and successful in business. He has always been my mother's favorite.

Last year Lanny began to see a woman about 10 years older than himself. She is vivacious, attractive and a good person so far as I know. When Mother forbade him to bring this woman to her home he moved into an apartment.

Since that time Mother has phoned every member of the family and asked that they urge Lanny to stop seeing this woman. Mother makes this the central theme of every conversation and we are all sick of it.

This morning my husband told me that the next time my mother starts in on Lanny he is going to tell her off and walk out. I am distressed over this. Where do my loyalties lie?—LUCINDA.

DEAR LUCINDA — Has your husband told your mother how he feels? If he hasn't he should — and soon.

If she still insists on making this relationship subject A in all her conversations he could then justifiably take that walk. And if you agree that an adult should be allowed to lead his own life, walk with him.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Unemployment Insurance, Labor Policies Discussed By Farmers at P.E.I. Meet

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture discussed labor policies Wednesday and immediately got involved in an old favorite — unemployment insurance for farm employees.

The federation decided to ask the federal government again to provide without delay" unemployment insurance for farm labor when it is requested either by farmers in a specified geographical area or by producers of any particular commodity.

The association also wants a study undertaken to determine the possibilities of applying unemployment insurance to employees of individual farmers on a voluntary basis.

Delegates told of efforts to hire employees that failed only because the farmer couldn't supply unemployment stamps. They said it put them at a disadvantage in competition with industry.

WANTS EXTENSION

Another resolution asked for an extension of the "dead season" in agriculture from April 1 to May 15 if the applicant can furnish proof he was available for full-time employment.

This one, pushed by Quebec where delegates said the "active season" in agriculture doesn't start until May 13, involves farmers who work off the farm in the winter season.

If they are collecting unemployment insurance as labourers, it stops April 1 since they are by then considered to be working on their farms and not available for hire as laborers.

Another labor discussion will result in an approach to the federal government in an effort to change National Employment office regulations dealing with migrant seasonal farm help.

Primarily, this would be a move to broaden work permits governing aliens who come into this country at seasonal times and improve conditions for migrant help moving from area to area within the country.

ASKS FIRM POLICY

In the transportation field, the federation wants a halt called to all railway line abandonments until a national transportation policy has been established.

It also wants police forces to provide for "adequate and efficient service" to meet the social and economic needs of the people; an overall rail rationalization study; and the establishment of a federal agency to direct the program of transportation rationalization in Western Canada.

Another resolution asked that money held to the account of a deceased person be released to the estate executors to pay operating costs of his farm or other unincorporated business up to 75 per cent of the available assets of $10,000, whichever is lesser.

The law now requires that when a person dies all his assets be frozen, including bank accounts. Delegates said this was hard on farms and small businesses where dealings are on a cash basis.

The federation said the amount of the accounts at the time of death could always be determined from bank records.

Socialist Paper Attacks Decision of France to Recognize Communist China

PARIS (Reuters) — The Socialist party newspaper Le Populaire today attacked the reported French intention to recognise Communist China as having been made at a "particularly inopportune" time.

A commentator for the newspaper argued that the French move faced both U.S. and Soviet opposition and was going to isolate France more and more in Europe and in the world."

The attack came on the heels of an announcement Wednesday by Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville to the National Assembly's foreign affairs commission that French recognition of Peking would be unconditionlool on .both sides.

He said it would not be accompanied by any demand by France to break relations with the Chinese Nationalist government on Formosa.

Commission sources said he also made it clear France would take no initiative to break with Chiang Kai-shek's regime.

(In Formosa, a source close to a meeting of any Chinese Nationalist party's central standing committee said it had unanimously reaffirmed its opposition opposing the "two Chinas" concept.

(But the source would not say unequivocably that the Nationalists would put diplomatic ties with France if France does recognize Peking.)

ISN'T NEW IDEA

Couve de Murville told commission members France's intention to recognize the Communist Chinese dated back several years but a decision was "suspended" because of the Indochina and Algerian wars.

In the Le Populaire article it was argued the French move had alienated Russia as it made it appear France sided with Peking in the dispute between the two Communist countries.

This, coupled with American opposition, had "the paradoxical result that a decision, right in principle and at any other time acceptable to everybody, is going to isolate France more and more in Europe and in the world," the article said.

Meanwhile in London, diplomatic observers thought the French move would improve Peking's chances of gaining a seat in the United Nations.

It was believed the recognition, expected within a week, may be followed by similar decisions if Peking shows 13 of Frazee's former African colonies.

WILL TAKE STEPS

The British-China Friendship Association said Wednesday it would ask the Conservative government to sponsor a motion this year for the expulsion of Nationalist China and the seating of the Communist regime in the UN.

The British Communist Party's daily Worker today supported the association's campaign. The small circulation British people read that "friendly relations are developing between a powerful anti-imperialist regime" like de Gaulle's and Communist China "they can only help to stabilize even more incomprehensible."

The French move brought sharp reaction in South Viet Nam. The country's advisory legislature, the Council of Notables, was reported to have asked the military junta to sever relations with France. Earlier in the week the South Vietnamese legislature unanimously endorsed a similar request.

Three Men Blown to Bits By Explosion

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Three men were blown to bits and tons of heavy machinery wrecked Wednesday when a large quantity of dynamite exploded at a rock quarry northwest of Miami.

Residents as far as Biscayne Bay and Miami Beach, approximately 13 miles from the blast site, felt or heard the explosion.

Frank J. Salichs, Maule Industries vice - president, said a drill rig was being set up to put charges in the ground when the concentration in the trucks was detonated. The cause was unknown.

The three were tre only men in the immediate area.

Downpour on Third Day Of Fair Did Little Damage To Receipts Meeting Told

A full day's downpour only lightly smudged the books of the Quinte district's biggest summer business enterprise — the Belleville Fair.

The rains came on the third day of the big August exhibition — when it appeared the show was well on the way to an all-time record.

The report of treasurer Earl Dafoe showed total gate receipts for the four days were $16,740. This compared with $17,400 for 1962. In terms of financial returns the setback was measured at $700.

While it meant a drop in receipts, board president Bob Phillips told the meeting at city hall, the actual results should not cause pessimism.

"The effects could very well have been disastrous. Instead the actual effects when measured in terms of a full day's business lost, were minor," he told the meeting.

GRANDSTAND UP

However, the slight decline almost took care of itself in the grandstand and bleachers.

An indication of how business was progressing toward the record was shown in the grandstand show receipts. Admissions were up over 1962, the patrons flocked to see the fair's stellar attraction — the RCMP musical ride.

Statistics show receipts at $6,000, compared to $5,560— an increase of slightly more than $400 despite the loss of afternoon and evening performances.

Statistics also reveal just how big a business the fair actually is, said Mr. Phillips.

And the prize list is the best indication of just how big is the presentation itself.

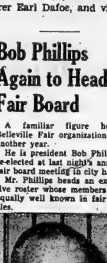
Last night's meeting was the signal to start work on this year's big event.



With its executive elected, its directors chosen, the board now begins the process of giving shape to that event.

Bob Phillips Again to Head Fair Board

A familiar figure heads Belleville Fair organization for another year.

Mr. Phillips heads an executive roster whose members are equally well known in fair circles.

BEN BLEECKER

Retiring from the board's "cabinet" as secretary Ron Isaac, whose time has become a premium and makes it impossible for him to continue on the fair's directorate.

One of the most popular appointments last night was that of Ben Bleecker, who was assigned a life directorship with the board. Mr. Bleecker, a Hallowy farmer, is one of the veterans of fair work, not only locally but throughout Ontario. Through the years he has established a province-wide reputation through his presidencies of Ontario fair associations. He has filled at one time or another, every post on the Belleville fair's executive.

There are only eight other life directors among the board's big membership.

Other officers of the 1964 executive elected last night are: Dr. Harry Burns, 1st vice; Cameron Bunnett, 2nd vice; Earl Dafoe, treasurer; Carl Thompson, secretary.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance was elected to the directorship, opened by Mr. Thompson's appointment as secretary.

SET COLD RECORD

Said the lowest ever recorded in nature, a rocket launched in Sweden registered 143 degrees below zero Centigrade at altitude of 56 miles.

Pearson, Johnson Encounter Produces Meeting of Minds

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister Pearsons first formal encounter with President Johnson produced such a strong meeting of minds that optimism about the future relations of their two countries is high.

Neither the Canadian nor the United States team anticipated this first conference would eliminate all problems or immediately usher in a new era of cross - border co-operation. As Pearson emphasized later, there are problems and there will be many problems in the future. But both sides made a determined effort to resolve them.

The Canadian government had been trying for more than a year to get the U.S. to renegotiate the Canadian-U.S. air agreement so that Canadian airlines may be able to get a larger share of the U.S. travel market originating in Canadian cities.

American authorities had been mixed kinds of argument why renegotiations could not begin but Johnson thrust that argument aside and agreed with Pearson that such negotiations should start "almost immediately."

SEEK TRADE GUIDES

The Canadian government had been seeking new and more elaborate machinery to establish guidelines in trade and other cross - border economic relations. Some of Johnson's advisers didn't like the idea of offering Canada special treatment that could cause resentment among other U.S. trading partners. The indications were that Pearson might receive nothing but discouragement in approaching Johnson.

Yet the talks paid off to the extent that the two governments set up a working body of senior officials to explore just what specific economic principles or guidelines might mean and whether they are practicable. This working body is to report its findings to the joint Canadian-U.S. economic ministerial conference next April.

The Canadian government doesn't like the proposed U.S. tax on foreign securities and the U.S. administration doesn't like the anticipated rise in Canadian withholding taxes to affect some U.S.-controlled companies next year.

The two administrations have differences on approaches to resolve their international payments deficits; on pricing of wheat for export markets; on policy affecting the production of automobiles and on trade with communist countries.

The two countries also have thrown up a lot of cross-border economic bridges in an attempt to resolve or eliminate frictions between the two neighbors. One of the last major bodies in this field was the development of the joint ministerial conference on trade and economic affairs.

This is made up of cabinet ministers from the two governments. They were supposed to meet to discuss and resolve areas of irritation before these developed into embarrassing public issues.

COMMISSION POSSIBLE

But Pearson believes something more structural and more permanent is needed. He has suggested a possible permanent commission or board that could develop a set of rules for economic co-operation that he intent to the close Canadian-U.S. economic co-operation that developed during the Second War.

This could mean U.S. acknowledgment that Canada needs to develop certain pilot industries for her own future strength and independence even though such industries already exist in the U.S.

It could mean that the U.S. would have to provide special tariff treatment for Canada, considering the size of the Canadian economy and vulnerability of the Canadian market to sudden changes in U.S. supply and demand factors.

It also could mean the chartering of a closer course of cross-border economic relations, though absent of any suggestions of a customs or economic union. Pearson says he doesn't know at this stage just how far the exploration may lead but he hasn't any economic union in mind.

ASSURE GERMANY

GENEVA (AP)—The United States assured West Germany Wednesday that President Johnson's five-point arms control plan will not interfere in any way with the proposed multilateral nuclear force of the Atlantic alliance. The assurance was given by U.S. disarmament negotiator William C. Foster to Gerhard Schmid, West German observer at the 17-nation disarmament conference here.

3 TV Actors Face Suit For Damages

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Three television actors were threatened with a damage suit Wednesday because they withdrew from a public appearance set for Feb. 1-2 before a segregated audience.

Lorne Greene, Michael Landon and Dan Blocker, all of the Bonanza cast, said they had been told there was no segregation at the site of the Mississippi commerce and industry exposition. They withdrew when they learned the audience would be segregated.

Lew Hutchinson, manager of radio station WJQS, sponsor of the exposition, said the three had been informed fully about seating arrangements.

R. E. Dumar Milner, chairman of the board of WJWS, said: "The action of these actors constitutes an unwarranted and inexcusable breach of agreement.

"We efforts will be spared to see to it that they are made to pay all damages suffered as a result of such action."

Greene, born in Ottawa, was for many years a CBC news broadcaster.

SMALLER SIDE

West Germany, with a population of 27,000,000, estimates East Germany's population at under 16,000,000 against the official figure of 17,000,000.

Bilingualism Question Becoming Little More Clear

OTTAWA (CP) — The moving spirits in the federal government's aspirations toward a bilingual Canada are beginning to define much more precisely what is meant by the term bilingual.

As applied to Canada as a whole, their aim apparently is that all Canadians be able to speak one of the two official languages and understand the second.

An exception to this appears to be the civil service where bilingualism is regarded as a working ability to speak and write in both English and French in the kind of work being done.

Prime Minister Pearson illustrated his view on bilingualism as far as the civil service is concerned in terms of a full day's business lost, were minor," he told the meeting.

GRANDSTAND UP

However, the slight decline almost took care of itself in the grandstand and bleachers.

An indication of how business was progressing toward the record was shown in the grandstand show receipts. Admissions were up over 1962, the patrons flocked to see the fair's stellar attraction — the RCMP musical ride.

Scientists Look to New President of Treasury Bd. For Assistance in Research

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's top scientists hope that creation of a new cabinet portfolio of president of the treasury board will bring about a more enlightened attitude by the board to the value of scientific research.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the government's decision to create the post at a press conference in Ottawa. It will be filled by Transport Minister McIlraith when Jegislation is passed at the coming session of Parliament.

Many government scientists—both at the executive and administrative levels — contend that the board's main objective in recent years has been to look for reasons why proposed expenditures on research should be rejected.

The board is a committee of five cabinet ministers appointed by the minister of finance. It has a staff of some 200 civil servants who advise it on new expenditures and how to save money.

NOT SYMPATHETIC

"The board does not look sympathetically at arguments in favor of a research project, especially if it runs counter to reduce expenditures," Dr. W. E. Van Steenburgh, deputy minister of mines, said Wednesday in an interview.

A similar argument was advanced by the Glassco royal commission on government organization. It said that top-level decisions for or against a research expenditure are made by board officials who "make no claim to scientific competence or foresight."

But government scientists say that the treasury board approach has helped create a serious situation in Canada. In some measure it had resulted in the loss of scientists to other countries, especially the United States, due to the attraction of higher salaries and better research facilities.

PAY TOO LOW

Dr. van Steenburgh said the migration of scientists must stop as long as Canadian salaries are far below those in the U.S. and research facilities are less attractive than those south of the border.

"Present scientific salaries in the government service are not high enough to attract the best brains from our universities and top scientists from other countries. Because salaries are low, the U.S. industry and the universities also are able to grab off our specialists after we have trained them."

Dr. van Steenburgh said that instead of following the U.S. in salary scales for scientists "we should be leading the U.S. and attracting the best brains here."

By adopting a niggardly attitude Canada was losing the brains it required for the development of this country.

Two Found Dead, Victims Of Sex Slayer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Martin, 43, chosen as Oakland's 1963 Mother of the Year, and the 19-year-old daughter were found dead in their fashionable 12-room home Wednesday night, the apparent victims of a sex slayer.

Police said it appeared that both women had been strangled and sexually assaulted.

Mrs. Martin and her daughter, Susan, were found lying face down, side by side on the floor, bound in a bizarre manner.

Police said Mrs. Martin's right shoe was missing and an investigation of the house lounged around her big toe and up around her neck so her foot was in the air.

The girl's shoes also were off and she was bound in a similar manner, with her foot in the air, with a nylon stocking. Both women's hands were tied behind their backs.

Mrs. Martin, wife of Dr. Frank H. Martin, an osteopath, was chosen Oakland's Mother of the Year by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Her husband was at his office when the bodies were discovered, police said.

Dealers Report Drop in Sales Of Cigarettes

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON (Staff) — "Have a cigarette" is a commonplace saying, at least it was until a few days ago when all the controversy started about lung cancer caused by cigarette smoking—now it seems like almost a dirty word.

To find out if the publicity, adverse or otherwise, had affected the sale of cigarettes in the town of Picton, we made a survey on Wednesday, and find that in most cases the dealers report about a ten percent drop in their sales of cigarettes.

"It is always like this," one dealer said. "When they raise the prices—or something like this happens—our sales drop for a while, but they always seem to bounce back again," he added.

One man told The Ontario Intelligencer that his sale of pipes and cigars had gone up almost as much as the sale of cigarettes had dropped, "there seems to be a tendency to switch to pipes and cigars, ever since it was so widely advertised that cigarettes did actually cause lung cancer.

One hardy individual this reporter spoke to said, "Hell, I've been smoking over a large pack a day for twenty years, and if I die from cancer tomorrow, I would not give up smoking."

Another character I bumped into said, "that recent expose really scared me, and I have given up smoking—that is before breakfast."

As for this writer, I give up smoking at least twenty times every day. I did give them up for a month or two, and put on so much weight I had to do one of two things—buy new, and larger clothes, or start smoking again, and the latter was the cheapest—and I must admit—the easiest.)

Some people claim that cigarette smoking gives you cancer—others usually the non-smokers claim it is a filthy habit—but for most of us I do believe, it is a method of quietening our nerves, but for whatever reason, there are a great number of people who will not stop smoking, unless they make it illegal, and even then some of us will "sneak a puff" when no one is looking.

Nice Weather Bringing Out More Speeders

PICTON (Staff) — The spring like weather we have been having in Picton has brought out two things — not flowers — —but speeders — it has also brought out another item — the radar set for the Police Department.

With the streets practically clear of ice and snow, the "hot rodders" or the ones with the "heavy right foot", have been having sort of a heyday but with the appearance on Wednesday afternoon of the police in the cruiser with those tell tale little horns poking out from the radar set, it is expected that some of the high speed driving on the town streets will stop.

"Business is pretty good", said one constable, who had just returned from a sojourn out on Main St.

Forewarned, is forearmed.

DRIVER KILLED

QUEBEC (CP) — Bus driver Lionel Tremblay, 48, of Chicoutimi Que., a father of 10, was killed and most of the 22 passengers aboard his Saguenay transport company vehicle were injured Wednesday in an accident on the icy hills of the mountainous Laurentian Provincial Park. The bus crashed into a trailer-truck that had jackknifed coming down one of the ice-coated hills. Tremblay apparently tried to swerve around the truck but there was no room.

Driver Made An Improper Left Turn

PICTON (Staff) — Only one case was heard as Magistrate T. Y. Wills held court here Wednesday morning.

The charge was laid by Provincial Constable Clare Graves after he had investigated a two-car accident on Highway 14 just south of Rossmore on January 3.

Damages to both cars was estimated at $650.

In commenting on the case, the Magistrate suggested that a charge of careless driving should have been laid", In that way, I could have suspended her licence", he said. "This was either a case of complete inattention to her driving, or gross miscalculation on her part, whatever it was, it could have been really serious", he added.

LASTS CENTURIES

Teak, an extremely durable timber, has been used in India for 2,000 or more years, and teak beams 1,000 years old have been found there.

Gazette Holds 'Open House' In New Home

PICTON (Staff) — It was "Open House" at the Picton Gazette on Wednesday afternoon, and many hundreds of people were conducted through the new plant, the first time the Gazette has owned its own "home" since it started publishing in 1830.

E. R. (Lindley) Calnan, Managing Editor of the Gazette, who has been in the publishing business for 43 years, took over as Managing Editor in 1931 from his father, A. E. Calnan, who held that post since December 1912.

A souvenir edition was printed and given to each person that attended the open house. The second page of this special section shows a full page re-printed from the Hallowell Free Press dated December 25, 1830.

The edition also shows the chronological listing of the town's early newspapers and the editors who published them from the inception of the Hallowell Free Press in 1830 until the present time.

Joseph Wilson was the publisher 1830-1833 at which time he went to Belleville and published a number of magazines there. The editors at the time were, W. A. Wellers, Hew Ramsay and Joseph Wilson, in that order.

The Picton Gazette derives its name from a shortening of the "Picton Gazette and Prince Edward General Advertiser,"

J. Herbert Hodgin was editor in 1911 and 1912, later becoming a feature writer and financial editor for Maclean's Magazine, and editor of "Mayfair" after serving in various editorial chairs at the Montreal Gazette.

A. E. Calnan started as Editor of the Gazette in 1912 at the age of 45.

Spelled Backwards or Not, Still Commendable Project

By EDDY COLLESTER

MONTREAL (CP) — The student council of suburban Town of Mount Royal High School has begun collecting funds from high schools across Canada in a move to help the underprivileged of Southeast Asia combat yaws.

They call the project S.W.A.Y. —yaws spelled backwards — meaning Students War Against Yaws, a disease which affects young and old causing skin eruptions which ulcerate.

"We've sent letters describing the project and the disease to some 2,000 high schools across the country," says Bert Kidd, co-chairman of the S.W.A.Y. committee. "So far we've received support from 25 schools."

The students got the idea for the project after reading a

D. W. Kidd, minister of the Anglican Church in the Town of Mount Royal, and another 16-year-old, David Caplan, are co-chairmen of the committee of five working on the project.

"We also got a lot of outside help," says Bert. "Some 25 to 30 people help with mailing letters and other things."

All the money raised will be turned over to the World Health Organization.

"So far we've collected $1,400," Bert says. "But next spring will show if the project is going to be a real success. That's when the students from most schools can tell if they can afford to contribute."

The students at Town of Mount Royal High School have raised money for the project through dances, car - washes, variety shows and other school programs.

"Over the Christmas holidays students made $630 caroling," Bert says.

The project calls for a donation of $400 a year from each school over a four-year period.

"We would like to get the $400 from each school.", Bert says, "but we'd appreciate anything."

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Minor Hockey Week in Canada" starts Saturday, January 25th.

Right across Canada, from Atlantic to Pacific, hockey men will pay tribute to the work being done for minor hockey.

Here in Belleville "Minor Hockey Week" observances will take place Friday night and Saturday under the aegis of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

Two games will be played Friday evening—and three games on Saturday. The schedule appears elsewhere.

Little Joe, John and Jerry will be out to show Mom and Pop what they do on the ice. And they'll play a lot better if they know the "folks" are in the arena watching them.

The dad who sends his boy to the arena usually tucks his feet under the chesterfield, sits back, turns on the TV, criticizes the commercials, then goes out and is not home when Junior returns from the arena.

He wouldn't know the scores of any of the lad's games —he has to bowl when the team needs an extra car to drive them to a game. All in all he has too much to do. By maybe Mom can go to the odd game and a lot of Moms do.

BUT—Junior's team is in the finals. Now we find the "fender" one of the first in the arena. First of all, why isn't the place heated? I'm going to see about it. Why don't they give the kids decent sweaters? The manager ought to be shot for letting them play with those crummy sticks. And if the coach doesn't put Junior back I'm going right down and do something about that. Who in blazes ever told him he was a coach?

But "Moms" are among the most versatile of creatures. Especially Hockey Moms.)

A Mother must possess the agility of a cat, the gentleness of a dove, the patience of a saint and the vitality of a stevedore. She is confidant, diplomat, critic—and defender.

A Mother is a paradox. When Junior is sitting on the bench she's hollering for more ice time. But when he's "bushed" she's ready to criticize the coach for overplaying him.

Yes, she'll criticize her boy's coach in front of all and sundry—but let anyone else do so and he immediately becomes the best coach in the league.

Flowers and trees and the smell of good damp earth are pleasing to Mothers, but they are completely unnerved by muddy tracks on newly scrubbed floors.

She'll scold Junior for tracking up the floors, then invite the whole team in for milk and cookies.

She'll complain to Dad about the inadequacy of the chopping money, then empty the fridge feeding the hockey team.

Many profound books on child psychology are read by Mothers, but when properly angered they have been known to spank first and reason later.

They like the smell of baking cookies and newly waxed floors—and small hockey players tracking it to eat the cookies.

Mothers seldom cry when they are sad, but tears fill their eyes when junior sends a frilly valentine, or heads the weekly scoring list in the newspaper.

Mothers get fed up with hockey "morning, noon and night." But just let Dad sleep in some Saturday morning.

He wouldn't dare!

GAMES ON TV

MONTE CARLO (Reuters)—The Tokyo Olympic Games will be televised throughout the world, Yoshiro Furukaki, former Japanese ambassador to Paris, said Wednesday. He said this would be made possible by U.S. communications satellites. Furukaki, president of the Jury of the International Television Festival, spoke at the opening of the festival.

Hodge, Habs Blank Leafs; Share Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Montreal Canadiens goal-tending job appears to be the sole possession of Charlie Hodge, journeyman who hardly figured in the team's plans when they traded Jacques Plante to New York for Gump Worsley.

Worsley was injured in the eighth game of the season, shipped to Quebec to recuperate and Hodge called in to fill the void until the Gumper returned to top shape.

But Worsley's still in Quebec and may stay there for some time. At least as long as Hodge keeps turning in the type of performance that has carried the Canadiens into first place in the National Hockey League.

Hodge capped two weeks of brilliant netminding Wednesday night when he blanked the Toronto Maple Leafs with 32 saves as Montreal pulled even with idle Chicago. Meanwhile, New York came back to whip Boston 6-4.

Two weeks ago the Leafs blasted Hodge 6-1 but in five succeeding games, he's allowed only four goals and has posted two shutouts.

TIED WITH CHICAGO

The Canadiens have picked up seven of a possible 10 points in those last five outings and have climbed into a tie for the top spot with Chicago at 53 points. The Canadiens get a slight edge, having played one game less than the Hawks and having last two fewer games.

It was all Hodge again Wednesday night as the Leafs stormed back from a two-goal setback in the first period to launch 13 drives at the Montreal goalie in each of the final two periods. But nothing stood between Hodge and his third shutout of the season.

Henri Richard's 11th of the year came late in the frame and Dave Balon's 18th closed the scoring in the second minute of the middle frame.

Goalie Don Simmons again was the victim of Toronto's third straight loss at home, leaving 14,023 fans disgruntled and the Leafs three points behind the league-leaders.

OVERPOWERED BRUINS

The Rangers were two goals behind after 1:23 of the game but came back with a strong third period to overpower the Bruins, who lost their first game in five starts. The win was New York's seventh in nine games and lowered their distance from fourth place Detroit to three points.

Phil Goyette and Rod Gilbert were the architects of the Rangers' comeback. Gilbert knocked in his 18th goal and set up three markers in the final stanza as the Rangers thrilled 14,006 rooters with four goals, two of them by Goyette.

Earl Ingarfield and Dave Richardson also scored for New York in the last period and Andy Bathgate notched his 13th to cut Boston's lead to 5-2 in the second.

Boston scorers were Andy Hebenton and Johnny Bucyk in the first period, Tom Johnson in the second and Bob Leiter in the dying minutes.

Four teams swing into action tonight with the Rangers and Canadiens colliding in Montreal and Chicago visiting Boston.

Picton Drops First In 20

PICTON (Staff) — Napanee Pringle's Falcons finally ended Picton Intermediate's winning streak in OHA Lakeshore Intermediate "B" action last night by stopping Dave Jones' crew 4-1 in Napanee.

The loss was the first of the year for Picton. They are also untied, having won 19 of their previous league games.

The Falcons, who have come close on several occasions, turned the trick in fine style last night. They took a 2-1 lead in the first period, protected that through a hard-fought and scoreless second, then wrapped up the win with two more goals in the final heat.

The contest was especially clean with both clubs going all out in a fast, sparkling exhibition of hockey.

Roger Smith was the scoring star for Napanee, triggering two goals. Dan McNeil and Pat Gilmour were the other goal scorers.

Picton meets Cobourg in two games next week, in Cobourg on Monday night and back here on Tuesday.

New Arena In Montreal 'Discussed'

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator Maryland Molson, president of Canadian Arena Company and the Montreal Canadiens, said Wednesday negotiations concerning construction of a new hockey arena in Montreal are in the "early discussion stage."

He said he was issuing a statement "following recent rumors" about such an arena. Robert Shaw, deputy commissioner - general of the 1967 Montreal world's fair, told a press conference Dec. 22 that talks about construction of a hockey arena at the fair site were under way.

Senator Molson said the city, his company and the fair organization "decided to enter discussions to see if the projected fair site location would meet their needs, "thus eliminating any duplication of effort and waste of money."

The Canadian Arena Company operates the 13,728 - seat Forum in Montreal as the home of the National Hockey League Canadiens.

Lots of Walk, No Ride

Innsbruck Tough On Spectators

By JIM BECKER

INNSBRUCK (AP) — As a spectator sport, the winter Olympics are not likely to run the World Series out of Yankee Stadium.

It will take a lot of luck and a good pair of legs to see anything at the games, which open here Jan. 29. And a stout resistance to chilblains.

Many of the sites in the nearby mountains can be reached only by bus or on foot. Private cars are barred from the roads.

Judging from rehearsals, once the buses start milling around there will be the greatest traffic jam since smog closed the Hollywood Freeway. The solution will be to walk, and up to a five-mile hike is called for at some places.

Spectators have their choice of stationing themselves along the course and watching skiers fly by one by one, or being in on the finish.

CAN BE COLD

Grandstands have been erected at the finish lines but the skiers are out of sight most of the time. Sitting in them can be cold work—the temperature hovers around 30 degrees in the sun.

Of course, hockey and figure skating are held in a cosy stadium. But all seats were sold months ago.

There has been much talk about possible ways to make winter sports more attractive to spectators. The way things are now — with skiers plunging downhill one after another and racing the clock—some of the biggest races draw crowds about the size of those for a baseball game between Washington Senators and Kansas City Athletics on a Monday afternoon.

Austria's Olympic champion, Toni Sailer, has suggested more man-to-man competition, with as many as 10 skiers at a time starting together and the first man down winning. The idea has been rejected by European ski officials as too dangerous.

JEROME TO RUN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Harry Jerome, of Vancouver and the University of Oregon, has conditionally accepted an invitation to compete in the Canadian Legion's track meet here Saturday. Jerome told events chairman Tom Parker by telephone Wednesday he would compete in Winnipeg if his leg feels good after competition Friday night in Toronto.

Kidd, Jerome Track Meet Query Marks

Stiff Competition

TORONTO (CP) — One of the stars of last year's Telegram-Maple Leaf Games here, Bruce Kidd, may be the major question mark at this year's second annual meet Friday night.

Kidd, who set a Canadian open indoor record for three miles of 13 minutes, 34.6 seconds a year ago, will have stiff competition this time — from Australian Albert Thomas, American Bob Schul and his own heel injury.

Last June, Kidd reinjured his keel at Compton, Calif., and missed many weeks of competition. In August, he and Bill Crothers, a teammate at Toronto's East York Track Club, toured Britain, Sweden and Norway. Kidd returned without winning—and with an aching foot.

Last fall, Bruce won the U.S. 10,000-metre title and the two-mile event at San Francisco with impressive times. But the recurring injury forced him out of a Boston meet two weeks ago.

He returns Friday with a sore heel. This will hurt him against Thomas, who has an outdoor three-mile time of 13:10.8, compared to Kidd's best of 13:17.6, and Schul, who ran three miles in 13:23.6 indoors, five seconds off the world indoor mark.

TOUGH FIELD

Others in the field include Pete McArdle of New York; U.S. six-mile champion, Bill Mills of the U.S., Canadians Ron Wallingford and Russ Evans of Hamilton, Dave Ellis of Toronto and Quebec champ Dave Lach.

Another runner who will be battling himself is Vancouver's Harry Jerome, co-holder of the world 100-metre record and former co-holder of the world 100-yard record.

Jerome, who has done 100 metres in 10 seconds and 100 yards in 9.2, will run in the 50-yard dash Friday. It will be his first competition since 1962, when he injured a thigh muscle in the British Empire Games at Perth, Australia.

Other stars include Crothers in the 1,000-yard event against Don Bertola of Vancouver, Tom O'Hara of Chicago in the mile, John Thomas of Boston in the high jump and Hayes Jones of Detroit in the 50-yard hurdles.

Liston Taking Fight Seriously-Trainer

Man who knows this as well as anyone is Willie Reddish, the champion's chief trainer.

"Make no mistake about it," Reddish said Wednesday. "Sonny is not taking Clay lightly. Clay pops off a lot but he's a good fighter and Liston knows it."

As is shown by the champion's strenuous daily training program, the fact that he is quoted a 5-to-1 favorite in Las Vegas means little or nothing to Liston.

"Above all," Reddish said, "We don't want the public to come to the fight thinking Liston has not been training hard up to the last minute. There's no doubt that he will be in the best shape of his life."

Liston and Clay fight Feb. 25 at Miami Beach.

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Cassius Clay flew from his Miami training camp to address a dinner-dance audience of some 300 Black Muslims and their guests Tuesday, a Muslim spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman said Clay pointed out that he was training among Negroes for his forthcoming fight with heavyweight champion Sonny Liston and that Liston was training among white men in Las Vegas.

Asked whether Clay is a member of the anti-white sect, the spokesman replied: "Clay can only answer that question himself."

In Miami, Hal Conrad, press agent for the Liston-Clay fight, said Clay told him it was not a Black Muslim affair and that members of the National Association for the Advancement of Coloured People and the Congress of Racial Equality also attended.

"I'm not a Black Muslim any more than you are," Conrad quoted Clay as saying.

Buffey Pays $100 For TV Spot

Campbell Fines Referee!

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Wednesday he has fined referee Vern Buffey $100 for an unauthorized interview on television.

A referee "is expressly forbidden to do so unless he has prior consent from me or the referee in chief," Campbell said. In Buffey's case, the appearance was "completely unauthorized."

In the interview, after a December game in Toronto delayed because of the mess a rodeo had left, Buffey is reported to have criticized the condition of the ice.

"What he said had nothing to do with it (the fine) at all," Campbell said.

Call Game After Donnybrook

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — A donnybrook that spread into the stands forced officials to call a Nova Scotia Senior Hockey League game late in the third period here Wednesday.

The game between Moncton Hawks and Windsor Maple Leafs was called at 15:15 of the third period, with Windsor ahead 4-1.

It was the second brawl of the season between the two teams. Ill feeling between the teams was not improved several weeks ago when Moncton goalie Don Larin broke George Guilbault' jaw in a fight, forcing the Windsor forward out of action.

None of the players was injured Wednesday. One fan was arrested and charged with assault.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

When I'm fore checking, I try to work like the defencemen. Keep my body between the puck carrier and the net.

If there are two players coming down close together, I'll stay at an angle where he's between the two of them and the net.

That's the No. 1 fundamental of fore checking. You try to stay in between his possible line in case of a pass. You've got your stick out in front of you at all times.

You try to either get a piece of it, or if he's going to shoot, you're that much closer to try to jab — knock the puck off line so that one of your teammates can intercept it.

There are some fellows in the National Hockey League who just don't like to give the puck away. They'll hang on to it longer than they should, or when they should pass.

All you do with them is run them into a position where they're a little tight. They get a little excited and you'll probably get possession.

I'll never name names when it comes to situations like this. Because if I do have a little knowledge of a player's peculiarities, I don't want them to know it.

I'll say there are habits you find that can become very detrimental.

For instance defencemen will get into the habit of figuring it is their job to carry the puck the length of the ice when they get it.

They get to the other end and shoot or lose the puck. They have to fight their way back. When they're needed, they're too weak and tired to do a job and the result may be a goal against you.

This is a matter of knowing when to go with the puck — if the opposition is caught deep, or you've got a temporary advantage because they're trying to change on the fly.

However, if there's a man ahead of you, you hand him the puck because you can pass the puck faster than you can carry it, and the man ahead may be travelling much faster than you.

National Tenpins at Winnipeg

Len Phillips of Winnipeg, president of the Ten-Pin Bowling Proprietors' Association of Canada, said the association has established a prize fund of $15,000 which will include provision to send the Canadian champions to the American Bowling Congress championships.

Phillips said each membership establishment will hold qualifying rounds in March to establish team and doubles champions.

These winners will advance to provincial finals to end April 18. Provincial winners will compete in a four-game, round-robin final series scheduled for Winnipeg May 7-10 to decide Canadian champions.

The announcement came at the end of a two-day meeting attended by about 25 delegates from across Canada, representing 1,100 lanes.

On Again, Off Again

Simmons NHL Mystery Man

By ARLIE KELLER

TORONTO (CP) — Goalie Don Simmons of Toronto Maple Leafs is becoming the mystery man of the National Hockey League.

For his eight years in the league this 33-year-old Fort Colborne, Ont., native has been a steady but unspectacular netminder. Many hockey men consider him a fringe player, not good enough to play regularly over the long season but more than adequate as a fill-in, as he has often proved.

Last Saturday, playing in Toronto against the tail-end Boston Bruins, Simmons let 11 pucks go by him as the Bruins humiliated Leafs 11-0. It ran his goal total to 23 in four games since he took over for the injured Johnny Bower.

Coach Punch Imlach was all set to bench Simmons for Sunday's game in Chicago against the Black Hawks. He put in a telephone call to Denver to call up Al Millar as a replacement.

The plane carrying Millar developed mechanical difficulties and he was unable to arrive in Chicago in time.

REVERSED FORM

Simmons played. He and his mates whipped the first-place Hawks 2-0 in a remarkable reversal of form. Simmons performed brilliantly and appparently kept his job.

"That 11-0 game was the most embarrassing thing ever to happen to me," said Simmons. "It's a funny thing, but every goalie goes into a game with a thought in the back of his head that a game like that can happen. And we are relieved when it does.

"The only trouble with this one that it was against the tail-enders and it was in front of the home fans.

"It's not like the ordinary worker. He's having a bad day and he can go home or out for a coffee. But we're stuck out there on the ice with nowhere to go. The more goals that go by you, the more tense you become. Then the goals just fly in.

"Of course, you have to give the Bruins a little credit. They played a terrific game."

Help Wanted! To Pick Up Arena Prizes

The executive of the Bellville Junior "B" Hockey Club has announced plans for a couple of special events in order to help the team financially.

First on the agenda will be a "Giant Prize Night" slated for Memorial Arena when the "B"s play Napanee Red Wings here on Friday, January 31. That will be the local boys final home game on the schedule.

A number of prizes have already been donated and many more are expected, according to a member of the executive, who says they hope to have close to 40 free prizes in all.

And best of all, there will be no extra charges for a chance to win. The prizes will be drawn for off the stubs of the general admission tickets the night of the Wings-"B"s game. You just have to come to the game in order to be eligible for the prizes.

Another big night will be on Friday, February 21, when a draw will be made for a trip for two to an NHL game between the Chicago Black Hawks and the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Tickets are expected to be on sale any day now for this draw and the winner will get two tickets to the Hawk-Leaf game in Toronto on Saturday, February 29.

And get this — along with the tickets, train fair, meals and a hotel room will be paid for as well.

Players, executives and others will be selling the tickets on this one and fans are especially invited to attend games on both January 31 and February 21.

Bobsled Teams File Complaints

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Bobsled teams training for the Olympics have filed formal protests about the training schedule they are required to follow.

Teams from Canada, the United States, British and Italy were among those protesting.

Written and oral complaints given to the International Bobsled and Tobogganing Federation called the system of alternating two-man and four-man training runs by days unfair and ridiculous.

The Canadian No. 1 bob, driven by John Emery of London, Ont., and braked by Douglas Anakin of Montreal, had trouble keeping a straight course in the two-man training runs Wednesday.

Anakin said: "This is the trouble with driving the more sturdy and secure four-man one day and the next day the less highly sensitive two-seaters."

Bruins Whip Knights 7-4

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minneapolis Bruins outscored Omaha Knights 7-4 to break the team's nine - game winning streak in the Central Professional Hockey League Wednesday.

The Bruins' playing - coach defenceman, Harry Sinden, performed at centre, replacing Terry Crisp, out after an appendectomy, and turned in the team's top performance with a goal and two assists.

The victory moved Minneapolis to within two points of second-place St. Louis. The Knights are in first place.

Barons Beat Hornets 4-2, Bears Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nobody can say Cleveland Barons backed into a first lead atop the standings in the Western Division of the American Hockey League—just ask Pittsburgh Hornets.

The Barons, holding a two-point spread over the Hornets, moved into Pittsburgh Wednesday night and took a 4-2 decision over their second - place challengers.

In other action, Hershey Bears moved to within a point of the Eastern leaders, Quebec Aces, by dumping Springfield Indians 3-1 while Providence Reds walloped Buffalo Bisons 7-1.

Cleveland's victory pushed their total to 81 points, followed by Pittsburgh with 47, Rochester Americans, 44, and Buffalo, 32.

Quebec can add to their 50 points tonight when they play host to Rochester. Hershey is in second spot with 49, trailed by Baltimore Clippers with 40, Providence, 37, and Springfield, 28.

Minor Hockey

Steve Moore fired the Bruin goal. Paul Hayes was the Mic Mac backstop in the goalie-to-tested game. Macs are still undefeated, with 11 wins and one tie, three points in front of the Bruins.

All clubs saw action in the Tyke programme.

Hawks won 6-3 over the Flyers, led by Allan Stier's two goals. Richard Barrett, Tim Manley and Tim Martin were the other Hawk scorers. Murray Dales bagged two Flyer goals with Terry Collins netting the other.

Royals also won a tight decision, slipping the Macs 2-1. Dale Jones fired two goals and Chris Huff one for the winners. Mac goals went to Steve Bushel and Martin Thistle.

Frontenacs copped a 3-1 win over the Comets. Jevin Joudrey rapped in two Frontenac goals and Dave Trumpour got the other. Mike Fleach collected the Browns' goal.

Leafs blanked the Bruins by a 5-0 count. Jacob Simmons and Peter Smrke fired a goal apiece for the Leafs.

Barons downed the Rangers 5-1. John Vesuttti and Anthony Wall scored two goals apiece and Lloyd got the odd one. Steve Cavalier was the lone Ranger scorer.

Canadiens, like their namesakes won by a 3-0 score. They blanked the Wings on goals by Cliff Saab, Warren Day and John Garvin.

Says Player Limit Aimed At Tigers
Top Tabby Charges 'Break-Up'

HAMILTON (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, president and general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference, says a proposal to limit the number of naturalized Canadians on club rosters is an attempt to "break up" his club. He was commenting on a statement attributed to G. Sydney Haller, Canadian Football League commissioner, that some clubs have too many American players who have taken out Canadian citizenship.

Haller, of Winnipeg, said the quota proposal was discussed at the recent general managers' meeting in New York and will be brought up again at the CFL annual meeting in Edmonton next month.

Gaudaur said Wednesday in an interview: "Any move to control American players wanting to become Canadian citizens could be construed only as an attempt by the league to break up the Tiger-Cats.

"Surely if the league considers that the Tiger-Cats have superior players, it is better that it adopt legislation which would have the effect of bringing all teams up to the same level."

The Ticats have two players —Brooks Nagurski and Ron Ray — who were born in the United States of Canadian parents.

Gene Ceppetelli is the only Ticat who grew up in Canada but received his college education and football training in the U.S.

John Barrow, Ralph Goldston and Hartiman Cureton were Americans who became Canadian citizens after five years' residence in this country.

Huron Flags Defeat Maroons 3-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Port Huron Flags had one goal-getting line on the ice Wednesday night in International Hockey League play but that proved too much for Chatham Maroons.

The line of Ken Gribbon, Guy Trottier and Ken Saunders counted a goal in each period to down Chatham 3-1 before a crowd of about 1,000 at Chatham. Fort Wayne Komets defended Des Moines Oak Leafs 4-3 at Fort Wayne in the only other action in the league.

The Port Huron widened a four-game unbeaten string for Chatham as Gribbon, a former Maroon, fired two goals and Trottier netted the other. Saunders got assists on all three.

Fort Wayne, atop the league standings, smiled a three-game losing streak. Bob Rivard, Eddie Long, Sid Bailey and Nelson Bulloch got the counters. Laurie Langrell and John Bailey scored for Des Moines.

VAN DOOS WIN

MONTREAL (CP) — A four-man team representing the First Battalion of Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment Wednesday won the giant slalom, first of three events in the British Army ski championships at St. Moritz, Switzerland, it was reported here. An announcement by the Quebec Command said the Canadian skiers finished 10 seconds ahead of their closest rivals. Their score-total of the three best individual times—was four minutes, 58.9 seconds. Slalom and downhill events are to be held next week.

Will Seek Junior 'A' Franchises

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The prospects of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series expanding to a 10- or 12-team league is considered Wednesday with the announcement London and Windsor will seek franchises next season.

The Leader Nationals of the OHA's Junior B series announced Wednesday they have drafted a formal application for mailing to the Junior A board of governors.

In a telephone interview, Lou Bendo, president of the Windsor Arena board of directors, said his group will move immediately to set-up talks with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League for their sponsorship of an A series team at Windsor.

From Toronto, Allen Houle, director of the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs' amateur farm system, said the Leafs with three their support behind London's application.

He will represent the Junior A Marlboros when the application is heard.

Houle said expansion of the Junior A league to 10 or 12 teams is "very much a possibility within the next year or two." He said Hamilton, North Bay and Kingston might also show interest in seeking franchises this year or next.

The next international congress for the history of art will be at Bonn Sept. 14-19, 1964; the last was in New York in 1961.

Mustangs Down McMaster

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wally Dick made six field goals in the clutches and Tom Williamson showed some fine shooting form Wednesday night as University of Western Ontario Mustangs downed Hamilton's McMaster University 69-58 in Senior Intercollegiate Basketball play at London.

The win was the fourth straight for the Mustangs and put them in a three-way tie for first place with Waterloo and Windsor. However, Western meets the defending champion Lancers at Windsor Saturday and that could break up the jam at the top of the standings.

Lancers showed their form in an exhibition match Wednesday, bouncing back from the short end of a 48-34 score at half time to post an 80-72 victory over Adrian College Bulldogs of Adrian, Mich. Adrian edged the Lancers 73-71 in a match earlier this season.

CBS 'Business of Heroin' Tells All About Drug Trade

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—CBS Reports' producer Jay McMullen patiently followed the trail of illegal heroin from Turkey to Harlem. There, concealed cameras showed addicts buying, at $5 or $6 a bag, their daily supplies.

Over a period of almost two years, he talked to American, Asian and European police authorities, international smugglers, Mafia gangsters, junk peddlers and addicts.

The results were shown on Wednesday night's The Business of Heroin. McMullen turned up little new, although his films of addicts dealing with pushers reflected enterprise.

Most shocking portion of the program was interviews with addicts and their toneless descriptions of the terrible agony of withdrawal.

There were some theatrical moments—a masked man talking about the Mafia, a convicted wholesaler of heroin whose face was carefully kept in shadow as he casually described his "business," which netted him more than $500,000 a year.

The demise of The Judy Garland Show at the end of March, announced Wednesday by CBS, hardly comes as a surprise. The variety series has had troubles since last July when only four programs had been taped.

CBS executives flew from New York to Hollywood repeatedly to tinker with the format. Producers were hired and fired.

The irony is that CBS' Garry Moore Show, which had the kind of format the upset they sought for Miss Garland's hours, has developed the same brand of trouble that has killed Judy's show. It isn't getting big enough audiences to justify its cost.

REALISM IN NEW MOVIE

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Once in a rare while a movie comes along with a gentle humanity that communicates directly to the heart. Lilies of the Field is such a film.

The story is this: A young Negro construction worker, drifting through the southwestern United States in his station wagon, stops for water at a ranch house inhabited by five immigrant nuns. The mother superior believes the visit is providential, that he has been sent to help them build a chapel in which the local citizens could worship. He does—against all odds and his own better judgment — then drifts on.

It is a simple tale that might have emerged a trifle, except for the fine care that obviously went into its making. Working on a $248,000 budget, producer - director - writer James Poe's script a beautiful parable.

Yet it never wallows in sentiment. The mother nun, well played by Viennese Lilia Skala, never loses her toughness. And her unwilling charge, Sidney Poitier, remains a realist to the end.

There is no dogma, no teaching, no conversion. The visitor remains a Baptist.

COLOR NOT FACTOR

It is not a race-problem picture. Poitier's color seldom is a factor in the dialogue. During a fiesta scene with Mexican Americans who are helping build the church, he is called a gringo. He grins and reflects: "I don't know whether that's a step up or a step down from something else I've been called."

Poitier's performance is as wondrous as was Ernest Borgnine's in Marty and may well win him a similar reward next Oscar season.

Heretofore indentified with intense roles, Poitier reveals a vein of gaiety that is downright infectious. The choice scene comes when he chants a spiritual while the nuns trill a chorus of "amens."

Complete show at 7:00 and 9:10 p.m.

Tony Martin Says 'My Wife's Got Zizzle'

"What's zizzle?" asked his wife, Cyd Charisse.

"Well, you know," answered Tony, slipping his scotch on the rocks, "it's that something you got that makes me like the idea of the guys looking at you—but maybe not so much—or that way."

Cyd and Tony were lounging around the bar of their hillside home in Beverly Hills. Cyd, whose famous legs were encased in white slacks, fiddled with a glass of sherry. Tony was barefooted.

Beyond the glass wall, the lights of the city lit the view. Why leave all this, rehearse for months and team up, for the first time, in a night club act?

"It's a good question," said Cyd. "I've been asking it myself. We've been married for 10 years and I still don't like night clubs. Even though my husband makes his living in them.

"And I'm not so sure I'm going to like them. I'll tell you later."

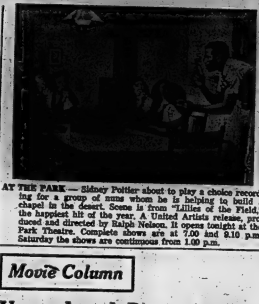
"So," said Tony, shrugging, "if we don't get along, they can always keep the Cyd and Tony billing. Maybe make it Tony Bennett and Cyd Charisse or Tony Bennett and Sid Caesar."

SMASH OPENING

The opening, five days before Christmas at the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas, was a smash.

There was nothing domestic about the act. Cyd, whose long-stemmed combination of curves is the envy of every dancer in town, glided them in a $30,000 Helen Rose wardrobe.

She danced, then Tony sang, and they did an Arthur Murray bit at the finish.



"We don't want to be known as a husband and wife act," said Tony. "After all, Cyd is a great talent. She could be a smash in a show of her own."

But the producers want them together. They're booked next into the Fontainebleau in Miami. A New York angel has offered them $500,000 to do a show of their own choosing. They've got a bid to do a movie together.

Tony's soft-peddling it.

"I would never work with a woman for an entire act. Too much friction. Even if you're both professionals, it gets to be too much.

"I just wanted Cyd to try something new, to expand. She's too good to just stick to movies."

AT THE PARK — Sidney Poitier about to play a choice recording for a group of nuns whom he is helping to build a chapel in the desert. Scene is from "Lilies of the Field," the happiest hit of the year. A United Artists release, produced and directed by Ralph Nelson. It opens tonight at the Park Theatre. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m. Saturday the shows are continuous from 1.00 p.m.

Unemployed Press Agent Has Way to Make Bundle

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "You won't be seeing much of me any more," said Clyde Mack, the cringe-puck.

"How so?" I asked, trying to disguise my delight. The visits to my desk of the chronically unemployed press agent are an occupational hazard.

"I've been all figured out how to make a bundle and get out of this crummy racket," he replied.

There was no getting rid of him until he had dropped his plan and so I asked an explanation.

Well, it's open season on the armed forces now," he continued. "You remember those pictures with Randy Scott leading that army band off the landing boat with a hearty 'gung ho!'? and Bill Bendix cradling the grenade-pack in his arms and yelling, 'I'll get them lousy bums!'?

"No more of that hero jazz. You got to have realism in movies nowadays. War isn't some kid's game. War is hell, don't you know, and it's fought by devils.

ARMY GETS ITS LICKS

"The army gets its licks in The Victors. You think those soldiers in Europe were a bunch of Lon McCallisters? Not on your life. They were sex-mad black marketeers who went around shooting puppies.

"Don't think the air force is going to get off easy. Take Dr. Strangelove. There you've got a cigar - chomping general who thinks the Russians are subverting the American bodily fluids by means of fluoridination. What is the solution? By airmailing a few dozen H-bombs to the Soviets.

"Then there's that other air force general in Seven Days in May. He's the one who figures the president of the United States isn't doing his job, so he dreams up a neat little scheme of taking over the government. Nearly pulls it off, too.

NAVY IS NEXT

"Next comes the navy, and The Americanization of Emily will take care of it. You think that's a nice little movie about an immigrant girl? No, it's about a navy officer who's the ace free-loader during the British blitz. And an admiral who thinks the army is getting all the glory in D-Day and wants the navy to score the first casualty on the Normandy beachhead.

"This is going to be MGM's answer to The Longest Day.

"Get to the point," I said.

"Don't you see it?" he demanded. "What haven't the movies knocked yet? The marines! That's how I'm going to make a mint. I'm going to write the hardest-hitting expose of the marines that has ever been written and sell it to the studios for a small fortune. After that, I'm going to work on the Peace Corps."

"Okay, Mack, that does it," I said.

In the darkest street of that Paris jungle known as "The Belly of Paris" there's a bistro run by one Moustache. He's a real live guy, this "Mouche," but what his name is other than "Moustache" nobody other than "Moustache" himself knows.

When film producer Director Billy Wilder sought a name for the joint in a picture which is a sort of business office for "Irma LaDouce," whose fortunes are traced in the Mirisch company's Technicolor Panavision comedy of the name which is holding over for three last days at the Belle Theatre, he called it "Cafe Moustache"—he of the Belly of Paris.

Co-starring with Shirley MacLaine in this United Artists release, playing the role of a gendarme who arrests—and then falls in love with—Irma, is Jack Lemmon, previously cast opposite her in the award-winning "The Apartment."

HOST TO GUEST

David Frost, host of the satirical TV show "That Was the Week That Was," which lasted 13 months on BBC-TV, will be a regular guest on the new NBC-TV version of TWI.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Glamor, charm are now keys to success. Permit natural magnetism to flow to forefront. Others will be attracted to you because you appear "mysterious." Don't tell all you know!

Laundry Service in England About as Bad as Possible

LONDON (CP)—It's easy to lose your shirt in England. All you have to do is take it to a laundry.

That's what many a disgruntled transatlantic visitor thinks, anyway. There are probably thousands of polite and efficient laundry services in Britain—and the National Federation of Dyers and Cleaners keeps a beady eye on its members—but preliminary experiences can be disastrous.

Even stoic natives who suffer poor service and shoddy products with hardly a murmur often lose heart when it comes to laundries.

The problem is partly a matter of semantics.

London is dotted with bright, modern-looking cleaners whose windows beckon with neon-lit promises such as "24-hour Service," "24-Hour Cleaning" and "Ready the same Day."

But the customer must learn that "Express Service" means one week instead of two. The 24-hour claim means only on Thursday when the agent makes his weekly collection.

CLAIMS HIGH-HANDED

And the promise to have your suit ready the same day trans-lates into: "If you bring it in before breakfast we'll try to sponge and press it sometime before dinner."

If a brave man who risks a consignment of socks and underwear to sudsy limbo. If they don't come back the first assignment, likely as not, will claim it is not morally responsible.

Attempts to retrieve the articles result in lengthy correspondence. But when you describe a pair of underpants in detail and remember where you bought them:

The sturdiest shirt buttons are often powdered—and seldom replaced. Collars are pressed flat, curiously, are incapable of handling French cuffs.

Novelist Kingsley Amis has described English dyeing as "Act of Sorry-Sir—as in "Sorry Sir, we can't take any more shirts this week"—and traditionally claim Britons are beginning to mount a counter-attack.

A broadly humorous magazine called Whitbit runs impartial tests on everything from cars to kettles and regularly makes newspaper headlines with its list of brand-name goods that are defective or don't live up to the manufacturer's claims.

In the same vein a businessman writes in The Director, Journal of business executives, about 30 separate instances of high-handed and insolent attitude.

LAUNDRIES UNITE

Laundries seem to have perfected the Sorry-Sir technique to a fine art.

In summer they can't do your cleaning because of the staff shortage during the holiday season. In winter the claim is that your woollens were ruined by the machinery. Fabrics are invariably delivered late in an infuriating smile of sympathy.

Part of the trouble is that certain popular laundries have mushroomed throughout Britain in the last five years. Local laundries have banded together in combines for purposes of self-preservation. A customer's clothes and personal wishes get lost in the shuffle.

Some true stories heard over breakfast tables:

—A young American discovered his three sheets and six shirts had been sent to fire-bond. The cleaner explained they could be bleached white again but the customer would have to pay for the process.

—A Canadian, after 14 shipboard weeks, got a parcel sent back from the cleaners with the buttons in a package. Explanation: Sorry Sir, but we don't know whether you wanted them sewed on again."

—An impoverished young man had his own suits stolen from the cleaners two weeks before Christmas. He received a cheque for half the replacement value.

Men, Women Still Using Methods Generations Old In Japan's Fishing Industry

Japan, with the world's biggest fishing industry, still has some men and women using methods generations old. The contrast between the new and old is traced in this story by a Canadian Press reporter.

By DAVE STOCKAND

TOKYO (CP)—Katagai Town and Choei City, a morning's drive from Tokyo, are near neighbors a century apart.

They coexist discordantly in the fragmented fabric of the Japanese fishing industry—biggest in the world and growing relentlessly in size and efficiency in the battle to meet the protein needs of the nation's millions.

In sharp contrast to Choei, with its modern efficiency and motorized fleet, fishing at Katagai means fishing just offshore, fishing in depleted waters with hand-hauled nets.

Even in an occupation where many hardships are taken for granted, life in Katagai is hard indeed.

On a Sunday morning in the rain it presented a dreary tableau of fishermen so squeezed for a livelihood they spread nets in paddies left by the ebbing tide. Appropriately, crows on basic black, not seagulls, formed a somber shoreline watching committee.

The women of the village were working in a leaky matano, furnished with benches for the job and wooden cribs for their babies, nothing else.

WORK BY HAND

They were gutting sardines, gutting them individually and washing them individually before dipping them in a seasoning of soy sauce and sake. Before being packed, they would be wrapped individually.

Usually in the countryside or anywhere away from the big cities the Japanese have an enormous curiosity about visitors, especially foreigners.

But Katagai's women were in no mood for conversation.

"If he wants us to tell him things for him to put in a story he should pay us 100 yen," one of them said, pointing my way but addressing a Japanese who was doing the interpreting.

The amount was the lesser part of a dollar. The remark was most un-Japanese. The atmosphere, of poverty, of hopelessness, made the words quite understandable.

Arrival in Choei a short time later, over roads that could be described most benevolently as "frontier Siberian," brought a cheering change.

UNLOADED BY WOMEN

The waterfront greeters were earthy women in Tugboat Annie slickers who start work before dawn, keep going until they have unloaded the last catch of the day, and somehow keep good-natured all the while.

Their curiosity knew no bounds. A grilling of one visitor on his family life, the number of children he had, brought a nudge, a wink, and an accolade: "Ah, very energetic."

The go-getting atmosphere in Choei, although it in itself is not a major deepsea base, typifies a fishing industry that makes no bones about its Viking sweep into waters half a world and more away from Japanese shores.

By Japanese estimates domestic marine fisheries in the vicinity of the home islands account for nearly 90 per cent of a total annual catch of more than 6,000,000 tons.

But the future holds the certainty of more floating factories capable of staying at sea for six months at a time, of new advances in electronics tracking of underwater prey—and, most likely, new international wrangling over who should catch what fish where.

20,000 WHALES CAUGHT

Again by Japanese reckoning, 80 per cent of the catch is brought in by the large companies and the cooperatives. More than 500,000 Japanese are fishermen by occupation, a figure that does not include workers in the canning, processing and related industries.

On the high seas, present international agreements allow Japanese vessels to range the North and South Pacific, the Atlantic, and the Indian Ocean as well as the Japan Sea and other offshore and coastal fisheries.

Tonnage figures do not include the whales taken in the Antarctic during the winter and the North Pacific during the summer—an annual kill exceeding 20,000 of the huge mammals.

Nor do they include the seaweed which is harvested as a food crop—there's even a popular Japanese sweet made of the stuff—nor the oyster catch, or the 80,000 tons of miscellaneous fish caught in inland waters.

If fishermen were colonizers, it is often said here, the Seven Seas would belong outright to Japan.

For all practical purposes, they may yet.

Tomorrow: Japan prepares for the Olympics.

CAMPBELLFORD

Association for Retarded Children Hears Reports at Annual Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford and District Association for Retarded Children held their annual meeting in Merryvale School on Monday evening. In the absence of the president, William Petley, Rev. Father Walsh, 2nd vice-president, was in charge.

VARIOUS REPORTS

Reports of the work were given by committee chairmen. A thousand packets of seeds called "Flowers of Hope" have been ordered for distribution and planting at Mother's Day time. The senior boys at Campbellford are making and presenting to the school a stage for puppet show training for the children at the school.

The taxi service bringing the children to Merryvale had an accident-free year covering over two thousand miles.

Father Walsh gave a report of a regional meeting held recently in Peterborough at which the main item of discussion was the purchase of a lake property in Haliburton for a summer camp. The project did not receive sufficient support to be adopted as the expense which would be incurred was prohibitive for most associations.

Mrs. Alex Rutherford, education chairman reported that she had attended the convention of the Ontario Association for Retarded Children in Kingston in October and during one of the days attended a forum on school administration, the points of discussion included: teacher's qualifications, salaries, and attitudes of parents toward progress of retarded children in contrast to public school children.

NEW OUTLOOK

The new outlook for Merryvale School for this year is in: function of all day classes for younger pupils, volunteer noon help, and weekly bowling classes. Mrs. Rutherford also expressed special thanks to the daily volunteers who also gave time Thursday morning to help with the bowling.

ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Mrs. Hoey, teacher at Merryvale School, attended a conference in London in October. She was also one of a group which visited Marmora recently in the interests of retarded children and their parents. Interested Marmora citizens expressed an interest in attending the February meeting of the Campbellford and District Association, also at the Februiry meeting a representative group of the Peterborough Shriners expect to be present to donate a new projection screen to the school.

NEW OFFICERS

Mrs. M. Austin presented a slate of officers, which was accepted and are as follows:

President, William Petley; first vice-president, Mrs. F. M. Rutherford; 2nd vice-president, Rev. Father Walsh; secretary, Mrs. J. R. Smith; treasurer, Mrs. M. Austin, and other executive officers will be appointed at an executive meeting on February 10th.

The small attendance at Merryvale School is causing some concern at the present time, the cost of transportation is one of the reasons for this situation. It is hoped a solution may be found to this problem, in the meantime, Mrs. A. Rutherford, education committee chairman also states there is need for more publicity for the schools and the opportunities it provides.

The financial report given by treasurer Mrs. M. Austin showed a balance on hand of $900. Merryvale School is supported by government grant and the town of Campbellford municipal council, and also municipal councils in the surrounding area with one exception, as well as donations and gifts.

The present attendance is eight pupils.

Uganda Premier Says Mutineers Just Excited

British Troops Fly In Won't Be Needed Long

KAMPALA (Reuters)Uganda's Prime Minister Milton Obote issued a "business as usual" decree for his East African country today after demands for more pay by army troops caused him to have British soldiers brought in to ensure order.

In a statement issued here, Obote said the 450 British troops flown to Uganda Thursday night from their base in neighboring Kenya should not be needed for long.

Obote said the situation was normal at the Jinja barracks on the shores of Lake Victoria, where about 350 men of the Uganda Rifles were reported to have held Interior Minister Felix Onama prisoner for a time after his arrival there Thursday to discuss their pay-increase demands.

The prime minister said the Jinja mutiny was back in its barracks and all troops are loyal to the government. He denied there was a mutiny on the lines of one which shook Tanganyika four days ago had been quelled.

SITUATION NORMAL

The situation at Jinja was reported to be normal Thursday night.

Witnesses said the demonstrators at Jinja had demanded to see Onama. One report said he was held prisoner for about one hour in the barracks guardroom after being dragged from his car.

No violence had occurred but the men were "very excited," one officer said.

As well as promising to present a supplementary estimate for the April 30, next pay rates, Onama was reported to have said that dormitories would be built to accommodate the soldiers' children. Wives in future are to get free travelling passes whenever their husbands go on leave.

PEARSON IN FLORIDA

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Prime Minister Lester Pearson arrived by air Thursday for a winter vacation after talks in Ottawa with President Johnson. It was presumed the Canadian government leader would be joining Robert Stobe, but there was no confirmation. Several prominent U.S. figures, including Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon† have homes on the secluded island.

'Bear Early Warning Line' Up When Scientists Visit North

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government scientists working in the Arctic on the polar continental shelf project are taking a short stop lean and hungry polar bear eyeing them as their next meal.

They are developing a signal system to warn them when one of the huge vicious creatures approaches their camp site while they're asleep in their tents.

"We've got our own Distant Early Warning line," seismologists Antony Overton, 38, and William Tyrlik, 30, said Thursday in an interview. "Only, we call our BEW — Bear Early Warning line."

Mr. Overton and Mr. Tyrlik are members of a project party which will spend about three months in the Arctic spring studying the thickness of the earth's crust beneath the Arctic Ocean.

Mr. Overton and Mr. Tyrlik have good reason to be apprehensive about polar bears, which are powerful animals weighing up to 900 pounds.

Two years ago they narrowly escaped death while manning a seismic station in Christopher Bay on the southwest coast of Ellef Ringnes Island. Both men were asleep in their sleeping bags outside their tent when a nine-foot bear entered their camp site.

The animal grabbed Mr. Overton by the arm, biting through the sleeping bag and heavy clothing, and began dragging him away. Mr. Tyrlik was wakened by Mr. Overton's shouts and reached for a nearby rifle.

However, the bear heard Mr. Tyrlik scrambling out of his sleeping bag, dropped Mr. Overton and charged him. Mr. Tyrlik was able to get the rifle into firing position before the bear reached him.

The bullet crashed through the animal's skull, dropping it 10 feet from where Mr. Tyrlik stood.

Mr. Overton said they decided to devise a polar bear detection system because, with only two men stationed at a seismic station, it is not possible to maintain a night watch.

The alarm device will consist of several wires circling the camp site. They will be connected to a buzzer which will sound when the wires are touched by an approaching bear.

Reds Hit Seaborne 'A'-Force

GENEVA (AP) — President Johnson's proposals for halting the nuclear arms race ran into firm Soviet objections at the disarmament conference Thursday and seemed headed for a deadlock.

With an angry sweep of his hand, Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin told reporters the U.S. plan for an Atlantic alliance multinational nuclear force "has to be cleared away" before there can be any agreement to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

Western officials of the 17-nation conference were more hopeful of finding common ground with the Russians on other parts of the U.S. president's arms control plan, including the establishment of observation posts to prevent surprise attack and accidental war.

Johnson's five-point plan was submitted to the conference Wednesday by U.S. Disarmament Negotiator William C. Foster. Tsarapkin is expected to deliver the first formal Russian comment on the plan next week.

MAKES IT CLEAR

But his comments to reporters and conference speeches by other Soviet bloc delegates gave a clear indication of the Moscow stand. This is that the United States first must abandon its plan for a seaborne nuclear striking force controlled jointly by members of the North Atlantic alliance, including West Germany. Only the U.S. and West Germany have shown much enthusiasm for the seaborne force.

The Soviet position thus foreshadowed a probable deadlock on three of Johnson's five points — non-dissemination of nuclear weapons, a verified freeze of strategic nuclear delivery systems and a controlled halt in the production of fissionable materials for weapons use. Western officials did not expect Tsarapkin to reject these three points outright, but rather to engage in a long-term stalling operation.

Conference sources said one of the two remaining points, the establishment of observation posts, seemed to have the best chance of leading to negotiations.

Canada's E. L. M. Burns told the conference Thursday Johnson's most interesting point was for a verified freeze of strategic delivery vehicles.

MEANS HALT

"Presumably this means there would be a halt to the development of a new and possibly more lethal — types," Burns said.

"We foresee that the problem of verification may create some difficulties and we wait with interest for further explanations of how it is to be done."

If successful it will orbit the heaviest satellite yet, weighing 37,700 pounds. (AP Wirephoto)

Want Taxes Moved To Retail Level

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on taxation was told Thursday that the tax problems surrounding the distribution of company earnings probably will never be completely solved so long as dividends are taxed on the hands of shareholders.

The submission was made by a delegation representing the Financial Executives Institute of Canada, whose 300 members are the chief financial and accounting officers of Canadian companies.

N. J. Brown, vice - president and comptroller of the Steel Company of Canada and president of the institute, headed the group.

The commission was told that the problem of corporate earnings was the most urgent facing business.

"Our main concern centres around the restraints imposed by the law on the freedom and flexibility of corporate organization. There are numerous instances among our membership in which, after the acquisition of another corporation, the most efficient form of organization for the combined operation is hampered because of exposure to a severe tax penalty on intercorporate distribution."

IS DISCOURAGEMENT

The law was intended to discourage dividend stripping — distributing undistributed earnings without paying tax—but the effect is to discourage legitimate business acquisitions, said the brief.

The complete solution lay in exempting from tax dividends paid to resident shareholders, the institute said.

The danger with this, however, is "the already high corporation tax rate might be raised still higher to recover whatever revenue would be lost by the elimination of this 'double taxation.'"

As a compromise, the institute suggested that corporate distributions be subject to a flat-rate tax of 15 per cent and be exempt from all other personal income tax. The brief had earlier been suggested by several other organizations.

Earlier Thursday, the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada asked that architects be allowed to average their income over several years for tax purposes.

OPPOSES 'DUMPING'

TORONTO (CP) — Family doctors were warned Thursday against dumping alcoholics on clinics of the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario instead of treating the cases themselves. Dr. M. E. W. Gooderham, speaking at a luncheon of suburban Scarborough social planning council, pleaded with doctors to continue as they would any other "specialty" and to take them back later for continuing care.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The cooling trend over southern Ontario has slowed somewhat. Although temperatures will drop from the near record high of the last few days a sharp outbreak of cold air is not indicated. Right to Raise U. S. Flag But Youth Uneasy at Cost

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A slender youth has come back to the U.S. convinced of the righteousness of his flag-raising act—but troubled over its consequences in the Panama Canal Zone.

"I was right in raising the American flag," James Jenkins, 17, said Thursday after the Cristobal docked here.

But if he had the choice of doing it again, the former Balboa High School senior said, "I'd have to think about it if I knew that U.S. citizens would have been killed."

Jenkins, one of the student leaders in the Jan. 9 incident which led to bloody rioting between U.S. soldiers and Panamanians, is on his way to Cambridge, Ohio.

He will finish his education there, staying with relatives. He is returning to the U.S. voluntarily, he says.

Jenkins, who briefly tried to elude reporters on arrival, confirmed that he was the student who raised the flag at Balboa High.

"It was my flag," he said. "I did raise it."

But he said he thought rioting was coming sooner or later.

If the flag-raising hadn't happened, I think there would have been trouble anyway. . . ."

Stereo Just Gift by Friend Says Johnson as Foes Gloat

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says the expensive stereo set delivered to his home in 1959 was simply a gift from old friend Robert G. Baker. And Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield says that explanation should end the matter.

But Republicans, sensing an election year issue, are pressing this and other facets of the Senate rules committee's inquiry into the complicated business dealings of Baker, a former Johnson protege who quit under fire last Oct. 7 as secretary to the Senate Democrats.

"The Baker family gave us a stereo set," Johnson said Thursday at a White House press conference. ". . . We had exchanged gifts before. He was an employee of the public and had no business pending before me and was asking for nothing and so far as I knew expected nothing in return any more than I did when I had presented him with gifts."

The president gave this explanation a day after the Senate committee released testimony by Don B. Reynolds, an associate of Baker in a local insurance firm, who said he sold the $342 stereo record player to Johnson's home at Baker's suggestion.

Reynolds said he paid for the set after selling Johnson—then the Senate Democratic leader—the first half of $200,000 in life insurance policies. The insurance case said he also agreed to buy $1,206 worth of advertising time on the Austin television station controlled by the Johnson family.

The president made no mention of the advertising purchase.

He said his wife and two daughters thought it good business practice to buy the insurance after his 1955 heart attack in order to protect their controlling interest in the family's LBJ Company.

The aim, he said, was to make certain that if he died the firm would collect on the insurance and his next - of - kin "wouldn't have to sell their stock on the open market and lose control of the company."

Oliver Praises Macaulay

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) Farquhar Oliver attacked the Conservative government Thursday for spending money uselessly and said expected new provincial taxes will not sit lightly on the shoulders of the people of Ontario.

The acting Liberal leader said that as far as the Diefenbaker administration is concerned, economy is almost a lost word and a lost practice. He moved a motion of non-confidence in the government, accusing it of flouting the wishes of the people.

The motion climaxed an address in the throne speech debate in which Mr. Oliver bemoaned the government's loose control of its ministers — former economics minister Robert Macaulay, who resigned because of ill health.

Not for two decades had anyone in the government shown

Robby Burns Would Be Pleased With Growing Demand for Haggis

By LIAM REGAN
Canadian Press Correspondent

GLASGOW (CP) — What would Robby Burns have said?

Haggis-and-chips instead of fish-and-chips in some Glasgow restaurants. Even worse, the "great chieftain o' the puddin' race" reduced to a hagsburger.

Perhaps the bard wouldn't have minded at all, on the grounds that the more there is of the haggis he loved, the better he would like it—whatever the form.

If so, he'd be pleased with the growing demand for the pudding-cooked-in-a-stomach bag of a sheep, particularly at this time of year when Scotsmen at home and all over the world prepare to celebrate Burns' night Saturday.

Ian Macgregor, managing director of Stirling, one of Scotland's major producers, says his firm alone is turning out between 40 and 50 tons a week to fill orders from all parts of the globe.

One recent visitor to Scotland, he says, thought seriously that the haggis was "a wingless bird of the Scottish highlands — somewhat inferior to the grouse."

Wyatt of Niagara Falls, who argues concisely for state - run medical care.

He cites an unspecified "recent dispute" between the doctor - operated prepaid medical plan, Prescription Services Incorporated, and a subscriber which he says was resolved by PSI in its own favor. In any such health program, he adds, there must be independent arbitration of disputes.

"No person ought to be born into the world from conception to death every person should have an equal opportunity to enjoy good health. A comprehensive, government - spon-

Legislature Committee Hears Arguments on Medicare

TORONTO (CP) — The 14-member committee studying Ontario's draft medical insurance legislation now has in its hands the long and the short of all the arguments on medical care.

The long, presented at a public hearing Tuesday by the Ontario Chiropractic Association, is a tome of almost 100 pages that includes historical photographs, traces the history of the profession from the fifth century BC and argues at length for including chiropractic services among the draft plan's benefits.

The short, released by the committee today, is a submission of fewer than 100 words from professional engineers Alex

Johnson Shuns Shouting Match With De Gaulle

Decides Against Battle Over Recognizing China

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson apparently has concluded that there is nothing further he can do to dissuade French President de Gaulle from extending diplomatic recognition to Communist China.

Authoritative quarters reported this here Thursday in commenting on the U.S. leader's position following his discussions Wednesday with Prime Minister Pearson, who brought the gist of a report on conversations last week in Paris.

The sources said Johnson has decided he would be best for the United States to avoid any transatlantic shouting match when de Gaulle makes the Chinese recognition formal, possibly next week.

Instead, these sources said, Johnson likely will adopt an attitude of quiet criticism or disapproval as he weighs his diplomatic front in Asia.

There continues to be private White House concern and bitterness, however, with the possibility that de Gaulle's attitudes and actions may lead to deterioration of U.S. influence in the Far East.

RECALLS PROMISE

During his talks with Pearson here, Johnson touched on the point that de Gaulle had promised Premier Khrushchev on this year for talks—a promise which de Gaulle maintains he never made.

It is understood that Pearson suggested that since de Gaulle spoke in French when he conferred with Johnson on the day of President Kennedy's funeral last November, a misunderstanding may have developed in the translation. But Johnson said he referred to the record and is convinced the promise was made.

De Gaulle also was reported to have conveyed to Pearson—and through him to Canadian leader to Johnson—what the French president considers to be compelling reasons why France must recognize Communist China.

One reason is de Gaulle's view that the split between China and the Soviet Union is more than an ideological dis-

Not Likely To Act On Proposal

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) A proposal has been made within the defence department that most of the eight-squadron RCAF air division in Europe be withdrawn to the big wilderness station at Cold Lake, Alta.

The proposal isn't likely to be acted on, at least not in the near future, reliable sources said Thursday, because not only NATO but the RCAF is opposed to it.

The suggestion was advanced by some senior officials and officers during defence Minister Hellyer's continuing review of Canada's defence establishment.

Any day now, the air division of 200 CF-104 jet bombers will become the fourth largest nuclear strike force in the world — after those of the United States, Russia and Britain.

ABOUT_TO SIGN

The Canadian and U.S. defence departments are on the verge of signing the technical agreements which will permit storage of nuclear warheads at CF-104 bases in West Germany.

The thinking behind the proposal for withdrawal of most of the air division to Canada goes like this:

If a nuclear war in Europe, the only CF-104s which would be likely to get off the ground would be those on standby alert — that is, positioned at the end of the runways for immediate takeoff.

All the other planes probably would be destroyed on the ground by missile attack.

Therefore, it would seem logical to leave in Europe only those planes which could take off in order for their assigned targets in Eastern Europe.

WOULD ROTATE

Pilots and ground crew would be rotated frequently by RCAF transport planes between Cold Lake, 150 miles northeast of Edmonton, and the bases in West Germany to fly and maintain the CF-104s on standby alert.

Millions of dollars would be saved in maintenance costs for the 1,000 dependants of air division personnel, all of whom would be brought home.

Mr. Hellyer looked with some favor on this proposal but it was shelved for the time being because there is Lyman Lemnitzer, supreme allied commander in Europe, wants to keep the air division where it is.

The RCAF, it is reported, also objected strongly to any dismantling of what it regards as its "bomber command."

Formation of County Health Unit, Appointment of Safety Officer Still to be Decided

Hastings county council today swung into the final day of its inaugural session with two of the more important matters on the agenda still to be discussed.

These were the formation of a county health unit, decisions on which was referred from the December session and the appointment of a construction safety inspector. The session is expected to wind up this afternoon.

Thursday council heard a great request from the Salvation Army with public relations officer Lieut. Col. A. H. Hill presenting the organization's financial statement; and telling of the work of the Bethany Home for unmarried mothers.

A second grant request was heard from the Hastings and Land 'O' Lakes Tourist Region with spokesman vice-president James V. Holt of Stirling outlining what his organization is doing to attract tourists to the area.

OUTLINES AIMS

He said the aim of the organization was to make the Hastings and Land O' Lakes Region an "tourist mill" which would see a never ending stream of tourists visiting the area.

"Common courtesy to the visitors would do more than anything else" in bringing tourists back to the area year after year", he said.

Mr. Holt said his organization was getting out be'h flyers and brochures to advi. e the area. These would be available through various organizations at border entrance points and at information booths at service centres along 401 highway.

To promote attractive reading in the brochure, Mr. Holt asked for true and unusual stories relating to the area's early history.

The report of the county planning committee was presented by Reeve Clayton Hall. This committee was formed in December to investigate the possibility of setting up a county planning organization at the county level.

WORK TO CONTINUE

The work of the committee will continue with further investigation as to the advisability of forming a county or rural planning commission.

Council members concurred in an Ontario county resolutions asking that all municipalities appoint a weed inspector.

Reeve Allen Ketchenson of Madoc township said the weed problem was getting to be serious that every effort should be made to keep wild carrot from further spreading into this area.

There was some doubt as to whether the county weed inspector was authorized to work throughout the county or only in the area served by the county road system.

Council was told that the inspector was not merely a county road weed inspector but could be called to any area of the county.

COUNTY TOO BIG

"Then he is going to be a busy man," commented Hungerford Reeve R. Clarence Graham. "The whole county would be too big for one man to look after."

Most of the municipalities already have their own weed inspectors and it was decided that these men would be able to call on the county inspector for advice when needed.

Also heard yesterday was the report of the Children's Aid Society. The report, given by Bancroft Reeve M. J. McIlmoyle, showed that there were 175 children in the care of the society at the end of December, 1963. There was an increase of six over the number a year ago.

During the year 103 children were admitted to care of the society and 97 were discharged.

The report prompted a discussion on welfare costs as related to the CAS work with Reeve Fred Beckett of Rawdon asking what could be done with families who refused to work with result that the family became Society and welfare cases.

As an example he said that in his township requests for welfare assistance had dropped off during the apple picking season and after apple picking was completed were resumed.

He said they knew that if requests were made for welfare I would put them to work picking apples," he said.

Suspect Held After Woman Is Accosted

Police today questioned a suspect in connection with a report of incidents in which women have been molested in Belleville's East Hill district.

The man was arrested on Front Street this morning by police constable after a woman complained of being accosted.

Police suspect, who has been boarding in the East Hill area, has been a resident in the city for about a year.

The incident leading to the man's arrest occurred about 8:30 a.m. when, police say, a woman was accosted on Front and Campbell Streets. The man then fled down Front Street, but was spotted by an officer walking his beat at the Four Corners.

Woman Pays $75 Fine for Impairment

A Belleville woman, charged with impaired driving, complained to Magistrate R. C. Jackson today the officer who arrested her could have been more polite.

She was charged after a constable spotted her car weaving along Bridge Street East.

On top of the usual impaired symptoms, said detective sergeant Reid, the woman behaved in an obnoxious manner to the officer.

"I don't think I was obnoxious," protested the accused. But I was sure insulted out of the car. I think he could have been a little more polite."

Magistrate Jackson fined her $75 fine and a three-month licence suspension after the woman pleaded guilty.

Youth Given Fifteen Days For Fighting

Magistrate R. C. Jackson of Madoc, made the comments as he sent Carl R. Haines, 19, to jail for 15 days for fighting.

"In the last year this kind of thing is becoming much more common than it used to be," he said.

He compared the "I-am-bigger-than-you-are" attitude to the spirit of Nazism.

"People have the right . . . to do lots of things without being beaten up—having to defend themselves," the Mag-

Motion to Form County Health Unit Is Defeated

Hastings county council this morning turned down a motion to form a county health unit.

Formation of a county health unit had been discussed at several previous council sessions and at the December meeting was laid over until the current January session for decision.

Today's motion came following another lengthy discussion and was defeated by a large majority with only six of the 32 member council voting for the formation of a unit.

But council was less definite in its opinion as to whether the matter should again be laid over for decision at a future session.

Reeve M. J. McAlpine, of Bancroft, chairman of a special committee appointed last year to investigate all phases of a county health unit re-introduced his recommendation at the December session to form the health unit.

WOULD DOUBLE COST

He said the cost of a health unit would be about $43,00 or double the cost of the present MOH health service being received.

This, he said would mean an additional cost of about two thirds of a mill to county taxpayers.

"Hastings will have a county health unit some day and it might as well be now so we can take advantage of the 50 per cent grant being provided," he said.

But many of the councillors indicated they were not in favor of a health unit.

Rawdon Reeve Fred Beckett said he thought he was satisfied with their system and Reeve Gerald Irvine of Sidney said he had received no complaints in his township.

The same was true of Deputy Reeve Carl Thompson of Thurlow. Out of 140 telephone calls he said there was only one complaint.

WARDEN MAKES RULING

Then Reeve Allen Ketcheson of Madoc township interjected what he termed an amendment calling for the health unit matter to be laid over until a future session.

This was ruled by the warden at an alternative motion and said the original motion would have to be first voted on unless it was withdrawn.

Reeve McAlpine said he didn't want to withdraw his motion, but sensing the feeling of council said he would withdraw the motion to form the unit.

Then council voted on the unit matter. The motion was lost.

Reeve McAlpine then re-introduced his motion to form the health unit and it was decisively voted down.

Opening discussion of the health unit question, Reeve McAlpine reviewed his presentation to the December session, claiming that 80 per cent of the people of Ontario were receiving such service.

COST BIGGEST OBJECTION

Cost of a health unit seemed to be the biggest objection with most councillors.

Most reeves agreed that a unit had its good points, but in view of other commitments they felt the matter should be delayed until financing of the new addition at Belleville General Hospital was finalized.

One or two of the councillors said they were placed in a "straddle the fence" position in that while they were personally in favor their local councils had directed them to vote against it.

Reeve McAlpine expressed his appreciation to Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson and others who had campaigned for the health unit, but said he was disappointed that he had been unable to convince many members of council.

BIG DISAPPOINTMENT

"You've convinced them," returned Tudor Reeve, Vera McMurray. "If the hospital financing question was decided you would get approval of the health unit today.

The decisive negative vote was a big disappointment to members of the council committee supporting the health unit.

"We'll be back again," assured Reeve McMurray.

"I won't say any more now but I feel the matter was badly placed."

Safety Officer Will Be Hired By County

Hastings county council has decided to appoint a construction safety inspector.

At this morning's session of council, the finance committee was authorized to further investigate costs of such position, to advertise for applicants and to make a recommendation to the next session of council.

Like the county health unit, appointment of a safety inspector had been discussed on many occasions by council, but Warden T. Burnside this morning said he felt the matter had been side-stepped long enough.

We are close to the time when we will have to take action," he said.

Reeve Vera McMurray said he thought the county might hold off until recommendation changes were made to the legislation but he felt a committee should be appointed with power to act and submit a recommendation to council.

Will Not Cut International CBC Service

OTTAWA (CP)The government has decided against reducing the estimates for the international service of the CBC, External Affairs Minister Martin announced today.

His statement followed reports last week that the government was considering either drastic curtailment or complete abolition of the multi-language, short - wave radio service beamed abroad.

Mr. Martin said a review of the international service will be made "with a view to consider the desirability of an eventual integration of its activities with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation."

Trenton at the Crossroads Of Development, Guests at Civic Night Banquet Told

TRENTON — It was a sleeper.

The 200 some Rotarians, Lions and Kiwanians attending last night's Civic Night banquet, sponsored this year by the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, leaned back in their chairs when the guest speaker, a woman, arose to address the assembly. On their lips was the indulgent, if slightly bored, smile accorded to women speakers.

Mrs. Richard Harding Scrivener, brunette, young, pretty, very feminine looking, leaned forward over the rostrum, looked her male audience in the eye confidingly, and said "Your town smells."

"Trenton," said Mrs. Scrivener, (chairman of the Ontario Branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada), "is like the farmer in the barnyard. He is so used to the smell, he can't smell it.

You're either so used to the smell you can't smell it" . . . "Trenton is at the crossroads of her development. She must either work out a regional development plan with the surrounding townships and the smaller communities to the north and the west of the town, or be swallowed up as a dormitory to the neighboring city of Belleville."

Mrs. Scrivener said that Trenton was threatened by the aggressive development of Belleville. She quoted from remarks made by various provincial planning authorities referring to Trenton, "they're in a real mess down there in Trenton"; "Trenton lacks civic leadership"; "there are two many fires in downtown Trenton"; "I can't expect my company to settle in Trenton. They have some of the worst streets." William and Stanley Streets are a disgrace", (a business man); "they have the Trent River down there and they're doing nothing to conserve it."

ON ROLLER COASTER

Trentonians had been "riding on a roller coaster," said Mrs. Scrivener, "they've been riding uphill, up a steep hill. Now they're on the way down."

Mrs. Scrivener said that too great a proportion of people who work in town live out of town. Of the town's 27 industries, she said, all but three are owned by large out-of-town interests. There were only two butchers in town and two shoe stores. No new industries had come to Trenton for years. The recent annexation of 433 acres of Murray and Sidney township land would prove to be "costly," as the older, blighted residential areas within the town could become slums. "Trenton had an official plan," she said, "but it was badly in need of implementation."

Mrs. Scrivener's remarks were greeted by angry murmurings from some segments of the audience. Many of those present were downtown businessmen. The downtown business section, they were told, was in a sad state and sadly in need of redevelopment.

"Plan . . . ut be planned," warned Mrs. Scrivener.

Professors Suggest Form Of Compulsory Arbitration To Trenton Hospital Probe

TORONTO (CP) A new form of compulsory arbitration was proposed Thursday to deal with labor disputes between Ontario hospitals and their non-professional employees.

The proposal was put forth by H. W. Arthurs of Osgoode Hall law school here and J. H. G. Crispo of the University of Toronto school of business in a sub-mission to a government-appointed committee.

The professors suggested if a hospital labor dispute cannot be settled after normal bargaining and conciliation procedures, either party should be allowed to require the other to submit to compulsory arbitration.

The commission, headed by Judge Colin E. Bennett of Owen Sound, was set up to report to the Ontario government on a dispute between striking union workers at the Trenton Hospital and the Trenton Hospital Board.

STUDIES ARBITRATION

In addition, the committee is to report on whether there should be compulsory arbitration forced by the government in similar disputes.

The Ontario Hospital Association also submitted a brief to the commission, saying that before a strike or lockout be staged in a hospital, the side threatening action must give the Ontario minister of health seven days notice.

If the strike doesn't order compulsory arbitration, either side would be free to act.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC) told the commission it opposed compulsory arbitration in labor disputes involving hospitals or other public services, but feels such action is necessary in the union's dispute with the Trenton Hospital Board.

Civic Night Banquet Had Scottish Accent

TRENTON — To misquote Robby Burns, "a woman's a woman for a' that." Last night's Civic Night at the Trenton Legion Hall, hosted this year by the members of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club was a banquet with a Scottish accent and drew plaudits from the B. & P. women's guests, the members of the Trenton Rotary Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Lions Club and civic and government leaders, including Mayor James MacDonald and Robert Temple, MP.

The Haggis was piped in by Pipe Major A. R. Howie. Scotty Broughton carried the steaming Haggis proudly through the hall and delivered the "Address to the Haggis." (No one was discovered eating any of it, although invited to sample by Mr. Broughton.)

Guests display sprigs of heather in their lapels and the entertainment, a sword dance and the Highland Fling, performed by Judy Lyons of Belleville and a Scottish-flavored sing-song, conducted by Mrs. Mary Thompson, bore out the main Burns' theme of the evening.

Each service club present was invited to sing its club song and this event ended the sing fest by the singing of the B. & P. Emblem Song, composed by a member of the club, Elizabeth Blackledge.

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. Doris Webb, B. & P. president and the mayor.

Mr. Temple did some nonpartisan politicking, by telling the assembly that his mother, born in Trenton, had been a Macdonnell.

All in all, it was a lovely evening and one that should have met with the approval of Mr. Robert Burns.

GLASS HARMONICA

The glassipsichord was an 18th century musical instrument played by rubbing the rims of glasses with wet fingers.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (Reuters) — United Nations planes and a chartered aircraft flew into the western Congo province of Kwilu today to evacuate all whites who wish to leave.

President Joseph Kasavubu has proclaimed a state of emergency in the province, where three Belgian Roman Catholic priests were killed recently, and armed bands have been attacking government posts, industrial sites and plantations.

A UN helicopter was also on its way from Luluabourg to the Congo inland mission station of Kandale, about 95 miles southeast of Kikwit, to pick up seven adults and two children stranded there.

The embassy said that in addition to the three priests killed at Kwilumbe, a fourth was still missing in the bush.

Pearson's Vision Clouded

Last week a news report from Paris, where Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson was conferring with President Charles de Gaulle, said that Canada was interested in selling uranium to France.

Canada's long-standing policy is that the spread of nuclear weapons is to be deplored.

De Gaulle, on the other hand, holds that France must possess a nuclear deterrent of her own, that only thus can she assure herself of the ability to resist aggression by a nuclear power.

Asked to comment, Mr. Pearson first said that he saw no inconsistency between sales of uranium to France and Canada's opposition to the spread of nuclear weapons. Later, first in Paris and afterwards in Ottawa, Mr. Pearson said that the question of France purchasing uranium from Canada had not been mentioned during his talks with de Gaulle, but that Canada would be happy to sell uranium to France under guarantees it will be used for peaceful purposes and not for atomic weapons.

Mr. Pearson's revised — or amplified — views make better sense than the impression left by his first comment, but will still leave many people uneasy. It is impossible to compare sales of uranium to France with sales of uranium to India and Japan, because France has an atomic bomb program and Japan has been given the Canadian uranium were used by France only for peaceful purposes, might it not release uranium from other sources for use in bombs?

It would be very convenient for the Canadian uranium industry, for Elliott Lake, which lies within Mr. Pearson's home constituency of Algoma East, for Ottawa and for the Pearson Government if France should suddenly order enough uranium to keep the working mines operating until the next decade, when the demand for uranium for peaceful purposes is expected to expand rapidly.

There are two things wrong with this pleasant solution of a vexatious problem.

In the first place, French demand is not likely to approach the volume needed to keep the mines working, even without the proviso now applied by Pearson that Canadian uranium sold to France be used for peaceful purposes. In the second place, even if it did, Canada could not take advantage of this opportunity without being considered inconsistent by many nations throughout the world. The stipulation that Canadian uranium be used only for peaceful purposes would not be an adequate protection from this criticism. Prime Minister Pearson may believe that this requirement makes sale consistent with the policy of opposing the spread of nuclear weapons, but, for the purpose of influencing decisions which will limit such a spread, what counts is not the Prime Minister's opinions of Canadian policies, but the opinions of other nations.

Most of them, we fear, would regard sale of uranium to France as an unprincipled act proving Canada is more concerned about the immediate economic problems of her uranium-mining communities than it is about the danger of the spread of nuclear weapons to other powers besides those already numbered in the nuclear camp.

There would be many Canadians, and not all of them outside the Prime Minister's Liberal party, who would share this view.

Speak of the Devil

Raising children is such an expensive operation these days that parents might as well have them five at a time. If they do, there are enough people willing to help with the expense that almost anyone can turn a nice profit on the operation.

There are problems liable to result from the profit though, and the four survivors of Canada's famous Dionne quints know the problems well. They have taken the opportunity offered by McCall's, a U.S. magazine, to pass on their advice to the now-four-months-old Fischer quints, of Aberdeen, S.D. McCall's has printed an open letter from the Dionne quints to the Fischer quintets warning of the people who will try to rake a profit off them.

One might doubt that four-month-old-babies, even four-month-old quintuplets, will be able to profit by the letter, but McCall's knows the mental level to which its editorial content is aimed. The evidence shows, though, that all sorts of people are willing to make a profit from the Fischers. Even other quints will be able to find a ready market, in national magazines, for their ideas of how such opportunists should be dealt with.

In quite a long experience now, I have often found that a man who trusts nobody is apt to be the kind of a man nobody trusts.—Harold Macmillan, former British prime minister.

Half Mishaps Car's Fault

Saint John Telegraph Journal

With the co-operation of Massachusetts authorities, a "flying squad" of scientific investigators from Harvard University has been studying fatal highway collisions.

Their findings seem to upset long-accepted theories of accident causes.

Five years and a million dollars have gone into the tax-supported research project.

Often arriving as soon as police and ambulances, the scientists have painstakingly combed scene and wreckage for clues and learned all they could about the persons involved.

As much as 16 days went into investigation of a single accident by the 15-man staff.

Always, they found, more than one thing was involved.

There might be mechanical failure, driver inattention, a faulty highway and incompetent driving sharing the blame in a single incident.

But mechanical failure was the most common single cause, blamed in 30 percent of the accidents investigated.

The worst killers were tire failures, responsible also by faulty brakes, steering system breakdown and leaky exhausts.

Sloppy maintenance was nearly always indicated.

Tires were patched that should not have been repaired, screws were left out of wheels, cars' brake fluid was skimped to save money, and brakes were never examined for pinches or cracks that could cause failure, muffler leaks were ignored.

The scientists say that all drivers should be required to "practise" for emergencies.

He can learn to stop with a hand brake alone, and to get off the road when the ignition is suddenly turned off.

They also recommend instruction in changing a tire safely at night, reading signs (because many drivers have died through missing detour signs) and getting back on the pavement from a soft shoulder.

Safety groups seldom even include mechanical failure in statistics on accident causes, so rarely is it blamed.

New Brunswick RCMP have investigated approximately 120 fatal highway accidents in each of the last three years.

They list "faulty mechanism, blowouts, etc." as causing a minimum of one and a maximum of five in any one year.

Who is right? Certainly, the Harvard findings put the whole fatal accident problem into such a different light that at least we must question and re-examine our own conclusions.

For drivers, the lesson is clear: be fussy. Careless maintenance of your car can kill you.

Men Taking Women's Jobs

Minneapolis Star

An employment agency in Chicago is making a specialty of placing "office men" — men displaced from a variety of white collar jobs by automation, who can fill clerical, secretarial-type work without major retraining. Employers are discovering that these men, usually in their 40s or 50s, with solid business experience, are likely to be more dependable workers who accomplish more than some office girls' preoccupied with other interests.

Demand for men secretaries for business executives is nothing new, but in the past too few men were interested in such jobs. Likewise many other office jobs have held more appeal for women than men, and so most employers have assumed that applicants would be women.

The idea that men should displace women in traditional office job categories probably is explosive as the thought of working wives in a period of unemployment. But many of the old job patterns are disappearing, as automation, reorganization, and new streamlining techniques invade business buildings as well as factories.

Surely it makes sense for employers to look for new ways to use the talent and experience of competent men pushed out of former employment by the new industrial revolution. And it makes sense for the men hunting new jobs to use imagination about places where their services might be valued.

"One of our last month's guests sent you a brush and heller letter."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 24th, 1916.

Almost 600,000 acres of good land in England and Wales have been taken over for airports and other military installations, but food production has been increased and agriculture generally may be in better condition after the war than it was before, a press conference in Ottawa has been told.

With food supplies threatened by shipping losses, the United Kingdom had embarked early in the war on a great program of increased land utilization. About 6,000,000 new acres had been plowed since the war started, and hundreds of thousands of other acres reclaimed — some of them in areas not plowed since the time of the Romans.

More than the usual amount of interest was manifested in the primary election for directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. The primary election was concluded yesterday afternoon, and the following well known citizens were placed in nomination. The names each alphabetically arranged: E. P. Bernstein, T. H. Dredge, O. W. Duff, A. M. Francis, G. A. Freeman, F. G. Galloway, L. Jewell, J. A. McIntosh, Leo B. Riggs, J. J. Trudeau.

The following were all held office for two years.

Messrs. J. B. Boyce, I. G. Kelley, C. B. Morgan, and Wilfred Laporte were elected last January for a two-year term and therefore are not open for nomination this year.

Miss Edna Farley, who has acted as tax collector for the city since the death of her father, has been appointed to $1,500 per year.

Members of Miss Barnum's class, called the "Beacon Lights" in Holloway Street Methodist Church Sunday School, enjoyed a sleigh drive party last evening, and later went to the home of Mrs. P. A. Twiddy, West Moira Street, where a most enjoyable time was passed.

Four senior Belleville curling rinks were defeated in Cobourg last night. The Belleville players were: Thomas Atkins, Co. D. Laidley, Ted Ketcheson, J. W. Davies, skip, 11. Cobourg 22; Joseph LaPorte, E. Dickson, Capt. Bottum, J. G. Galloway, skip, 11 - Cobourg 21; Dr. W. Ackerman, C. I. White, Alfred Symons, Charles J. Symons, skip, 10 - Cobourg 18; Dr. Arthur Johnson, W. E. Gartley, Morley P. Duff, Bert Backus, skip, 9 - Cobourg 21.

50 YEARS AGO

January 24th, 1914.

Mr. Ross Maynes of College Hill, and his sister, Mrs. Ray of Octavia Street, have left on an extended trip to the Pacific Coast.

Mrs. Catherine Ostrom, who died recently in Toronto in her 93rd year, was one of the pioneer residents of Belleville and lived here for 70 years. Her stories of early days in this district were most interesting. There were no trains running in those days between Toronto and Montreal, and she took delight in telling of the stage coaches stopping at appointed farms to change horses.

Mrs. P. J. Sallsbury and daughter, Miss Lottie, of Moira are visiting friends here.

Letter to the Editor

Says Police Station Improves Square

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

A letter from a citizen to you mentioned the police building on the market square as being necessary to the beauty of the design of this area. I have taken time to look and agree that a change is necessary. I also like the architecture, other than the new addition of the present block extension.

Few of the old designs in architecture remain and those that do remain are in dire danger of demolition. In the United States we place too much value on old buildings, houses, furniture, etc., but our history is, I think, very important as part of our lives and preventive measures should be taken to preserve a part of our heritage. The new forms of architecture are to be admired but when one really looks at the old type, we realize that it is very beautiful. The varying forms of the window frames, the decorative wood pieces under eaves and around verandahs, etc., are things that will probably never be produced again. Anyone visiting a lumber mill or a building material will find that selection is limited in moldings and decorative pieces; only patterned lots remain and even the mills are closing up one by one as specialized work is becoming a thing of the past.

I also agree with the writer of the letter to you that Belleville citizens could derive a lot of pleasure in looking around and suggesting various constructive opinions on how our city could be improved. On bringing up the question with various citizens, practically everyone thought some improvement should be taken in the banks of the Moira from Victoria Bridge to the Lake Ontario. A good raking up, possibly a bit of grass seed, an odd bench and a tree would enhance this attractive downtown area. A visitor from out of town said he was quite impressed with Belleville, coming in on Highway 2, via Highland Ave., until he saw the lack of interest in this area and was surprised that it wasn't built up as an attractive sight to those coming over the bridges.

Yours truly,
A Reader.

Opposes Ad On Car Plates

Welland Tribune

Although usually docile, the spirit of rebellion lurks within the breasts of all men. Occasionally something comes along to break the bonds of restraint for certain individuals and while the protesting rebel invariably hasn't a chance from the onset the rest of us watch his performance with a little awe and a good deal of respect and understanding.

A case in point involves Edward Kenneth Froslid of New York City, who, in his bold challenge to bureaucracy, has gone to court to dispute the right of New York State to advertise the 1964-65 world's fair on automobile license plates. The state has no right, he contends, to compel him — without even asking — to carry free advertising on his car.

Froslid has asked that the New York State motor vehicles commissioner allow motorists to block out "N. Y. World's Fair" on plates already produced, and to eliminate this inscription from future plates.

As an alternative, the fair should be charged a sum of money commensurate with the advertising value of the plates, Froslid argues.

A spokesman for the automobile bureau has stated that the inscription announcing the world's fair is legal, and that the commissioner or motor vehicles is empowered by law to design the state's plates and prescribe what is on them.

Froslid will probably be the finding of the court when its decision is handed down, but even in defeat Mr. Froslid can be assured of having performed a useful service.

In the first place by launching an assault on the colossus of government from the fortress of individual rights, he has overrekindled a dormant spark in many fellow-citizens. More important, however, is the lying manner he has cautioned bureaucracy that individuals are vigilant and it is hoped it will be wise to remember their rights must not be ignored in more vital considerations.

Unwelcome Endorsement

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Praise is rare, criticism frequent in a daily newspaper's mail, but endorsement of cults is rare. Even the communications that seek to support the editors of a daily are sometimes less than encouraging.

Such as the one reported by a Halifax newspaper which informed the "editors" that, "It is the furst time that I have ever found a newspaper that thinks exactly the same way I do." Wonderful stuff this, but for the posterity which spoilsgized as follows: "Pardon the colur crayon, but where I am riting now, we are not allowed to have sharp objects."

Brain Damage Serious Matter Which Could Prove Tragic

BY JOSEPH G. MOLINER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Moliner: I read with interest and dismay a letter written to you and your reply to the woman with a brain-damaged child.

There is help, there are people who are concerned, and something can be done. My brother has such a child who had been taken to various doctors. Then one recommended Institute. It has a program designed to develop that part of the brain which is not damaged. Due to this program children have been taught to walk, to talk, to read and in general become normal. In many cases, these children have surpassed the mentality of so-called normal children of equal age. Please pass this information along. — S. R.

I'm sure you are sincere, but I cannot in good conscience publicize the "institutes" for education. I imply no criticism of it. It may do a very fine job.

But let's face facts. Brain damage is a serious and permanent matter. It is tragic.

I agree that much can often be done for either the retarded or the brain-damaged child. There is no doubt that, in the past, many such children have been shunted aside, "written off" without any effort to develop their capabilities.

After all, a normal child can have to be trained, or "taught" or whatever you want to call the process of imparting knowledge. A normal child, subjected to being ignored or thrust aside, will not develop to his full potentialities. This, regrettably, has happened at times. Perhaps it still happens.

Let's take the opposite condition. Either retarded or brain-damaged children are so educated, but there will be a limit as to what they learn or understand.

Frequently a retarded child will have a remarkably good memory. Yet not understand. But because of that, such children with patience, can be trained to have certain skills even though they may not understand the reasons.

All this is fine. Everybody — don't you think so, too?—should learn to use such abilities as he can. Most of us would be more ugly good. The genius should be exceptionally good. The retarded should be capable as their condition permits.

But let's not try to convince ourselves that brain damage doesn't matter, that other parts of the organ can take on all the duties of the damaged area.

Yes, the brain-damaged and retarded can, within limitations, learn to do a great deal. The degree of damage governs what is possible. We have not done enough in the past, and we are not doing enough now to help such youngsters to make the best use of the ability they possess.

But we must also guard against fooling ourselves by believing that training can make them into "normal" children.

A lame child, with splints, braces or whatever, can be taught to walk. He cannot become a sprinter, a pitcher at ball, or become a ballet dancer.

It is the same with damage to the mind.

Dear Dr. Moliner: What kind of a surgeon is best for a broken nose? — Mrs. M. H.

Your regular physician doubtless has taped up many a broken nose. But if you mean the nose is out of shape from having been broken some time ago, a plastic surgeon would be preferred.

Note to M. T.: Neither fruit nor "acid" is "bad for the skin" but I doubt if my word will settle your family argument. Still, that's it.

Strictly Personal

The Arts Need More Talented Audiences

BY SIDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The fundamental and unresolvable contradiction in the male mind is that no father of 40 wants his daughter to do what he wanted other men's daughter to do when he was 20.

Everything now represents not only a beginning, but also the end of something else; all the innovations are also reminiscences as much as they are introductions, and their newness cannot be fully grasped unless we comprehend what they are replacing, not merely in the material sense, but in the history of human ideas.

When science ignores the possibilities of moral evil, it fulfills the warning of Thoreau, who said: "Man cannot afford to be a naturalist, to look at nature directly, but only with the side of his eye. He must look through her, not at her. To look at her is as fatal as to look at the head of Medusa. It turns the man of science to stone."

What the arts most desperately need are not more talented artists but more talented audiences; the presence of a large body of uncultivated spectators has helped to kill culture in age than the presence of a large body of incompetent artists.

One of the most common mistakes is to confuse "strong will" with "self will" — a baby is self willed, it wants what it wants when it wants it; which is precisely why it does not have a strong will, which wants what it wants only at the right time, under the right conditions, and in a manner appropriate to the true needs of the person.

How many accused men have been sentenced to 20 years in jail because of the blame one of the jurors had to get home early for a birthday party? Or let off entirely because another juror had a wife in the hospital?

The world in which "practical" politicians operate is not at least a generation behind the real world; what the practical politician knows about reality the errors of his father in modern dress.

Those who complain that the psychological disciplines don't really deal with the "normal" enough in the mind will William James' useful precept to his students: "To study the abnormal is the best way of understanding the normal."

Here we commit a piece of stupidity, we shown by many mistakes" — as if most other people go around making dishonest mistakes.

A good teacher is one who knows enough about his own personal bias in particular area, and urges them to lean against the wind of his preconceptions until the mind gives full assent to them.

Jack Lundberg Says Canada Wants Own Flag

VANCOUVER (CP) Canadians would be much more nationalistic and proud of their country if a decision was made on a flag and national anthem, the president of the 100,000 member Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association said Wednesday.

Jack Lundberg of Belleville said Canadians really want to belong and they really want to feel they have one country, but they are not quite sure how to go about it.

He cited the flag issue, the national anthem and biculturalism as examples of what he meant.

"Strangely enough, other people respect Canada and recognize our 'Canadianism' but we don't seem to be too sure about it ourselves," he said.

Reeve Shannon of Marmora Opposes 'Stop Sign' on Highway 14 Near Foxboro

A great many residents of the Marmora and Stirling areas are unhappy about the apparent "downgrading" of No. 14 Highway, which dead ends at Marmora and would like to see this road brought up to present highway standards.

This was the complaint heard Thursday at Hastings county council as Marmora Reeve William Shannon wanted to know why No. 14 now is a virtual stop street for southbound traffic at the Foxboro bypass while the county road to Madoc is the "through" Every.

He said he approved the upgrading of the Foxboro Madoc county road, but at the same time he did not want to see the long established No. 14 highway reverting back to a lower class road.

Municipal Highways engineer Glen French of Kingston said he thought the main reason for the Madoc county road route at Foxboro being made the through artery was that a traffic count had indicated a greater volume of traffic on this road.

AIM TO IMPROVE

He said from an engineering point of view the idea would be to make the most travelled route the through artery. The aim was to improve traffic conditions.

Mr. French added, however, that there was no intention of down grading the No. 14 highway route to Marmora, and said there were plans on the drawing-boards to continue the upgrading of No. 14 highway toward Marmora within the next few years.

He added that he understood there were also plans to make the Madoc road a more senior route.

Previous to last year the No. 14 highway route to Marmora was the "through" road at Foxboro but in 1963 the Foxboro by-pass was completed and

County Council Members Guests At Corbyville

Members of Hastings county council were guests of Corby's Thursday afternoon as they were taken on a tour of the distillery plant at Corbyville four miles north of the city.

The program was welcomed by distillery manager C. G. MacDonald and were shown colored slides showing plant operations before being taken on the tour.

The visitors were shown all phases of the operation from the unloading and grinding of the corn, the various mash and fermentation processes, were shown through one of the big rack houses where barrelled whiskey is aged and finally the bottling and shipping operations.

Following the tour there was a reception at which County Warden Thomas Burnside and Thurlow Reeve Clayton Hall expressed appreciation to Mr. MacDonald and other Corby officials.

Hastings County Council Thursday approved a regular road expenditure by-law for 1964 in the amount of $400,000 of which $300,000 will be for maintenance and $100,000 for construction.

Later next spring a supplementary by-law will be considered for major construction items planned for the year.

Of the $400,000 regular by-law, an amount of $54,000 will be allotted to the Belleville and Suburban Roads Commission. The suburban roads commission has no major projects planned for this year, having last year built the new Canniffon bridge.

Aside from maintenance work, machinery repairs and machinery purchases, the county this year plans construction of a new bridge over the Moira River at Stoco. Estimated cost of this bridge is $169,000 which will be provided for in the supplementary roads budget later in the year.

Roads and Bridge Committee chairman Reeve Clayton Hall of Thurlow read the roads report which was passed with little discussion.

Reeve Wilmott Rose of Frankford did ask whose responsibility it was to repair pavement cuts made to allow watermain and sewer installations.

He was told it was the contractor's responsibility and the onus was on the municipality to see that the work was done properly.

District Social Workers Told County Welfare Units Coming

"The administration of general welfare assistance by a county welfare unit is the coming trend," stated Mr. Frank J. Nobilo, regional welfare administrator for District No. 8, in addressing a dinner meeting of the Kingston - Quinte branch of Social Workers, held last Tuesday evening at the Queen's Hotel in Belleville.

A central county welfare unit with one person in charge of administration is seen as the best method in correct many of the inequities which now exist in the present township-based system. There are over a thousand municipalities in Ontario that set present administer their own welfare program. Administrators are generally employed full - time in other capacities and cannot be expected to devote much time to the task of investigating welfare claims. Often they receive as little as $25. a year for this work.

A full time county welfare administrator would be a much more thorough job of investigating claims for welfare, checking eligibility for entrance to county homes and overseeing requests for indigent hospitalization. Perhaps most important, he would have time to attempt some rehabilitative work with long-time recipients and possibly provide alternatives to social assistance.

In 1951 the Ontario government passed permissive legislation to allow counties to cut across township lines and establish units. Counties have been slow to accept the idea partly because individual townships have feared loss of autonomy and worried about the administrative costs of such units. Mr. Nobilo commented that a good administrator could quite easily save the county the cost of his salary by efficient and effective work in rehabilitation and more careful investigation and follow-up of claims.

FRIDAY-EDWARD NEXT

It was not until January of 1963 that the first unit was set up in Wentworth County. Early reports indicate the success of this scheme. February 1, 1964 will see the opening of a second county unit, to be established in Prince Edward County.

County welfare units would have responsibilities concerning all welfare programs except the Child Welfare Act. The Children's Aid Societies will continue to administer this act and operate as now constituted.

"The establishment of county welfare units," concluded Mr. Nobilo, "is a progressive step which will improve standards of welfare administration and in the long run save the taxpayer money by putting greater emphasis on prevention and rehabilitation."

Twenty - seven members of the Kingston - Quinte branch of the Ontario Association of Social Workers were present. These people are employed in a number of social agencies in Kingston, Napanee, Picton, Peterborough and Belleville. Those present represented Kingston General Hospital, the John Howard Society, Sunnyside Home for Emotionally Disturbed Children, Federal Prison for Women, Elizabeth Fry Society, Ontario Hospital in Kingston, Peterborough Roman Catholic Welfare Bureau, Mental Health Clinic in Peterborough, Ontario Department of Public Welfare, and the Children's Aid Societies of Peterborough, Napanee and Belleville.

Residents of County Home Enjoy Auxiliary Parties

On Monday, January 20th, the women's Auxiliary of the Hastings County Home met in the library of the home for the first meeting of the year with the new president Mrs. A. Daniels in charge.

The annual report for 1963 was given by the secretary Mrs. M. Nobes. Nine meetings were held during the year. At the conclusion of each meeting a birthday party was held in the dining room with a birthday cake and party hats for each one having a birthday in that month. Pictures were taken at meetings and recorded in a map album.

During the year the travelling tuck shop has been in great demand with two carts in operation Mrs. W. Kempston and Mrs. E. Ray were in charge of these. The Sarcoptimist club of Belleville donated a movie screen and projector to the residents.

PURCHASES MADE

The Auxiliary purchased a quantity of bingo cards and bingo shots, a hair dryer, a large umbrella and six wooden chairs for the lawn. Mrs. Holmes, the president attended the convention for the Home for the Aged in Windsor, along with Mr. and Mrs. Yorke. Six overblankets were purchased and were much appreciated by the staff and patients.

The fall bazaar was held in October with about 400 paid admissions. Some of the ladies assisted Mrs. Yorke in wrapping Christmas gifts. The members ship report showed 44 individual paid members and 12 organizations.

Ten more lawn chairs are to be bought for the residents. At Valentine tea each one will have a valentine and an apple. On Feb. 12th there will be a bingo.

After the meeting the members met the 17 residents who were taken birthdays in the dining room. Mrs. Sylvia Armitage, 88 years old, cut the birthday cake. Mrs. Morgan and Mrs. Skinkle poured tea and an enjoyable hour was spent.

Successful Living

Bid for Another Date Will End All Uncertainty

DEAR DORIS — I am 19 years of age. While away last summer I wrote to a girl whom I used to like very much and asked her to go out when I'd come back home, but I didn't follow it up. Why I didn't I don't really know. She used to say "no" every time I asked her to go out with me. I've been interested in her for four years. Some other people told me of other girls who like me, but I'm not interested in them.

DORIS CLARK

I'm very lonesome. How would I go about asking the girl to go out or find out if she is interested in me?

Also please tell me how to gain weight or to have a good build. — R. A.

* * *

DEAR R. A. — Get tickets for a special dance or stage play and put the question once more. One more "no" and she's off your list. You can't live with your present uncertainty.

For a reply to your second question, write again enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am 17 and go steady with a nice boy. But I'm having troubles. He has this special girl on his mind, calls her up, calls her "dear." Do you think that is right, when he is supposed to be going steady with me?

He told her the next time he goes to the movies, he will call in for her. You see, I'm going to write examinations this week and she has done hers. I don't want to break up but if it is necessary I will. As they say, there's lots of fish in the sea. — LONELY GIRL.

* * *

DEAR GIRL — That's right. Go fishing. Let this one off the hook; unless he and you are both willing to have dates without the everlasting unsteady steady business.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My daughter has developed a crush on a married man 22 years old, and one of our intimate circle of friends. His wife is terribly jealous as he dances more with my daughter and stays with her all evening when our group is together.

We have a family business which includes servicing typewriters and we buy supplies from him, which means he calls at the house often. I have always served him coffee and my daughter waits on him hand and foot.

I can't tell my husband about this as he is a severe critic and would be apt to discontinue business with this chap or punch him in the nose. We have dealt with him for eight years. — WORRIED MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR MOTHER — A smooth-tongued, smooth-mannered older man, salesman type, can mesmerize a girl of 20 into finding all males her age dull. I'm for the punch-in-the-nose technique myself. What price good business relations?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Would it be correct for the mother or sisters of the bride-groom-to-be to arrange a bridal shower for the bride? — ANXIOUS FATHER.

* * *

DEAR FATHER — No, nor any member of either family. Usually a close friend is the instigator and hostess.

* * *

(Doris can give you a new slant on your dilemma. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Clothes More Feminine, Filled in Italian Show

By LOUISE HICMAN

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Clothes more feminine and fitted, with colors no longer vivid but pale, are the Italian fashions disclosed in 10 days of Rome and Florence showings.

Definite changes have been made for spring and summer by Italy's top designers.

Small, close bodices fill clost at the sides and are shaped with high-arched seams or are otherwise constructed to make the midriff look concave. A small, high, round bosom is a must.

The most striking skirt shapes were from Antonelli and Forquet, whose dirndls were slimly bombe, starting above the waistline. Forquet's were slightly cones falling from a high, shaped seam. Most designers preferred skirts either straight but soft or very slightly flared. Hems covered the knee.

Shoulders now are soft, with raglan or kimono seaming. Most are wide. Coat and suit sleeves are shorter, closer to bracelet length. Dresses and blouses look newest with tiny cap sleeves, spelling an end to the reign of sleevelessness.

COLLARS IMPORTANT

Collar treatments are most important. There was hardly a collection without soft ring collars — smooth, bowed, knotted or looped, narrow or wide.

There were wispy, billowy, back-blown evening clothes in featherweight pale printed silks. Other important silks were heavy double-weight crepes and pastel printed crinkle crepes.

Smooth - surfaced woolsgabardines, diagonals and double-face types—stood out. Brand new effects were created by weaving silk ribbon and soft wool together.

Plain linen was a great favorite, and heavy cotton piques with rich, novelty surfaces were widely used for summer evening gowns, especially in white.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

On Thursday evening the local association of the Northeast district Girl Guides and Brownies met at the Sir Winston Churchill School to finalize plans for the coming rummage sale and their part in the annual Belleville Division parade and bake sale.

The rummage sale slated for Saturday morning at the Kiwanis Centre is being held especially to raise funds to enable the North-east district to provide new Guide and Brownie leaders with uniforms and to pay the registration fee for prospective leaders to attend basic training. It is also desirable to contribute to the fund which has been established to financially aid Belleville Guides chosen for the annual tour.

DO FICERS APPOINTED

The 1964 Local Association was set up at a previous meeting, convened by Mrs. G. Brennan, North-east District Commissioner; Mrs. F. Bell, presGent; Mrs. E. M. O'Connor, secretary; Mrs. R. Pringle, treasurer and Mrs. L. Matthews, badge secretary.

The next meeting will be held on the second Tuesday in March. It was Mrs. Bell's opinion that if the women met more frequently the group would have a better understanding of the needs and requirements of the Guiders and with more interest aroused the parade would be better attended. Ten ladies were present on Tuesday.

Mrs. O'Connor announced the annual Girl Guide and Brownie tea will be held on the first Wednesday in February at Christ Church parish hall. The mothers were asked to donate to both the North-east district bake table and the tea room, and to mark items clearly as to district and whether they were intended for the bake sale or the tea room.

Mrs. Pringle received names of those able to help in the kitchen and with the bake sales. She noted that more help will be needed in both sections.

The proceeds from the four bake tables remain in the respective district and with the tea ticket money is the only source of income for the Belleville division.

Home and School News

BAYSIDE SCHOOL

The January meeting of the Bayside Home and School Association proved to be a progressive and informative evening even though there was a small attendance.

The treasurer Mrs. May gave the financial report which revealed much activity during the year. Two blankets for the sick room as well as a brief case for the treasurer were purchased. An amount of $100 has been set aside for the purchase of school books which may be bought at a 15 per cent discount.

QUALITY IMPROVES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gradual improvement in the qualification of Manitoba teachers is indicated by a survey. Answers to a questionnaire show 2,039, or 23.8 per cent of all the province's teachers, have degrees. The survey, taken last fall, compares with 1,824, or 22.5 per cent, the previous year.

U.C.W. Meeting

BRIDGE STREET U.C.W.

The United Church Women of Bridge Street United Church held their January meeting, with the president Mrs. A. J. Clare presiding.

In the worship service Mrs. G. Moore spoke of "Beginnings" and reminded the members of the greatest beginning of all time — "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." She reminded them too that with His help they can do creative work.

The annual reports revealed the size and scope of the work of the United Church Women; also the year's accomplishments of this group of 228 members. The $6,400 raised by monthly envelopes, Thanksgiving and Easter offerings, spring tea and bazaar in the fall are only the beginnings of an interesting story. An amount of $3,200 has been forwarded to the Mission Board for home mission work in Ontario and across Canada and for work in other lands.

The foremost purpose of the U.C.W. has been kept uppermost in the minds and hearts of the members in programs including the study of the books "On Asia's Rim" and "The World and the West."

VARIOUS COMMITTEES

The various committees served in a number of capacities and the efficient kitchen committee dispensed refreshments and hospitality every meeting of the year. Members were responsible for beautiful floral arrangements for the tables and for 52 Sundays of the year. The U.C.W. assisted the stewards at morning and evening services in welcoming the assembling congregations. During the year 300 greetings were sent and over calls made a number of these including the residents at the County Home the Aged. A total of 326 pounds of clothing and ten new blankets were shipped to the United Church Overseas Relief Fund. Knitting and sewing were done for the Red Cross.

The newly elected president, Mrs. Bryson Leslie, took the chair and her first duty was the presentation of a gift to Mrs. Clare in appreciation of her leadership through the first two years of the new organization. Rev. H. M. Davis spoke briefly and complimented the ladies on a most successful year.

After dealing with a few items of business refreshments were served.

Club Activities

CHRIST CHURCH CONTACT CLUB

On Monday evening the Contact Club of Christ Church held their annual auction sale under the direction of the auctioneers, Connie Judd and Jimmy Hewitt, with Dot Montaigue acting as treasurer. A profitable night was had and good fellowship was enjoyed.

Lively bidding was heard on such items as new articles as jewellery, books, home baking, preserves, clothing and many other household items.

After the auction, president Shirley Harris made a few important announcements. Next Monday, the annual Vestry Council meeting is scheduled, therefore there will be no meeting of the Contact Club. The Monday following, February 3rd, will be a bring and sell meeting for the purpose of making tablecloths. The girls were reminded of the forthcoming rummage sale.

Refreshments and a short social time closed the meeting to a close. Hostesses in charge of the evening were Pat Fielding, Jane Woodley and Edith Pringle.

Garbo's 1930's Styles Inspire Modern Trends

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—Following a fantastically successful season of Greta Garbo's pre-war movies at a West End London cinema, fashion writers spotted a striking similarity between the fall and winter styles and the tomboyish clothes habitually worn by the husky-voiced Swedish star.

In Queen Christina, made in 1934, for instance, Hollywood designer Adrian gave Garbo a swaggering medieval wardrobe of leather jerkins, doublets, heraldic chains and thigh-boots.

Ninotchka, a sophisticated comedy made in 1939, had Garbo as a Russian commissar in Paris, huddled in a trench coat and floppy beret, disdainful of fashion. Her hair dropped in a lank bob.

BOBS IN STYLE

And now? It's the height of fashion to have your winter coat look like something the British Army left behind in 1945. And Garbo bobs, at least for a time, supplanted laboriously backcombed sets at top hairdressers.

Garbo's own preference in clothes—she now lives in the quiet obscurity of a Paris suburb — tallies with her film image. Her personal wardrobe is full of dateless tweedy suits and trench coats. Her shoes are chosen for comfort rather than stiletto-poised for sex appeal—and now even these thick-heeled, lace-up brogues have made a fashion comeback.

In short, Garbo has suddenly become contemporary. Not only her clothes but her fine-boned features, her cool air of independence and throwaway sex appeal all are hailed as the latest look.

"Make no mistake," says Barbara Griggs in The Evening Standard, "this spells the end of the little-girl look as a contemporary ideal.

"Who, after falling under the Garbo spell, would ever wish to resemble a thoughtless teenager again?"

BARDOT'S OPPOSITE

Judy Innes in The Daily Mail places the "Garbo Girl" at the opposite pole to followers of another recent trend - setter, French sexkitten Brigitte Bardot. It's not only one's dress style but one's state of mind that counts, she says, and appends a guide to the two types.

The Garbo Girl: Sleeps in pyjamas; sports a plain wrist watch; wears understated makeup beneath a floppy hat; favors fur only when it's sleek and tailored; burns love letters and revels in dramatic moods; reads serious journals and could never, ever, be compared to a kitten. A panther, perhaps.

The Bardot Girl, on the other hand: Sleeps in a frilly nightgown or French perfume; likes lush furs; has her eyes with makeup; reads the horoscopes to women's magazines; hoards love letters and trinkets; wiggles, giggles and likes to feel protected.

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

Question: A friend of mine was telling me of a dish he sampled during the Christmas holiday served at a buffet. He only describe it as being the tiniest pork chops he had ever seen and these were cooked in a sweet and sour sauce. Do you suppose this would be a popular sweet and sour mixture? Perhaps you too, have eaten this and I would appreciate so much obtaining a recipe. Occasionally pork chops are available at ten for $1. (and I imagine these would be as small as you could obtain) and at this price it could be fairly reasonable in cost for a buffet.... Mrs. H. P.

Answer: One thing I have to point up is this: If the following recipe the pork chops are prebaked at very high temperature for 20 minutes and all excess fat is poured off. This means that you must provide 2½ lbs. medium pork chops to serve 6 (to have 2 medium-size pork chops each). But if you can buy the tiny pork chops your friend mentions and serve them as an item on a buffet table you may be able to use your ten chops for $1. deal.

1 cup pineapple juice,
½ cup water,
2 chicken bouillon cubes,
¼ cup cider vinegar,
¼ cup granulated sugar,
2 tablespoons soy sauce.

Trim some fat from edge of pork chops and place it evenly on large shallow baking dish. Arrange pork chops in overlapping rows on top of fat and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes. Drain off all excess fat and discard it. Meanwhile, in large frying pan, melt butter or margarine and in it gently saute the chopped onion, celery, green pepper, and garlic until limp. Add the pineapple juice to the water and stir the cornstarch into them until smooth. Stir into sauteed vegetables until thick. Add bouillon cubes, vinegar, sugar, and soy sauce and stir to mix. Remove from heat. When pork chops are browned and fat is discarded, pour sauce over evenly. Cover dish with foil and bake at reduced temperature of 325 deg. Fahr. for ½ to 1 hour longer.

This is excellent and popular and makes a fine guest dinner served with fluffy rice and Brussels sprouts.

Note: This sauce may be used on an equivalent amount of pre-baked spareribs.

Gay, Swinging Young Outline In Fashions

By LYNNE EDWARDS

LONDON (Reuters) — A gay swinging young outline emerged from couturier John Cavanagh's collection Thursday—the second day of the London spring fashion showing.

Softly-molded, cropped jackets topped swinging or pleated skirts which ended on the knee. The—hemline dipped an extra inch for evening wear. Sleeves were simply — styled, bloused dresses caught low with a belt at the waist.

For the more daring there were slim, yellow-satin pantaloons with matching full-length coat and crystal - embroidered tunic. A vivid pink tunic dress topped another pair of matching pantaloons.

Voluminous coats were heavy-checked or plain mohair and low-set, blocked sleeves which fell wide to the elbow.

Contrasting was a bloused, belted coat, hooked back and front with gold buttons and mandarin collar that Cavanagh features on many of his coats and suits.

GIVES COWBOY LOOK

His suits were divided between the traditional tailored cut and a tailored, semi-fitting line with back-dipping jacket and set-in sleeves.

The cowboy look was emphasized by self-colored fringing and cavalry twill. A dramatic black version had a fringed jacket with wide reveres over a low, square - necked blouse fringed across the hips.

Michael's skirts were fitted easily but flirted around the knees. Sand - and sunshine-shades were used with startling pinks.

His narrow, form - fitting coats had an extra inch added to length. The back - dipping, high-waisted theme was typified by a one-shot silk coat in orange sherbet with a stitched band curving high under the bust.

WOMEN ARE UNSURE

MONTREAL (CP) — Women are moving into the labor force faster than they're moving into high-level executive posts, says Phyllis Hardy, chairman of a seminar here on women executives. Miss Hardy says it's not just the men who feel women are incapable of taking on the responsibilities of an administrative post, but the women themselves.

Ann Landers

Desperate Young Lady Poorly Advised by Friend

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a girl, 16, who is scared to death. Don't tell me to talk to my mother because I've never been able to talk to her about anything.

I've been dating since I was 13 and thought I knew my way around. Now I'm in serious trouble and I don't know which way to turn.

The boy who got me pregnant says he knows of two other guys who could have been responsible. According to him that's all the court needs to let him off. When he said this I was so hurt I wanted to die.

Last night he brought me the name of a pill written on a slip of paper. He says three of these pills will correct the situation. Are these pills dangerous, Ann? Will they work? Please put this in the paper. If your answer came to my house, my folks would kill me. — MISS DESPERATE.

DEAR MISS — You use the phrase "correct the situation" as if you were talking about a case of fallen arches. The "situation" you refer to involves a life. And the "correction" you speak of so casually is called an abortion.

The word from here is not I repeat. Not Don't take pills or any other kinds of medication. Tell you mother about your condition at once. And, if you want a list of homes for unwed mothers in or near your city please let me know and I will send it immediately.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Gil and I have been married three months. I'm afraid we'll be divorced before we celebrate even one anniversary.

Whenever we are with friends and I start to tell something, Gil interupts me with: "It wasn't that way at all. It was like this." Then he takes my story over and I feel two inches high.

Our friends must think I'm the world's biggest liar, or a nitwit. It's getting hard to be contradicted and chopped dead. I'd rather be slapped in the face.

We are not kids. I'm 28 and Gil is 31. This is the second marriage for both and I'm determined to make it work. For this reason I have not let Gil know I am crushed. Please help me. — HUMILIATED.

* * *

DEAR HUMILIATED — Is Gil a mind-reader? How do you expect him to know how you feel unless you tell him?

Wait till he's in a receptive mood and then explain that marriage must be a double-harness effort based on mutual respect.

The one who belittles his spouse before witnesses does nothing for himself in the eyes of their friends — and he eventually kills both love and respect.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter's marriage ended in divorce. She has a small child and works to supplement her support cheque.

My husband and I have taken this daughter and her child into our home. She is a nervous girl and very depressed which is understandable. But she's making her own unpleasant place to be. Every evening there is an argument at the dinner table.

My husband would tell her to leave tomorrow if it weren't for the grandchild. We know the youngster gets good care with us. We aren't sure what would happen if we turned them out. Please, Ann, tell us what to do. — NEW ORLEANS WOES.

* * *

DEAR NEW ORLEANS — Ask your clergyman to discuss this with your daughter. She should understand that when a girl has botched up a marriage her folks do not owe her room and board and nursery services.

The clergyman should tell her you have been extremely generous and that her attitude is unworthy.

Genius Cabinetmaker Scrapes Through History

By JACK HUTTON

I've got a beef this week. I'm sick and tired of hearing adults refer patronizingly to some young people as "good with their hands, thank gosh."

You get the hidden message? The nephew flunked history and English literature but is doing well in shop work or motor mechanics. And the speaker doesn't think that's as good.

Well, meet a fellow who almost failed or had to repeat a year in school because he could not saw a board straight and I'm filled with admiration for the fellow who can.

I'm not kidding. Although I'm not proud of it, I could never seem to pound a nail straight or saw an even cut. My shop teacher was so frustrated he wanted me to repeat my last year.

My family still has (in a hidden corner, I think) an end table which took an entire winter for me to build. Look at it closely and you'll notice one support suspiciously shorter than the one beside it.

I'm writing this column after hearing from several teachers who confess they're worried by the stress many people place on the university-bound fellows and girls.

UNFAIR

"It's completely unfair," said the first, a history teacher. "We just overlook the other talents. Look at scholarship lists in Canada. How many of them offer scholarships to people not going to university? Very few."

"Young fellows who want to develop themselves in a particular trade or skill in Europe can usually find support from either the government or other scholarship sources. It isn't as easy here."

A teacher who handles guidance duties in a large secondary school spoke up.

"Let's take the case of someone who decides he wants to become an apprentice in a woodworking shop. Some will take him, but what about the craftsman with a small shop?" he asked.

"You can't blame the craftsman for figuring it will cost him too much to train an apprentice. He'll have to leave his own work too often. Well, how does the apprentice get the training?"

The third teacher felt he had an answer. "The Federal Government has spent many millions in the last few years helping to build technical, commercial and vocational schools," he said.

"Wouldn't it be sensible for federal authorities to spend more on the human side? Eventually, we hope, we are going to encourage more of our young people to develop their abilities as skilled craftsmen.

"Would you believe it?" the history teacher interrupted. "I have a student who just scrapes through his courses but is a genius cabinetmaker at the age of 16. And his mother is ashamed of it.

"What's with people like that? Why can't we grow up to recognize talented people like that young person? Just why do some parents look embarrassed when they say their child is good with his or her hands?"

LONGER SCHOOL YEAR

His (or her) subject: The spectre of both longer school days and a longer school year. Calgary public school has just decided to keep its schools open 200 days each year.

"I had started to write this letter to you," said our writer, "when I heard Calgary schools will be open 200 days a year from now on. Its only four days more than the average — but a trend.

"What I started to say is that everyone seems to expect us to give our youth longer, study harder and stay in more. At the same time we hear about the campaigning for shorter working weeks and that kind of thing.

"Several people around here are insisting we should go to school in the summer too. Can you imagine that? Sweltering in the July heat? After all, Alberta summers are short enough as it is.

"How do your other readers feel? Would they be in favor of staying in school 15 minutes or half an hour longer each day to get out a week or a few days earlier? Id be interested in knowing."

Legislature

sored health scheme, free of private interests, is essential to achieve this aim.

"This is not socialism—merely plain humanity."

Mr. Wyatt's appropriately named "brief" to the inquiry committee is one of a dozen submitted in which the right to appear at one of the committee's public hearings was waived. The final public hearing is scheduled for next Tuesday and Wednesday and the committee will consider the dozen written briefs at a private session the following week. In all, 36 briefs have been submitted.

Among the dozen are more elaborate versions of Mr. Wyatt's view, some statements sympathetic to the government's principle that people should buy their own protection from private insurers, and others pleading special cases.

ASK HEALTH PROMOTION

The Independent United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (UE), says on behalf of 20,000 Ontario workers that "only a state system of public health promotion (not just protection) can provide optimum, co-ordinated development of various needed elements . . . human welfare must not be placed secondary to profit considerations."

The union proposes a plan covering a full range of health benefits, with the needy receiving free insurance and the rest paying premiums no higher than the current rate for Ontario Hospital Services Insurance — $4.20 monthly for married men, $2.10 single. The balance of the cost would be paid by the government — the union estimates the government share at less than $100,000,000 annually—from income tax and capital gains taxes.

The Timmins local of the Ontario Farmers Union agrees that the plan should be publicly operated and with a wide range of services. It suggests that premiums of 80 cents weekly for a family, 30 cents single, plus a three-per-cent corporation tax and additional six-per-cent income tax would pay for a government program.

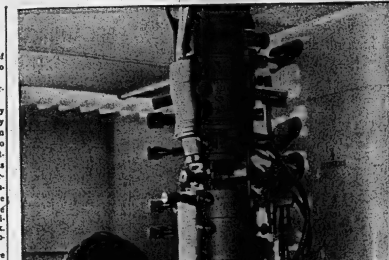
On the opposite side stands the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, whose brief comment supports the government's reliance on private insurers, and the Canadian Manufacturers Association, which also approves of the free-enterprise principle while seeking assurances that introduction of existing medical insurance will not rise.

WOULD RAISE COSTS



Many employers contribute towards such insurance for their workers and increased costs would make Ontario manufacturers less competitive, the association warns.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario likewise records no criticism of the government plan. But it urges the government to take care in drafting its legislation against debasing the term "physician" by including in the definition groups which "practise the healing arts in a limited manner."

Pleading special interests is the Ontario Pharmacists' Association, which says prescription drug costs should be covered by a plan administered by the government.

The Association of Remedial Gymnasts of Ontario asks that their service, too, should be covered in the plan. Remedial gymnasts engage in a form of group physical therapy.

Also seeking inclusion is Ziffin Biological Laboratory Limited of Toronto, which hones the government's free-of-choice axiom to a free-point: confining coverage to medical laboratories run by doctors or the government "takes out of the hands of the patient his right to freedom of choice as to which laboratory he will do certain tests," says Zifkin.

PEEKS INTO TINY WORLD — Assistant professor R. K. Ham of McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont., looks into viewing chamber of electron microscope, capable of viewing the tiniest particles, including such as smoke crystals. Stream of electrons is directed from top of column through specimen material, showing (CP Photo) on fluorescent plate in viewing chamber.

Engineers and Scientists At McMaster Get Fresh Look at the World of Atoms

HAMILTON (CP)If a dollar the size of the periods in this story was magnified 1,600,000 times it would cover an area large enough to hold a football stadium.

McMaster University here has acquired an electron microscope capable of magnifying an object this many times.

The equipment, being used to study the structure of metals, is giving engineers and scientists at the university a fresh look at the world of atoms.

The $35,000 instrument supplied by Siemens Halske Siemens Schuckert (Canada) Ltd. was paid for by a National Research Council grant to Dr. H. E. Petch, as chairman of the metallurgy department at McMaster.

The instrument's power to magnify is such that an operator can actually see the spaces between rows of atoms in the material he is observing. Magnification can also range as low as 2,000 times which is the highest level for optical microscopes.

A main interest of the metallurgy department is investigating the causes of metal fatigue and using knowledge acquired about the structure of metals to make them stronger.

Knowledge gained from examining metal through the electron microscope may be of great assistance in the designing of alloys, particularly such high-strength, durable alloys as are required for space - age machinery.

The microscope uses a stream of electrons to do the looking. Like a light, the stream of electrons vibrates but the length of the waves is much shorter.

When you are using light and looking at an object that is smaller than the wave length of light, you can't see the object no matter how powerful an optical microscope you have. The shorter wave length of the electron allows the smaller object to be seen.

In the electron microscope the stream of electrons is directed through a thin sample of whatever you are examining and on to a fluorescent plate. There the picture of the material, magnified up to 1,600,000 times, appears in the same way that a picture appears when electrons hit the end of a television tube.

Since the electrons go through the specimen, the engineer or scientist is able to see inside the sample as well as view its surface.

The instrument at McMaster, which weighs about a ton and stands seven feet high, is housed in a spotless cabinet in a specially air-conditioned room in the engineering building. In addition to its research role, it is employed for teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

the vision of Mr. Macaulay today tapping the province's full wealth, he said. "He had a quality that has not been exhibited by this government in the person of any other member."

REPLACED WINTERMEYER

Mr. Oliver, who took over the House leadership of the Liberals, following the defeat of John Wintermeyer in the Sept. 25 provincial election, said better days would have been in store for Ontario had Mr. Macaulay been "allowed to carry on."

The Nine evolved by the former economics minister had their 'shortcomings and at times were parochial in their application, said Mr. Oliver. His address was at times was carnivallike.

Yet Mr. Macaulay's idea was that Ontario's resources were not being tapped to the maximum. Not for 20 years had anyone in the Conservative government paid heed to this.

In particular, Mr. Oliver singled out the provincial mines department, saying mining in Ontario is in the "doldrums and operating at one-quarter of its potential.

"I don't know any other word to use except neglect," he said.

The acting Liberal leader mentioned parts of the throne speech that said the government must would have to bear heavy burden during the years. This constituted the softening-up process for the coming tax bite.

Provincial Treasurer James N. Allin is to bring in his budget early in February. Premier Roberts has already indicated the province is in for increased taxation.

URGES ECONOMY

Mr. Oliver said the Liberals would be extremely reluctant to vote for any new taxes until the government demonstrated that it could practice economy. He added: "I have no hope . . . that they're intending to do this at all."

He proposed the appointment of a committee to examine government administration and spending, saying useless expenditures and services have grown up "that we could well do without."

Mr. Oliver said Premier Roberts had failed to get his handshake for Ontario at the November federal-provincial conference in Ottawa. This was futile, he said, the Conservative government's hopes came away short-handed from these conferences no matter what government was in the power in Ottawa.

The Roberts government had left itself in position of needing new tax revenues but would have trouble convincing the people of Ontario.

The people would not have been so anxious to return this government had they known something about the finances of the province and that new taxes were to be imposed," he said.

Premier Roberts was elected with 77 seats in the 107-seat legislature, giving him no problem in being sworn the Lieutenants' non confidence motion when it comes to a vote. The Liberals have 25 seats and the New Democrats seven.

The non-confidence motion, in the form of an amendment to the throne speech, regretted that the government "has failed to proclaim a program designed to meet the challenges of the '60s."

Sunday School Lesson

Two Men and Money

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

There is no doubt about it, money is one of the most important things in the world. It cannot buy happiness, but it provides the necessities of life, and security in our old age. It is necessary to finance great scientific and industrial undertakings. But money can also tempt a person to become a thief, and cause a person to neglect his family and his health in pursuit of it. Worry about money can rob us of a normal sleep. Fights about money can split a home. Lack of it can sprout seeds of discontent and revolution, while too much of it can turn a person into a snob. The author of Proverbs showed great wisdom when he prayed "Give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me: lest I be full and deny thee, and say, who is the Lord? or lest I be poor, and steal, and take the name of my God in vain." (Proverbs 30:8-9).

Money is a good servant, but a poor master. Jesus warned against serving money rather than God, yet He recognized the importance of money. The wise use of it, He pointed out, can help us to make friends and deserve their approval. (Luke 16: 9).

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 26 is: "Zacchaeus and the Rich Young Ruler," Mark 10:17-31; Luke 19:1-10.

Jesus pointed out the perils of wealth, but did not condemn a person just because he was wealthy. The rich man He described in the Bible as having great possessions, yet we are told that Jesus "beholding him loved him" (Mark 10:21). The first thing we are told about Zacchaeus is that he was rich, yet Jesus invited Himself to be a guest in Zacchaeus' home. (Luke 19:5).

RELIGIOUS BUT SELFISH

It is interesting to notice where each of these two rich men started, and where each ended up. The rich ruler began with a definite interest in religion. He studiously kept the ten commandments, and he craved assurance that he would obtain eternal life. He was what we would call a God-fearing man, but he was also selfish, and loved his money. He could not serve poverty and disease, but turned a blind eye and a deaf ear. He rejected Jesus' advice to turn his holdings into cash and to give liberally to the poor. He wanted peace of mind, but giving his wealth for social ends was too high a price to pay for it.

Thus he represents the large landholders of the world who are unwilling to give up any of their vast holdings to alleviate sometimes and deplorable poverty. South America, for example, is rife with this problem. A small percentage of wealthy landowners own most of the wealth while millions live in utter destitution. They resist social change and show no real concern for the poor. No wonder the situation breeds an interest in communism that offers bread but denies freedom, material blessings at the price of the political enslavement. The so-called Christian nations of the world must show that they are interested in both food and freedom for all, relief of the poor and rights of the individual.

MAN WITH A HEART

Zacchaeus, the other rich man, was no esteemed citizen. He was a tax-collector who had probably been feathering his own nest at the expense of others. He himself admitted that some of his wealth may have come by making "false accusations" against the taxpayers.

Like the other rich man, he was evidently not at peace with himself. The first man's religion did not give him the assurance he wanted and Zacchaeus' wealth did not give him the acceptance he craved. So he went to great lengths to see Jesus. He climbed a tree to see Jesus because he was too short to see over the crowd, but neither his short stature nor his unsavory reputation were barriers to keep us for He recognized Zacchaeus as a person who needed help. What Jesus said to him, we do not know, but being with Jesus worked a miraculous change in Zacchaeus' life. What the first man rejected, he volunteered to do, offering to give half of what he possessed to the poor and to restore fourfold any money he had taken dishonestly. The result was a new acceptance of Zacchaeus by those who had disowned him. A few because of his despised occupation and his questionable ethics.

Thus Zacchaeus learned that wealth, though important, is not everything. It became his servant and brought him and others new happiness. It remained the first man's god, and condemned him to a life of continued uncertainty and lack of real joy.

Annual 'Gold Rush' Hunt For Buried Pirate Loot On

ST. GEORGES, Grenada (Reuters)—The Caribbean's annual "gold-rush" hunt for buried pirate loot is on.

Treasure - seekers have been converging on these tropical islands with snorkel and skin-diver gear, divining rods, charts where X marks the spot, or just faith.

On the Windward and Leeward Islands, the prizes are rich and rare, if local legends are any indication.

On St. Thomas, chief of the American Virgin Islands, the hopeful still hunt for the famous loot of Edward Teach, the dread pirate known as Blackbeard.

On Guadeloupe the visitor may trace the exploits of Capt. Antoine Puet, whose corsairs were credited with capturing more than 800 ships between 1794 and 1798. The booty from them won him his nickname of Captain Moldores, from the name of an old Portuguese gold coin.

SUNKEN GOLD

Dominica has a tradition that doubloons and Louis d'Or were found washed up on the shore from two Spanish galleons which foundered off its rugged cliffs.

On St. Lucia, an Aztec princess was said to guard a Spanish galleon's gold sunk in 100 fathoms of fathom. She was the bride of the captain, Don Escobel, who was bringing her home from the San Fernando when it foundered on a reef in 1597.

Here in Grenada there are tales that in certain wooded parts of the island you may stumble on an age-old oaken door, locked with a great padlock. But no one has ever got the padlock off or found the door again.

And at Telescope Point, near where the island-hopping airplanes come in to land, it is said that pirate treasure lies buried on the shore. But just as the treasure-seekers had uncovered the brassbound chest and is wrestling with the lid, so the story goes, a great sea sweeps in, drag him into the deep and drowns him.

Cabinet Minister and Party Official Named in Statement

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald read to the Ontario legislature Thursday what he said was a statement of claim in which a top official of the Conservative party is said to have received $12,000 from Meichers Distilleries Limited to secure his influence.

Mr. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the statement of claim is on file at Osgoode Hall and is available as a public document. He noted that it "merely represents a set of allegations advanced by a plaintiff who feels that he has been dealt with unjustly."

In the statement, plaintiff James Neal McDowell claims his salary as Ontario sales manager for Meichers was cut by 2¢ per cent because he refused to obey an order by Jules Thibaudeau, vice-president of Meichers, to turn over $12,000 in cash to the politician, Mr. MacDonald said.

OMITS NAMES

Mr. MacDonald said the statement of claim named the top party official, whom he referred to as Mr. X, and an Ontario cabinet minister, whom he referred to Mr. Y.

He said he was omitting the names of the cabinet minister and party official "because we are not interested in the persons, but rather the principles and the practice involved. What is alleged to have happened here."

About mid-way through the statement, Liberal member Elmer Sopha of Sudbury challenged Mr. MacDonald's action in reading it, maintaining the case is before the courts. However, Speaker Donald H. Morrow allowed him to continue.

The Speaker said he would rule later whether the document was in order. If he found it was not, he would order it stricken from the record.

CHALLENGED AGAIN

When Mr. MacDonald was near the completion of his remarks, he was again challenged —this time by Allan F. Lawrence (PC—St. George), who asked the speaker to make an immediate ruling on whether the NDP leader should be allowed to continue.

Mr. Morrow then ruled that Mr. MacDonald should desist until today, when he would rule whether the statement would be allowed. However, at this point Mr. MacDonald had already read the full statement.

Mr. MacDonald quoted Mr. McDowell as saying in the statement that after he refused to make the "political payoff" he was replaced by Lt.-Col. William W. G. Darling, a Meichers employee, and that Col. Darling and Mr. Marchand gave the party official the $12,000.

Mr. McDowell was quoted as saying that he was later told his contract with Meichers was being varied "to reduce his salary 25 per cent and that the aforementioned Lt.-Col. William W. G. Darling was in charge of the Ontario operations and would relieve the plaintiff of any dealings with the top party official."

Mr. MacDonald quoted the statement as saying: "The plaintiff states that the remuneration of his contract of employment was reduced by a malicious, vindictive and evil conspiracy of the defendants to punish him for his refusal to participate in the defendants' conspiracy to effect an unlawful purpose, is wit: To conspire together the one with the other to give money to a person having or pretending to have influence with the government or with a minister of the government, or an official of the government, to secure from such persons co - operation, assistance, or exercise of influence on behalf of the defendants herein."

Johnson

pute; that it is in fact a serious geopolitical battle which will have far-reaching consequences.

The Czech leader is reported to feel that French diplomatic activity in Peking may help moderate and contain Chinese aggressiveness — a view not shared by Johnson or Pearson.

INFLUENCE DROPS

De Gaulle also is reported to believe there now is a general deterioration of western influence in southeast Asia, leading to the threat of a western power vacuum in that vital region, and that France can help the West by reasserting its old influence over its former colonies.

The French leader is said to have concluded that the only peaceful future for southeast Asia lies in neutralism. This was questioned by the Canadian and U.S. leaders, who fear neutralism means that volatile area may lead to Communist domination.

Johnson is reported determined there will be no U.S. retreat from that region.

There is agreement in U.S. circles that de Gaulle's diplomatic operations in the Far East could hamper U.S. operations in southeast Asia. The U.S. wants the South Vietnamese to maintain a strong assault against infiltrating Communist Viet Cong. But the war in Viet Nam is not going well and de Gaulle's neutralism proposal may hold some appeal for those in South Viet Nam who are weary of the fighting.

Some of Johnson's advisers have urged him to speak out against de Gaulle, to condemn his disloyalty and to recognize Red China now. But Johnson has told some friends he will not take any opportunity to talk back to the French leader at this time.

There has been much diplomatic activity between Washington and Paris in an attempt to dissuade de Gaulle from recognizing China, but this activity has failed.

The rigidity of de Gaulle's attitude was conveyed with emphasis when Pearson met with him for 2½ hours last week.

Sources here said Pearson could not find agreement with de Gaulle on many of his foreign policy views. It was understood, however, that the Canadian approach was to help allaying the French president's forthrightness, self - confidence, intelligence and determination.

B. C. Govt. To Challenge Court Decision

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government is to challenge a decision that its 1961 expropriation of the B.C. Electric Company was ultra vires of the legislature.

Notices of appeal were filed Thursday by the attorney-general's department and the Crown-owned B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

While the appeal is directed against a decision made this week, it has the effect of seeking to upset the judgment of Chief Justice Sherwood Lett last August.

He ruled then that the government could not expropriate B.C. Electric because it was an asset of a federally - incorporated company. The chief justice also ruled that 1962 legislation forming B.C. Hydro out of B.C. Electric and a Crown company was invalid.

The government and the B.C. Power Corporation, parent of B.C. Electric, reached an out-of-court settlement on the price to be paid for the giant utility —$197,114,028 — and it was thought that the Lett judgment never became law.

But Mr. Justice Craig Munroe ruled in B.C. Supreme Court in Victoria this week that the Lett judgment has full effect and that even though it was never formally "entered" by the B.C. Power Corporation, but in spirit it has, and the Hydro authority and the attorney-general submit that Mr. Justice Munroe should have held that the power acts were valid.

Enthusiasts Take Boats To Florida

It was natural that two such men would take along their boats and motors for the races which were held at Lakeland, Florida on January 18th, called the Orange Regatta.

It was quite natural that when they arrived they entered their boats in the respective classes, and by so doing put the town of Picton on the map down in the deep south.

They both arrived back at work on Thursday and reported that all sorts of records were broken, "but all I broke was a motor," he added with a smile. He got through the eliminations in the C stock and went to the finals, but an overheated motor forced him to pull out of the race.

Len Vigodda broke a world record in his A stock hydro, but in spite of that and the Hydro authority and the attorney-general submit that Mr. Justice Munroe should have held that the power acts were valid.

Guards Will Be Hosts for Boxing Matches

PICTON (Staff) — The First Battalion Canadian Guards Camp Picton will be the host unit for the Eastern Ontario Boxing championships for 1964 which will be held at the Picton Armouries on the 17th and 18th of February.

The arrangements are being co-ordinated by Major R. A. Billings from units at Petawawa, Ottawa, Kingston, Barrefield, Cobourg and Picton will be represented at these championship matches. The matches will be open to the public.

67.5 Accident Free Days Come to End

PICTON (Staff) — A string of 67.5 accident free days at Ontario Hydro's Portland Cement came to an end on Tuesday as Murney Gibson of Bellville, employed in the plant's maintenance department injured his hand.

He was taken for treatment to the Prince Edward Memorial Hospital following the accident. His injuries are not believed to be serious.

'Jack Rabbit' Start Costly For Car Owner

PICTON (Staff) — More than $1,000 damage was caused by what police described as a "jack rabbit start" on the part of Bob Carson of Cressy.

Officers say that a truck driven by Elston Aiten, Picton, backed out from in front of the Royal Hotel where he was single-parked.

Damage to the car was estimated at well over $1,000. Damage to the truck was negligible. Carson received a small cut to his lip.

Gore

THE GORE — Victoria school pupils with their teacher, Miss Blackburn, sponsored a crokinole party in the church dining hall on Thursday evening. A pleasant evening was enjoyed. The pupils served lunch.

Mrs. Crouter spent Thursday with her sister, Mrs. Lamb, in Picton.

Messrs. Ralph Redner, Morris Pulver and Ronald Green were among the 38 who, on Tuesday enjoyed a bus trip arranged by the Prince Edward Co-Op. Some of the places visited were: a warehouse at Weston, the Toronto livestock sales yard, a chicken processing plant at Petersburg; a creamery and egg plant at Guelph and also the Stratford plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brickman, Belleville, were Sunday afternoon and evening guests of the Misses Audra Brickman and Irma Bonter.

Mr. Melvin Pulver accompanied Messrs. Harold Bonter and Earl Onderdonk of Albury to Picton on Saturday evening, where they attended the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce dinner at the Royal Hotel. Mr. Pleva of the University of Western Ontario was the guest speaker.

"SPRING" THAW in January at Lazier's dam on Cannifton Road, watched by 4½-year-old Ralph Woodcock, is one of unseasonal phenomena caused by balmy weather.

Balmy Weather Continues To Gird the Quinte District

Will the real Old Mr. Moore of Old Moore's Almanac please stand and tell us what's going on around here?

For skiers and skaters this may be the winter of their discontent. But the man in the street is a far cry from being unhappy about it all.

Balmy weather continues to gird the Quinte district. Snow continues to peel from the hillsides and ice turns to mush.

Winter it seems, just as it was getting in stride, has been banished from the scene. Or has it?

But statistics tell the story. After researching their records and exercising a little mathematics, the staff at Belleville's filtration plant, where local weather is registered, reported the following:

Between January 16 and today the average temperature has been 32.1 degrees. The month so far has averaged out at 25.6 degrees with maximums and minimums of 44 and 8 below.

Last year the average for the same period was 13.9 and in 1962 it was 16.8.

The average over 44 years has been 19 degrees.

WARMEST IN 1958

Incidentally, the warmest January in 30 years came in 1950 which had an average of 27.1 degrees. The month's maximums and minimums were 55 and 15.5 below.

ERIE TECHNICAL PRODUCTS

New Equipment at Erie Technical Products in Trenton - a Swiss-made vacuum system for the firm's "clean room". The "clean room", part of the integrated Circuit Lab," is a room kept completely dust free for experiments with ultra-sophisticated electronics components and assemblies. The vacuum system will allow tests and work in an atmosphere about as dense as that of outer space. Such equipment first came into use at some labs in the U.S. about two years ago, but this is the first installation in this area.

With the new equipment Erie plans to push research, including research on its Filtercon products, into areas not discussed in public.

The Filtercon is a development of Erie's Trenton plant, it helps keep radio frequencies where they belong. It's made of ferro - ceramic materials, costs a small fortune and is important to radio and radar communications of the space age variety. When first developed, it was to have been manufactured in the U.S., but George Kempf, president of the Canadian operation, kept it in Canada. Most of the Trenton firm's production now is exported.

To work on the coming research projects with the vacuum system, Erie plans to hire a physicist, two electronic engineers and two electronic technicians. The equipment will be ready for use in about a month.

DON ANDRUSHKA

New sales engineer for Erie, Don Andrushka, was formerly an applications engineer for one of the big electronic outfits in Toronto. A 1962 graduate of engineering at the University of Manitoba, he's single, living in Belleville now, will spend about six months at Erie's plant in Trenton learning about the Filtercon and other Erie products, then will start shuttling back and forth between Erie distributors in the U.S. and the plant in Trenton. His function will be to keep up with technical developments and to take over from the salesmen when customers' problems get complex. He will also help the salesmen keep up with what's happening.

Dr. B. P. Sierne and Dr. Jim Kelleher of the Entomology Research Institute are going to Washington next week, with Dr. B. M. McGugan of the Department of Forestry in Ottawa, to discuss Canadian and U.S. research programs in spruce budworm control. Both Canada and the U.S. sponsor research programs in Europe and Asia, and some work in Canada and America, and the discussions are aimed at co-ordinating the programs. Both countries are looking for beneficial insects which might be imported to North America in efforts to stamp out local pests.

Agriculture Federation Will Ask Govt. for Procedure To Settle Labor Disputes

By JACK PICKETTS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Agriculture has decided to consider asking the federal government for "more appropriate procedures" for settling labor disputes.

The decision was reached Thursday after the CFA, at its annual meeting, spent most of a session discussing the advisability of some type of labor court and the labor truceship on Great Lakes shipping.

The farmers were concerned that the action of a "certain labor group" — obviously a reference to Hal Banks' Seafarers International Union (ind.)—had "imperilled and delayed" wheat exports.

In a reworded resolution the CFA decided to go on record as supporting the federal government in the truceship of maritime unions, since the action to correct the shipping situation "has been challenged."

Originally the resolution asked that the CFA consider a request to the government for some "type of labor court" so the nation might avoid the "harmful effects of a tie-up of essential facilities."

HAVE RESERVATIONS

However, delegates seemed to feel this would smack strongly of compulsory arbitration. One suggested the rank and file of labor would be suspicious. This would manoeuvre them into a position taking away bargaining powers.

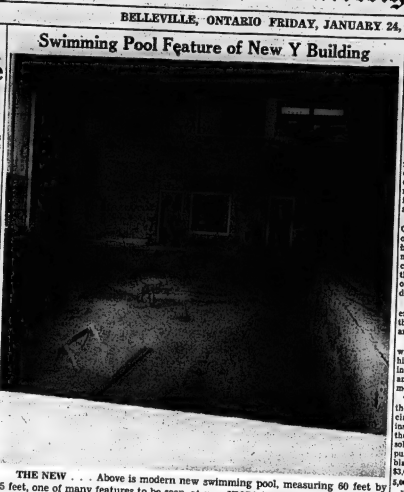
With the introduction of the resolution to establish "more appropriate procedures for settling strikes, it was emphasized there was no intent to "cast any slurs at labor." It was felt the government should make an effort to set up "machinery" preventing any group from "injuring the economy."

The CFA also heard from Agriculture Minister Harry Hays during its final day of sessions that started Tuesday. Mr. Hays urged more efficient production, and outlined some of the plans he had in mind to help efficiency. These included crop insurance for farmers hard - hit by weather, the possible extension of farm credit, and an effort to give farmers an easier way of meeting the high capital cost of farm machinery.

WANTS CO-OPS

The CFA, in other business, agreed to work to create "more conviction" on the part of farm organizations toward the establishment of co-operative ownership of food processing facilities.

The federation also decided to ask federal and provincial governments to consult with farm organizations before adopting or amending major acts concerning agriculture.

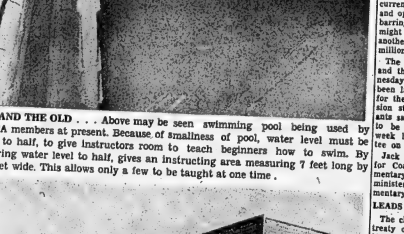


The same governments will be asked to "plan their investments" in ways intended to develop resources so that agriculture "may have an equal chance of sharing in the general prosperity."

The cost of druze sparked discussion and the federation asked that the recommendations of the restrictive trade practices commission be "fully implemented as soon as possible."

The commission, reporting on its investigations nearly a year ago, recommended abolition of drug patents, better inspection and regulation enforcement and a government publication giving particulars about new drugs.

The federation looked at pension plans with a resolution that it press for pension legislation in which coverage for farm people will be provided on a compulsory, not a voluntary, basis.



Swimming Pool Feature of New Y Building

THE NEW . . . Above is modern new swimming pool, measuring 60 feet by 25 feet, one of many features to be seen at new YMCA building. The pool will be capable of handling 34 beginners at the shallow end and a total of 80 persons will be able to use the pool at one time. At left of photo are ceiling high windows, overlooking sunbathing patio. The new pool is almost double in size to old pool, below, which measures 35 feet long and 18 feet wide. Double picture windows at top will enable parents to watch their children swimming, from the adult lounge.

AND THE OLD . . . Above may be seen swimming pool being used by YMCA members at present. Because of smallness of pool, water level must be kept to half, to give instructors room to teach beginners how to swim. By lowering water level to half, gives an instructing area measuring 7 feet long by 18 feet wide. This allows only a few to be taught at one time .

MODERN LOOK is displayed by new YMCA building shown above. Residents will be given an opportunity to view inside of new building this evening following the "Spectacular" program, which will bring "Y" week near an end. Following the "Spectacular", which will include a weightlifting demonstration, police holds and a fencing display, a tour of the new building will be conducted by YMCA personnel.

De Gaulle's Moves in Southeast Asia Begin to Make Sense

By DOUG MARSHALL

His declared intention of brushing aside the Bamboo Curtain and acknowledging the existence of Communist China is not, it seems, primarily designed to irritate the Americans and re-emphasize France's independence of the United States.

The main motive, most observers believe, is to establish again French influence in an area where France exercised considerable power until the end of the Second World War.

Many Frenchmen, including some high-ranking government officials, remain embittered by the way the U.S. appeared to ease France out of Viet Nam only to take over as a semi-colonial power itself.

De Gaulle apparently believes the Anglo - American policy of containment is out of date in Southeast Asia. Britain and the U.S. seems to be saying, have made a mess of things; perhaps it is time the France, with her export historical knowledge of the 'area, stepped in and took a hand.

OFFERED TO MEDIATE

French spokesmen note that four other NATO countries — Britain, The Netherlands, Denmark and Norway — recognize Red China and argue that attempts to reach an understanding with Peking do not necessarily weaken the West's determination to fight Chinese aggression.

The soft - spoken charm and gentle persuasion displayed by Premier Chou En-lai during his African tour have helped soften hostility to China in many countries — particularly as the rich possibilities of trade with China open up. The recent attack on India is quietly forgotten.

This is particularly true in France. A series of television interviews with Red Chinese leaders have paved the way for public acceptance of de Gaulle's new policy.

MAY VISIT FRANCE

Moreover, Chou has casually expressed a desire to re - visit the Paris he knew in his student days, and diplomacy may manipulate this into an official visit to France.

If these overtures result in China's admission to the United Nations, nobody will be happier than de Gaulle.

Tensions will have eased in Asia, China will have a chance to prove its case in all nations and Paris will have rejoined the elite as a capital of world influence and power.

Tactics Change, Goal Is Still Crush Malaysia

By TOM O'NEILL TREE

LONDON (AP) — U.S. Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy arrived in London today to brief British officials on his Malaysia peace-making mission but he left behind a possible new threat to his diplomatic effort.

While Kennedy conferred in Bangkok, Thailand, Indonesia's President Sukarno told a cheering rally in Jakarta he would not abandon his "Crush Malaysia", campaign.

"Onward, never retreat! Crush Malaysia!" Sukarno told 15,000 persons at a Communist-dominated youth conference.

"Indonesia may change its tactics, but our goal will remain the same."

Despite the fiery words, Sukarno did not retract his promise to Kennedy of a cease-fire along the 800 - mile Malaysia Indonesia border on the island of Borneo.

HOLD SUMMIT TALKS

Sukarno also did not disavow his pledge to send his foreign minister to a conference with the Malaysian and Philippine foreign ministers in Bangkok next month as a possible preliminary step to a summit conference of the three nations.

Some observers thought Sukarno's speech was intended for domestic consumption only. Anti - Malaysia sentiment has been so whipped up in Indonesia by Sukarno and the strong Indonesian Communist party, it would be difficult for him to end the campaign abruptly.

India Gets Car Trouble

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The shortage of autos has become so acute in India that would-be motorists face waiting lists of up to 15 years to buy a car. All imports have been banned for the last 10 years and the official price of the cheapest car manufactured here is $2,800 new. Demand is such that it fetches half as much again second-hand.

Since the border clash with Communist China in 1962, half of the private-car production has been diverted to defence needs so that only 12,000 new cars a year are available to the general public, less than one-quarter of the estimated demand.

Mr. MacDonald's dissertation, sounding more like a political science lecture than his usual form of firebrand oratory, said a merger is "unthinkable." He made a case for the NDP as the true representative of Canada's democratic left.

Mr. MacDonald said the old Co - operative Commonwealth Federation, now the NDP, was another in the "relentless succession" of third parties that have developed in Canada.

WOULD FIGHT MERGER

If the NDP were to merge with one of the old parties, he said, the next morning some of its members would have left, the NDP and set about building another third party.

Voters in Canada should be faced with a choice between the democratic left and the democratic right, said Mr. MacDonald.

He made his comments during the throne speech debate. He was not able to finish by the time the House rose at 6 p.m. and was to continue today, finishing a prepared address on Confederation.

He said there is serious misunderstanding concerning Quebec's demand for a special place in Confederation. This was not something new but "part and parcel of our history."

Quebec has always had a special place and so long as it would be to alter the whole course of Canadian Confederation.

He said it is unthinkable that Confederation could not be reshaped "to accommodate the legitimate aspirations of French Canada."

Ontario NDP Leader Says Party Will Never Merge With One of Old Parties

TORONTO (CP) — A lengthy treatise justifying the existence of the New Democratic Party was delivered in the Ontario legislature Thursday by party leader Donald C. MacDonald and he ended it with the declaration that the NDP will never merge with one of the old parties.

The statement by Mr. MacDonald conflicted with elements within his party, particularly among the New Democrats' allies in labor, who have engaged in informal talks with provincial Liberal party figures.

Mr. MacDonald's dissertation, sounding more like a political science lecture than his usual form of firebrand oratory, said a merger is "unthinkable." He made a case for the NDP as the true representative of Canada's democratic left.

House Approval Of Revised Treaty Assured

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) Parliamentary approval of the revised Columbia River treaty seems assured well before the Oct. 1 date set by the government.

This assumption is based on current prospects for support and opposition expected — and barring any revelations that might cause disruption or yet another look at the whole multi-million-dollar project.

The Columbia treaty of 1961, and the revisions signed Wednesday in Washington, have been labelled as priority items for the new parliamentary session starting Jan. 28. Indications say this is a matter likely to be confirmed in about a week by the cabinet committee on legislation.

Jack Davis, Liberal member for Coast-Capilano and parliamentary secretary to the prime minister, has predicted parliamentary ratification by June.

LEADS OPPONENTS

The chief non-party Columbia treaty critic is Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, whose long and varied career includes a brief wartime stint as Liberal defence minister.

He lost two election bids to the House of Commons and retired but later became chairman of the International Joint Commission's Canadian section and the man who gained vital United States concessions in paving the way for negotiation of the 1961 treaty.

Gen. McNaughton, who says he has been looking forward for three years to testimony before the external affairs committee, has not changed his mind about the revised treaty. He has called the document a sell-out of Canadian resources and sovereignty to the United States.

Other private critics may appear as well as witnesses summoned from both sides, including perhaps the old opponent of the 1961 treaty, former justice minister Davie Fulton, who now is B.C. provincial Conservative leader.

Partly Clad Body of Woman Found in Field

LONDON (CP) — The partly clad body of a woman, believed about 30 years old, lying amidst her scattered clothing in melting snow, was found in a field here Thursday about a block and a half from the home of a young woman who disappeared December 27.

Two boys, 10-year-old Michael Patrick and 11-year-old Tom Lynch, on a magazine delivery route, spotted what they first took to be a "dummy or rag doll" as they rode their bicycles over the field.

Most of the snow in the field melted in the present warm spell here and exposed the corpse. Because the body earlier was covered with snow no decomposition had taken place but formal identification had not been made.

But police were tentatively working on the supposition that the body is that of Mrs. Margaret Sheeler, 20, who disappeared Dec. 27 when she went to buy pop. Mrs. Sheeler was four months pregnant.

Police said there were no apparent marks of violence on the body which was clad only in a blouse. Other articles of clothing scattered about the scene included those worn by the missing woman.

There is no profit though, because wage arrangements include 75c per hour for each employee, paid on a weekly basis, then the surplus money is shared among the employees, five men so far, including manager Alex Fedrikz.

The operation began early in December, under a board of directors provided by the Kiwanis Club and with $700 as an interest free indefinite loan from the club. Purpose of the firm is to provide employment for handicapped people who want to work. Space, heat and light are provided by Kiwanis, equipment is mostly on loan from Northern Electric, Customers so far include Mead Johnson, Northern Electric, Corby's, Vagden Mills and Stewart Warner. Operations included packing and mailing of samples, small assembly jobs and [illegible] processing.

The board of directors is appointed by Kiwanis, and the directors themselves are doing most of the selling for the operation. They are looking for long-term contracts where they can find them, but are willing to take a look at any offer. Space is available to keep 10 men at work in the Kiwanis Centre and the firm will hire as fast as the work becomes available.

IN THE SHELTERED WORKSHOP set up at the Kiwanis Centre, under sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club, Eugene Maxwell of Bloomfield uses a wire stripper to prepare materials for a customer. Purpose of the workshop is to provide jobs and training for handicapped persons in the community.

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The heritage of hockey handed down for many years to Canadian youngsters is not suffering from the trouble and turmoil that is apparent in the upper brackets of the sport.

As long as they continue to manufacture hockey sticks, pucks and artificial equipment, Young Canada will play his favorite winter sport.

Interest in "kids' hockey" is not dying out as some sceptics will have you believe. On the contrary it is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Doug Patterson, that likeable guy from Stirling, who is first vice-president to the Ontario Minor Hockey Association Grand Vitier Al Watkins of Peterborough, is the authority for that.

And he should know. The OMHA first-vice, the only grey-haired minor hockey player of his day, has spent countless hours for, lo, these many years in the furtherance and building of minor hockey in his "Lower Canada" realm.

In the "Lower Canada" area which extends from Peterborough and Lakefield on the east to Gananoque, excluding Cobourg and Port Hope, he has seen the number of participating players increase from 4,000 a few years ago to the present 8,000.

Breaking this figure down, Mr. Patterson points out that 61 teams comprising 2,025 players are entered for playoff competition.

Teams entered through local leagues number 634 from squirt to juvenile.

And the increase is general province-wise. The Ontario Minor Hockey Association has set another record for teams entered into OMHA playdowns—458 this year—as compared to the previous mark of 432 last season.

Another strong argument in favor of the increase of popularity of hockey, minor in particular, in the immediate district is the fact that a number of centres have installed or are planning to install artificial ice-making equipment.

A hard-working bevy of Royal Canadian Legionnaires, aided and abetted by loyal residents of the village and district, has been responsible for a brand new arena at Tweed. Now, I'm told, the boys are getting "worked up" over artificial ice. Don't be surprised to hear it will be installed next winter.

Campbellford's new arena is rapidly nearing completion and an artificial ice plant has already been purchased.

The hockey-minded people of Frankford, it is reported, are conducting a spirited campaign for funds to erect a new arena. Here, too, artificial ice may be an ultimate goal.

Madoc, a high scenic hockey centre for many years, had its arena completely renovated last year and no doubt in the not too distant future will make an endeavor to keep up with the district communities "Jones" and install artificial ice.

Trenton, a well-informed resident of that town, tells me, has a new outdoor artificial ice arena under discussion. This should prove to be a fine asset to the minor-hockey people there.

Out String way there is nothing definite as yet regarding artificial ice, but I understand there is an undercurrent stirring along these lines and it could be that in the not too distant future the good burghers of "Patternsville" will make a community and district effort to install it.

Pays Million For Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Carroll D. Rosenbloom, who reluctantly shared in a $25,000 down payment 10 years ago to return Baltimore to the National Football League, bought out his remaining two partners Thursday for an estimated $1,000,000.

Sole acquisition of the Colts by Rosenbloom, 56-year-old industrialist, was the third transaction in NFL franchise since the end of last season.

William Cl ayf rdo, auto m
William Clay Ford, automobile tycoon, took full control of Detroit Lions for $6,000,000 and Jerry Wolman, Washington builder, bought the Philadelphia Eagles for $5,500,500.

Rosenbloom is reported to have paid Zanzyl Krieger and Thomas Mullin, who had shared an estimated 21 per cent of the Colts, $500,000 apiece.

Ferguson Sparks Canadiens ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Habs, Hawks Turn Back Blues, Bruins

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Before the current National Hockey League season got under way, observers at the Montreal Canadiens training camp were convinced John Ferguson couldn't make the team.

But the rookie left-winger continued to embarrass his detractors Thursday night as he scored two goals and help set up another as the Canadiens dumped New York 4-3 in Montreal. Although he missed 13 games with an injury, he now has 14 goals.

The victory, Montreal's seventh in eight game with the Rangers, enabled the Canadiens to keep pace with the Chicago Black Hawks, who beat Boston 3-1 in the only other game played. The Hawks and Canadiens share the NHL lead, although Montreal holds a game in hand.

Ferguson opened the scoring but the Rangers came back with two goals to force the Canadiens to explode for three markers in the third period to keep their unbeaten string intact at six games. Ex-Canadien Petsinger gave the Plante again was bombarded by his former teammates, facing 43 shots.

NEARS RECORD

Earl Ingarfield knotted the score in the second period and Rod Gilbert, scoring his 19th of the season, put the Blueshirts ahead in the second minute of the final period. Gilbert now has scored in seven straight games, three short of Andy Bathgate's record.

Then the fireworks started as the teams dropped their close-checking tactics and the Habs responded by pumping 19 shots at Plante. Bill Hicke got the tiemaker at 9:36. Ferguson counted the winner at 14:49 and Pinky Plante on breakaway—added an insurance marker at 13:51.

Chicago proved they still belong in the lead with a rare (this season, anyway) victory over the Bruins in Boston. The Beantowners until now had held the upper hand when the Hawks came to town.

But there was no doubt Thursday night as the Hawks fired 17 shots at Ed Johnston in the first period and took a 2-0 lead on goals by Ab McDonald and Bill Hay. Boston replied with Jerry Toppazzini's goal, but Boston was stalled by Hawks goalie Glenn Hall.

Hall made 30 stops, 15 of them in the second period, and only relaxed when Ken Wharam put the game on ice with his 25th of the season midway through the final frame. It was the 100th goal of Wharram's career.

The Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago's Stan Mikita recorded an assist in the Hawks 3-1 win over Boston to push his total in the National Hockey League scoring race to 60 points—four more than teammate Bobby Hull.

Hull also picked up an assist to increase his lead over third-place Jean Beliveau of Montreal to two points. Beliveau sat on the bench with an injury as the Canadiens beat New York 4-3.

Three other members of the Big Seven increased their production. Chicago's Kenny Wharram picked up an assist and his 25th goal—the 100th of his career—to move into a fourth-place tie with New York's Andy Bathgate at 46 points.

Harmsworth Races Unlikely

'Defend Or Default!'-Americans

NEW YORK (AP) — There probably will be no United States vs. Canada match this year for the Harmsworth Trophy, coveted prize in powerboat racing.

Melvin Crook of Montclair, N.J., American representative of the trustees of the Harmsworth Trophy, disclosed at the National Boat Show here Thursday that the trustees had turned down Canada's request to limit the competition to seven-litre, a slower type of boat.

The Canadians were told to "defend or default," said Crook. He added:

"Since Canada doesn't have an unlimited hydroplane they must defend with a seven-litre or default. My guess is they will let it go."

Ron Musson of Seattle, America's No. 1 unlimited hydroplane driver, approved the ruling. He is at the show with his boat, Miss Bardahl.

Unlimited hydroplanes are capable of more than 180 miles an hour. The seven-litres seldom exceed 150 miles an hour.

The trustees' ruling came after the Canadians had been challenged by a Detroit group, the Thiesmann's Association of America.

Record For Pitchers

Spahn Signs For $85,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Warren Spahn signed his 1964 contract with Milwaukee Braves of the National League Thursday for a reported $85,000, which would make him the highest salaried pitcher in baseball history.

Spahn's signing was the highlight of a day when big league baseball cropped up on the national and international levels. Houston Colts obtained Eddie Kasko and New York Mets disclosed they will send Casey Stengel on an exhibition tour of Mexico.

Other signings announced: by Cleveland Indians, utility star Woodie Held and pitcher Jerry Walker; by Chicago Cubs, shortstop Andre Rodgers, the 24th to sign of the 37 on the Cubs roster; by Cincinnati Reds, Vada Pinson.

For Spahn, the game's top winning left-handed of all time, it was the 20th contract with the team.

"I hope we have him forever," said John McHale, Braves president and general manager. "Preferably as a pitcher, but after that in whatever capacity we can keep him."

Although the Braves never disclose salary figures, McHale said that the 43-year-old Spahn's contract calls for the highest salary ever paid a pitcher. That would place it at about $85,000.

McHale called Spahn's 1963 season, in which he won 23 games and lost seven, his greatest year "as a pitcher and as a man."

"My job now is to go out and earn the money," said Spahn.

Among the records Spahn already holds are those for most victories by a left - hander, 300, as well as most innings pitched, most strike outs and most seasons with 20 or more games won.

W. Germans Favored For Pairs Title

Canadians Second?

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP-AP) — West Germany's Marika Kilius and Hans Juergen Baeumler are favored today to capture the figure skating pairs championship in the opening event of the 1964 winter Olympic Games. But the Canadian entry is expected to make a strong showing in the competition opening Wednesday.

Miss Kilius, 20, and her 21-year-old partner are defending world champions and need only to repeat their recent victory over the Soviet Union's Ljudmila Belousova 28, and Oleg Protopopov, 31, in European championships to gain the coveted gold medal.

But Canada, which enjoyed a near monopoly on world pairs titles until the German couple broke the string in Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, a year ago, is optimistic about the prospects of its team of Debbie Wilkes and Guy Revell.

Miss Wilkes, 17, of Unionville, Ont., and Revell, 22, of Newmarket, Ont., were fourth in the world championships in 1962. They were sidelined from the 1963 world championships when the blonde, blue - eyed Miss Wilkes suffered a concussion during practice.

HAVE YOUNGER TEAM

Tatiana Zhuk and Alexander Gavrilov, a younger Soviet team which showed definite potential by taking third place at Cortina d'Ampezzo, and East Germany's Margit Senf and Peter Goebel are expected to round out the top five in the pairs.

Miss Kilius, a striking blonde, was fourth in the 1956 Olympics with Franz Ningel as a partner. She and Baeumler were runners-up to Barbara Wagner and Robert Paul, both of Toronto, in the 1960 Olympics.

Starting in 1954 the Canadians won seven of eight world pairs titles—before the 1963 German victory.

Miss Kilius and Baeumler are strong individual skaters. Their only loss to Miss Belousova and Protopopov occurred in the 1962 world championships at Prague when their skates became entangled during a spinning movement side-by-side, and they tumbled to the ice in one of the most spectacular mishaps in figure skating history.

They were unable to continue and the Russian couple skated to second place behind the Canadian pair of Maria and Otto Jelinek, both of Bronte, Ont.

STILL HAVE MISSES

Meanwhile, crippling accidents and less serious ones continued to curse Olympic training sessions, forcing officials to take precautions against further injuries.

A British toboggan team member broke an arm Thursday while two American ski jumpers were involved in lesser accidents.

Norman Barkley, a British sledder, flew off the dangerous toboggan course, spun around in the air and landed on the edge of the chute. Onlookers became alarmed when Barkley lay motionless for a few minutes.

Another Briton, Kazimiers Kay-Skrzypeckl, was injured fatally earlier this week in a tobogganing accident near the same spot.

Barkley, however, regained consciousness by the time he reached an ambulance. Doctors said he broke his left upper arm near the shoulder.

Anders Samuelsson, a member of the U.S. nordic ski team, suffered a spectacular fall at nearby Seefeld Hill. He was shaken up, and both of his skis were broken. Another American, Dave Hicks, suffered lacerations of his back and arms i.e. a split.

At the bequest of toboggan officials, the Olympic organizing committee agreed to install wooden lips at the top of the steep curves as soon as possible.

"Minor Hockey Week in Canada" makes its official and annual debut in Belleville here tonight with a pair of games and continues with three more tomorrow.

Kingpetch Verdicts Japanese Regains Flyweight Crown

BANGKOK (AP)—Pone King-Petch, lanky Thai boxer, won the world flyweight championship for an unprecedented third time Thursday night on a split decision over Japan's Hiroyuki Ebihara, who had knocked him out in one round last September.

Pone fought one of the finest ring battles of his career, pacing himself in the steaming 90-degree heat of Rajdamnern Stadium while 10,000 wildly partisan fans cheered. Each weighed 112 pounds, the class limit.

Referee Se-Ard Klarkook of Thailand scored the bout for Pone, 71-69, and Judge Takoo Ugo of Japan had Ebihara on top, 73-71. Judge Arch Hindman of Hagerstown, Ind., executive secretary of the World Boxing Association, voted for the Thai, 73-67. The Associated Press scorecard was 72-68 in favor of Pone.

Pone, now 27, first won the title in 1960 by stopping Pascual Perez, the Argentine who had held the crown for six years. Ebihara scored a sensational upset Sept. 18 when he knocked out Pone in the first round at Tokyo.

Juniors, Kingston Here Tonight!

Bob Taylor, more than pleased with his team's performance in Napanee earlier this week, sends his Belleville "B"s into action here tonight against the Kingston Frontenacs.

It's a nine o'clock tilt at Memorial Arena — and the same two clubs go back at it in Kingston on Monday night.

Taylor, speaking of the "B"s after they overcame a 3-0 deficit to clip the Red Wings in Napanee by a 6-3 count, commented "it was a different team all together from the one we saw you have watched here".

"They really played like a team that wanted to win — and they stuck to hockey," he said, "and they took a lot of shoving around just to prove their point".

The happy coach heaped praise on newcomer Jim "Bud" Pringle, up from midget for the first time. "We played him with Gerry Jones and Bill Lang and they looked real good, could have scored four or five goals in fact with a few breaks," he continued.

The work of Bobby Boyle, Jim Rutherford and Grant Hagerman was proven on the statistics sheet. Boyle was in on all six goals, Rutherford on five and Hagerman on one. The coach was especially enthusiastic over Boyle's "sparkling performance".

Taylor was pleased with the effort of every player and says if the boys play that way tonight against Kingston, the Frontenacs should be in for quite a surprise.

The Belleville manager is looking for one of the season's largest crowds. Earlier in the evening two special "Minor Hockey Week" games, midget and juvenile, will also be played.

Ron Mason Takes Over Senior Top

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the third week in a row the lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior scoring race changed hands, with Ron Mason, rookie centre with Woodstock Athletics, taking top honors.

Mason used a five-point gain to jump from third place into the lead, passing last week's co-leaders, Vance Millar and Jimmy Robertson of Welland Pontiacs. He has 11 goals and 28 assists.

Millar and Robertson, still deadlocked, share second place with 61 points. Galt Hornets right winger Ron Hergott, who dropped from first to seventh spot when his club lost a pair of protests, climbed to fourth with 56 points.

Hornung Ready For Comeback

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Paul Hornung is itching to get back into football and plans to be ready physically if the National Football League lifts his suspension.

"I've been keeping in shape, especially concentrating on my legs," the 27-year-old former star of the Green Bay Packers said Thursday.

The NFL sent Hornung and Detroit tackle Alex Karras to the sidelines for betting on games. They missed all of last season. The NFL Players Association asked commissioner Pete Rozelle to lift the ban and he is expected to make an announcement shortly.

Japan Spends Half-Billion On Its Olympic Preparations

As the first Asian country to be host for the Olympic Games, Japan is spending more than half a billion dollars to get ready. In this story a Canadian Press reporter who visited the country describes the chaos caused by construction in Tokyo.

By DAVE STOCKAND

TOKYO (CP) — Japan's Olympic Games hero is a guy in coveralls and a hard hat.

The construction worker is carrying the pride of Japan on his shoulders in the knock-'em-down, build-'em-up preparations for the 18th Olympiad to be staged next October—and Japanese pride is a weighty commodity.

The first impression in the jackhammer din compounding the neon madness of the Ginza, this clanging, congested cabaret-cluttered heart of Tokyo, is that even the Olympic plum isn't worth the chaos the construction is causing.

"I just don't believe it," said one stunned visitor. "It's like building a luxury hotel to put up a guest for a single weekend."

The modernization of Tokyo's traffic and transportation system, which will ensure that Games visitors setting out for the opening pageantry don't arrive for the closing ceremonies instead, is truly an awe-inspiring project.

EXTEND SUBWAY

Twenty-two "Olympic roads" are being expanded or built and eight elevated expressways four lanes wide are thrusting out in all directions. One will cut driving time from Tokyo's Haneda Airport to the city centre to 15 minutes from one hour.

Underground, there is almost as much activity with a series of extensions to the Tokyo subway system. Protective planking atop the underground diggings, set slippery in the rain, has added yet another hazard to driving in Tokyo—but what's one more?

The Japanese are fond of the story of the peasant from the backblocks of Honshu who made his first visit to Tokyo and quickly left in disgust. His city cousins were of not much account, he figured, if the best they could afford was wooden roads.

What the Japanese are budgeting for the honor of being the first Asian country to hold the Olympics is amazing in itself. Over-all expenditure, including all governmental work such as building of roads, construction of sites, expansion of Tokyo Airport, is estimated at more than $936,000,000.

PAY FOR PROPERTY

More than 70 per cent of the $360,000,000 budgeted by the city of Tokyo for "Olympic roads" was used to buy land and compensate property owners for their losses. Property owners included fishermen who lost valuable fishing grounds where the new highways skirt the shoreline and cross the tidal areas of Tokyo bay.

Until recently rebuilding the war - shattered economy has been Japan's No. 1 concern. Transport was neglected where it did not directly contribute to productivity.

The Olympics have changed all that. But Olympics or not, the traffic problem in Tokyo was rapidly nearing a crisis point that only mammoth effort could possibly alleviate.

The number of registered motor vehicles in Tokyo is increasing by 10,000 monthly. There are 860,000 vehicles registered in Tokyo now—in 1942 the number was 60,000—and the present figure will rise to 1,000,000 by 1965.

WALKING IS HAZARDOUS

And to the poor pedestrian:

At some Tokyo intersections there are barriers available which the walker can wave as he steps off the curb. They say in effect, "Have pity, I have got to cross the street," and they give about the same degree of security as stepping into a nuclear battlefield with a flag of truce.

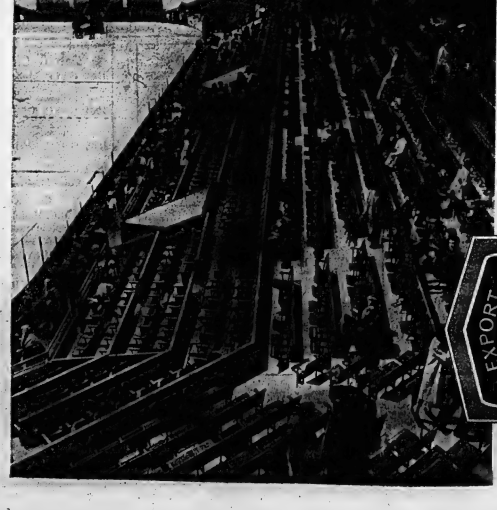
The Japan Visitor's Guide, for one, is hopeful the expressways will cut down on the traffic carnage.

It commends, hopefully: "Of extreme humanitarian importance to local residents is the fact that with the installation of the expressways, traffic accidents, in spite of the celebrated but notorious kamikaze taxicab drivers, will be minimized to one-fifth of those on ordinary roads of comparable length. Here, also, thanks to the Olympics, Tokyo residents will benefit greatly."

Aces Dump Americans

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Aces strengthened their hold on first place in the American Hockey League Thursday night by trouncing Rochester Americans 6-1.

A crowd of 8,822 saw Cleland Morison score his 20th goal of the season for the Aces as the Quebec team went scoreless in the first period and then banged in three goals in each the second and third periods.



The win put the Aces three points ahead of second - place Hershey Bears who were idle.

Morrison ended the game with a two-goal total, the same as Wayne Hicks. Other Quebec scorers were Jean Gauthier and Bill Dineen.

The lone Rochester tally was by Les Duff while the Aces had a man advantage.

Aces overpowered Americans in all three periods, outshooting them 33-30.

Only four minor penalties, including a bench penalty to the Americans, were called during the game.

Take Over Top Spot

Picton Jrs. Whip Napanee

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — The Picton Juniors took over undisputed possession of first place as they trounced the Napanee Red Wings by an 8-2 score here last night.

Picton was able to dress only ten players and the goaltender and there is is the answer to their win — the goaltender, Larry Holmes, he was the balance of power last night. This was especially true in the last ten minutes of the game, when the Red Wings had Picton on their last legs and could not beat Holmes, even from point blank range.

Wayne McConnell also earned a star on this game. He fired the three goal hat trick and was all over the ice.

Neither team could come up with much of a power play in the entire first period the checking was that close. Only four minors, equally split, were called and it was not until the 16.13 mark that Bob Brown, who was a stalwart on defence all night, was able to beat Tom Mercier in the Napanee nets with Harold Haddock and Gary Hazzell each earning an assist on the play. Napanee outshot Picton 15-11 in the first period but Picton took a 1-0 lead into the second frame.

McConnell fired his first at just 20 seconds of the second fame before many of the 400 fans were back in their seats. Bob Thompson set up the play. McConnell came right back and dumped another marker behind Mercer at the 2.15 mark. Tim Grundy and George Sainsbury helping.

Jim Stinson picked up a minor penalty at 4.25 and it took Hazzell and Haddock just 5 seconds to score the 4th Picton marker. Then Napanee picked up what can best be described as a freak goal. The puck was cleared into the Picton end, one of the defencemen stopped it, and the next thing anyone knew, it was in the nets behind a very astonished Larry Holes. Ricky Gerow being the last Napanee player to touch it, got the credit.

Picton got that one back at the 11.10 mark when Haddock parked a perfect pass from Bill Hopkins into the short side and it was 5-1 for Picton. Napanee picked up their last goal of the game at the 18.35 mark of the second period on goal number two for Gerow. Only three minor penalties were called in the middle frame.

Larry Holmes shone in the third period. Time and time again he would stop a puck — from close range — from the blue line — from a scramble in front of the nets — the fans don't know how he did it, but he did.

Picton found the energy to put three behind Mercer, for the win. McConnell his third at 9.04 from Sainsbury, Hopkins from Hazzell at 16.30 and Bob Thompson from Bob Brown and Sainsbury at the 18.38 mark to end the scoring. Only one minor penalty was called in the last period.

Napanee, in Gananoque, Trenton Legion Juveniles defeated the Islanders by an 8-6 count, giving Trenton its third win of the season.

Lucky $50,000 Tourney Lema, January Share Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tony Lema, golf's top money-winner of 1964, and Don January putted superbly over soggy greens Thursday to share the first-round lead in the $50,000 Lucky International tournament with five-under-par scores of 66.

Winner of the Bing Crosby event last Sunday and tied for second at San Diego the week before, the 29-year-old Lema from San Leandro, Calif., opened with a big bid to increase his year's earnings, which already have hit $12,100.

January proved with a second-place finish in the 1962 Lucky that he finds the Harding Park municipal course, a par 36-35—71 layout, to his liking.

Deadlocked two strokes back at 68 were Bob Rosburg, Mason Rudolph, George Bayer, Ernie Vossler and Frank Beard. There were 12 pros at 69 as a total of 37 finished under par.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver shot a 36-39—75, Adrian Bigras of Montreal had 36-35—74, Al Johnson of Montreal came in with 36-38—76 and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg wound up with 36-38—77.

Beat This In Your Bowling Alley!

The Labelle Electric team, bowling in the Major 5-pin league last night chalked up what could well be a team record or two against Station Street Marketeria.

Labelle's swept seven points and the lowest triple of the night was 763 while the lowest single was 291.

But the high point of the evening was the team's second game, a terrific 1548. Wally Dever led off with 357 and he was the only man under 300. Joe Samain hit 327, Earl Whitney 315, Paul Bailey 316 and Leo Labelle 333.

The team had a 1299 in the first game and finished up with a 1279.

Triples for the night were: Dever 763, Samain 779, Whitney 868, Bailey 862, and Labelle 854, giving the team an average of 275 per man.

The team's total score of 4126 for the three games is also thought to be a team record.

Moira Wins Jr. Girls Cage Game

They scored twenty-one points to the opposition's four in the first half.

Then behind the fine shooting of Lynn Nell they rolled up 37 points to 10 in the second period.

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's first indoor stadium will be completed here by 1967 if plans for $32,000,000 sports and recreation complex are approved.

In the initial stages, the project calls for a 50,000-seat stadium and a 20,000-seat arena, says designer George C. H. Tonks.

City and Metropolitan Toronto officials have discussed the project and the outlook of its success is good, says the president of Arcon Development and Investments Corporation Limited.

Mr. Tonks proposed that the scheme be developed by metro and receive federal and provincial financial assistance as a centennial project.

"Our next move is to present it to city and metro centennial committees," he said.

The dome - topped stadium would accommodate professional football, baseball, soccer, and track and field events. A similar stadium has been built in Houston, Tex., the only one of its kind in the world.

Mr. Tonks said the scheme would include an amusement area along Dunsyland lines that would, he said, be a paying proposition. He said four smaller recreation buildings with seating capacities of 2,000 each would handle ice, roller skating, basketball and swimming activities.

A 20 - storey tower - shaped structure with a roof-top restaurant and hotel-motel accommodations for 1,200 persons would also be included.

He mentioned three possible sites: the Canadian National Exhibition grounds; the Maple Leaf Stadium area or near the Woodbine Racetrack in west Toronto.

Marlene Wins First Round

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Nancy Roth, a young blonde who holds down two jobs so she can compete on the women's amateur tour, defeated the veteran Marge Burns Thursday in the first round of the Helen Doherty golf tournament.

Miss Roth, 24, was two over women's par of 76 when she closed the match out on the 16th hole for a 3 and 2 victory over Miss Burns of Greensboro, N.C., a three-time semi-finalist but never a winner.

Three - time champion Marlene Stuart of Toronto was par for 16 holes as she eliminated June Koehr of Miami 6 and 4.

He Flies Through the Air With the Greatest of Ease

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Some men like nothing better than to go out to the country club and spend the afternoon playing golf," says actor Cliff Robertson. "As for myself, I like to take to the air."

And he does so, whenever his schedule permits. But Cliff is no flyer of luxury models. He prefers open-cockpit biplanes—or even a balloon.

"The old planes are safer and a lot more fun," he says.

Robertson's hobby came to light a month ago. He and Frank Tallman, who with Paula Mantz owns a collection of old airplanes for movie rentals, were flying over the ocean when they sighted a sinking boat. They reported it and a rescue was effected.

Last Saturday, the two participated in the Catalina - to - mainland hot-air balloon race which ended with the death of a woman contestant.

"It was tragic," said Robertson. "I had entered the race because it looked like a wonderfully gay and refreshing throwback to the past, something that was needed after the grim news of the past six months."

NOT EASY

He and Tallman had no easy time in the race. Their balloon rose quickly to 500 feet, then hit a downdraft that plummeted them to the ocean.

They lightened the gas in their balloon with butane tanks and rose once more, ascending to more than 5,000 feet. Drifting toward California, they sailed into a cloud, and were held suspended in a white and soundless world. Said Cliff:

"That was when we looked at each other's soaked with moisture hair hanging in our faces, and said: 'What the hell are we doing here?'"

A wind started propelling the balloon eastward at 35 knots, he related, and they decided time they started losing altitude as their butane began giving out. Down they went for a rough skip and both figured they'd better jump before the gondola hit the water or the balloon might envelope them.

They jumped at about 50 feet and were picked up almost immediately by a rescue boat.

Cliff's favorite sport is to take some of the vintage aircraft up for a spin. He owns a Second World War-British Spitfire.

"You're much safer in those old, easily manoeuvered planes than in some of the fancy new models," he said.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) — Theresa Lindethal, who shunned modern comforts and begged handouts from bakery and rummage sales, left an estate of nearly $750,000. Miss Lindenthal, who died at 92, lived to all appearances in virtual poverty. The home had no central heating, no telephone, no refrigeration and was equipped with an old-fashioned coal stove.

"LILIES OF THE FIELD" WINS FAMILY MEDAL AWARDED BY PARENTS' MAGAZINE

Ralph Nelson's international prize-winning "Lilies of the Field," starring Sidney Poitier, has been awarded the Family Medal of Parents' Magazine in its August issue.

In the citation, Parents' Magazine calls the United Artists release "an utterly captivating film" and comments on its "warm touches of humor" and its "theme of hope, unselfish charity which enriches the spirit." The motion picture is classified as "excellent."

At the Berlin Film Festival, recently concluded, where "Lilies of the Field" was presented as a specially invited United States entry, it won an unprecedented three awards, including Best Actor for Poitier.

In addition, it has been chosen for special showing on August 6 at the Film Conference of the 14th Annual Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies.

"Lilies of the Field" is a comedy-drama about an itinerant ex-G.I. who meets and helps a group of European nuns attempting to build a chapel on a bit of Arizona desert land that they have inherited. It was produced and directed by Nelson and also stars Lilia Skala and Stanley Adams with Poitier. Academy Award-winner James Poe wrote the screenplay from the novel by William E. Barrett.

"Lilies of the Field" opened recently at the Odeon theatre, evening. Tonight show times are at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m. Saturday the shows are continuous from 1.00. Feature times at 1.00, 3.35, 5.50, 8.00, 10.10.

Woody Allen One of Really Funny Comedians Around

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Woody Allen looks and acts like a 97-pound weakling who's so ineffective that he is defeated by librarians, vending machines and perverse electric tooth brushes.

This unprepossessing exterior plus a self-abnegating style of delivery has boosted the 27-year-old comedy writer to a top comedy performer. He is one of the really fresh, funny comedians around, in demand for television variety shows. He has a standing invitation to appear on Johnny Carson's Tonight Show anytime he feels like it.

He will be visible this evening, incidentally, on NBC's Jack Paar Show.

Woody confesses early that "I sold the memoirs of my love life to Parker Brothers—they're going to make it into a game," he is deliberately using an old and successful gambit. Turning the joke on himself.

TRIED NIGHT CLUB

After writing material for comedians and doing part in style as bucolic Herb Shriner and city-bred Sid Caesar, Allen decided about 18 months ago to perform his own material in a New York night club. His star shot up fast.

Allen is really a shy fellow. He will admit that he has received bad notices and poor audience response during his first appearance, "It's humiliating and never ventured forth again."

As Allen becomes better known — largely through his television shots — the audience response is greater, and his confidence in his performance grows.

"Audiences know when someone is funny," he said. "They don't really know that they know, because when they are asked for an opinion, they never give the right one. But they still know it — and, I presume, that is why I'm successful."

Recommended week-end viewing:

Tonight — The Seven Little Foys, NBC, 8:30 - 9:30 EST, based on the career of vaudevillian Eddie Foy; That Was the Week That Was, NBC, 9:30-10, topical revue.

Sunday — The Wizard of Oz, repeat, CBS, 6-8 p.m., annual broadcast of the film fantasy with Judy Garland and Danny Kaye as host.

Monday — Open.

LARGEST COLLECTION

The BBC Gramophone Library is the largest in the world, with about 400,000 commercial recordings, the largest a 14-inch, 1898 disc.

AT THE BELLE — The Belleville Toronto Shirley MacLaine and Jack Lemmon share honors in "Irma La Douce," in Color and Panavision continuing Tonight and Saturday at the Bata Theatre.

Olympics Beaten by Czech 'B's'

George Swarbrick, a 21-year-old right-winger from Moose Jaw, Sask., scored twice for the Canadian Olympians.

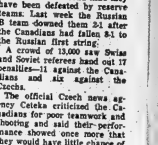
The Canadians now have won four games, lost four and tied one in their 10-game pre-Olympic tour of Europe, before the winter games open at Innsbruck Jan. 29.



This was the second time they have been defeated by reserve teams. Last week the Russian B team downed them 2-1 after the Canadians had fallen 8-1 to the Russian first string.

A crowd of 13,000 saw Swiss and Soviet referees hand out 17 penalties—11 against the Canadians and six against the Czechs.

The official Czech news agency Ceteka criticized the Canadians for poor teamwork and shooting and said their performance showed no more that they would have little chance of winning an Olympic medal.

PICK 'TIMMY'

WINDSOR (CP) — A boy from suburban Sandwich East who likes to bowl and ride a bicycle has been chosen to represent 16,000 crippled children in Ontario during the 1964 Easter Seal campaign. Charles McMullan, 10, has been selected as "Timmy" for 1964 by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. He was born with a deformity and his legs were amputated below the knees in order to allow fitting of two prosthetic limbs.

Canada's Unique Magnetic Recorder

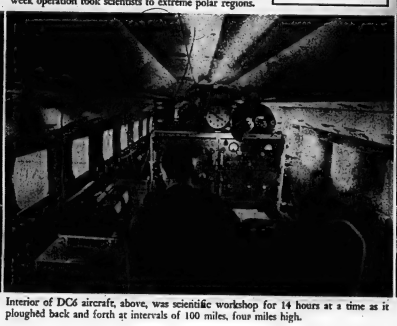
Flying a lone mission over the very top of the world, a four-engined aircraft and its 12-man crew have just completed the final 2,000,000-square-mile section of a Canadian geomagnetic investigation that stretches across the Pacific to Japan and the Atlantic to Europe. Part of the varied work of the Dominion Observatories, this globe-straddling scientific survey was made possible by Canada's unique airborne magnetometer, designed, tested and developed by observatory staff. Operating during the long hours of arctic darkness, constantly fixing their position by the crystal-sharp, circum-polar stars, the scientists and crew members flew 40,000 miles of lines 100 miles apart across the frozen wastes of the Arctic Ocean and islands. The resulting magnetic maps will increase the safety of sea and air travellers, add a large Canadian contribution to international scientific knowledge.



NATIONAL FILM BOARD PHOTOSTORY

Interior of DC6 aircraft, above, was scientific workshop for 14 hours at a time as it ploughted back and forth at intervals of 100 miles, four miles high.

Weldon Hannaford, officer-in-charge, and Dr. Paul Serson, right, check unique airborne magnetometer which to date has been flown more than 300,000 miles.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Every activity that involves money or objects of value attracts a certain amount of dishonest practice. Real estate is no exception. To protect owners of real estate, however, there exists an elaborate mechanism of procedure and recording of ownership. As effective as this is generally, however, there are rare circumstances and situations which an unscrupulous person can turn to his advantage to breach the system.

Mr. D. H. D. discovered this the hard way.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I feel like the fellow in Franz Kafka's novel who was accused of a crime but could never find out what the crime was or find anyone to tell him. My confusion is similar, but it concerns real estate.

I am a construction engineer and 8 years ago I was planning on settling down and building a Louse and bought a lot, for that purpose. Before I built, however, was offered an overseas job for two years. The two years stretched close to eight. While overseas, and more concerned with other things, I gave little thought to my lot. When I went to look at it on my return a few months ago I found that someone had already built a house on it.

At first I thought I had lost the lot through delinquent taxes, but apparently not. I have traced the purchase history of the lot and find that it has been bought and sold three times since the time I purchased it. I have even been informed that I sold it seven years ago to a man I never heard of and can't even locate.

Everyone acts as if I had lost my memory or my mind, but I assure you that I never sold the lot. I was in the Far East at the time they say I sold it. Still no one believes me. Please advise me what to do before I start believing others and begin to doubt my own sanity. — Mr. D. H. D.

Answer: You have a problem, but it is not your sanity that is in question — rather it is the so-called sale you made to the unknown buyer. On the basis of the limited information you have provided, it appears that you are the victim of a forged deed.

Stop trying to pursue this further on your own. You will need an attorney to investigate the alleged sale that you were supposed to have made seven years ago.

Fortunately, forged deeds are rare and, although I hate to be pessimistic, as a real estate expert who has seen a number of such cases I must warn you that the recovery of property lost through forged deeds is not an easy or simple matter.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Talk about adding insult to injury! Not only have I been paying high taxes to support a lot of government bunglers, but I just discovered that I have been paying taxes for six years on a building that doesn't even exist.

A little more than six years ago I bought some property with two houses on it. One was in poor condition and I took out a permit and tore it down. Each year I promptly paid my taxes when billed. It was only by accident while visiting City Hall the other day, that I discovered that I was still being assessed for the second house and paying taxes on it.

I pointed this out to the assessor. After I calmed down he said that they would adjust the assessment and that next year my taxes would be lower. Swell, but what about the six years of taxes I paid on a phantom house? How do I get that back? — Mr. K. P. L.

Answer: Taxes being what they are I can sympathize with your indignation at paying taxes on a phantom house. I doubt, however, if you will get your money back.

Generally speaking, the assumption is that when you receive and review your tax bill and do not protest it, you are satisfied. Once the appeal period has passed, the taxes are fixed and that is the amount owed on the property for that year.

The only consolation I can give you is that having paid these extra taxes you have purchased a lot of satisfying righteous indignation and, like getting hit over the head with a hammer, it will feel so good when it stops.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have a young people's discussion group at our church. The other night we were discussing slums and the deterioration of certain parts of our city.

My contention is that if the people who live in slums and poor type housing had the pride to spend as big a share of their incomes on their homes as middle class people do, they could have decent housing and we wouldn't have to spend public money.

We would appreciate your comments on this. — D. T. R.

Answer: If the percent of income spent on housing was an indication of pride in one's home we slum dwellers would be the proudest of all.

The lowest income groups (under $3,000 a year) spend about 30 percent of their incomes on housing, while the highest income groups spend only about 16 percent. Middle income families such as those in your group spend between 18 and 24 percent of their incomes on housing.

Whatever the cause of slums, it isn't because people who live in them spend too small a proportion of their incomes on housing.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have been following your column since its beginning, and have been particularly interested in the idea of obtaining possession of property through adverse possession. Perhaps you can advise me as to the exact procedure I must follow.

As a school teacher and landscape painter, for nearly 25 years I have spent three months per year camping in a remote Federal National Park. Birdsing and the air is sweet with the scent of pine. I have my own beautiful spot and have even built a small shack type cabin.

Since it appears that I have satisfied, through regular and continuous occupancy, the adverse possession requirements. How do I go about getting title to my personal haven? — M.A.G.

Answer: I am pleased that a man of your sensitivity should read my column, and that you have improved on your real estate education. Your understanding of the process is sound, and your idea is not misplaced — unfortunately the location of your "personal haven" is.

The Doctrine of Adverse Possession does not run against lands owned by the U.S. Government or those of any governmental body.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

British Troops Halt New Mutiny In Tanganyika

Rash of Uprisings Spreads to Kenya

By COLIN FROST

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — British commandos quelled new outburst of mutiny in Tanganyika today. Three African soldiers were killed and 20 others wounded in the brief upheaval.

The latest flare-up of African troops in former British East Africa came on the rash of mutinies spread Friday night to neighboring Kenya.

The Kenya uprising also was put down by British troops.

It was the second army uprising in Tanganyika within a week. On Monday Nyerere's soldiers revolted against their British officers and precipitated rioting and looting in which at least 17 persons were killed.

In addition to the renewed uprising in Tanganyika Rifles' Colito Barracks in Dar Es Salaam, other units were reported to have overpowered officers at Caboru, 400 miles west of the capital.

ORDER RESTORED

British troops arrived by plane from Kenya and took over the Caboru barracks, reports said.

There were no reports of British casualties in either action.

After Monday's army revolt, African mobs went on a rampage against Arab and Asian shopkeepers in Dar Es Salaam, and 600 Arab and Slave trade Arabs name in Arabic means haven of peace.

In Kenya, tension remained high, as officials anticipated disorders in the port city of Mombasa to prevent a threatened demonstration by young African nationalists from turning into a riot against Arab and Asian shopkeepers.

TROOPS FLOWN NORTH

British troops flown down to Nakura, 100 miles north of Nairobi, to put down a mutiny in Kenya's army's 11th Battalion Friday night.

A British officer at the encampment reported all quiet there today. He said there were no casualties.

Other Kenyan troops were reported to have mutinied at Kahawa, five miles outside Nairobi.

British troops guarded all key points in Nairobi today. Britain brought to meet King Kenyatta Mahendra and deliver a personal letter from President Johnson. Peace Corps volunteers, who began arriving in Nepal in September, 1962, now number about 100. They are spread from jungled lowlands to places high in the Himalayas.

Asks China To Avoid Any Break

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) The United States strongly advised Nationalist China Friday to avoid a quick break in relations with France when President de Gaulle's government recognizes the Chinese Communist regime next week.

The de Gaulle move, expected about Tuesday, threatens to trigger a crisis in far eastern diplomacy as well as intensify the strain which already exists in U.S.-French relations.

State Secretary Dean Rusk took time from last - minute preparations for a trip to Japan to receive Nationalist China's ambassador, Dr. Tingfu F. Shiao. The envoy asked to see Rusk for consultation on the impending French move. Immediately following the meeting Rusk left for Tokyo and a one-day visit to South Korea.

De Gaulle has sent word to President Johnson that the deal he has made with Red China does not call for a buying in French relations with Nationalist China. This, de Gaulle is understood to feel, may open the way for a two-China solution of the whole Chinese problem.

REFUSE STEPS

Nationalist China and Red China each has refused to have full diplomatic ties with a country recognizing the rival China. If France achieves a dual-relation status it will be the first major power to do so.

U.S. officials have decided, it was learned, that the two-China theory advanced by de Gaulle may prove embarrassing to Paris and they see no reason why a quick break by the Chinese Nationalists should get France off this potential hook. De Gaulle, officials feel, would make it possible to learn Red China's real attitude on the two-China question. If the Communists will not tolerate the kind of arrangement de Gaulle believes he says it will be up to France to make the break.

Robarts Not Party Praised

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts was praised Friday for following in the footsteps of Sir John A. Macdonald in recognizing the two-nation concept of Canada. But his party was condemned for forsaking the attitudes of Canada's first prime minister.

Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, said in the legislature Mr. Robarts will be a Father of Confederation if he continues to follow Sir John A. Macdonald's example.

He recalled that Mr. Macdonald had advised English-speaking Canadians to treat French Canada as a nation. The NDP leader added:

"It is one of the supreme ironies of Canadian history that his party had forsaken the traditions of Sir John A. Macdonald, particularly in his attitude toward French - Canada, more than the conservative party he founded."

AMENDS MOTION

In moving an amendment to a Liberal non-confidence motion seconded Tuesday, Mr. Macdonald said the government has failed to meet modern-day challenges.

Edward Dunlop (PC — Forest Hill), a blind member of the Canadian Scottish Regiment, got a standing ovation given any member during the current session when he rose in the legislature to urge the provincial government to provide more aid to new hospital construction.

Mr. Dunlop, 44, who lost his sight in a training camp accident in Scotland during the Second World War, said hospitals should be allowed to borrow money to supplement government grants toward hospital construction. The era of hospitals being built through philanthropy and municipal grants is over, he said.

De Gaulle Sends Envoy On Secret Mission to Chiang

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle has sent Gen. Zinovi Pechkoff, a former French ambassador to China, on a secret mission to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, president of Nationalist China. It was learned in official circles here today.

It was understood Pechkoff planned to try to persuade Chiang to abstain from breaking off diplomatic relations with France following the official recognition by France of Communist China.

France's recognition of Peking is expected to be announced Jan. 28.

The general is 80 and the adopted son of Maxim Gorki, the famous Russian writer.

Pechkoff was born in Russia in August, 1884. When Gorki came to France at a time when the czar was not specially favorable to liberal intellectuals, he took the young orphan Zinovi, his adopted son, with him.

But when Gorki returned to Russia, Pechkoff stayed behind.

At the outbreak of the First World War Pechkoff joined the French Foreign Legion and rose rapidly to captain's rank by 1915. Seriously wounded, he lost an arm.

He continued to serve in the French army between the two world wars and was one of the first to join de Gaulle and the Free French forces in London after the fall of France in 1940.

He was Free French ambassador for de Gaulle in Chungking from 1941 to 1945 and French ambassador in Tokyo from 1946 to 1949.

Merger Talk Liberal Plot Says NDP National Leader

OTTAWA (CP)In the words of a popular song, it takes two to tango. And the same is true of political marriages.

The New Democratic Party, which frequently assails members over reports of marriage talk with the Liberals, is advising the membership it's all a plot by Liberals who would demonstrate them and destroy party unity.

National Leader T. C. Douglas, writing on the subject to all party members says: "Reports of mergers are being or will be contemplated so long as I am leader."

"No coalition, no working relationship, no informal deals have been worked out between the New Democrats and the Liberals."

Mr. Douglas says the flurry of reports late in December about Liberal - New Democratic members talking merger "have disturbed our members because they say:

"We have indulged in so much public self-analysis lately that we are a little short-ready to believe the worst about ourselves."

He said they were based on a single meeting last October held without the knowledge or authorization of any official body of the party.

Mr. Douglas reviews past Liberal attacks on the CCF, the predecessor of the NDP.

"Today," he says, "as might be expected, we have a number of Liberal feelers going out to see if unions with the NDP can be worked through the CLC and, from that, the Liberal strategists would move with their usual skill to absorb the NDP as a socialist."

He suggests New Democrats "realize that people are ready to divide the New Democratic Party, who want to disheriten our members, and who want to smote this merger talk. It is their way of weakening our morale and fragmenting our loyalties."

Liberal leadership has been timid and "has its roots deep in big business." It would take more than a democratic structure to change the Liberals' "traditional bias."

Negro Pickets Greet UN Group At Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Negro pickets protesting segregation greeted members of a United Nations group meeting with racial discrimination during their first visit to the southern United States.

The marchers carried signs reading "Atlanta needs UN help," and "Atlanta, gateway to the segregated south" and sang "freedom songs" in the lobby after the visitors arrived Friday night.

The picketing by the Student Non - Violent Coordinating Committee occurred at the airport and again outside the hotel where the group was staying. No incidents were reported.

The demonstration gave UN members from 10 countries — the Soviet Union included — a first - hand glimpse of racial problems at the beginning of their two-day tour.

WELCOME DELEGATES

Lester Dunbar, head of the Southern Regional Council, was among the civil rights leaders and city officials who extended a formal welcome.

"In no other country has a revolution been fought for the protection of a constitution," he said, referring to the Negro struggle for civil rights.

Herman Santa-Cruz of Chile, chairman of the subcommission on the prevention of discrimination and protection of minorities, said they were in Atlanta as individual members of the UN group at the request of Morris Abram, not as official representatives of the UN.

Cuba Not Involved - - Castro

HAVANA (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro denied Friday night that his government was involved in the Panama Canal violence but said Cuba is willing to suffer sacrifices in order to give economic aid to Panama.

"When things happened in Panama, the imperialists accused the Canadians and Communists," Castro said in a radio broadcast. "Cuba's interests coincide with the demands of the Panamanians, but we had nothing to do with that."

Actually, he said, Cuba was "careful to give the United States no reason to practise intervention and not (nationalist) movement."

In his speech, Castro reported to the Cubans on his trip to Moscow during which he signed a five-year trade and payments pact to sell sugar to the Russians. Castro returned from Moscow Thursday.

Castro described the contract as an improvement over Cuba's former sugar agreements with the United States. Under the Soviet contract, Cuba will receive six cents a pound in Russian merchandise. The current world market price is about 10 cents.

Sukarno Orders Cease-Fire Along Border

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—U.S. Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy ended his ninth day of talks with Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home on his successful Malaysian peace mission as indications mounted that President Sukarno ordered a cease-fire along the Malaysia-Indonesia border.

Sukarno ordered the cease-fire, effective at midnight today, but there were some doubts whether his proclamation would reach all the Indonesian volunteers and troops camped in the jungles dividing Indonesian Borneo and the Malaysian states of Sarawak and Sabah (British North Borneo).

The Indonesian government radio in Jakarta broadcast the presidential order throughout the night, explaining that the cease-fire was necessary to prepare for new ministerial talks in Bangkok between the Philippines and Malaysia.

Sukarno's order, however, told the Indonesian forces "to maintain vigilance and security" and to await "further orders in connection with new tasks."

U.S. Will Not Change Policy In Far East

Rusk to Make Speech In Tokyo on Tuesday

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is seeking to cushion the impact of the impending French recognition of Communist China with reassurances that it will not change U.S. policy in the Far East.

High diplomatic sources making the rounds today said State Secretary Dean Rusk in private talks with Japanese and South Korean leaders over the next five-days will stress American intentions to hold the line in its policy toward Peking.

In addition, Rusk is scheduled to make an important policy speech in Tokyo next Tuesday in which he will restate the American policy of supporting the independence of young post-war countries faced with Communist subversion and infiltration.

He was also expected to reaffirm U.S. intentions of honoring its treaty commitments to Nationalist China.

The hop in Washington is that the expected French action will be the touch off a wave of recognition of Communist China and upset the balance of power in the United Nations. The United Nations has refused thus far to oust Nationalist China in order to seat Communist China.

'MOVE A MISTAKE'

The state department has made clear in regards the French recognition move as a mistake and simply a reward to Chinese Communist belligerence and aggression.

There is considerable hope here that the French-speaking African nations will not follow the lead of Paris in extending recognition to Peking.

This hope has been fortified by reports that the takeover of Gambar's moribund government by a Peking-leaning leftist group has upset other African nations.

Informants said there are indications that most of the 12 French-speaking African countries in the Afro-Malagasy Union will refrain from following Paris' lead. If they do, officials feel, it will be over some doubts whether his proclamation would reach all the Indonesian volunteers and troops camped in the jungles dividing Indonesian Borneo and the Malaysian states of Sarawak and Sabah (British North Borneo).

The Indonesian government radio in Jakarta broadcast the presidential order throughout the night, explaining that the cease-fire was necessary to prepare for new ministerial talks in Bangkok between the Philippines and Malaysia.

Sukarno's order, however, told the Indonesian forces "to maintain vigilance and security" and to await "further orders in connection with new tasks."

$69,400,000 Surplus In December

OTTAWA (CP) — A combination of government spending cuts and higher revenues in December produced a surplus of $69,400,000 on government budgetary operations for the month.

Finance Minister Gordon, in his monthly treasury statement issued Friday night, reported that this cut away much of the deficit accumulated earlier in the current fiscal year, leaving a $42,200,000 deficit for the first nine months of the year, which ends March 31.

In the previous fiscal year there was a December surplus of $4,500,000 and a deficit of $111,800,000 for the first nine months of the year.

This year's nine-month deficit will probably be a far cry from the forecast deficit of $655,000,000 indicated in Mr. Gordon's June 12 budget and in subsequent budget alterations.

However, government expenditures tend to pile up heavily during March, the last month of the fiscal year. Last fiscal year ended with a deficit of $706,000,000.

REVENUES RISE

In December, budgetary revenues rose to $623,300,000 from $571,000,000 a year earlier, while expenditures were trimmed to $553,900,000 from $566,500,000.

For the ninth months April December, revenues advanced to $5,565,700,000 from $4,400,000,000 and expenditures increased to $4,607,900,000 from $4,500,800,000.

These budgetary figures do not include operations of the old French-speaking African countries in the Afro-Malagasy Union will refrain from following Paris' lead. If they do, officials feel, it will be over some doubts whether his proclamation would reach all the Indonesian volunteers and troops camped in the jungles dividing Indonesian Borneo and the Malaysian states of Sarawak and Sabah (British North Borneo).

The Indonesian government radio in Jakarta broadcast the presidential order throughout the night, explaining that the cease-fire was necessary to prepare for new ministerial talks in Bangkok between the Philippines and Malaysia.

Sukarno's order, however, told the Indonesian forces "to maintain vigilance and security" and to await "further orders in connection with new tasks."

Troupe Returns In Triumph To Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — "I'm so happy everything's over."

British actress the words with Richard Wallenda expressed emotions after leading the famed Great Wallendas Friday in a dramatic high-wire performance 30 feet above the sawdust where two members of the troupe were killed and a third crippled for life in a fall two years ago.

A crowd of 8,000 spectators — many of the performers' kin — cheered and roustabouts jammed the entrances to the Detroit Olympia Stadium to watch the Wallendas perform, without a net, in their first visit to Detroit since the 1962 tragedy.

"The first thing I'm going to do," said Mario and the family," said the 50-year-old Karl after the performance.

Wallenda's 24-year-old son, is paralyzed from the waist down as a result of the Jan. 30, 1962 fall. The boy who died was Richard Faughnan, 29, husband of one of Friday's performers, and Dieter Schepp, 23.

WIDOW GOES FIRST

Jenny, the 34-year-old widow of Joseph Geiger and Karl's daughter, went first Friday, carrying a 15-foot balancing pole as she inched the 45 feet from one platform to another.

The audience was followed by two new members of the cast, Louis Murillo, 28, and Andy Anderson, 27, who will spend the summer with Karl and Jenny at Sarasota, Fla.

The crowd twice gasped as Murillo — skipping rope in the centre of the wire with no safety net — lost his balance but kept hold of the wire, pulled himself back up and calmly went through.

The highlight of the act came when Anderson and Murillo — both dressed in wire on bicycles, balancing first Karl and then Jenny on a bar stretched across their shoulders.

Friday's performance was by no means the first by the Wallendas since the tragic night when the troupe has been back in action since the night after the 1962 fall.

Man 'Guided by Vision' Leads Way To $73,000 Hidden in Old Chair

SONORA, Calif. (AP)—A man who said he was guided by a vision led sheriff's deputies Friday to $73,000 in Canadian money hidden in California's snow - clad mother lode gold country.

The cash was pulled from the chimney of an old chair in the tiny one-room cabin of a woman who died Monday in what police called terrible weather.

Annie Atkins, 76, had lived in the cabin for several years with Fletcher Bell, 78, who told the Tuolumne County sheriff's office he had guided authorities to the cache, said county sheriff O. M. Whitney.

The cabin is in Coulterville, a community of about 200 persons.

Whitney reported the woman died of natural causes. Persons who knew her said she was the widow of a wealthy Canadian. The name of her husband and her hometown weren't known.

Whitney said Piebank was picked up Wednesday for questioning and was found to be carrying $7,100 in American money, for which he had exchanged Canadian money in San Francisco.

Echoes of Que. Nationalism Heard in Ontario House

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Echoes of Quebec nationalism were heard Friday in the legislature of neighbouring Ontario.

The Quebec government was accused of exerting pressure on Canadian unions to keep out of its operations in Quebec. George Kerr (PC — Halton) said the Quebec government was threatened with a boycott if it moved all its operations to Burlington, near Hamilton.

But Economics and Development Minister Stanley Randall said he would make no representations to Quebec. The government would leave it up to the good sense of Quebec labor governments to see such parochial attitudes are stopped.

Meanwhile, the Quebec legislature heard demands for changes in Bill 60, setting up a government education department, while a royal commission recommended creation of a board to control publishing and distribution of books.

The education minister's powers should be defined more precisely, said Jean-Jacques Bertrand (UN—Missisquoi).

He moved an amendment that would have the minister take account of the right of parents to choose the type of school they want for their children, the rights of individuals and groups to create autonomous schools for benefit from government aid. The amendment was still before the House when debate resumes Monday.

The royal commission revealed that authors of some school books were members of boards which approved them. It also said nearly three-quarters of the publishers have been taking too big a profit.

In the British Columbia legislature, a member of the Social Credit government said Vancouver should be able to call out the army to quell future Grey Cup hooliganism.

Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail) said Vancouver will have to do something in the event of a repeat of last November's incidents when scores of persons were arrested.

Vancouver Man Said Wanted For Questioning

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A man who may be in Vancouver is wanted by police for questioning in the case of a young London woman, found half naked in a field here Thursday.

Police said Friday an autopsy on Miss Margaret Ann Sheeler, 20, had been dead since Dec. 28, when she was reported missing from her home about 1½ blocks from where her body was found. She was five months pregnant.

Det.-Insp. Len Hamilton said the nature of her injuries" indicated foul play. He would not elaborate.

Det.-Sgt. Frank Christie said the woman's clothes, scattered around her, showed no sign of tears or a struggle. The body was clad only in a blouse.

Mrs. Sheeler, the former Margaret Butterman of Wallaceburg, Ont., was married there last year.

Her husband and father identified the body.

Transplanted Human Heart Worked Successfully for Hour

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A bold attempt to give a man another heart was made by Mississippi surgeons Friday.

The transplant worked for an hour. It was the first known successful human heart transplant in the world.

The venture spurred hope in medical circles that it may lead to success not only of heart transplants but of those involving other organs.

The transplantation surgery at the University of Mississippi medical centre is the latest in a series of clinical experiments over the world to give people new kidneys, livers, lungs and spleens.

It would mean a new lease of life for many people who are otherwise healthy but doomed by progressive failure of some organs.

The heart came from a dead man. It was revived and transplanted into the chest of a dying man.

"The dimensions of the only available donor heart at the time of the patient's collapse proved too small for the requirements of the considerably larger recipient," said a medical centre spokesman.

He declined to disclose the names and ages of the persons involved or withheld details of the arrangements and circumstances leading to the operation.

Afterwards, the spokesman said no further information would be released until a full clinical experience is gained.

The doctors here and elsewhere have learned how technically to put a gift organ in a body and connect it with a blood supply.

They have also scored temporary success in overcoming natural law that the human body will reject borrowed or "foreign" tissue.

The donor heart was preserved, chilled, well oxygenated blood pumped backwards through the coronary arteries, the large vein that drains the heart itself.

A single shock from an electric defibrillator, a term in times known as a heart pacemaker, was used to re - establish a forceful and regular beat once the transfer was completed.

County Council Winds Up Long Session With Approval Of Many Grant Requests

Hastings county council Friday wound up its four-day January session with approval of a long list of grant requests and passing of borrowing and other by-laws necessary to carry on the business of the county.

The session saw the election of Madoc township Reeve Thomas Burnside as the 1964 warden, approval of the Belleville General Hospital building program and a decision to appoint a county coordination safety inspector.

Turned down was a motion to form a county health unit to replace present health services carried on under direction of local medical officers of health.

The county's share of the cost of constructing a new addition to the Belleville hospital is estimated at $1,275,000.

A decision on the method of financing will be made later by council.

MANY GRANTS APPROVED

Yesterday council turned thumbs down on the formation of a county health unit which would have cost tax payers an estimated $4.60 per year.

Councillors apparently felt that with financing of the new hospital wing still to be decided it would not be advisable to commit the county to the added health unit costs.

Yesterday council voted grants of $400 each to the Thurlow, Elland and Plainfield community centres, $200 to the Rawdon community centre; $250 to the Carlow centre, and $500 to the Royal Canadian Legion unit at Coe Hill.

The customary grants were voted to the various county libraries and $100 each to the Teachers' Institutes of South, Centre, and North Hastings.

Grants of $100 each were approved for soil and crop improvement groups and for the county Fireman's Association.

REFERRED BACK

Grants for the county Beef Improvement Association and to the Ottawa Winter Fair were referred to the county agricultural committee.

A grant of $500 was approved for the Lake Ontario Development Association, $200 to the Madawaska Valley Tourist Association, and $1,500 to the Hastings and Land of Lanes Regional Tourist Association. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind was granted $1050 and the Salvation Army $800.

Reeves R. C. Graham of Huntingford; William O'Brien of Wallbridge, John Wilson of Marmora township, and Warden Burnside were named delegates to the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities.

Members of the county roads committee along with county engineer Larry Langlois and Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman were authorized to attend the Ontario Good Roads convention.

RESOLUTION FILED

Whether or not the Ontario government should be expected to pay grant in lieu of taxes on all provincially-owned property was discussed by council.

A resolution from Grey county asked that the province be asked to pay such grants on all property, but Hastings councillors were not so sure.

Reeve Irving Murray took a longer view of the question and suggested if counties tried to force this issue it could very easily effect the provincial grant system.

"We can't have it both ways," he pointed out.

Reeve M. J. McAlpine of Bancroft considered if Crown land was included in the resolution.

In the end council took no action and the Grey resolution was filed.

Anglicans Plan Diocesan Meet In Kingston

Delegates from the Anglican Church of this area will attend a Diocesan Congress in Kingston on Jan. 20th. The gathering of clergy and lay members of the Anglican Church is also REFERRED BACK

Grants for the county Beef Improvement Association and to the Ottawa Winter Fair were referred to the county agricultural committee.

A grant of $500 was approved for the Lake Ontario Development Association, $200 to the Madawaska Valley Tourist Association, and $1,500 to the Hastings and Land of Lanes Regional Tourist Association. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind was granted $1050 and the Salvation Army $800.

The Congress will begin in St. George's Cathedral at 10.00 a.m. In the morning of the Congress will hear reports on self-examination, parish study and recruitment. The afternoon session will consider finances and prayer.

The members of the Congress, in number over four hundred, will have lunch at the Commodore Hotel. At the luncheon, the Rev. Dr. R. Hill, Secretary of the Anglican Church Mission of St. George's Church, Toronto, will be the speaker.

Also each parish in the Diocese two women have been invited to attend the Congress. This is a new departure in the Diocese of Ontario. Canon relations require that lay delegates to the Diocesan Synods be "male" persons at least twenty-one years of age.

Local Registry Office Records Now Completely Micro Filmed

The Hastings county registry office has the distinction of being the only one in Ontario to have completed microfilming of all its records.

This was learned by Hastings county council on Friday as county registrar William Hurst, turned over a cheque for more than $11,000 as the county's share of office profits for 1963.

Total profits of the office were given as $20,180, of which $11,000 goes to the county; $2,000 to Trenton, and just over $6,100 to the city of Belleville.

Modern copying equipment, along with micro-filming of other records has so increased the efficiency of the registry office that double the work is now being done with two less staff than in 1951.

Mr. Hurst said his office commenced micro-filming its abstract books eight years ago and the time consuming job was just completed.

"In case of fire we could replace all our records within a few months," he said.

Also at the county registry office a system of "self serve" for those who require a convenience and time saver for lawyers searching records.

At the same time the system reduces the work required by the registry office staff.

Micro-filming has become popular in almost all wards have it in the registry office," Mr. Hurst said.

No decision has been made regarding the disposition of the old abstract books which have been now micro-filmed. But Mr. Hurst points out that it is now unnecessary to retain them.

The county registry office in the new registry administration building has the ownership and sale record of every piece of property in the county. A system of cross indexing allows the required record to be readily located.

HAND-DRAWN MAPS

As well as abstract books with records dating back to the earliest history of the county, the office also had early hand drawn maps of most of the municipalities.

One of these maps dated 1815 shows Belleville as it was a century and a half ago.

The map shows that only very few streets laid out. Dundas Street was the southern extremity of the built up and colonization did not extend much north of the present upper bridge. Site of the village was part of what was known as the Mississauga Reservation.

Victoria Park was then known as Hotel Street and the only settlement was laid off the village had actually reached the street to be straight — not with a curve as Pinnacle Street as is now the case.

BUILT ON STREET

Another map shows that the village was laid out but apparently still no built up, an enterprising hotel man built a hotel right smack in the middle of Hotel Street on the east side of Front Street.

So in order to miss the out of place hotel, the route of Hotel Street (now Victoria Av.) was given a jog at Pinnacle Street.

Town Given First Chance To Acquire Old Post Office

TRENTON — In his inaugural address to Trenton council on Jan. 2, Mayor James MacDonald said that he had been assured by the member of parliament for Hastings South, Robert Temple, that tenders for the construction of a new post office would be called within six weeks. The new building would be on a post office, a customs offices and other government departments.

The post office on Front Street won't be an innovation. That's where the town's first post office was located . . . on the spot where the municipal parking lot is now. Beside it stood the old Quinte Hotel. Hotel and across the road was the Christie Block.

James Cunningham was post master for many years and in 1873, eight years before Trenton was incorporated as a city, Mr. Christie was appointed post master. Mr. Christie was still post master when the present building was erected in 1888. The conservative party of the late John A. MacDonald, Canada's first prime minister.

Another long-time post master at Trenton was the late Lorne Lester who was appointed following the War Ones.

Up until September, 1947, when door-to-door delivery was first introduced, city residents collected their mail at the general delivery wicket or rented a post office box.

When the new federal building opens for use, what will become of the present building?

The town has been given the first chance to buy the building from the federal government.

The late Councillor N. J. McNair suggested that the building be used as a police station but this idea gained very little support from the local constabulary.

Other councillors have suggested that the building be pulled down to permit widening of the street at this point.

Miss Hazel Farley, a longtime Trenton resident has suggested that the building be used as a museum and this suggestion has been given support in some circles.

What will be its fate? Only time can tell.

Says Town Areas In Need of Re-Development

TRENTON — On the heels of an appeal Thursday night to Trentonians to "do something about re-development," by Mrs. Richard Harding Secretary of Toronto, speaking at the annual Inter - service club dinner, comes a report from Project Planning Association on certain areas of the town deemed in need of re-development.

The report says, in effect, that an area north of the downtown business section and west of the river, is the "worst" residential area in town. Based on a door-to-door survey by the planners, the report takes into consideration the type and age of the dwelling, family incomes, dis-satisfaction with existing conditions on the part of the residents and the ratio of owner-occupation.

Other areas in the town in need of development, says the report, are the West Street-Marmora Street area and the downtown business section on the riverside, on the west side of the river, with particular reference to the backs of the buildings, facing the river.

Western Canada Concerned About Ethnic Groups

REGINA (CP) — Western Canadians are becoming more interested in Quebec events but put more emphasis on the positions of ethnic groups other than French and English, the co-chairmen of the royal commission on biculturalism and bilingualism said Friday.

Davidson Dunton and Andre Laurendeau were speaking at a press conference after completing informal visits with the premiers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Mr. Dunton said the three Prairie premiers "have all been extremely warm and kind and promised help in obtaining information."

He said western interests in the problems of English-French relations are growing but the people are more concerned about other ethnic groups.

"Our terms of reference deal with biculturalism, which, it is plain to us, means the relationship between two large groups, one which speaks English and the other French. At the same time, we are to investigate the other heritages, the other cultures," Mr. Dunton said.

WON'T BE OVERLOOKED

He said no one need be concerned the other cultures would be overlooked.

The two men said some western Canadians had suggested the bicultural problem should be worked out by Ontario and Quebec but Mr. Laurendeau said he felt the problem was national.

"Suppose, for example, that the separatists in Quebec had some success?"

Those that questioned the value of the commission were in a small minority, the co-chairmen said.

Plans call for the men to have informal meetings with all 10 premiers and then informal meetings with the public—probably in March.

Formal hearings will start this fall.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Quebec separatist movement is being helped by the anger of some English - speaking Canadians at the demands of French Canada, says Robert Pritlie, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Burnaby Richmond.

"The scathing editorials and angry letters-to-the-editor help the separatists who say it is useless to expect understanding from the rest of the country," he told the annual B.C. convention of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Friday.

"It would be more helpful if all Canadians paid some attention to the plea for unity contained in the Governor-General's New Year message to the country."

"If we continue to confine the French language to Quebec, we should not be surprised if the French - speaking population places loyalty to Quebec above loyalty to Canada," he said.

BCIVS Drama Club Gives Fine Performance of Comedy

With all the zest of youth BCIVS drama club last night launched itself on a youthful recollection of the zestful Cornelia Otis Skinner for its annual stage production.

"Our Hearts were Young and Gay" is a play that may be a loose interpretation of those recollections compiled by Cornelia herself and Emily Kimbrough, and dramatized by Jean Kerr.

Either way, the student cast took to the situations of the Parisian scene in the best tradition of the Skinner character - - and well played by the student cast.

With this production, the BCI drama club departs from the serious note it struck last year with "Diary of Anne Frank," a note that was too relished for the peak of truthfulness it attained in the hands of young students.

With it also, the school club hit on an educational combination. The school and specifically the cast not only learned something about the art of language and deportment, but of life itself. Very much of life itself.

"Our Hearts were Young and Gay" is a gay contrast to that production.

THOROUGHLESS BUSINESS

However, if their hard-pressed director, Miss K. Morrison, can somehow create the time, the club might be encouraged to continue its course in serious dramatic line. It is a thankless business, in a way, since drama demands so much time from both student and teacher in those ranks when it seems, educational circles run around in ever-widening circles. Yet, there was something educationally there last year. It was not only entertaining and personally satisfying to the players, but seemed to create a pattern of educational involvement that merits repeating.

But the BCI Drama Club this year has come across with a comparison of stage work that should not be sold short. A myriad of the students came across with the effort, contributing onstage and offstage under Miss Morrison's direction.

Another word in their praise: They have put across two productions in a year while the adults of the city's senior theatre group have yet to appear on the public boards.

Drift aside from theatre for a moment and combine this thought with the fact that BCI students not too long ago took the bit between their teeth and presented a winter carnival. Small though it was, it had the right spirit of enterprise which simply took advantage of things adults had been neglecting.

In showmanship the kids seem to have a responsible lead in one-upmanship in this city.

219-Year-Old Halifax Bursting At Its Seams

HALIFAX (CP)—Like a dowager bursting through her girdle, 219 - year - old Halifax is straining at the confinement of its ancient boundaries and a move is afoot to give it growing space by quintupling its area.

The city of 82,511 people is hemmed into a peninsula of seven square miles almost circled by arms of the Atlantic. The landward boundary across a mile-wide isthmus has not had a major change since it was drawn in 1841.

Mayor Charles A. Vaughan wants the city to annex five neighboring—suburbs of Jollimore, Rockingham, Armdale, Fairview and Spryfield plus 9,400 acres of watershed land west of the city. The annexation would be gradually carried out over three years.

The move would add to the city's population about 20,000 people and boost its area from its present 4,400 acres to about 22,000.

City manager Peter Byars says it is apparent that the city —whose population is growing by 2.3 per cent a year—cannot now handle many more than 100,000 even after all available building sites are utilized.

Few sites suitable for detached buildings are left. Almost all new residential construction is apartments.

OPPOSE METRO

Mr. Byars says that cities that have made use of their annexation powers have avoided the accumulation of the metropolitan problems that lead to the establishment of a new level of government.

He said that wherever a metropolitan system of government has been organized it has resulted in backbiting, bickering and dissatisfaction. He named Toronto, Winnipeg and Montreal as examples.

"The best way to solve suburban growth problems is to annex the potential growth area before the city is hemmed in by incorporated satellite towns," he said.

Mayor Vaughan adds: "As the economic heart of a large metropolitan area, we cannot permit ourselves to remain in the straitjacket imposed upon us by legislation in 1841."

Initial reaction from county councillors representing the five suburbs that would be taken over has been favorable but cautious.

Meanwhile, in 1961 Dartmouth —across the harbor from Halifax—doubled its population of 24,000 by annexing seven rapidly-growing suburbs. The annexation swelled its land area from 1,700 to 16,000 acres.

Dartmouth, which moved from town to city stature only in 1961, has been hitting itself lately as the fastest-growing city in Canada.

Kennedy's Injuries Too Great For Survival Says Doctors

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Physicians writing in the Texas State Journal of Medicine Friday told how President John F. Kennedy died despite a desperate half-hour of treatment by seven doctors.

All agreed that the president's injuries were too great for survival.

There was a faint heart beat but no pulse or blood pressure when he was brought to Parkland Hospital in Dallas about 12:30 p.m. CST (1:30 p.m. EST), Nov. 22.

Three Patients at Parkland is the title of the article describing the treatment of Kennedy, Texas Governor John Connally and Lee Harvey Oswald, the man accused of killing Kennedy and wounding the governor.

Oswald was fatally shot Nov. 24, allegedly by Jack Ruby whose murder trial is pending. Oswald died in Parkland about 10 feet from the place the president died.

IS FULL ACCOUNT

"Because a Texas hospital and Texas physicians figured prominently in this tragedy, the Texas State Journal of Medicine records for its readers of the medical profession a full account of treatment given a never - to - be - forgotten trio," the unsigned article said.

The Journal said it asked the attending physicians to record their separate impressions a few hours after the Nov. 22 and 24 shootings because "it was felt that the impressions of the individual participating physicians, written in a period of strain, without consideration of rhetoric, was perhaps of greatest value to medical history."

Some of the 13 separate accounts prepared by the doctors in the three cases included:

Dr. Charles J. Carrico, 28, a resident at Parkland and first physician to see the president.

"When the patient entered the emergency room on an ambulance carriage he had slow agonal respiratory efforts and occasional cardiac beats. . . . Two eternal wounds were noted, one in the neck and the other a massive head and brain injury.

"No pulse or blood pressure were present. Pupils were ... dilated and fixed." A tube was inserted below the ragged neck wound, and respiration began. Fluids were introduced into his veins in the right leg and the left arm. Respiration also was started with an anesthesia machine. "Despite these measures blood pressure never returned. Only brief electro - cardiographic evidence of cardiac activity was obtained."

Underwriters Hold First Meet

The initial meeting for the 1964 season of the Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters' Association was held Friday noon combining both business and lunch at Johnny's Restaurant in the Shopping Plaza.

President Sid Martin officiated reading the oath of allegiance to six new members of the Association, who subscribed to the ethics and practices of the Life Underwriters' Association.

Guest speaker, Edward Peters, C.L.U., agency supervisor of the London Life Insurance Co. was introduced by John Marvin.

Mr. Peters spoke on personal goals regarding the individual careers of the life underwriter. Dedication not only to one's work in the field was emphasized by Mr. Peters but dedication to oneself, setting targets to shoot for, a goal to reach.

An important function of the life underwriter's job is prospecting, Mr. Peters said. If the underwriter does not prospect, and prospect each and every day, success will be hard to come by.

Life insurance is one of the biggest businesses in the land, but underwriters are not always appear the business men they should. Confidence in the product or service being sold is essential.

The speaker was thanked by Gene Donahue.

It will cover a two-year period.

Edward Peters, agency supervisor for the London Life Assurance Co., addressed the Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters' Association at their initial 1964 meeting on Friday. His topic was personal goals of life underwriters.

Sounding-Board

The committee set up to advise the Ontario Government on Bill 165—to make medical insurance available to all through private insurers on a voluntary basis—has hinted it will make no drastic changes in the draft bill.

Committee chairman J. Gerald Hagey of Waterloo University says that Health Minister Matthew Dymond has told the committee its job is to fill in details—not to revise principles.

There is nothing wrong with the Government using the committee in this manner if it so desires. After all, it is the Government's duty to decide what form of medical insurance will be provided and if it does not wish to be bothered by outside advice it is under no necessity to range a committee to supply it with something it does not want.

At the same time, the committee is serving a useful purpose besides that of "putting flesh on the skeleton" of the bill, which is what Dr. Hagey says is its task.

It is providing a sounding board for organizations and individuals which, whether the Government likes it or not, are insisting on discussing principles, as they have every right to do.

If it were not for these hearings, the general public might find itself obligated to pay the costs involved in this scheme, without ever having all the implications called forcibly to its attention.

But for the committee, for instance, we might not have learned of the contention of the United Auto Workers that the main effect of the bill will be to provide additional remuneration for those providing medical services. Under the bill the government will pay the premiums of those citizens held financially unable to pay this cost themselves, so that people who in the past were charity cases and were treated by doctors for nothing will in future be fully insured.

But for the committee we might not have learned that elderly couples or those in ill health will have to pay up to $140 a year for insurance, an amount which will clearly prove beyond the means of many on pensions. This information on the maximum premium was provided by Caman A. Naylor of London, Ont., an actuary for the London Life Insurance Co. and a member of the committee, after Rev. H. L. Wipprecht, a United Church minister from Cobalt, condemned the varying levels of premiums.

Before the committee's hearings are concluded the public may have grasped the fundamental fact—that in any plan which does not cover all the people, some of the people will pay all their own insurance costs and will also help to pay the insurance costs of others. The same, of course, would be true of a compulsory plan. But in a voluntary scheme those who could afford to pay would be forced to pay. The danger of a voluntary plan is that the government, which means the taxpayers, will pay the cost of medical care for those who were well able to pay premiums, but refused to do so, and who cannot pay the much higher medical bills involved in severe and prolonged illness. Some variation circumvent such a situation would appear an essential feature of an equitable voluntary plan.

Transformation

As a mere male, we report with astonishment that there has been an unbelievable improvement in the art of providing dress-shop dummies with appealing imitations of women's crowning glory.

There used to be a time when these wax models had their heads wrapped in hard, shining strands of the most unlikely colors.

Today we find these same models wearing all the fashionable shades, every hair held in place with a spray which adds that coveted shimmering glint, the whole presenting a picture of perfection which only the most exclusive hairdressing salons manage to equal.

And this vast improvement has been achieved by the models with no more effort than that required by waiting for the real product to catch up with the times.

Exciting subjects, imaginative courses, even first-rate teaching are themselves no guarantee of a student's education. In the end he has to educate himself. It is important, therefore, that lectures, discussion classes, practical work, the preparation of essays, do not swamp his time or exhaust his spirit . . . I have no doubt myself that most undergraduates would be better educated if they had to attend not more lectures but fewer, and learned to work on their own in the library.—Dr. Albert E. Sloman, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Essex.

Egg of Head or Egg in Face, Party Conventions All Same

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Comes now the wonderfully wacky season of political hoopla.

Fun and games when the party Brass and Grass fraternize at the conventions and the national rallies.

The Conservatives are on stage here in another week with their extravaganza and February Is due to end with a bang in a two-day Liberal whoop-up.

The Big Bronze of both parties — Mike and Dief, as they're familiarly called by the troops at these bruhahas — let it be known, with straight faces, that the object of the exercise is to write what is usually referred to as a positive program for political action.

But don't you let 'em kid the troops.

For these are real swinging bashes.

Ask the man who's been to one.

As a leading Conservative organiser put it at last year's rock-and-roller when he saw Gorgeous George — "Trader" Rees cutting up jackpots all over the place.

"Man, Ain't this something!"

HAPPY DAYS

And that it surely is.

Nothing in politics usually gets done, except a lot of talking, at one of these wing-dings.

But brother, do they have themselves a time!

The thing is rigidly stylized.

There is always a bit of drama.

A touch of cloak and dagger is almost routine as the rebels and the dissidents and the loners have them in every party — plot to undermine the Brass or the organizational establishment, and find themselves caught up in counter-plots.

What are politically known as the Old Guard and the Young Turks scheme and conspire alternately in the name of many amateur secret agents.

And when everybody has had enough at playing political James Bonds, they all stand up — if they still can — in a ringing vote of confidence for themselves, their executive, the leadership that cherishing they believe is this best-of-all-possible-parties.

But mostly it is whoop-de-do through happy days and even happier nights.

The delegates get their round trip air or rail tickets paid to the Capital, are royally courted in rounds of lunching and dining, get juiced up with go-go-go pep talks and dead-beat but happy, go home — all fired up and ready for another year of local politicking.

BEZAZZ

For these colorful carnivals, the Conservatives import some 1,500 rarin'-to-go delegates and the Liberals the best in better than 500.

Since the Liberals more or less confine their clambakes to their National Council and their university people, they like to claim they're a little more on the egghead side.

But whether it is egg-of-the-head or egg-in-the-face, both old parties go big for what foreign correspondents, accustomed to, now Senator Allister Grosart and Liberal press relations man James Regan alike refer to as "bezazz."

(Regan, who is the Prime Minister's personal Press man Friday, practises the cult of bezazz, especially on excursions away from the Capital by comforting the reporters along for the ride with the reassuring chant: "Never fear, Regan's here.")

At a party powwow, bezazz is doing push-ups with a curvy blonde on the hotel breakfast table. . . . Or Premier Marshall-ing through the lobbies of the sedate Chateau Laurier, done out like a Texas two-gun sheriff, in chaps, a wild fancied shirt two stootin' irons on the hip

. . . It's "strange" breakfasts with a couple of stand-up comedians in costume telling old jokes . . . It's the Horner Clan, Senator Reish and MP-sons Hugh and Jack, and cousin Albert, four free souls from the Prairie West looping their lariats across the hall to issue some well-stuffed and stuffy matron from stuffed-shirt Toronto . . . It's dancing into the night in the Chateau ballroom with maybe Juliette up on the stage crooning the while . . . It's partying in hotel rooms, eating, drinking, making merry.

It is fun.

THE INDISPENSABLES

It is the over-50 Brass feeding and watering and courting the always-indispensable Grass.

It is the annual award, or more accurately reward, to the party faithful who, win or lose, through good times and bad, do the only real work that counts in personality hustling up and getting out the vote, poll by poll, often person by person.

For those three or four days, the delegates live it up in a style to which they would like nothing better than to become accustomed.

They're kings and queens for a day.

Party leaders hang on their every word. Even a prime minister pays polite — if he knows what is good for him — attention.

Watch Diefenbaker, busy Chief-ing it all over the convention floor . . . Glad is meet you . . . How are you, my old friend?" — with a quip and a quick joke for everybody. He makes it personal, like he had come down to the hotel just to meet you, and now that he's said hello, his day is made.

And dig Mike, the old charmer, paying as much attention to the delegate from Painted Post as to President Johnson or de Gaulle, making each one feel personally important, as if he would have them in every party plot to undermine the Brass or the organizational establishment, and find themselves caught up in counter-plots.

What are politically known as the Old Guard and the Young Turks scheme and conspire alternately in the name of many amateur secret agents.

No Ghost! Dog Was Kicking Bucket

A pause — then some more thumping.

Hastily she called police and reported burglars.

A patrol car in the area was despatched to the scene and two constables rushed into the house.

They also paused — then heard the thumping for themselves. Quietly stealing into the basement they advanced on the sound and pushed open the door of the laundry room.

Inside beside a pail, sat the house watchdog — scratching himself. Each time he scratched the reflex action struck his leg against the pail.

New 'Y' Building Crowded With Visitors Opening Night

Crowded! might well be the word to describe the situation at the new YMCA building Friday night when its doors were swung open for the public.

Although still not completed the building was open for viewing because of "Y" week and Friday night's "spectacular" marked the first events to be held at the new building, which is expected to be completed some time late in the spring.

A program of demonstrations has been presented by various classes of the "Y" in recognition of "Y" Week, and last night's program ended the physical demonstrations. However, the program will continue through today and Sunday, which will bring "Y" Week to an end.

Following last evening's performances, members and directors of the YMCA directed visitors through the new building where they saw such things as the children's and adults' lounge, locker rooms, auditorium, control area, filtering area (tanks for pool) heating system, swimming pool and hot water tank for showers. Three huge tanks will filter the water 24 hours a day, while the fourth tank will act as a balancer, to keep the water at the same level all of the time. Mr. D. D. Diamantides, General Secretary of the YMCA, said that one-third of the cost of the building has gone into filtering and heating equipment.

The auditorium was the main centre of attraction and there visitors saw a demonstration of holds by city and Provincial Police. Constable Barry Titterson of the city's Police Department and Constable Ted MacDonnel of the Ontario Provincial Police, demonstrated several holds used by them in taking a person into custody if force has to be used. The holds were demonstrated by the two constables under the supervision of Constable Gord Oliver of the Ontario Provincial Police. Constable Oliver also instructs Judo at the YMCA.

Fencing was demonstrated by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Maltby of Belleville. During the demonstrations Mr. Maltby described in detail the fundamentals of fencing and said that it is becoming a popular sport. Mr. Maltby is presently trying to organize a fencing club at the YMCA.

Following the evening's activities, members of the young girls' H-Y Club served coffee and doughnuts to their guests. Slides of the YMCA activities were also shown.

Somerset Maugham Marks 90th Birthday on Riviera

By DOUG MARSHALL

This once-penniless medical student now is honored as the grand old man of letters. With earnings estimated at more than £600,000 from his pen alone, he will probably leave more money than any professional writer in history.

Behind him is a lifetime of travel. His nearly 30 works have sold 30,000,000 copies and are reprinted everywhere. He has become a character that the younger Maugham — the cynically honest author of Cakes and Ale — would love to have depicted.

Writing 25 years ago in The Summing Up, a rare peek at the mechanics of authorship, he said "fact and fiction were inextricably mixed" in his novels. His own life, he said, followed the "firm, unbroken line" that is essential to a realistic plot.

The beginning was unhappy. Orphaned at 10, he struggled with shyness, loneliness and recurring bouts of tuberculosis.

BOTHERED BY STAMMER

A bad stammer cut him off from conversation, good fellowship and the consequent emotions that most men experience. He never enjoyed reciprocal love. Reading became his only relaxation and he read voraciously — "like a man taking drugs."

As a young medical student working in the London slums, he first came in contact with what he most wanted as an aspiring writer — "life in the raw." It gave him his clinical, sometimes cruel insight into men.

Of Human Bondage, published just before the First World War and now considered his masterpiece, is the record of an author exorcizing his personal misfortunes—financial and emotional—in order to free himself of the burden that oppressed him.

The flood of novels and short stories that followed were all products of Maugham's direct experiences during 40 years of globe-trotting, the gleanings of a diffident observer with a keenly penetrating eye.

Betting Favors Labor Party In Coming British Election

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The impression that Britain will see a change of government this year seems to be growing stronger.

Financial and sporting circles are apparently agreed that the Labor party, headed by Harold Wilson, is almost certain to win the general election and break the 12-year Conservative monopoly of power.

Reports from captains of finance in the City, the London citadel of private enterprise that keeps such a sharp eye on political developments, indicate that there has been heavy betting in the last few weeks on a socialist victory.

This is confirmed by the big bookmakers, who have installed Labor as overwhelming choice. You have to put up £5 ($15) to make £1 ($3) profit on Labor, whereas £1 will return £2 ($9) if you favor the Tories. On the Liberals, the sky's the limit.

The election must be held by early November at the latest. All the signs are that Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, still seeking to make an impact on voters, hasn't made up his mind on the date.

OPINIONS DIFFER

There appear to be three schools of thought within the Conservative party, all about evenly matched.

One section would like Sir Alec to get the misery over in March, fearing that local elections in April will show a swing to Labor and tend to create a bandwagon effect if the country-wide vote is delayed.

Others favor a June vote to catch the elector at the one time in the year when there might be a little sunshine, lulling him into a more susceptible frame of mind.

And finally some want to stick it out to the bitter end. Supporters of the last-ditch date argue that favorable economic conditions, coupled with recent Tory legislation, may combine to transform the present glum outlook for the party in power.

Amid all the guessing, one point seems fairly solid. Whatever period is chosen, the vote probably will be held on a Thursday. Over the last 40 years, seven of the nine general elections have fallen on a Thursday. In a book just published, Guide to the General Election, author R. L. Leonard says that Thursday is "generally considered to be the least inconvenient day of the week."

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

Question: I have lost my recipe for Swedish tea rings and am not satisfied with the one I have now . . . Mrs. Chris M., Ajax

Answer: Your request pleased me and because I think others readers might like it I am repeating the recipe I gave here in December 1957.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Mixed Grill: Lamb Chop, Bacon and Chicken Livers; Casserole of Crumbed Tomatoes; Glazed Parsnips; Fruit Cup of Orange and Grapefruit Sections with Canned Figs; Cocoanut Cup Cakes; Tea.

SWEDISH TEA RING (3 rings)

Yeast Batch: ½ cup lukewarm water; 2 teaspoons sugar; 2 packages granular yeast; ½ cup milk, scalded; ½ cup light brown sugar; 1 teaspoon salt; ½ cup shortening; 2 beaten eggs; 4½ cups (about) sifted all-purpose flour.

Filling: 2 tablespoons soft butter; 2/3 cup brown sugar; 1 cup washed and dried seedless raisins (or ½ cup raisins and ½ cup diced drained maraschino cherries.)

Glaze: 1 egg yolk; 2 tablespoons milk.

Plain Icing: 1 cup sifted icing sugar; 1 to 2 tablespoons warm water, milk or cream.

Add the 2 teaspoons sugar to the lukewarm water, sprinkle yeast on top, give it one stir, and let stand 10 minutes. Scald milk, remove from heat and add brown sugar, salt and shortening and cool to lukewarm. Stir into risen yeast liquid. Add beaten eggs and beat in 3 cups of the flour until smooth. Work in most of the remaining flour, reserving some to flour kneading board. Turn out dough and knead until smooth and elastic. Return to greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled. Punch down on floured board, and knead 50 times. Let rise in bowl once more until doubled. Turn out on board, divide in half, roll each half into a rectangle 15 inches thick and 8 x 16" (approx.) oblong. Spread each with half of the filling ingredients (butter, sugar, raisins). Roll up, starting with long edge. Seal ends together to form ring. Place each rolled piece on greased cookie sheet. With scissors slash at 1" intervals nearly to centre. Twist halves and turn cut sides up and aside. Butter tops of dough. Cover and let rise until doubled. Glaze each with egg yolk mixed with milk. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes. When cool, drizzle with icing. Plain icing made by mixing together the icing sugar and liquid to desired consistency. If desired, sprinkle tops with chopped nuts and cherries.

Travel With Your Children Can Be Good Adult Education

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Every once in a while we feel the need for a refresher course in how to keep travel writing fresh. Then we seize one or more of the local kids by the hair and drag them, him or her, kicking and screaming, away from school, home and the daily opportunities for hopping each other over the head, to a lucky paragraph or some tropical isle or other place grown - ups go to.

Once convinced, however, that they may actually enjoy it (we thought back to swimming pools and beaches, just like the ads), they usually experience several pops in in travel: a whole new world opens up, and they act like Columbus discovering it.

What we get out of it is a new look at what may seem old hat to us, and the treat of watching the reactions to travel of the children at different ages.

This fifty was the turn of our eldest, 11-year-old Claudia. Until she reached the dating notes on what she said and started turning cute, we came up with a comprehensible education in what travel is like to those who don't have to write about it for a living, for I don't done that much of it before. If naivete is here, can adulthood be far behind?

A LOOK AT THE CLOUDS

We flew here on a DC-6 and watched, pen in hand, as the jet raced down the runway with Claudia observing its progress from a window seat. She giggled delightedly as the nose finally pointed upwards and, in the everyday miracle of miracles we were flying like birds. She turned her attention then to the clouds, which she had not seen from eye level since she was too young to remember.

This kid's going to be a travel writer, we mused while scribbling furiously such gems as "They look like snow," and "They seem like you could get out and walk on them," and "sheep's wool." When she saw us writing, she said "lumpy mashed potatoes" and we crossed that out. The water below, we were told, looked like "ice with wrinkles." It did.

After a few questions about the buttons that flip down the keys, light the lights, recline the seats, and supposedly summon the stewardesses (who always know when it's only a kid fooling around), life six miles above the Spanish Main got down to the more mundane and inevitable questions of "When do we eat?" and "How long until we get there?" Sic transit gloria.

For the record, when we flew over St. Thomas a few days later, Claudia declined a window seat in favor of 30 minutes with an Alfred Hitchcock mystery magazine. The honeymoon was over.

But if the novelty of going was gone, the intrigue of being there was not greater than in younger years. Preconceived notions were driven home to us: the remarkable ability of a child to adjust to new places and conditions, and the fact that curiosity finally downs all children if you wait long enough.

Like most children, Claudia has her dinner early in the evening at home. But it's not the set time to start rolling with the Latin custom of dining long past some people's bed time. For the first time in her young and sheltered life she knew delight and pride in dressing up for dinner, showed that her good manners don't desert her, went to sleep without a fight, and generally presented no problem whatsoever.

GEARED FOR CHILDREN

Most of Puerto Rico's hotels are well geared for children. The Condado Beach, where we stayed, had adequate lifeguard protection at the pool and a children's play area, as well as a healthy supply of children of various backgrounds to play with. Many hotels have wading pools for younger tots.

Pretty much for the first time, Claudia displayed some real interest in being in a "foreign" place. In her sixth grade class she is currently studying elementary Spanish as well as Latin American culture and geography. While her Spanish hasn't gotten much beyond the "Buenos Dias" and "Gracias" stage and she didn't dare use it, she exercised a good ear and understood much more than we expected, even in the atrocious Puerto Rican accents.

Sightseeing held a moderate amount of interest. For the first time, she took her own snapshots avidly, concentrating on beach scenes, shots of the hotels, the airplane, the turrets and walls of San Juan's fortress and the cobbled alleys of the old city.

Once again, we were struck with the importance of getting a child into social situations, one of the other unscheduled but most significant values of travel for children. If they're going to have to be among people and act grown-up eventually, away from home is a good place to start practising, especially for youngsters who are inclined to be shy.

Youthful energy was a vital plus value. Claudia suffered less from weariness than we did, her enthusiasm for the next activity never flagged, and she returned home fresh and ready for school.

We can't think of a single detrimental result of this trip. So, we who would or must travel with children, be of good heart. You have nothing to lose but your doubts, and half fare.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. G. Scott, Hastings Drive, with Mrs. G. Miller as co-hostess.

A letter from India was read telling of the progress made by the Indian girl sponsored by the auxiliary for the past five years. A survey has been sent out to determine how many children are interested in coming to C.O.C. and Explorer groups. Although the results are not yet complete there is considerable interest in these groups. Members of St. Andrew's Auxiliary have been invited by Mrs. Taylor to observe these groups at St. Columba.

Mrs. L. Sutherland gave a most interesting talk, illustrated with slides on the life and work of Dr. Ida Scudder who went out to Vellore, India, to establish the Mary Tabor Schell Hospital in 1900. The later started a medical college for women, the first of its kind in Asia.

Mrs. Ritchie thanked Mrs. Sutherland for a most informative talk and the meeting closed with prayer.

Man's Pride, Self-Reliance Can Lead Him Away From God

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Man's greatest need is to recognize his need, to know he is not self-sufficient, and to discover where sufficiency can be found.

When we boast of our self-sufficiency we are "not all there." Our awareness, of what we are and what we can be able to do is fractional, incomplete. We are but "half-witted" when we withhold all that man does and boast of it and rely on it, but have not the wit to see what God does and is depend upon it and glory in it. It is the full-witted, fully alive, person who is wholly conscious of the importance of human effort — still knows that effort alone is never enough, and prays to a Power beyond his own small powers for resources that human exertions cannot supply.

A city dweller purchased a small piece of acreage in the country and decided it was going to be a time-saving home. He showed the land to a small lad and boasted, "I grow all the potatoes I need" with nothing, absolutely nothing; and now just look at it."

The acre was overgrown, choked, "Really, from nothing! Golly, Mister, without even a seed?" The man's pride was wise, full-witted, showing an awareness of the Divine Worker who makes and sustains all the fruitful, the Creator who makes man's creativity possible.

THE SEED IS GOD'S

Trace all human accomplishment back far enough and you come to God's accomplishments. As far as they go, human efforts must begin with something so gardener can make, — a seed, as certainly as they must depend upon powers that do not originate in his own flesh, blood or brain, powers that are the energy of the sun and the blessings of rain, so every man, everywhere, must rely upon the bounty of Heaven for his earthly existence.

Jesus taught His disciples to talk with God about their needs. "Give us this day our daily bread," he urged them to pray. When Jesus bade His disciples to petition God in this fashion He did more than point out that our daily necessities include bread for the body. That much was already assumed. The staff of bread is important, and we cannot exist without it. But more important than that specific petition is the general truth it points out, the most deepest need is to recognize his dependence upon God. We are not self-sufficient. Rather we are self-derived. We come from God, belong to God and daily we are sustained by God. We must be aware of our need. All profound prayer on begins at the point of recognition of need, inadequacy and God's sufficiency.

Modern civilization suffers from its inadequacies and its gets that supplant God. Our pride in self-reliance through more efficient processes and power-consciousness that dims awareness of man's need for strength in God, our prayer from the significance of the prayer for "daily bread." Why should we pray for bread? Go to the store for it. The corner grocery seems to have much more to do with our daily bread than God does. Pension funds, social security, insurance, bank accounts, bonds — these apparently provide more security than Providence does. Why bother God about those things that man can so easily supply?

IS CONFESSION

But the prayer for daily bread is not a request to God for something man can do for himself. Rather, it is the soul's confession, that, ultimately, all that man can do is dependent upon what God has already done, or will do, and upon the kind of God He is.

When the first farmer sowed the first seed in the first field and looked for it to sprout and grow, thus beginning the science of agriculture, he saw not one something he could do for himself, and he knew, too that there were dependable forces at work in the universe that could be relied upon to do for him what he could never do for himself. Man could clear the land and plant the seed. But Someone else must see that the seed was viable, that the rain would shine, that the rains would fall. No might of man could perform such wonders. So man, through primitive agriculture, learned about himself, his limitations and insufficiency, and began to understand his reliance upon a mighty tenderness that broods over the needs of earth's creatures. We still need to learn that lesson.

The Mississippi grows from a tiny Minnesota stream to one of the world's mightiest rivers by being humble. It is not self-sufficient. After it rises from springs in the basin draining into Lake Itasca in Minnesota, the stream flies low in its valleys, receiving the waters of thousands of tributaries, thus growing in volume and power as it winds toward the Gulf of Mexico. The Mississippi serves the commerce of the nation because it first receives the mercies of the rains and gifts from neighboring streams.

Our strength for serving comes from our receptiveness. We can be relied upon to the degree that we draw upon a Power beyond our own. Thus it is the one who wishes to serve who fervently prays, "Give us . . . daily bread."

HOW CAN YOU make your clothesline stronger? Avoid tipping? - Take a length of sturdy twine or picture wire, tie it to the line near the top of the center pole. From there, stretch it to the nearest fence or other anchorage and nail it tight. A nail hole in the top of a high molding is ideal.

TECHNICOLORS FOR SPRING

Spring collections reveal a new use of color in all the fields of fashion. Aside from a few perennials, such as the usual red, straw sailor hats made to look 1964 with brightened crowns and one enormous rose in dead center, this season will be known as the quietly, colorful spring. As the silhouette is basically the same as last year's, color is the news.

Aside from coats, dresses and sportswear in blue, yellow, coral and lilac, color is marching boldly into the accessory lines. So much so that it might shatter the budget of the unwary shopper, ignorant of the new ways to wear these handbags, gloves and other fashion additives.

Paled yellows, pinks, blues and greens are used in the new bags, shoes and gloves. Leathers in these shades also serve to trim coats, dresses and jackets. The newest of the basic colors is a series of moccs beiges. These are worth a difference this spring. No longer is it mandatory that bags match perfectly with glove and shoe. This year the shoe is often the only accessory that's color worn. A new shoe cosmetic on the market promises to change the color of leather from that of tan to any of the pale shades with only two applications. It sounds very kind to the budget and full of possibilities.

ANYTHING GOES

There is a wonderful "anything goes" feeling about color mix and blends for 1964. It will be a relief to get away from the dreary chore of trying to find a matching, which at least tones with shoes left over from last year. Now we will see black alligator worn with black patent shoes, beige handbags teamed with white shoes, beige gloves worn with white hats and even off-beat, blue gloves carrying a green handbag.

A too lighthearted approach to this color in accessories idea can lead to a mishmash of confused ideas, no a central theme, plus good taste, is still necessary.

A favorite story about color co-ordination is credited to one of Canada's best-known fashion experts. When she has her outfit carefully arranged savvy, red is the color of costume, she is heard to remark, "that! No red shoelaces " At the time she made this remark, it seemed as though we were all adapting a uniform look, no matter what at the time we chose. But the basic check suits just had to sport a red carnation on the lapel, and a savvy coat had to have a red companion sailor hat. This season, black and white check suits will be worn with lilies-of-the valley, or a yellow rose, or a red sailor hat, and that navy coat can take a hat of any color. This season's new gloves don't have to be white either. The picture is still planned. It leaves plenty of room for individuality and imagination.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers in care of this paper.

Sleep Talking Should Not Be Taken Too Seriously

DEAR DORIS — What makes a person talk in their sleep? Recently I apparently talked in my sleep using the name of a student that we board. I am almost as upset as my husband, but naturally he thinks the worst of the situation and I can't even offer an explanation. We have given the student notes to move, hoping it may clear the air, but I'm not too sure it will. We have been married ten years and are in our 30's.

This student is 19, and while he is a likeable fellow I have never even entertained any thoughts of an affair, much less having one.

I am afraid I may talk in my sleep again. Is there anything that can be done? — SLEEP-TALKER.

DORIS CLARK

• • •

DEAR SLEEP-TALKER — Forget it. People mumble some pretty foolish things in their sleep; they practically never mean what you might think they do, if anything. Your naming of a likeable young man suggests that you may see your husband as just that — a virile, youthful, likeable male!

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I have read about psychiatrists who help people by teaching them new behavior. How does one know which psychiatrists use this new method? — EAGER READER.

• • •

DEAR READER —All psychiatrists work towards bringing about new behavior.

First of all, this highly trained "head doctor" has to get at what's troubling you and why it has to be buried deep. Between you, you attempt to reach the point where you understand your present reactions in the light of past hurts and hates, past conflicts, present yearnings.

Only then can you put things into proper perspective and substitute new, constructive behavior for inferior actions which may have been no more than bitter useless protests against a seemingly unkind fate.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Please send me your leaflet of facial exercises. I am getting crow's feet around my eyes and a double chin. — FIFTYISH.

• • •

DEAR FIFTYISH — The best possible face-improving exercise is the practice of relaxing. To relax the face, unclamp the jaw and smile! A smile lessens the tensions which make wrinkles. I am sending you the leaflet: "A Delaying Action for Wrinkles" and "Exercises for Double Chin." (Note to readers: These are available to anyone writing in and enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I'm very much in love with this guy and he told me he loves me. But every time he comes down he goes over to his boy friend's place first and doesn't show up at my place until three or four hours later or not at all. We are going steady. He is 17 and I'm 16

I've been very much for my parents always say he doesn't love me. I know him very well and know he's sincere. — IN LOVE.

• • •

DEAR IN LOVE — Without a definite date you haven't a leg to stand on. Next time make an appointment for a set hour. If he is quite late turning up make sure you are some place else.

P.S. I agree with your parents. It's not love, but friendship, which is as it should be at your age.

DEAR DORIS — I am anxious to have some of my own make crossword puzzles published to earn extra money, but I haven't the faintest idea of how to go about it. Do the publishers of crossword puzzle books purchase puzzles? And newspapers — how would I start selling one of my puzzles published in one of those? — A PUZZLER.

• • •

DEAR PUZZLER — Crossword puzzles are classified as Newspaper features and as such are usually sold by syndicates to a whole series of newspapers. Could be there's room for another good Canadian one; or for a book of them.

I am sending you details about where to offer your handiwork.

• • •

Confidential to HEARTBROKEN — Excitement on contact, and desolation after a quarrel, do not necessarily mean being "in love," except with love itself. If your particular quarrel has moved on, look around for the next interesting young man who will succumb to your charms.

Question: When serving afterdinner coffee at the dining room table, may demitasse cups be used, or is it better to serve regular coffee cups? — Mrs. N. L., Jackson Heights, N. Y.

Answer: Either demitasse or regular cups may be used when coffee is served at the table. When in the living room after dinner, demitasse cups are better suited from being easier to manage when serving a large group of guests.

Question: I've been invited to a dance by a boy in my class. I understand that there will be a separate checkroom for the boys and girls. I don't want to appear ignorant about procedure, so would you please advise if I should check my coat, or only my own coat, or should the boy take care of my wraps after he takes care of his hat (he, who takes care of tipping? — E. M., Troy, N. Y.

Answer: When there are separate check rooms, the girl checks her own coat and claims it after the event. Social activities are taken care of in advance — if so, there's a sign at the checkroom telling just that the girl pays her own tip, usually a quarter.

Question: We've been invited to a large wedding, complete with bridesmaids and ushers. When we arrive in church should we seat ourselves or wait until an usher shows us to the proper place? We're to be seated on the bride's side of the church. — Mrs. L. V. C., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: Guests should wait in the rear of the church until an usher escorts them to their seats. The usher offers his right arm to the woman before starting up the aisle. Her husband walks a pace or so behind. The guest rule is the same for bride — bride or bridegroom. Since you'll be seated to the left, you'll enter the church on that side when he stops at the proper pew and then take your seat.

Question: My mother was in the hospital for two months, due to a serious and severe illness. He was in bed. We have visitors during that period, and a friend's now making up for lost time. Almost daily, well-intentioned friends walk in unannounced and keep him talking until he becomes quite exhausted. I've tried to tactfully ease them out after a short visit, but they continue to make my hints and continue laughing and talking in the mistaken notion that they're cheering my husband up. Actually, he's delighted to see his friends, but it is tiring and just as he needs to, he didn't stay so long. We don't want to offend anyone. Would it be correct to suggest that how long a visitor may stay, even before he enters the sick room? — Mrs. V. H., Old Greenwich, Conn.

Answer: The patient's welfare is the main concern of everyone. Setting a time limit for each visitor would not only be correct but certainly quite a tactful way of handling the situation. If a visitor tends to overstay his time, you might know in the phrase "doctor's orders" to remind him that the patient will isn't up to socializing endlessly.

SIDNEY SOUTH W.I.

Mrs. Percy Mallory was hostess to the Sidney South Women's Institute on Monday evening with 18 members present. Mrs. M. Nobes was in charge of the business period wherein it was announced that the membership fee would be $1 for the coming year. Mrs. G. Sills, Mrs. Fred Aikens and Mrs. Ken Kerr contributed to the birthday box.

Mrs. Tony Pearce was nominated to attend Training School in Stirling. Mrs. G. Sills read the collect, followed by roll call, friendship, card and birthday box from Mrs. Harold Hollomby who is leaving the community. Mrs. Ken Bush invited members and friends to attend the quilting "Prizes on Finishes," a dressmaking project to be completed by February 21.

Mrs. C. Moon and her group conducted an auction sale with Mrs. Regenaberg and Mrs. Ted Aikens as auctioneers. Items made much merriment as well as being a financial success. Mrs. Regenaberg and her assistants served lunch and coffee and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

On the following Wednesday Mrs. Ken Jones opened her home to 13 members and neighbors for a home economics service program on health education. The speaker, Miss Elsie Hamilton of the Home Economics Extension Service, gave a lecture in the morning on prevention of accidents and in the afternoon stressed the care of emergencies and first aid.

LATTER DAY SAINTS

The Relief Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints sponsored an evening of recreation, Thursday, January 21st, at the Orange hall, Belleville, with about 100 in attendance.

The meeting under the direction of the work department, conducted by Mrs. Genaveva Ladouceir, work counsellor, opened with prayer by Mrs. Helen Lacoste of Trenton. Mrs. Ladouceir and Mrs. Jewell Assistine presented the work message, "Planning and Use of Resources," with all the members participating. The objective was "to investigate methods of managing money to determine the family needs and to adopt a method consistent with family goals."

The remainder of the evening was spent in entertainment. A free offering was received to support the building fund.

Miss Myrtle Barnum, president, expressed appreciation to the branch presidency and all members who have worked so hard over the years to make possible the building of the chapel. Special mention was given to building superintendent, Orval Purdon and his family of St. Thomas who are assisting in so many ways; to the work missionaries, Mr. Arthur Murray of New Brunswick, Mr. Martin Kennedy of Massachusetts, Mr. Kehneth Low of Alberta and to the Belleville branch for their staunch support.

Mr. Alfred T. Willis, branch president, spoke briefly and accepted the appreciation on behalf of the branch president.

Recreation consisted of dancing and games under the direction of Mrs. Helen Scott, Picton, and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Ladoucier.

JANUARY JOURNAL

Down there yonder by the Lake's blue light,
Grim Winter hovers and lurks, enraged at the sight
Of thunderheads; clouds of scrolled steel

—"Lake Ontario in January" by Anne Drew.

Which of all the months of the year wears an apron?

But of course — January!

Whose prompt duty 'tis to set New Year's house in order. One of her first cares is to take down and pack away the intriguing holiday window displays, such as — perhaps you noticed and were charmed by — the little colored houses and white church a tine village scene, all made of candy? A display in the window of C. D. Crosby Insurance and Real Estate Ltd., at 242 Bridge Street East, where Mr. Leslie G. Lennox tells us:

"The candy structures were a joint affair, for my wife and I made them together. Mr. Lennox happened to read an article in a magazine which explained how it could be done, and all sorts of things out of icing-sugar, water and cake-coloring. We became interested, experimented, found it real fun, sort of a hobby.

"No, we'd very little trouble, really. Sometimes there were problems though. Such as the morning we came down to the basement where we'd put the sugar pieces on a table to harden and found the basement family cat there first, busily devouring them. But these could be thrown away and a quick glue job whole project gave us joy all the Christmas spirit."

Another assignment Mr. Lennox is to gather up all the gay wrappings received and — what do you do with them? Declares one Belleville lady:

"I unwrap carefully every one of them. In a way these cards are the living yet mute evidence of the love and gift of the year. These messages from friends and people who have a design in life I carefully become more and more precious with the years. I like to keep mine a while to linger over."

Then again January gives pollen to the Christmas spirit, loath to allow it to vanish. "If only (Christmas spirit) would prevail the year round," commented one salesman wistfully in a downtown store. "For I sure like during the Christmas rush. Husbands invariably say: 'Now don't let on I've bought this, it's for women in. I want to surprise her. . . and if secrets were dollars I'd really be business." The people are so warm, so friendly, kind and human. All are filled with a kind of glow. If only that spirit would last all year. . . .

Japanese Have a Boundless Enthusiasm to Learn English

'Puppy Love' Can Be Strong Force Says Judge

LONDON (CP)—A tearful 13-year-old girl swore her love for a 20-year-old youth, charged with abducting her, and told the juvenile court here Friday she wants to marry him now.

Kenneth Robert Carmichael and the girl were arrested in Guelph Jan. 19. As well as the abduction charge, Carmichael is charged in Guelph with having sexual intercourse with a minor.

The child Thursday told Judge W. H. Fox, "I love him . . . yes, he wants to marry me . . . I want to marry him."

The girl is charged with being incorrigible by staying away from home without her parents' consent. Her mother and parents said they will not allow her to marry Carmichael. Judge Fox adjourned the case until Feb. 7. Carmichael is scheduled to appear in court here on the abduction charge Jan. 27.

Mrs. Helen Clark, probation officer, said the girl had a good record "until this boy came into her life . . . she seems quite infatuated with this young man."

A visitor to Japan can't help but be impressed by the energetic efforts to learn English. In this story a Canadian Press reporter relates some of the consequences.

By DAVE STOCKAND

TOKYO (CP)—The Japanese have a boundless enthusiasm for learning English.

For some it will pay off in better jobs, greater opportunity for travel. For others it is simply part of the pattern in a jazzbeat break with the past.

The Olympic Games, which will be held in Japan in October, are a spur.

Even the kimono-clad geishas are shittering off to classes, like windup toys wearing parachutes. Many of their modern sisters, the bar hostesses (and here we bow to the U.S. military), are already quite proficient.

There is no set approach for becoming bilingual in Japan.

The stick-in-the-mud's learn English in high school or university, hire a tutor, or faithfully follow the English lessons on television and radio.

The do-it-yourselfers cultists, and they seem to be in the majority, are made of sterner stuff. They plunge to the heart of the matter with a minimum of formal preparation.

The routine, briefly, is to listen to every program on the U.S. Far East network, see every Hollywood movie that comes to town, read a column daily with the Japan Times or another of the English-language newspapers.

Then, with stealth and cunning, the do-it-yourselfers seek out a foreign girl to practise on.

Quite often they bite off more than they can chew, and strange things are done to the English tongue.

One young Japanese cornered this visitor recently during the Tokyo rainstorm, courteously sharing his umbrella while he let loose with a phrasebook torrent.

"Where, sir, are you from?" "Does Tokyo impress you, sir?" "Do you stay long in Tokyo, sir?"

The answers are given and you lose in a few questions of your own, as he gets valuable student? Is Tokyo his home?

Silence . . . owlish concentration, and finally the hurried reply:

"Sir, I am not understanding not one-fifth of what you are saying."

While conversation under such circumstances has its wry moments, written English in Japan is sheer delight.

A note in your hotel room, logical for a people whose Rs invariably end up as Ls, "Apologizing your trouble and hoping your patronage."

An advertisement for the nightclub appearance of an Argentine guitarist which seems to hint his talent isn't all that obvious: "You will presently be impressed with his artistic qualities."

You can also try the tailor-shop classic on for size: "Have a fit upstairs."

Or, if you dare, make something of this guidebook gem:

"Saying of the shore where the people in Yokohama city have the most friendly feeling, it is the foreigners' cemetery near the marine tower."

Initiation Fees Appeal Subject By Department

LONDON (CP) — Mr. Justice A. Alex Cattanach of the Exchequer Court of Canada Friday reserved judgment in an action which may establish whether firms or persons may deduct as legitimate business expenses initiation fees paid to private clubs and organizations.

The minister of national revenue is appealing a March 16, 1962 decision of the income tax appeal board that a $1,000 initiation fee paid by R. E. Christie to the London Real Estate Board was a legitimate deduction.

Mr. Christie paid the fee in 1959 and claimed it as a deduction. The income tax department disallowed it, but it was subsequently permitted by the appeal board.

The tax appeal board referred to an earlier case involving the Royal Trust Company in which the firm was allowed to deduct initiation fees to clubs paid by the firm on behalf of its employees. The court said that if the expense was made in accordance with the ordinary principles of commercial trading or well-accepted business practice it would be properly deductible.

In rejecting the deduction, the internal revenue department ruled that the $1,000 fee was not an outlay made for the purpose of gaining or producing income, and was considered as a capital payment rather than an operating expense.

SOLDIERS JAILED

MARSEILLE, France (Reuters) — A military tribunal Friday jailed four foreign legionnaires for terms between three and 15 years for murdering 11 moslems, including a baby, during a drunken rampage through an Algerian village in 1962. A fifth man was sentenced to death in absentia.

Says No Place For Unions in Hospital Field

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Douglas Hospital of Fort Erie, which is asking for a $25,000 performance bond from a union as a condition of signing a collective agreement, said Friday unions have no place in the hospital field.

The hospital detailed its argument in a brief to a three-man committee appointed by the Ontario government to study the advisability of compulsory arbitration of labor-management disputes in hospitals.

The International Union of Operating Engineers (I.U.O.), which holds bargaining rights for five stationary engineers at the Fort Erie hospital, is threatening to strike if the hospital does not sign an agreement.

The hospital brief, submitted by William E. Ebert of Port Colborne, charged that lies, coercion, misrepresentation, lurk-ery and scare tactics are often used by union organizers to obtain initial membership.

UNIONS PRAISED

In contrast, a submission by Sharman K. Learie on behalf of the Niagara General Hospital said the board has harmonious relations with two unions representing its employees.

The St. Catharines hospital said the union proposal of the Ontario Hospital Association that would give a cabinet minister the right to impose arbitration if he considered a strike or lock-out would affect the public welfare.

In the Fort Erie brief Mr. Ebert said that with a performance bond the hospital would be in a position to collect from the union for any unusual financial damage a picket might occur as a result of negligence, wilful or accidental damage, walkouts and failure to report for work.

A conciliation board that dealt with the dispute earlier rejected the hospital demand for a performance bond and said there are adequate procedures under the Ontario Labor Relations Act to deal with violations of a collective agreement.

Ask Henry

DEAR HENRY — I think I finally have broken a record.

Not a plastic cast either. A few days ago I got a wild attack of hiccoughs which lasted seven hours. Do you know what the world's record is for hiccoughs?

"HIC"

DEAR "HIC" — I'm afraid you stopped hiccoughing a little too soon . . . approximately eight years too soon! That's right! A man named Jack O'Leary lost 64 lbs. and "kicked" about 100,000,000 times in an attack which lasted from June 1948 to June 1956. Better luck next time!

HENRY

• • •

DEAR HENRY — I have a problem. I'm not very popular and I've tried every source of gaining a grand reputation. I have recently been to a slumber party which was a great success.

I love my parents dearly but they just won't let me have a slumber party of my own. I've tried to compromise but nothing seems to suit.

The reason that I am so much in favor of a slumber party is that everyone in my grade has been having one. It's just a phase! I am 12 and in an accelerated grade eight. Please help me find a way to have a slumber party.

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED — When you start doing something because everyone else is doing it you are reducing yourself to a vegetable. Try something new.

Your friends assemble at your house at about 7 p.m. Along with potato chips, pop, corn and drinks, you crowd around the TV set to watch the latest shows.

At about 10 p.m. your guests will waddle out of the door, stuffed with food and fully initiated on the latest gossip, jokes, religious beliefs, murder methods and friends' opinions on the future of the world. (Truly a constructive party!) Good Luck!

DEAR HENRY — This girl likes me. But what this girl doesn't know is that I like her too, and I am too shy to tell her. My mother says that I should get acquainted with her. Tell me how I am to tell her that I like her.

SHY

DEAR SHY — Every boy and girl has an "Infrared Nuclear Telepathy Interferometric Molecular Antimatter Transducer Energizer" located in the brain.

This is a very sensitive system and if you smile at her, or even walk past her locker a few too many times, and then perhaps ask her to a dance, it will pick up the signal and send it directly to the heart!

So do those things and unless her "I.N.T.I.M.A.T.E." has shorted a fuse, you should get your message through.

COMMENT OF THE WEEK

The general belief with most of the mob,
When you get on and get a job
The question asked would surely be
How much money is there for me?

JOE:

"I'll be a boxer and become the Champ!
I'll make Rockefeller look like a tramp!
I hate boxing and it's bad for my health . . .
But who cares as long as I wallow in wealth!"

BILL:

"I'll be a farmer and till the soil
To me that's the job that's really royal!
I'll love my chores every day!
I'll have no "Work" . . . only play!
A tired boxer is "Mr. Joe"
He's sick and bored but has his $34oughs$$!
Bill enjoys his "Working" day . . .
Therefore he's paid . . . another way!

RESTORING HUT

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—The hut used by Robert Scott's polar expedition of 1901-04 at Hut Point, McMurdo Sound, is to be restored for preservation. A team from New Zealand will repair damage caused by storms of the last half century. Huts used by the Shackleton expedition of 1907-09 and by Scott in 1910-13 already have been preserved.

HEAVY RAINFALL

SUVA, Fiji (CP)—When it rains at Salialevu in the Fiji islands, it really pours. But even the people of Salialevu remarked that it was a wet day last month. The rain gauge showed a fall of 27.5 inches in 24 hours.

Hacked Priests To Death With Machetes

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo — A weeping Roman Catholic nun, evacuated here from the torn-land western Congo province of Kwilu, told Friday how three Belgian priests were hacked to death by villagers with machetes.

The nun, who asked not be be named, left her mission at Kilembe with eight other nuns Thursday and went to the provincial capital of Kikwit from where they were evacuated.

Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu earlier this week declared a state of emergency in Kwilu province where bands of youths, reported organised by an aide of jailed Antoine Gizenga, attacked government posts, industrial sites and plantations.

United Nations troops, the Congolese national army and private planes moved into the area to restore order and try to control the situation.

The nun said their mission was attacked by Kilenge villagers armed with machetes, spears and firearms.

WORE RED HELMETS

"Some were the red helmets that Gizengist forces used to wear in Stanleyville (during the Communist regime of Gizenga)," she said.

Meanwhile, informed sources said a UN helicopter Friday picked up nine Americans, including two children, stranded since the weekend in Kandale, about 95 miles southeast of Kikwait.

Radio reports said youth bands were "running wild and burning everything" at Kandale.

The Belgian embassy here said that in addition to the three priests killed at Kilembe, a fourth was missing in the bush.

U.S. Will Not

mer French colonies are not.

In the Far East the heaviest pressure will fall on Japan's conservative government to break its ties with Nationalist China and extend recognition to Peking. U.S. officials express confidence that Premier Hayato Ikeda will resist this pressure, although he may be forced to accept more trade with the Chinese mainland to ease the pressure.

Nationalist China has been advised by the United States to sit tight and not to break diplomatic relations with Paris. It is doubted, however, that President Chiang Kai-Shek will follow this counsel.

France has shown no signs that it will also extend recognition to the Communist regime in North Korea and North Viet Nam. The recognition of North Viet Nam would lead to a virtually certain break with South Viet Nam and the probable nationalization of French investments of more than $500,000,000 in that country.

The Golden Years Retirement Community Is O.K. 'But Not For Us Right Now'

By THOMAS COLLINS

"Before I am 70 years old I am going to move into one of these retirement communities that are mushrooming in the sunshine states.

"I don't particularly like them. I think the whole concept of them is wrong. But our age has come up with nothing else that so nearly fits the retired people who are growing old. . ."

In these words, Richard B. Carter offers a left-handed testimonial to the widely publicized retirement villages that are being developed all over the country, but particularly in Arizona, California, and Florida.

"Shortly after I retired a year ago, Mrs. Carter and I made an extensive auto tour to many of these places." Mr. Carter says. "With all the advertising we'd seen we thought one of these developments might be just what we wanted.

"We decided not — at least not now."

Their reasons:

— Most of the communities are too far from town, too isolated, and give you the feeling they are retirement "farms."

— Nearly all of them are installed either one or two groups and against the whole street of American life.

HERCULEAN IDEA

— They are speeding the enormous idea that age is a class, that people over 65 are a special minority group.

— They are concerning themselves with inducements that appeal not to people but to old people, and you've got to get into the frame of mind of an old person to appreciate them.

The Carters think, hobbies, and ingratiating social intercourse that are a bit too childish for the sixties.

But still, the Carters think, these retirement villages offer great hope as the economy trends into the seventies. Again their reasons:

— These villages are tuned in specifically to the needs and desires of older people, while the rest of the world is tuned mainly to youth. So when the retired requires something it's not a crib or a bassinet, it's expected.

— Since the villages are usually large, with hundreds of houses in some of them, there is room for what Mr. Carter calls the "multi-stage" of growing old. "You don't grow old in just two stages — sick or well," he says. "You go through many stages, and in the villages are plenty of people to keep you company in all of them."

— If a husband dies after he and his wife are established in a village, there is built - in stability and companionship for the widow, and "again with somebody to keep you company, and with a community tuned to handle this particular problem."

GOOD MEDICAL CARE

— Most of the villages have given special attention to medical needs of the elderly, with doctors readily available or with clinic, nurses, etc. on the grounds. The Carters think this is a good beginning, and that in a few more years complete medical care will be built into the cost of the homes, all the way from rheumatism pills to infirmaries for permanent patients.

— Cost of the homes in the villages runs from about $10,000 to $20,000 which a retired couple that has owned its own home can handle. Service charges, on a co-op basis or otherwise, run $50 to $75, which is within the range of most personae in the sixties. But in the seventies, he says, "old friends are becoming mighty scarce, and it's just as well or better to be in a village where replacements are always arriving."

Chapman Commerce in many parts of Arizona, California and Florida can give you leads on these retirement villages. Write them. Then go in person and inspect the places. If they suit you, don't let a one clever talker sell you a home. Quietly make up your own mind, and buy it.

HE'S ALONE

SASKATOON (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said Wednesday that Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker is probably the only opposition member who wants a federal election. Mr. Douglas, in Saskatoon to visit friends and relatives, said the government should have a reasonable period of time to carry out its promises and implement its program.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

"GOD OF OUR FATHERS"	lot is cast;
God of our fathers, whose almighty hand	Be Thou our Ruler; Guardian, Guide, and Stay;
Leads forth in beauty all the starry band	Thy word our law, Thy paths our chosen way.
Of shining worlds in splendor through he skies,	Refresh Thy people on their toilsome way,
Our grateful songs before Thy throne arise.	Lead us from night to never-ending day,
Thy love divine hath led us in the past;	Fill all our lives with love and grace divine
In the free land by Thee our	And glory, laud, and praise be ever Thine.

Many patriotic hymns were written in America in 1876, the most of them to be sung at festivals celebrating the nation's centennial year.

Vermont patriots held their anniversary celebration on July 4, 1876 at Brandon and for this program the Rev. Daniel C. Roberts, an Episcopal minister, penned his popular hymn, "God Of Our Fathers."

Though it was published immediately in newspapers of the day, the song waited for nearly two decades before it was accepted by church hymnals. Episcopalians were the first to include it in their official song lists. Today, it is a favorite with all churches.

Mr. Roberts was born at Bridge Hampton, Long Island, on November 5, 1841. He was graduated from Gambier College in 1857 and decided to devote his life to Christian service. But the war between the states came along to interrupt his preparations for the ministry. He enlisted and served throughout the war and it was not until a year after the conflict ended that he was ordained for his life career.

His famous hymn "God Of Our Fathers," was sung for a good while after its composition to the tune, "Russian Hymn," by Alexis T. Lwoff. Then one day, George William Warren, organist at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Albany, New York, decided that the song should have its own music. He composed the tune, "National Hymn," and today no hymn lover dreams of using any other.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It's probably a vagary of that fickle, sometimes phoney, bloke they call the weather man, but the mild, springish weather of the past few days has created an early-season itch in the bosoms of anglers, ballplayers and those sullians of the sulky, the harness racing aficionados.

With the speckled trout season opening on March 1st, and the possibility of the Kamloops trout lovers getting in an early lanings of the same date, not a few of the city Waltons are beginning to overhaul the piscatorial gear.

The tackle-tinkerers are "hard at it." The baseball men have organized an Eastern Ontario Baseball Association. Cottage and cabin owners are planning overhaul and changes in the summer abodes and the distaff side is beginning to wonder what the spring crop of chapeaux will bring forth.

Up at "Little Greenwood" in the Fair Grounds, the harness men are tossing sniffing noses in the air awaiting the days when the "dewies" will poke inquiring snouts through the earth and the track will shed its winter cladding.

What the coming season holds for them is not known at the present, but they will likely get an idea on Monday night when the Quinte Riding and Driving Club holds its annual get-together.

Club president Fire Chief Gerald Vance has called the annual confab for the West Moira Fire Hall It will get under way at sharp eight o'clock.

President Vance says the meeting will be a wide-open affair and that part of the general public that forms harness racing fandom is cordially invited to attend.

It is expected that a large number of drivers not only from the city, but from Kingston, Napanee, Trenton and other outside points will put in an appearance.

I understand the club will elect a slate of officers for the coming season and there is a possibility of changes.

President Vance has intimated he will not run for another term of office, so the election of a new president is not an impossibility.

The club inaugurated its sixteen-meet program last year and post-season statements indicated that it was a success. Each meet produced an outstanding card with the exception of one or two when a virus attacked a number of horses in the district.

Attendance, I am told, was good and it seems the sixteen-meet program met with the approval of the greater majority of harness racing fans. Some exceptionally fine racing featured the seasonal meets while the pari-mutuels were well patronized.

President Vance says it is important that all interested in harness racing attend the Driving Club's annual on Monday evening. Some very important business is on the agenda and it is likely some lively discussion on certain items will take place. Remember, the West Moira Fire Hall at eight o'clock.

BOBSLED CHALLENGE

Kingston, fifty miles east o' here, is holding a winter carnival. It says here, and some of the good burghers of the Limestone City are anxious to match driving and riding skill with residents of this city in a bobsled contest. The details appear in a story on the sports pages.

I do not know any bobsled enthusiasts in this village, but some brash blokes could rig up some sort of contraption to give the Limestoners a run for the money.

Perhaps Chief John Hill could put his war canoe on skis or sleds and enlist "Peave", O'Mahoney and Pat O'Meara as his crew. "Cookie" or "Big George" could drive as long as they didn't get their bearing mixed and take off "down bay" and head for Rochester.

The last time I "sledded" was years ago as a member of a four-man crew that took off from Glenora Mountain in a Kingston direction.

When I came "to" I was resting in Bath. The sled had stopped somewhere in the vicinity of the far side of the Glenora ferry-run.

LEADER INJURED

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)— United States bobs leader John Handly suffered a compound fracture of three fingers of his left hand and will definitely not be able to compete in the winter Olympic Games, coach Stan Benham said Friday. Handly, 40, had his fingers crushed Thursday while riding on an Austrian army truck.

SHOE IS TOPS

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Bill Shoemaker became the top money-winning jockey in racing history Friday. Shoemaker's fourth victory of the afternoon aboard Bragansa in the eighth race, raised the total earned by his mounts to $30,040,005. That surpasses Eddie Arcaro's record of $30,039,543.

Canadian Girls Smash World Marks ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Kidd Finishes Third; Crothers Wins

By PHIL DECHMAN

TORONTO (CP) — Alble Thomas took a brief vacation from his job in Sydney, Australia, and came here for his first indoor track meet. The result was at least a piece of an indoor record.

Thomas ran away from Canada's Bruce Kidd and turned in a time in the three miles of 13 minutes, 26.3 seconds in the Telegram - Maple Leaf Indoor Games.

The time is actually a tenth o' a second faster than the old mark established by fellow-Australian Al Lawrence in 1961, but there is a rule that specifies that in indoor races over one mile the time is submitted in fifths. That moved Thomas up to 13:26.4 for only a share of the mark.

The three miles was easily the most thrilling event for the 14,168 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens, but otherwise women stole the show. Canadian girls broke three world indoor records.

Thomas, 29, said after the meet that he owns 225,000 custom-built boards in Maple Leaf Gardens left his feet blistered. And he shares a letter which he had brought along from his coach.

YOUR COACH'S ADVICE

"You can dictate the terms if you take the lead," the letter told him, so he did. Thomas set a blistering pace for two miles and it worked.

Kidd, who stayed with Thomas for the first half of the race, said he had to quit at the halfway point—he just couldn't keep up. The world Commonwealth also lost a close battle for second place with Bob Schul of Oxford, Ohio.

Four other individual indoor world records were set, along with a relay mark. Indoor records are not recognized internationally, but they are tabulated in North America, where indoor meets are common.

The only other male to share in the record-breaking was the great burdler, Hayes Jones of Detroit, who won his 49th consecutive indoor race, stripping the 50-yard hurdles mark down to 5.9 seconds. His own previous standard was 6.0 seconds.

Cathy Chapman, 16, of Toronto lowered a mark for the 50-yard hurdles to 6.7 seconds as she slipped Tammy Davis, also 16, of Frederick, Md., who also finished in 6.7 Miss Davis' old mark was 6.8, and Miss Chapman's best previous time was 7.2 seconds.

ARBIE LOWERS MARK

Toronto's Abigail Hoffman chopped a full second off her own record for the 880-yard run, winning in two minutes, 12.9 seconds.

And Nancy McCredie of Brampton, Ont., broke the shot-put standard four times, finally setting a record of 52 feet 11¼ inches. Earlene Brown of California, who held the old mark of 49-6, was second with a heave of 44-7.

And finally, the Mayor Daley Youth Foundation team from Chicago established a world's mark in the 440-yard relay of 51.5 seconds.

Most other events went as expected. Toronto's Bill Crothers won the men's 1,000-yard run, although he was pushed by Robin Lingle of the University of Missouri to a meet record of 2:06.3.

The mile event was won by Chicago's Tom O'Hara in 4:07.3, less than two seconds ahead of Egas Legs of Toronto. John Thomas of Boston won the high jump, although his height of six feet 10 inches was matched by Sweden's Stig Pettersson, who was second because of more misses.

KERR HARD-PRESSED

In the 600-yard event, world record-holder George Kerr of Jamaica barely won in a spectacular three-way finish. He was timed in 1:12.2, the same as Charlie May of New York, and just one-tenth of a second ahead of New York's Tom Farrell.

The pole vault was won by Santa Clara's Jeff Chase, who cleared an even 15 feet. So did John Pennel, the world champion, but he finished second because of more misses.

One Canadian open record was tied when Tom Robinson of The Bahamas finished the 50-yard dash in 5.3 seconds. Harry Jerome of Vancouver, testing his leg for the first time since pulling a thigh muscle in 1962, finished fourth in the finals.

"I was scared," said Jerome, whose leg didn't seem to bother him. "But I felt it was better to run against the best just to see how I stood."

Bathgate, McKenney To Swap Spots

Line Juggle For Sullivan Show

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The so-called No. 1 line of New York Rangers has fallen into disfavor with the front office.

The best: They don't backcheck enough.

Like all five other National Hockey League clubs, Rangers play twice this weekend and coach Red Sullivan is considering juggling the unit.

He doesn't want to make any revisions to his other lines because Rangers have actually been going well lately, winning seven of their last 10 games and pulling to within three points of fifth spot.

But Friday Sullivan was talking about shifting Bathgate to centre and McKenney to Andy's spot, a move obviously designed to freshen the outlook of the unit.

GAVE UP THREE

What brought everything to a head was the line's performance against Canadiens in Montreal Thursday night. The Rangers bowed 4-2 and the line was on the ice for the first three Montreal goals.

Said New York's general manager Muzz Patrick:

"Those guys looked like they were skating on sand. We're leading by a goal and the same guys give the puck away twice."

The No. 1 tag generally applied to the line is only titular in scope. Actually the Phil Goyette-Rod Gilbert-Camille Henry set has been far more productive.

Gilbert heads into New York's games tonight against the Maple Leafs in Toronto and at home Sunday night against the Detroit Red Wings riding a scoring string of seven consecutive games.

That's three short of the NHL's modern record set by Bathgate last season.

In other games Chicago Black Hawks meet the Red Wings in Detroit today and Boston Bruins go against the Canadiens in Montreal tonight while Sunday night the Canadiens are at Chicago and the Maple Leafs at Boston.

SHARE FIRST PLACE

Both Montreal and Chicago had 55 points going into the weekend and they shared the lead in the standings although the Canadiens held a game in hand.

Deserved Better Fate

Kingston Defeats Juniors 6-2

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Kingston Frontenacs scored four unanswered goals in the second period to win a sparkling effort by the Belleville "B"s in a good OHA Eastern Junior League game played before a much-improved crowd here last night.

Frontenacs won the tilt 6-2 but the losers had at least their share of the play, except for the second-period lapse, and deserved a better fate.

Bob Taylor's "B"s scored an early goal in the first period and carried that lead into the middle frame. They battled back again in the third, cutting the deficit to 4-2 before a pair of quick-break goals by the visitors put the game out of reach. The game was clean-cut played before the season's best crowd. There were 18 penalties handed out, three minors and Kingston drew 11 of that total.

Kingston outshot the "B"s 37-29 overall and 15-10 in the opening stanza but Bob Moon, minus his usual bobbed locks, winners time and time again with one of his top efforts. The "B"s had little luck at the other end. When Neil Perry did not make the save lady luck stepped in. On one shift in the first period, Grant Hagerman and Rutherford rattled shots off the same goal post scant seconds apart.

In the fast, hard-fought first, Rutherford teamed with Kingston short a man at 5.00. He finished a pretty play with Hagerman and Ted Howard by sinking a hard backhander. Belleville held on at one point while playing two men short.

Three goals in as many minutes gave Frontenacs the upper hand early in the second. Earl rapped in Convery's pass from across the goalmouth at 1.47. D. White sank another from the corner of the net at 3.23 and Earl made Moon move first time to the head in front for the 3-1 score at 4.46. After the "B"s failed on several good shots, Ivor Boyle, Rowland and Rutherford, Clancy added a Frontenac marker at 16.48.

Kingston drew five of the six penalties assessed in the third and two overlapped to help the "B"s get their only goal. Bob Boyle scored at 8.16. Rutherford drawing the assist.

The "B"s missed other good chances before Gary McMillan broke quietly from a Belleville ganging play to restore Kingston's three-goal lead at 12.06. A Kingston penalty backfired against the team when Earl broke in all alone eight seconds after his mate was penalized. That was at 13.32 and completed the scoring.

Ron Earl fired three Kingston goals while McMillan got one and two assists. Darryl White and Wayne Clancy one of each. Bob Bruce also drew two assists, Smith one.

KINGSTON: Perry, Eaton, Earl, McMillan, Convery, McMahon, R. White, Mercer, Brock, Clancy, D. White, Smith.
BELLEVILLE: Moon, Rowland, Marsele, Rutherford, Boyle, Grant Hagerman, Lang, Pringle, Jones, Stewart, Roonbowser, Woodcock, Glen Hagerman, Ekbier.
Referees — Tim Williams and Ted Hurst.

Seven Hours Army Tests For Clay

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cassius Clay, training for his Miami Beach heavyweight title chance, spent seven hours Friday undergoing physical and mental tests for possible U.S. military service.

Clay said "I thought this was a fighting army" when he was handed a pencil and paper at the U.S. Army-Air Force examination center. Later he commented "that written test was real tough."

The physical?

"Bad heart," Clay joked.

Officials said results of Clay's tests were confidential and would be sent to Louisville, Ky., where Clay makes his home and registered for selective service. If the boxer is called to service, it would be from Louisville.

Recently, men accepted by U.S. selective service have not been called to duty before three to five months.

Clay meets champion Sonny Liston Feb. 25.

Kingston Issues Challenge!

Belleville citizens are being challenged!

The challenge comes from Kingston, and that alone should be enough to needle some Belleville citizens into accepting.

In connection with Kingston's Winter Carnival, the challenge has been issued to any or all Belleville citizens to compete against Kingston citizens in a three-man bobsled race.

The race will be held at Fort Henry Hill on Sunday, February 9, at 1.00 p.m. The course is a 1500 foot run, with two medium curves. It is not expected to be of Olympic stature (or near as dangerous), but it should prove interesting.

The requirements for sleds and crews are that they must be crewed by three men or women, or a combination of both. There is no limit, either maximum or minimum as to the dimensions of the sleds or the type of runners as long as four runners are used. There is no entry fee or admission fee for spectators.

Further details can be obtained from Hugh Barclay, 20 Rideau St., Kingston, phone 546-7462 or 546-2857.

WON'T TRADE HOWARD

LOS ANGELES (AP)—E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, vice-president and general manager of Los Angeles Dodgers, said Friday the club has never seriously considered trading Frank Howard. Spahn Asks Damages of $175,000

NEW YORK (AP) Warren Spahn, pitcher for Milwaukee Braves of the National League, complained in State Supreme Court Friday that he was "embarrassed and humiliated" by a book about him and demanded $175,000 damages.

The 42 - year - old lefthander, who Thursday signed his 1964 contract with the Braves for a reported $65,000, added that the book, The Warren Spahn Story, was written without his consent and constituted an invasion of his rights of privacy.

Named as defendants are Julis N. Messner, Inc., publisher; and Milton J. Shapiro, author of the book.

Spahn contended the book used his photographs and other material without authorization. He charged the book was a "fictionalized version, created for profit, fanciful and sensational in nature."

The book told of Spahn's baseball career and also his war record in the Second World War in which he was a combat engineer.

What It Means

By Dr. LIONEL G. C. DOCKRILL

PICTON At this time of year, in every part of Canada, each Saturday morning, boys of all shapes and sizes are seen converging on the local arenas, wherever they happen to be.

Certainly we have all observed these boys, and certainly we have all noticed that they are toting various pieces of equipment which invariably includes a gear bag and hockey skates and boots, all slung over their shoulder from a hockey stick.

How many of us, however, have ever taken the time to investigate this weekly mass movement by the youth of the country. How many of us have been curious enough to consider what these boys are doing, and why so many are included in this activity.

Should a casual observer be stimulated enough to follow one of these boys, these questions would be readily answered. In fact a whole new world would be opened to him, because these boys are on their way to learn about Canada's National Sport — Hockey.

Hockey is offered to boys in every city, town and hamlet in Canada by the various Minor Hockey Associations, in the ten provinces.

They are given the chance to have good clean fun, and at the same time to develop the essential qualities of manliness — the ability to take or give a physical knock without flinching or whining and to give and take a knock cleanly like a good sportsman—the ability to think fast while on the move, often while off balance — the chance to operate as an individual and yet to always put the team ahead of the individual — the chance to learn that fair play for all depends upon playing the game according to the rules — to give it everything they have, and if they are beaten, to lose gracefully, knowing they have done their best.

Hockey provides a healthy outlet for the exuberant energy which requires direction — energy which can be easily misdirected when controlled only by the youngsters themselves.

Parents are responsible to see that each boy is properly equipped to meet his fellows on the ice, and to play the game hard and yet without being subject to injuries.

In equipping a hockey player, one should consider the following: — Even the youngest player should wear protective equipment. Equipment should be provided to fit the boy now, not two years from now, as ill fitting equipment is dangerous and may cause injury. Good second hand equipment is always available if you look for it. If a small boy learns to play with all of his equipment on, he will get used to it, and use it later when he gets to the higher leagues where play may become rough-ier. If he doesn't wear it to start he may think the gear hampers his play — will play without it — and possibly be injured.

A proper helmet is required to provide further protection while playing hockey. Don't let a boy play with an inadequate helmet just to meet the rules which provide that every boy shall wear a protective helmet while on the ice. Any head gear or helmet is the most important piece of protective equipment a boy will wear. Buy a good one.

Some youngsters simply cannot get equipped, through no fault of their own. There is a lot of personal satisfaction to be gained if you help them.

As well as the parents who allow their boys to find their own level in hockey, there are two other types. One is the parent who wants his son to be a Bobby Richard. The other are the parents who keep their boy out of hockey because of the danger of injury.

A shy boy who is not a natural athlete can have a lot of fun playing hockey up to a certain age. In many cases, hockey will help a young boy overcome shyness and timidity. No boy, however, should be forced to play hockey just because Dad played hockey (or wishes he had).

On the other hand, if you keep a healthy active boy out of sport without good reason, don't complain when he finds more troublesome outlets for his energies.

Incidentally, one might suggest to all fathers that they leave the coaching to the coach as, unless of course Dad has plenty of experience along this line (in which case he should ask for his services to Minor Hockey.

As for the boys themselves. To them falls the burden of getting to all fathers that they leave the coaching to the coach as, unless of course Dad has plenty of experience along this line (in which case he should ask for his services to Minor Hockey.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

One of the reasons I believe Sid Abel commands so much respect among players in the National Hockey League as well as rival managers and coaches is his outstanding record as a player.

A center on what was known as Detroit's original Production Line, he was more or less a policeman and he was a great man in front of the net.

In 1952 his final season as captain of the Red Wings, we were fortunate to become the first to win the Stanley Cup playoffs in eight straight games, beating Toronto, then Montreal in the finals with Terry Sawchuck registering four shutouts. Jack Adams calls the 1952 team the finest in his 35 years at Detroit. Tommy Ivan was our coach.

When he was in front, he was so dangerous that often he'd draw two men that would take stuff either Ted Lindsay or myself and give us a free working room.

He also was very adept at picking the puck out of the air with his stick or picking up passes that came low.

One of his knacks was his perfect timing for flip passes. He could flip a pass hard enough to get it behind the defense yet soft enough so that it would stop and lay there, give us time to pick it up.

He can carry the puck to the point where he has the defensemen holding their positions. Because at any given time he can cut through the middle and go in and score himself.

He varies his play, giving him the important element of surprise. He's a beautiful passer. He can rifle a pock or drop it as soft as a swallow. He's got the ability to fire from any distance. He makes the perfect centerman.

Quinte Wins Cage Tilts

By ROBERT SNEPJELLA

All three Quinte Secondary Schools' basketball teams won their games over Trenton High School in the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. play yesterday. The seniors won a hard fought 50-41 battle, the juniors 72-25, and the bantams 44-34.

The Quinte seniors completely outplayed the Trenton squad for the first quarter as they took a 17-3 lead. Jack Reppard of Quinte hit for 10 points in this quarter.

The second quarter was the complete reversal of the first as Trenton came to life. Quinte managed to score only 2 points all quarter while Trenton scored 18 to take a 21-19 lead at the half. B. Hanchley was top scorer in this quarter with 6 points.

Quinte started the 3rd quarter off by again taking the lead, as the team played as a whole. Top performers were Brian McBride contributed 7 points in the quarter and Mike Chatland and Mike Morton contributed some backboards, as Quinte took a 36-29 lead.

In the final stanza, play was very close, and the score ended 50-41

The junior contest was a fine exhibition of team play, as Quinte won 72-25. Max Valyear and Steve Bylsma were especially outstanding defensively for Quinte while the big guns were Tony Meddings, Marion Medvid and Rocky Taylor, with 21, 17 and 9 points respectively. High scorer for Trenton was Clare Webb with 9 points.

Seniors Win 80-23

Brighton HS Bows To BCI

By Robert Williams

In three basketball games, which were more like football games, Belleville Collegiate emerged with easy victories over Brighton. The Senior Collegians won 80-23, the Juniors 77-37 and the Bantams 57-21.

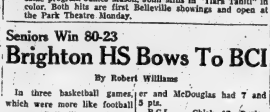
Both teams played well in the 1st quarter sinking baskets quite often but B.C.I. took the lead 18-9. In the 2nd half the winners scored 18 points more than the opposition to lead 40-13 at half-time.



Brighton exhibited good ball control in the 3rd quarter, but could not score. As a result B.C.I. upped their lead 17 points.

The last quarter was by far the roughest with Brighton drawing a lot of fouls as the officials seemed unable to completely control the game.

Bob Chick and Bill Burley both playing good basketball lead the seniors with 17 and 16 points. MacFarlene with 6 pts. was high man for Brighton.

Ron Walsh again lead the juniors with 23 pts. followed by David Hurst with 17, Charles Ewing and Markvart had 13 and 12 pts for Brighton.

B.C.I.'s Bantams were lead by R. Lorenz, J. McCreary and R. McDougall with 20, 14 and 14 pts. While Brighton's Cooper and McDouglas had 7 and 5 pts.

B.C.I. — Chick 17, Burley 16, Swan 13, Adams 6, Deacon 2, Williams 14, Anderson 4, Casselman, Purcell 2, Schleih 6.

Brighton: Kerrington, Stewart 5, Hamilton 4, Hough 6, Dullison, Adams 3, McFarlene 6, Wentworth.

'My Favorite Martian' Owes A Lot to Ray Walston

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A funny thing happened to Ray Walston at a movie premiere recently. He found himself cheered as loudly as Gregory Peck.

But then, he had never played a Martian on television before. And that is the circumstance that has changed Walston's life.

Television viewers will agree that My Favorite Martian is one of the few new shows to make a dent on the ratings. The Sunday night CBS comedy appears set to return for the 1964-65 season.

This delights and amazes Walston, who scored as Luther Billis in South Pacific and the devil in Damn Yankees in both the stage and screen versions.

"It's a whole new world for me," said Walston. "I'm the kind of a guy who is used to walking out a stage door and watching the people flock around Gwen Verdon or some other star. Now it's happening to me."

"You know something? I like it. Don't believe those actors who claim they don't like the glance of the public. As Ralph Bellamy once said, the only time actors don't like it is when it stops."

Walston has found another aspect that he enjoys; The lack of competition.

"Take the last show I did on Broadway, Who Was That Lady I Saw You With," he commented. "I played in it with Peter Lind Hayes and Mary Healy, wonderful people who were schooled in the night clubs. Even with them you had to be on your toes at every minute or you could be crowded right off the stage. The same is true of Gwen Verdon or any top performer.

"But in television I feel at ease for the first time.

"I may be stuck with these antennae on my head for some time to come. Things could be worse."

AT THE BELLE — Held Over — The Belleville favorite, Shirley MacLaine as the Irma of "Irma La Douce", the laugh riot everyone's talking about is held over again, Today, Monday and Tuesday, at the Belle Theatre. Shirley shares stellar honors with Jack Lemmon who plays three roles. The enjoyment of the great comedy is enhanced with Technicolor Panavision.

Gets Under Way Monday

Quebec Spiel Draws 128 Rinks

QUEBEC (CP)The bonspiel that's played strictly for the fun of it and brings out a lot of laughs gets under way Monday.

The 51st international curling bonspiel begins Monday at 9:30 a.m. with 128 rinks entered and competing for the grand aggregate, the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy and the distinction of pulling the best gag of the 'spiel.

Lunenburgers show up in yellow sou'westers and Quebecers come looking more like lumberjacks than Scots curlers. Whimsical gifts are exchanged and booby prizes are the rage.

What does a witning rink do with four buckets of salt cod, for instance?

Perhaps 200 rinks would be entered if all the applications were accepted but Quebec City wants to keep the bonspiel just the right size—not too crowded and not too competitive.—

IT'S GOOD CURLING

"There is good curling and good relaxation here." says St. Hilaire. "We want to keep it a nice bonspiel—no pot-hunters."

By pot-hunters he means curlers out for big prizes. There are only trophies in the international.

Back again this year is Frank Rainford, with the Kirkland Lake, Ont., rink he took everything last year. But the competition usually is well balanced and there is plenty of exciting curling

To justify the name, there are 10 United States rinks entered in the international this year. Forty - five rinks are coming from Ontario, 14 from Nova Scotia, 10 from New Brunswick and one from Prince Edward Island.

National Football League

TV Rights Bring $28 Million

NEW YORK (AP)—Television rights to National Football League games in 1964 and 1965 were won Friday by the Columbia Broadcasting System with a staggering bid of $28,200,000 for two years.

The new contract, calling for $14,100,000 a year, assured each of the 14 NFL clubs of slightly more than $1,000,000 for its 12-game season as its equal share of the television money.

Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, announced the award of the contract scarcely five minutes after he and Marshall Leahy, league attorney, had retired to consider the bids from the three major networks.

"I didn't think it would go this high," he said later.

Rozelle declined to announce the offers of the two unsuccessful bidders, but it was learned both went high—$26,100,000 by both went high — $26,100,000 by the American Broadcasting Company and $21,546,000 by the National Broadcasting Company.

NBC recently won the 1964-65 college football television rights for $13,044,000 for the two years and has the World Series at $3,600,000 a year. ABC has a year to go on its television contract with the American Football League at $2,550,000.

The startling bid for the NFL games—and that does not include the championship game—marked an increase of about 200 per cent over the previous contract, also held by CBS. When CBS negotiated the NFL two-year deal for $9,300,000, or $4,650,000 a year, in 1962 this was regarded as a ceiling for sports events.

The championship game, televised by NBC for $926,000 last year, is not included in the package but will be up for separate bids in March.

Irish Race Driver

Wins Monte Carlo Rally

MONTE CARLO (AP) — They made three laps around Rouaille Ringalet, veteran race and rally driver from Belfast, Ireland, drove a British Morris Cooper to victory Friday in the narrow streets of Monte Carlo to win the Monte Carlo Rally. Official tabulations announced Thursday night gave Hopkirk and his co-driver, Henry Liddon of Belfast, 1,000 points to 1,001 for a comfortable margin over Sweden's Bo Ljungfeit and Ferdi Saiger.

The Swedish pair, who did best in the speed test driving an American-built Ford Falcon, finished second with 2,566.7126. The defending champion, Erik Carlsson of Sweden, driving a Saab driver, Gunnar Palm, got 2,573, 7126 points for third place.

Hopkirk and Liddon, driving a Morris Cooper Super for the British factory team, held top big a lead in points on the road driving section of the rally to be running on the results of the speed event.

With Hopkirk at the wheel, Liddon checked in at Rose Tree Harbor, 35 mile north of here. Friday, is believed to have been sold for mink feed at 10 cents a pound.

Officials said they do not believe the cabin, on the creek, a Chatham man, is insured.

Shoots Five-Under 66

Palmer Takes Over Lead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Arnold Palmer hit the pin and approaches with deadly accuracy to shoot a five-under-par 66 and add to the first day's $50,000 Lucky International golf tournament at Friday's 36-hole midway point with a score of 135.

Palmer didn't have a birdie putt longer than eight feet as he carded five of them on the Harding Park municipal course.

Leading the Canadian contingent was Al Balding of Toronto with a 70-139 total. George Knudson of Toronto was right at his heels with a 70-70—140 tag. Stan Leonard of Vancouver shot a 68 Friday, which gave him a 141 total. These three all qualified for further play.

Bowing from competition because they failed to match the cutoff score of 147 were Adrian Bigras and Al Johnston of Montreal and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg. Bigras was 74-75—149; Johnston 76-73—149 and Homenuik 77-76—153.

Cagers Take Three Games

Moira Turns Back PECI

By DOUG BELLWOOD

Moira Trojans made a clean sweep of a Moira—PEC league tilt. The Moira boys won 67-25 win over Pec. The juniors and seniors made larger wins of 61-25 and 68-53 and 61-41 respectively.

Both senior teams got off to a slow start in the first quarter as the gains of 14 for Moira and 10 of Picton proved. John McKibbon of Moira was high scorer the ball from his end of the court and sank it. In the second period Moira perked up and was able to advance the score to 30 to 16. Throughout the half Moira out-rebounded Picton. Both teams experienced poor passing.

The third quarter was one of poor passes, rough play, and shooting with only gains of 11 by Moira and 4 by Picton to advance the score. Neither team was able to make good gains. The fourth quarter was a repeat of the third with the teams making their biggest gains. Moira sank 20 to Picton's 17.

John McKibbon was high man for Moira making 14 pts. Graham and Bailey followed with 13 and 10 points respectively. Hobson of Picton was high man of the game with 14 points. Murphy and Arnould followed with 8 and 6 respectively.

Bob Watson was high man for Moira with 20 points followed by Beresford with 13 and Mendaker with 10. Murphy of Picton was high man of the game with 27 points. Hobson and Hayman followed with 12.

John Hayman and T. Beresford sank most of Moira's points in the junior game getting 14 and 6 points respectively. Sharpe and Pierce of Picton got 6 and 5 points respectively.

Seniors: Moira — McKibbon 14, Graham 13, Bailey 10, Desormore 8, Jury 7, Pugh 6, Woodcock 2, Glen 1.

PEC — Hobson 14, Murphy 8, Arnaud 6, Lennox 4, Davidson 4, Ketchison 3, Labb 3.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Each year many taxpayers fail to receive their refunds promptly and blame everyone but themselves. In most cases the delay can be traced to their having failed to give all the information requested on the return. Each return must be complete in itself. The fact that the information was given in a previous year has no bearing, as prior years are not available when the current years is being processed.

Another omission that will delay a refund, is the failing to state the address on any addi dependent claimed or the amount of their income. If any of the taxpayer has the adult living with him and shows his address the same as his own, he does not have to show the cost of their keep. Just state "entire support". However if the dependent actually do not reside with the taxpayer, then he must show the amount of his contribution to them and verify the amount by receipts.

In some cases when a person who is single, divorced, legally separated or a widow or widower, claims the exemption of married status ($1,000) on another dependent, they will omit to give all the information asked in the space provided for this purpose.

The name and ages of all children must be listed each year. Do not say "see-1962" as, if the 1963 is being processed when the 1963 is being processed in Ottawa but it' informative is being sent to return, the return is sent back to the district office for completion. Ottawa does not enter into correspondence with the taxpayer regarding incomplete returns. To avoid delays, see that your return is complete before mailing it to Ottawa.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a five cent stamped self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you with answer.

Question: I have seven children. Is it necessary to list their ages each year when they are on my prior years returns?

Answer: Yes. Your prior years returns are not filed in Ottawa but in your district office.

Question: Why do I have to file a return when my employer takes the income Tax out of my pay?

Answer: What your employer withholds is only a payment on account of your Income Taxes. The return is the balance sheet which determines whether you have a refund or owe a balance.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Trying to keep pace with the growing popularity of skiing, Ontario has been active the last few months enlarging its facilities. Here are some of the latest developments: Adjacent to Beaver Valley in the Kimberley area is a new ski resort called the Talisman. The promoters expect to have installed this season two double-chair lifts and two rope tows. Also planned, but not for this year, is a motel lodge. Another new ski area is scheduled for development in the same district, but whether it will be in operation this season is still questionable. Blue Mountain ski area has added a 7 bar-lift and extended trails to tie together remote slopes. Alpine Ski Club at Collingwood has added a Pomalift. Georgian Peaks will open the season with a coffee shop at the top of its chair lift; a heated outdoor swimming pool, the only one for hundreds of miles around, is the pride of Bay Motor Hotel at Owen Sound. The pool, adjacent to the ski area, also offers a Finnish steam bath. Under construction are dormitories at the slopes. The Lakehead area has a new ski club, Little Norway Ski resort, at Fort William. Plans include a major lift, but it may not be ready for this season. Muskoka, the Tally-Ho Lodge and the Britannia Hotel have both added Pomalifts. A new ski area-club in the works at Ocotongue Lake, with two Pomalifts planned, but again it may not be completed for this winter. Rainbow Ridge at Hidden Valley has added a rope tow for novices.

Belleville, Trenton, Napanee, Picton and other Bay of Quinte area ski enthusiasts are happy. A new skiing and winter sports centre has been developed by the Mountain View Ski Club, just south of the Mountain View Airport, a quarter of a mile east of Highway 14 between Belleville and Picton. Neglected Brakes Can Mean Death

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Brakes on more than half the cars on our roads are not as safe as they could be. Automotive and safety people seem to agree on this — and on the prime reason for it. The man behind the wheel owns the blame. He either does not notice or investigate changes in braking reaction — such as: low pedal, pull to one side, longer stopping distance required or a need to pump the pedal in order to develop adequate pressure.

Lining wear is the most common cause of poor braking. Adjustments can be made to compensate for this wear, up to a point. Eventually, the linings must be replaced. Wheel cylinder leakage is a frequent trouble maker. . . and also leads to ruined linings when brake fluid soaks them. Cracked or split lines or loose connections are possible leak points, too. As far as the master cylinder is concerned, the biggest fault here lies with failure to keep it adequately filled. Actual defects are not a rarity, but they're not particularly common either. Leakage or inability to maintain pressure would be the most likely master cylinder troubles.

From C. J.: "My engine's 82 V8, has no real power. It seems to hold back or heistate when I give it gas and sometimes will backfire."

(A) Have the ignition timing double checked. It could be late.

G. W. asks: "Can I increase the rate at which the generator delivers its charge to the battery? How?"

(A) You can increase or reduce the charging rate by adjusting the regulator — but let a mechanic handle this.

P. N. writes: "My engine runs evenly when idling or going slowly, but it becomes rough and seems to miss when I start to accelerate to high speed. A new carburetor made no difference."

From J. L.: "If my 12-volt battery goes dead, will a boost from a healthy 6-volt battery enable me to start the engine?"

(A) No — 6-volt battery power is not sufficient to start a 12-volt system.

Travel Incentive and Interest Provided by Rock Hounding

By GLADYS WARD

In addition to his hobby of making violins, Mr. E. G. Gurnett is an enthusiastic lapidarist, more popularly known as a "Rock hound." The basement of their home on Northwood Crescent is a fascinating place. Besides a showcase of violins there are baskets of rocks in their natural states; bins of agates tumble polished in a revolving drum cases of polished stones, and finished jewels mounted in frames.

The transformation from rough ordinary stones that one might see lying on the ground to polished gems glowing with beauty, is hard to believe.

Nordk Hastings is rich in certain stones such as the deep blue sodalite, and the green to amazolite, a species of feldspar which has an iridescent glow or peristerite which is opalescent. Agates which were probably laid down in blow holes of lava rock which then filled up with a warm solution of silica (SiO2) and later released by erosion, are shown by Mr. Gurnett. Some came from Lake Superior and were carried and distributed by glaciers, some came from Nova Scotia and from many localities. The colors and layering give agates their beauty and design.

PETRIFIED WOOD

An interesting piece was petrified wood from Arizona estimated to be 150 million years old, beautiful in design. The outside looks like wood bark, but it is petrified and has a mirror finish when it is cut and polished.

Herkimer diamonds (quartz crystals) in their natural state actually appear as though faceted. Mr. Gurnett also showed finished gems of sapphire which is a form of corundum, having a chemical formula Al_2O_3. We usually think of sapphires as blue in color, but there were many shades including pink, white and yellow. A ruby is the same thing chemically, but red in color. Similarly acquamarine and emerald are both a form of beryl.

A collection of amethysts varied in color from palest lavender to deep purple. Most of these came from Brazil. "The deeper the color, the more valuable the stone," Mr. Gurnett explained.

Zircons from Burma came in beautiful shades of pale blue-green; petrified coral came from Michigan; obsidian which is volcanic glass, had brown lines, some had snowflake design. Jade was found in Wyoming which has one of the most noted jade in the world. Jade, which is usually thought of as a product of the Orient is also found in British Columbia, Alaska and New Zealand.

LIKE FOREST FIRE

A sample of agate from Moose Island in the Bay of Fundy when held to the light looked like a forest fire.

"How do you get such a variety of stones?" this reporter asked.

"We trade with other collectors. There are clubs in Bancroft and Kingston in this area. We buy some from recognized rock shops, and some we collect on our travels.

"It gives one an incentive to travel and also an objective," Mr. Gurnett said.

A unique specimen was the "thunder egg" from Oregon. These were originally found in cavities in lava rock, but they became eroded out, and now lie on the surface. They formed some interesting designs.

Mr. Gurnett demonstrated the method of polishing with different grinding wheels and sanding papers grading from coarse to fine and the final buffing with a felt buff.

CERAMIC COLLECTION

In the basement too is the kiln used by Mrs. Gurnett for her work with ceramics. Mrs. Gurnett shares her husband's interest in rocks, and he shares hers in ceramics. A fine collection of ceramics is displayed in a cabinet in the living room of their home.

Mr. E. G. Gurnett displays part of his collection of stones, agates; zircons, sapphires in colors of pink, yellow, blue, and white, rubies, and many others. Mr. Gurnett takes a keen interest in his hobby, and is shown here in the basement of his home where he does the cutting and polishing.

Curing Houseplant Problems

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

If you received gift plants at Christmas or have bought plants recently watch them carefully for plant pests. It is wise when a new plant comes into the home to isolate it for a week or two. Keep a sharp eye on it to see that it is not infected with some insect pest.

Mealybug, aphid, scale, red spider mite or white fly often get in unnoticed until the other plants are infected.

Mealybugs come in on Poinsettias, coleus, crassula and other plants. This pest looks like a bit of cotton batten tucked on to the leaf axis. The female deposits about 300 eggs in a waxy cottony sac. The eggs hatch in about 10 days and the young crawl over the plant sucking the juice from the leaves. It can be eliminated by touching the egg mass with alcohol. Wrap a toothpick with cotton, dip in rubbing alcohol, or a little old perfume or cologne. Touch the white mass with the alcohol but do not touch the plant.

WASH WHOLE PLANT

Soapy water with a teaspoon of nicotine sulphate to one quart of water, or a tablespoon of salad oil beaten in will also eliminate them. Wash the whole plant, or dip the plant into the solution. You can cut a circle of cardboard the sizes of the top of the pot, cut a slash to the centre and cut out a hole to accommodate the stem, or stems. Hold the plant upside down and dip up and down into the water. Rinse with tepid water.

Aphids can be controlled in the same way.

Scale often comes in on ivies and ferns. These are hard discs on underside of the leaves or the stem. The scale covers the adult and the eggs are laid under the scale. Soapy - oil water will destroy scale if it is not too prevalent. You can lift them off with the tip of a sharp knife, if there are only a few.

Red spider mites cause yellow flecks on the leaves and the underside of the leaf will be covered with webs. Impatients are subject to this pest and from there it spreads to other plants. Wash twice each week with water and nicotine solution. One infected plant can doom a dozen others.

Cyclamen mites are more difficult to control and it will spread to African violets. Washing will not destroy these. They must be treated by dipping the plants into a miticide. Isolate the plant and repeat in three weeks.

QUITE EFFECTIVE

Sodium selinate is one of the new systemic poisons which the plant takes up through the roots and incorporates into the tissues. This is quite effective against mites and several sucking in sects.

White fly can be controlled by soapy water. The adults are very small and fly away when the plants are disturbed. The young are green and wingless. They appear as motionless dots on the leaves and can be washed off.

The first rule is buy only healthy plants. Get rid of infected sick plants. If you must keep them, isolate them and treat until they are clean and healthy again.

Keep all plants out of direct draft but see that they have fresh air. Wash leaves once a week with tepid spray. Water soil just before it becomes really dry. Do not keep soil soggy wet. Cyclamen, and poinsettia will need water once or twice a day while in bloom.

Do not feed plants during the short dark days of winter. As the days get longer, give a weak solution of liquid fertilizer every two or three weeks. Increase strength as the days become longer and brighter.

Adder Kills Keeper

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—The city zoo's 37-year-old curator, Jerry de Bary, died today after long hours of agony from the bite of the deadly African puff adder snake.

De Bary, bitten Saturday night when he suffered a dizzy spell while cleaning the snake's cage, died at 6:30 a.m. after a day and a half of what friends said was excruciating pain.

The five-foot puff adder sank both its fangs into Jerry de Bary's left forearm at 11:15 p.m. Saturday when a dizzy spell put him off guard as he opened the glass door of the cage to clean it.

Snakebite serum — antivenin —specific for the African puff adder was flown in Sunday from San Diego Zoo, Calif., where the bad-tempered puff adder is one of the world's deadliest snakes and the most lethal in its native South Africa. He said the bite causes almost unbearable, burning pain.

Not to Be Sneezed At

Early Sunday sheriff's deputies Leslie Blum and Ted Wood pulled up before a supermarket where the burglar alarm was ringing. The door was open and a car with its trunk open was parked in front.

Inside the market, stacked high on the floor, were sides of beef, legs of lamb, pork chops, frozen chicken and packages of assorted meats.

Given his orders in German, Boto padded into the store, stopped to sniff at the piles of meat, then bounded up to the intruders.

Guns drawn, the officers followed.

Hamilton made negative noises in German and hauled Boto back downstairs. Boto ran back upstairs to the pile of dog food.

Two hours later Hamilton pulled Boto away from the glorious pile of dog food for the 10th time.

Then the pile sneezed.

Reid, who had no previous police record, was told to appear in court Feb. 7.

Scores Held In Atlanta

By HEDLEY BURRELL

ATLANTA (AP) — Day - long racial demonstrations in downtown Atlanta resulted in the arrest of scores of persons Sunday in the wake of an inspection tour by a United Nations anti-discrimination group.

At least seven were injured in the demonstrations which flared anew Sunday night. A Negro trusty suffered a broken leg when he was involved in scuffling among demonstrators at the city jail.

A policeman, H. A. Wagner, suffered a head injury when he was pushed to the pavement as Negroes attempted to enter a segregated restaurant.

Most of the 86 arrested had to be carried bodily to jail. They were all released upon their own recognizance after they were charged with disorderly conduct and creating a disturbance.

Most of those arrested were Negro students. But they also included Negro comedian Dick Gregory, who for a time directed the demonstration at the restaurant.

Members of the UN subcommission on prevention of discrimination and protection of minorities watched Negro and Ku Klux Klan pickets in action Saturday night.

The Negroes were protesting segregation while the Klan pickets were passing out literature proclaiming that a white boycott was hurting Atlanta business which have become integrated.

The UN group came to Atlanta on invitation of Morris Abram, a former Atlanta lawyer and now U.S. representative to the commission. He said he wanted the commission's members to get a first - hand look at the racial problem.

Atlanta police, for the most part, refused to arrest racial demonstrators unless orders of resistance swear out by Mr. Blanchard's wife, Henry Bowden said arrests were made Sunday because city officials feared greater violence.

Pickersgill Tackles Switch To Administrative Post

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Pickersgill returns from Europe to his desk today for a week's work cleaning up tag ends before assuming the transport department portfolio.

His is one of the heaviest assignments handed out by Prime Minister Pearson in the cabinet shuffle last week. How Mr. Pickersgill will fare in his new job is currently one of the leading points of interest on Parliament Hill.

Mr. Pickersgill has been government House leader in the Commons and the minister responsible for most of the government's cultural activities since the Liberals took office last April.

As a House of Commons man, Mr. Pickersgill enjoys the hour-by-hour ebb and thrust of debate. Those who have watched him in action find it difficult to imagine Jack Pickersgill, politician, becoming J. W. Pickersgill, administrator.

But the task ahead of the new transport minister will require hours of studying reports and recommendations of the royal commission on transportation headed by A. J. MacPherson and promises to be the most couple subject on the agenda on Feb. 10 session.

Mr. Pickersgill also must draft a new national air policy to sort out the stop-gap measures taken in recent years to maintain service for communities off the main transcontinental routes. He has received a petition between the main airlines serving Canada domestically and Trans-Canada.

Being transport minister also involves a great deal of travelling—something Mr. Pickersgill is not fond of.

He became a secretary in 1937 to the late W. L. Mackenzie King and rose to be clerk of the privy council and secretary to the cabinet in 1952. That is the top administrative job in the whole federal civil service.

The next year, he swung into active politics and entered the cabinet as secretary of state.

Missionary Killed In The Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Guerrilla fighters attacked two American women missionaries in strife-torn Kwilu Province and killed one with an arrow, a Baptist missionary reported here Sunday. He said the other woman was wounded.

Rev. Peter Buller identified the slain woman as Irene Grotrel, a Baptist. The wounded woman, Ruth B. Hege, was still in the area of the attack and was last reported alive, Buller said. He came here from his mission in Mukedi with his report of the attack.

Miss Ferrel and Miss Hege were with the Baptist Mid Mission of Mangungu. They were the sole white occupants of Mangungu, which lies east of Kwilu's capital of Kikwit, about 500 miles west of here.

Miss Ferrel was the first reported Protestant missionary to be killed in The Congo since independence from Belgium in 1960. Her death brings to four the number of victims of guerrilla gangs led by former education minister Pierre Mulele.

The Congo government said it has documents proving Mulele's band had Red Chinese support.

SOUGHT HELP

Buller, who reached Leopoldville Sunday with his wife and two children, Jeanette, 8, and Charles, 4, said he saw Miss Ferrel alive Saturday as he went for help when he flew over the mission last Wednesday.

"I saw that Miss Edmonds were out on the lawn," he said. The mission can only be reached from the air by helicopter because Queen, Philip Will Visit Canada in Oct.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Queen and Prince Philip will visit Charlottetown and Quebec City Oct. 6 to Oct. 12, it was officially announced today.

The formal announcement said:

"It is announced from Government House that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh have accepted the invitation of the government of Canada to attend special centennial celebrations in October commencing with visits of the fathers of Confederation to Charlottetown and Quebec City about Oct. 12."

The visit will begin in Charlottetown about Oct. 6 and end in Quebec City about Oct. 12."

A Government House spokesman said the seven-day visit will not include any other Canadian city. No visit would be made to the United States.

Detailed plans for the visit now are being drawn up by the Canadian government and will be submitted later to the Queen for approval.

Announcement of the October visit had been expected for some time.

No Recognition Would Follow Says Ottawa

Announcement Made After French Move

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada likely will vote in favor of admitting Communist China to the United Nations at the UN General Assembly this fall, a highly-placed informant said today.

However, Canadian diplomatic recognition of Red China would not follow immediately or automatically, it was said.

The informant said the government still has not made up its mind on either of these related matters.

But it would likely decide by November in favor of admittance of Red China to the UN, while at the same time favoring the continued presence of Nationalist China in the world body.

The usual September meeting of the UN General Assembly is expected to be postponed until mid-November, after the United States presidential election.

POSTPONE ACTION

This will tend to keep the issue of recognition of Red China out of the election campaign, it is hoped. It is felt here that Canada would not take any action in this regard which might embarrass President Johnson in the middle of his campaign. Canada's policy on Communist China in recent months has been to try to keep China from becoming isolated as Russia became after the 1917 revolution.

Thus the government has urged more cultural and other contacts with China. It is hoped this agreement will be reached soon on an exchange of newspaper men.

Diplomatic quarters here say they expect that France's recognition of Red China will influence the French - speaking states of Africa to take similar action and to vote in favor of Chinese membership in the UN.

In such circumstances, the vote in favor of seating Red China would be carried by a one day in the UN at the next session.

Canada can be epected to be on the winning side barring some intervening crisis such as a new Chinese invasion of India, an informant said.

Chiang May Act

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The Chinese Nationalist government called an emergency session of the cabinet tonight to consider counter-action to French recognition of Communist China.

There have been hints the government might break relations with Paris, but there has been no official disclosure of Nationalist intentions.

Peking radio said France and Communist China have agreed to appoint ambassadors to each other within three months.

At the U.N., France's recognition of China today is regarded as "a major breakthrough in the Peking regime's long battle for a seat in the United Nations.

Predictions of a quick victory for the Chinese Communists are tempered by more cautious estimates, however. It seems questionable whether there will be enough switches in votes to beat Peking's next fall's session of the General Assembly.

Stabbed in Back

TORONTO (CP)—A 52-year-old woman was critically stabbed in the back Sunday night when he refused to hire a man who asked for a job in his store.

Police said Harry Horovitz sat alone in his store at the time. He was stabbed when he turned a round after taking money for a chocolate bar.

Joseph Biondolillo, 16, was arrested and charged with wounding. Mr. Horovitz was discharged from hospital after emergency treatment.

Victims of Fatal Heart Attacks May Be Saved by New System

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Two surgeons at the Denver General Hospital said Sunday they have developed an electronically controlled system which they believe can save victims of fatal heart attacks.

A copyrighted Denver Post story by reporter John Kohlish said the system "for assisted circulation" is used. An apparatus rushes blood to the heart before the tissue is destroyed.

They said they have used the method with good results on about 350 dogs.

Their only human patient, the paper said, was a 67-year-old man who was admitted to the hospital last Monday after a heart attack. He had no pulse and only a faint heartbeat. An electrocardiogram showed severe damage to the left ventricle, where coronary thrombosis usually cuts off the blood supply and quickly destroys the tissue.

The man was put on the blood-rush system for six hours until eventually, the doctors said, although he died 25 hours later, the doctors said an autopsy showed death resulted from emphysema—a lung disease unrelated to the heart attack.

The surgeons estimated that six of 10 persons who suffer fatal heart attacks could be restored to normal life if they received treatment in time. Callaghan said it was too early to speculate on when "in time" would be.

"We certainly don't want to be the first to try," Dr. Callaghan told The Post, "but we're very excited, and this is only the beginning."

Under the system, the doctors said, tubes are inserted into a heart artery. Victims' thighs and energy is transmitted to produce extra blood flow to the heart and other organs. The victim's heart controls the electronic system through electrical devices that produce the energy.

If the patient's heart has stopped, doctors administer an automatic non-electric system clicks on and starts the heart again. Blood is forced around the obstruction and into the heart through other vessels leading to the left ventricle.

Later, Watkins said, the clot normally clears itself, but if it doesn't it can be removed by surgery.

Monogamous Marriage Called Bizarre and Unnatural State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Marriage to one wife at a time is bizarre and unnatural, a medical research pioneer told a University of California symposium on "the family's search for survival."

"Considering man as he is, as a mammal, monogamous marriage is bizarre and unnatural state," Dr. Russel V. Lee told the meeting Sunday.

"In a state of nature, the normal buck, bull, stallion or primate collects, dominates, protects and impregnates as many females as he possibly can.

"This has had important beneficial-generic results in assuring that the species will be bred from the strongest and most aggressive males, with the strong procreative."

He said males have gone against many of their instincts as they have accepted the comparatively recent idea of monogamous marriage. Man has lost the hero role and much of the pride that used to go with fatherhood, he added.

Nevertheless, "there's no other device as good for raising children" as a family, he said.

Dr. Lee, father of five and grandfather of 20 after 46 years of marriage, is founder of the Palo Alto (Calif.) medical clinic and the Palo Alto Medical Research Foundation.

BRITISH MARINE GUARDS MUTINOUS TANGANYIKA TROOPS — A British marine holds his automatic weapon in readiness as he guards two mutinous soldiers of the Tanganyika Rifles in Dar Es Salaam, capital city of the East African Commonwealth nation. Interrogate Mutineers

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuters) President Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika called today for an emergency meeting early next month of foreign and defence ministers of the Organization of African Unity to discuss the "grave danger" created by army revolts in East Africa during the last week.

The president's appeal was part of a message he sent to the heads of all independent African states.

Meanwhile British and African officers questioned rebellious native troops in Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda in an effort to learn whether there was a master plan for their brushfire mutinies.

More than 3,500 British troops were in firm control in the three East African Commonwealth countries after disarming the mutinous African soldiers in almost bloodless operations. Mopping up continued in the Tanganyika bush.

Four African soldiers were killed in the week of sporadic fighting. Three were killed when Commandos put down a mutiny at a barracks outside Dar es Salaam, the Tanganyika capital, and the other died when British troops quelled an uprising at Lanet camp in Kenya.

Two more African soldiers died in rioting after the initial flareup in Tanganyika last Monday following the coup that toppled the sultan of Zanzibar a week earlier.

At Lanet, 300 Kenyan soldiers were held in a barbed-wire compound as one by one they were questioned by officers, some of them British. Similar screenings to determine any master plot for the troop revolts were under way in Tanganyika and Uganda.

TROOPS DISARMED

The entire 11th Battalion of the Kenya Rifles at Lanet was disarmed. The barracks were patrolled by British armored cars and infantrymen with automatic rifles and sub-machine guns.

Key buildings in Nairobi were also guarded by British troops or police.

"Those who took part in the Lanet incident have gravely broken military discipline and must be dealt with firmly," said Kenya Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta.

"They will be dealt with according to military law. There will be no compromise on this and I do not intend to meet them or allow any of my ministers to negotiate with them. We shall not act out of fear."

Camera-Toting Spacecraft Will Rocket Toward Moon Thursday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The camera-toting Ranger VI spacecraft is scheduled to rocket to the moon Thursday on a photographic mission which could produce 3,000 clear closeup pictures of the lunar surface.

The U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration has announced that the spacecraft is set for firing at 10:12 a.m. EST aboard an Atlas-Agena rocket.

Its six television cameras are designed to transmit to earth the most detailed pictures yet of the moon. They could provide clues to the composition of the surface and perhaps detect some of the dangers which await astronauts there.

Ranger VI must fly an intricate flight plan which involves firing the Agena second stage of the booster rocket into a "parking orbit" 115 miles high and at the precise moment restarting the Agena motor to increase speed from 17,500 to 24,500 miles an hour.

The spacecraft then will be kicked free of the second stage.

Two large solar panels will fold down from the spidery like structure which is 10 feet span of 15 feet and the 806-pound vehicle will cruise through space on a course intended to cover the 240,000 miles to the moon in 65 to 68 hours.

Nine-hundred miles above the lunar surface, the cameras will start clicking and continue to operate for 10 minutes until the spacecraft reaches among the craters at 3,190 miles an hour. Photos will be transmitted instantly to Goldstone by two 60-watt transmitters.

Pictures could be taken down to two-feet resolution before impact and show in great detail an area one - half mile square. Anti-Smoking Education Chief Aim of Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Surgeon-General Luther Terry has said Sunday he doubts the federal government will need any new legal weapons against the health risks pinned to cigarette smoking.

Terry added that he expects the public health service which he heads will find its chief work in the area of anti-smoking education.

The surgeon-general, whose special advisory committee indicted cigarettes as a major cause of lung cancer and shortened life, was interviewed on a radio and television program by Senator Kenneth Keating (Rep. N.Y.).

"We have not recommended any legislation at this time, and though I'm not certain, I doubt that we will need additional legislation to carry out our responsibilities," Terry said, adding:

WANTS EDUCATION

"I think, really, one of the principal approaches (to reduce smoking danger) . . . is education.

"I know that some people who have smoked for a long period of time are going to give up smoking because of this and other information that comes to them.

"On the other hand, I think by far the strongest manner in which we can be effective is to educate the youngsters as to the dangers involved and therefore discourage them from starting smoking."

However, it is not a problem for the federal government alone, Terry said. It will require the work of everyone smokers and non-smokers, he added, "and particularly the parents of smaller children, particularly the private physician who is counsel to his individual patients."

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents across Canada during the weekend claimed at least 33 deaths, nearly two thirds of them on the highways.

Ontario led with 14 fatalities. Seven persons died on the roads and seven others in fires. A fire in Cobden, Ont., 75 miles northwest of Ottawa, took the lives of six persons—five from the same family—when a 100-year-old house burned down.

Russian Talent Scouts Picking Up Good Acts

TORONTO (CP)—Top European variety performers are being picked up by Russian talent scouts and booked in Russian theatres and arenas, Jean Arthur of Toronto said Sunday.

Mr. Arthur, who has returned from a tour of Europe, pean variety shows and circuses where he sought performers for next summer's Canadian National Exhibition grandstand show, said the Russian scouts are making it difficult for United States and Canadian impresarios.

He said in an interview that many of the acts he tried to book for the CNE are already signed up for Russian theatres and that Ed Sullivan is running into the same problem in his search for talent for his weekly U.S. television show.

Around the Tee

The father's and children's bonspiel held at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday was a huge success. Bill Spinelli was general chairman of the event with Charles Lovett and Dave Duffy as willing helpers. Mrs. Beverley Nelli, Mrs. Ken Corke, Mrs. Audrey Gowsell and Mrs. Spinelli assisted in satisfying the appetites with delicious refreshments throughout the day and the children of the members of the club along with students from the Ontario School for the Deaf had a wonderful time.

There was some excellent curling exhibited especially by the younger set and there is plenty of material to keep the club going for many years. Bill Gault skipped the winning rink of Donald Russell, Jack Lowe and R. Sneffella, while Joe McKay with Brian Webkins, B. Jennings and Ivan Beer placed second. One-game high honors went to Bill Gault Emerson as skip. The runner-up was a rink skipped by Claude Tice with Don Lowe, Mrs. Doreen Lovett and Louise Hartley while the consolation went to Linda Lisack, Bob Lisack, Bob Baker and Fred Gwalter. A member of the School for the Deaf rink was Bill Spinelli and his committee for the wonderful morning and afternoon of curling.

A rink of Al McCullam, lead, Bill Embury, second, Ron Benn, vice, and Al Embury, skip will represent the Quinte Curling Club in the finals.

John Frederick Renaud, 22, Essex, when he was thrown from his car when it ran into a ditch and the car ran over him near Windsor.

Ernest Leboeuf, 65, his sons Stanley, 36, and Irvin, 17; two grandchildren, Donalds, 7, and Larry, 5, all of Cobden, Ont., and Edward Grundy, 74 of Pembroke, when fire destroyed the Lebeau home in Cobden.

Robert Copland, 25, of Newmarket, and his nine-month-old son Brent, when the Copland car collided with another car near Newmarket.

A.N.A.F. Weekly News

Saturday afternoon and evening saw a number of ladies and men and men for the big mixed Darts Tournament, put on by the Canadian Legion Association in co-operation with Unit 201. There were a lot of close fought competitions and the winners were awarded handsome prizes. After the tournament was over all present relaxed and enjoyed a pleasant social evening, hoping there will be another such competition as arranged in the near future. The M.C.s both upstairs and down are to be congratulated on the smooth operation of the contest without any unnecessary delays. A good time was had by all.

The President and members wish to extend their deepest sympathy to Mrs. Fowler and her family in their recent bereavement. Bill will be missed around the club by his many friends.

The sick chairman reports that there are still two families in the Belleville General Hospital, Ab. Brenton, still in quite serious condition, Room 226, and Art Frankish, who enjoys visits from the comrades, Room 249. He is asking to say Comrade Emmer Scott is out and around again while Comrades Noyes, Bonisteel and Bowen are still recuperating at home. All have been visited and looked after.

FUTURE EVENTS

The Entertainment Chairman is lining up future events which will be announced in this column and some will be advertised in the Belleville Intelligencer, as well, so watch for them. In the immediate future he wishes to announce that there will be a big Stag Night next Friday evening, Feb. 7th. Owing to unforseen circumstances, the date of the Stag had to be changed from the 8th to the 7th, as announced in last week's column. Members are invited to bring ex-service friends with them. Others might be interested in joining the organization, so he can see for himself the comradeship of the club and hear what the club is doing to help their fellow men.

DRIVE GOING WELL

The membership chairman is quite pleased at the response, so far, in the drive for new members and certainly hopes it will continue during the year. Remember the prize being donated by the Dominion president for the member bringing in the most new active members. It is well worth winning and the president knows everyone will do his best to win it.

Interesting Item for British War Pensioners: Furnished by the Ministry Representative of the British Ministry of Pensions and National Insurance dealing with a new special allowance for widows of British War Pensioners.

"As of December 2nd, 1963, the widow of a war pensioner who was receiving constant attendance allowance or unemployability supplement will be eligible for a special allowance of $26 for fifteen weeks after his death. The payment will normally be the equivalent to the war disablement pension and the main allowance issued to the husband before his death, except the additional allowance for a wife.

The new allowance will be substantially higher than, and will then replace the widows pension or national insurance sickness benefits for those thirteen weeks, all of which the appropriate existing widows benefits will apply."

It is hoped this new allowance by broadly continuing the husband's pension for thirteen weeks, will give some help to widows of severely disabled war pensioners in the period immediately after their husbands die.

Fire Destroys Frame Dwelling At Ameliasburg

A fire fanned by high winds on Saturday afternoon destroyed a frame dwelling occupied by Mr. and Mrs. R. Shanulk at Ameliasburg, causing damages estimated at $7,000.

The fire took a head start before the Belleville Fire Department was called to the scene at 2.30 p.m. and because of the high winds, was unable to save the home.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said there was no insurance on the contents of the home and that the fire was probably caused by overheated stove pipes.

The department also answered a call to the 5th of Thurlow on Saturday afternoon to extinguish a chimney fire at the home of Mr. W. Sills.

No damage was reported.

A second chimney fire was extinguished by the fire department Saturday afternoon shortly before 6 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. MacDonald at 149 University Avenue.

No damage was reported.

South Ontario So-Ed Clubs Hold Fun Weekend in City

Approximately 100 members from So-Ed club of southern Ontario gathered in Belleville this weekend to participate in the Belleville So-Ed second annual Fun Weekend. The meeting enabled representatives to discuss mutual problems as well as strengthen unity through personal acquaintance.

On hand for the two-day meet were groups representing Peterborough, Brockville, Toronto and St. Catharines and single representatives from other clubs. Representatives coming the longest distance for the meeting were Kent Siebrass of Montreal and Peter Tamilan of London, Ontario.

Registration was held at the Campbell Street Y.M.C.A. at noon Saturday and was followed by a program of sports, dancing and discussion.

The banquet held at the Tops Motel Saturday evening, D. G. Diamantides, secretary of the Belleville Y.M.C.A., welcomed the representatives on behalf of the Board of Directors. Mr. Diamantides spoke briefly on the value of this annual event for So-Ed members and added that it would give him great pleasure to welcome the group back next year at which time the new Y.M.C.A. would be in operation with added facilities.

Chairman for the evening was Don Andrushko, formerly of the Toronto Y.M.C.A. and now associated with the Belleville So-Ed group. In his remarks to the group Mr. Andrushko moved a vote of thanks for Don MacKenzie of the Belleville Club for his work in planning and promoting this annual event.

Following church services Sunday, members devoted the day to sporting activities. Swimming was available at the Tops Motel and following this members gathered at the So-Ed lodge at Oak Lake for skating and other winter sports.

Resort Owners Back Assoc. On Applications

TORONTO (CP) — The Association of Tourist Resorts of Ontario will recommend to the provincial government that the Ontario Human Rights Commission consider as legitimate the inclusion of pictures in job applications, Association President Bertram Koechtel said Sunday.

He was commenting on a demand by the Ontario Labor Committee for Human Rights that the association expel J. D. Sibbald of Jackson's Point for pledging to continue asking job applicants for photographs.

Mr. Sibbald said last week he and other resort operators would continue the practice despite the commission's interpretation that it was contrary to the Ontario Human Rights Code.

Alan Borovoy, executive secretary of the labor committee, said in a letter resort employers receiving pictures of Negro or oriental job applicants might never grant interviews.

Mr. Koechtel, a resort proprietor at Sauble Beach, said the association would present a resolution to the government in the next few days backing Mr. Sibbald.

"We will recommend that the (commission) consider an application with a photograph as legitimate," he said. "You can't interview prospective employees at long range without it."

TO TEST BUSES

The Edmonton Transit System plans to test the capabilities of Diesel buses with trackless trolley motors. The test is part of a program to educate the public to the advantages of trackless trolleys. The buses will be operated in Edmonton for 30 days before the city decides whether to purchase 20 more buses from General Motors Corp. in London, Ont., at a cost of $33,787 each.

Women Attend Church Congress At Kingston

From each parish in the Diocese of Ontario two women have been invited to attend the Diocesan Congress on the Anglican World Mission to be held in Kingston, Ontario, on January 29th. This is something of a new departure for the Church in the Diocese of Ontario. Canon regulations require Lay Delegates to the Diocesan Synods be 'Male' persons at least twenty-one years of age.

The invitation to women to share in the councils of the Church each year the tone of a new approach to the new challenge given the Church by the Anglican Congress. Women in the Church are especially well able to help in this Anglican World Mission and Salvation effort and have given the lead over so many years in the Missionary work of the interior of the parishes.

The critical concern of the women will be of great value in the areas of parish self-examination and parish study groups. Some still wonder at the inclusion of the fairer sex in such a gathering but the enthusiastic reception of the suggestion by the Diocesan Executive Committee would indicate perhaps ways will be found to include women as regular members of the Diocesan Synods.

FRENCH IS 'VITAL'

TORONTO (CP) — Guy Favreau, who becomes justice minister next month, said Saturday he is "vital" that French be used "in all aspects of the affairs of government." The current minister of citizenship and immigration told the York Scarborough Liberal association: "It is nobody's intention to shove the French language down the throats of English-speaking Canadians, nor does Quebec expect Canada to become bilingual."

Will Employ Five Persons At Workshop

TRENTON — Chairman of this year's March of Dimes campaign, Rime Bonter, announced on Friday that Operation Recovery, the protected workshop for crippled civilians at Smithfield, would start to employ five persons instead of the present staff of two, in the spring. James Patrick and Mrs. M. Alexander have been in the shop since it opened, carrying on the manufacture of costume jewellery from native Canadian stones.

Meantime, Mrs. James Stockdale has been named the Chief Marching Mother for Middleton Park and has arranged for blitz night (Feb. 3, house-to-house canvassers) for the park. More than 200 canvassers are still needed to "blanket" Trenton, Brantford, Batawa and Glen Miller. In Mobile village, canvassers have been arranged for.

PRESIDENT RESIGNS

An executive meeting of the Ameliasburg Home Owners' Association was held in the Redneersville Public School Thursday night. At the meeting, the resignation of W. G. Harvey as president, was read. Mr. Harvey has recently been appointed welfare officer for the county and felt that he should not give sufficient time to the association if he continued in office.

The members present were shown copies of the proposed zoning by-law for the township and several objections were raised to the proposals. The by-law will be discussed further at a general association meeting, Wednesday night, Feb. 5, in St. John's Hall at Carrying Place, starting at 8 p.m.

LEFT HIP BRUISED

Mr. Currie suffered a bruised left hip and bruises in his left leg below the knee when he was struck by a car driven by David John McEwen, of R.R. 3, Trenton. Mr. McEwen was attempting to enter the Supertest lot when the accident occurred. Mr. Currie was taken to the hospital by Rushnell Ambulance.

It was McFall's fourth goal of the game and he scored another four as Trenton defeated Napanee All Stars 4-1 and Fort Henry 5-0.

Napanee Red Wings won the consolation event with a 6-0 victory over Alexander Bay, N.Y., Lions. Gananoque and Elgin teams also competed.

TRAVELLING TEACHERS

Frontier College of Toronto has no campus - its teachers are university students who work days and teach nights in mining, lumbering and other camps.

A TRENTON LANDMARK SINCE 1888, the post office building on Dundas Street in Trenton boasts a cornerstone laid by Sir John A. MacDonald, Canada's first prime minister. The building will be replaced by a modern federal office building on Front Street, but plans for the old building are indefinite. Suggestions have been made that the old building be used as a police station or a museum. The building may be torn down to provide space for a parking lot and for street widening.

CNR Downtown Station Built In 1903

TRENTON—The CNR station in downtown Trenton, doomed to be torn down and replaced by a supermarket within the next six months, was built in 1903. It replaced a frame station at the south side of the present wooden platform. At that time, Central Ontario Railway trains ran in and out of Trenton.

In 1912, the Canadian Northern Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway started to operate out of Trenton.

Three sets of railway tracks crossed Dundas St. W. at Division St. at that time, (now one set.) Four trains ran daily to and from Picton and trains also ran daily from Toronto and Ottawa. Other trains went up to Coe Hill one day and came back the next. Weekly trips were made to Tweed.

Secretary of chamber of commerce, Nostrand Sprague, and a long-time employee of the CNR, recalls that the day the Canadian Northern and CPR came to Trenton, a monster parade was held through the streets. In the parade were railway officials and local dignitaries, riding in open touring cars. When the cars got as far as the "outer station," (the junction) they sank to their hubs in the mud.

Free train rides to Toronto were the order of the day for the favored few and when the special train got as far as Colborne, it was derailed. The railway's guests cooled their heels for several hours while trains men got it back on the track.

$1,000 Damage Caused by Flash Fire

TRENTON—Trenton firemen were called out on Saturday afternoon to a flash fire at 15 Weeks Avenue, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips.

Damage to the home was estimated at approximately $1,000 and was confined to smoke damage, to the entire interior of the house. A large arm chair was destroyed.

No one was at home when the fire broke out and a neighbor turned in the alarm after seeing smoke billowing out under the eave troughs.

Six Persons Die in Fire At Cobden

COBDEN, Ont. (CP) — Six persons died Sunday when fire destroyed a 100-year-old stucco house in this Ottawa Valley community, 75 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The dead were identified as Ernest Lebeau, 65, who retired from the Canadian Pacific Railway three weeks ago; his sons Stanley, 26, and Irvin, 17; two grandchildren, Donalda, 7, and Larry, 5; and Edward Grundy, 24, a native of Cobden who lived in Cookville, Ont.

Mr. Lebeau's wife and another grandchild, John, 2½, escaped when Mrs. Lebeau threw the child out of a second-storey window into the snow and then jumped to safety herself.

Donald Lebeau, father of the youngsters, was on his job with the Ontario Hydro at the time. His wife was killed in a car accident two years ago.

A representative of the Ontario fire marshal's office in Ottawa was investigating the fire. Its cause had not been officially determined but an overheated oil stove is suspected as a possible source of the blaze.

Change in Economic Thinking

One of the surprises of the briefs being presented to the royal commission on taxation is that time after time preference is being expressed for indirect taxes, compared with direct taxes.

Latest organization to sing the praises of indirect taxes is the Rubber Association of Canada. The association finds it "highly significant" that France and other countries of Western Europe "whose dynamic economic growth has brought them unprecedented prosperity" collect a much higher proportion of their revenues from indirect taxes than do the United States, Britain and Canada.

What makes this love affair between businessmen and indirect taxes so striking is that it is only a few brief years ago that such taxes were an object of scorn.

Among other things, they were said to encourage government extravagance, since they could be collected without the consumer being aware of their effect on prices, to bear heaviest on the poor and to promote a situation in which taxes on taxes were commonplace.

Direct taxation, on the other hand, was praised as forcing people to face facts, placing the burden on the shoulders of those best able to pay and curbing demands for increased government expenditures because this was immediately reflected in increased taxes in a manner in which everybody could see.

Which is the correct story?

We have a sneaking hunch that neither is the plain, unadulterated truth. When the Rubber Association of Canada says that direct taxes inflate the selling price of all goods, we believe it; but a direct tax could have precisely the same effect. When the supporters of direct taxes say that they can be levied so that those best able to pay are required to do so, we believe them; but this can mean that these wealthier people have no money left to invest in the growth of our economy.

What is needed is the discovery of a form of taxation which provides governments with the money they have to have to operate necessary services, without at the same time having any restrictive effects on the growth of the economy. The King Arthur's day they hunted the Holy Grail, while Ponce de Leon searched for the Fountain of Youth.

More Trouble for Cartwrights

Pa Cartwright, Little Joe and Hoss are in trouble again, and this time there seems little hope that the absent Adam will be able to arrive in time for a last-minute rescue.

Lorne Green, Michael Landon and Dan Blocker of the TV show Bonanza refused to appear at the Mississippi Commerce and Industry Exposition at Jackson, Miss., when they learned that the audience would be seated in segregated fashion.

As a result the radio station which was sponsoring the exposition is threatening to sue them.

Artists of all types seem to include an unusually high number of men and women with a social conscience and the courage to take a stand on a wide variety of issues.

Perhaps this ought not to surprise us. Perhaps we ought rather to be surprised that this situation strikes us as surprising, for in past ages it was often taken for granted that the devotees of the arts should be in the forefront of all movements for reform.

The private broadcasting chains in the U.S., however, have been so overly cautious in avoiding any controversial themes that it comes as a shock to discover that performers in these media of radio and TV often share with other artists the ability to wax morally indignant and to use their personal popularity to further causes in which they believe.

General Motors, we may be sure, would never stick its nose into the fight over segregation—why should it, since both white men and black drive its cars?—but the Cartwrights are so indisputably identified with Chevrolet that the Jackson incident may well have results equivalent to sponsoring a show on the problems of desegregation.

One cannot help wondering whether the Cartwrights, several of whom are rumored to be sick of the show but tied to it by air-tight contracts, may not shortly decide to sell the ranch and go their several ways. Whether that would be the end of "Bonanza", or whether General Motors would come to terms with the new owner, is a point for speculation.

Sir Walter Started It

Hamilton Spectator

Many smokers don't seem to be taking the "cigarette flare" too seriously, according to reports. This is understandable, we suppose, for, after all, cigarettes have been taking a verbal thrashing for years and have always managed to keep giving like a billion-dollar bonfire.

When old Aunt Agatha was a slip of a girl, so lady-like smoked cigarettes, and not even a shady lady would puff them publicly. In truth, "the filthy weed" was "a coffin nail" and "the disgusting habit" was one of the roots of all evil.

It was more than 40 years ago that cigarettes were first called coffin nails, and that is just about 35 years before they were being blamed for many cases of lung cancer.

When Sir Walter Raleigh first smoked tobacco in the sixteenth century, his valet popped him, and thinking him afire, doused him with a bucket of water. Even then "the weed" was a target.

Years later, after Sir Walter imported tobacco, it was smoked in Canadian senator, the late Dan Riley, regularly chewing tobacco to his dentist, who was occasionally hitting the red carpet instead of the spittoon. But later grand old man of the Senate, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, and was at heart still a chewer of the "filthy weed."

The first famous lady to smoke in public was Rachel, wife of U.S. President Andrew Jackson. Actually Rachel smoked a pipe before she met Jackson, and continued to do so after their marriage in 1792.

There may be some who still say that fine-cut tobacco is not a lady, but the facts are that many well-born women smoked privately. During the nineteenth century, ladies of royal courts occasionally stole a puff from a perfumed cigarette. Later Turkish cigarettes were quite popular with the frilly classes.

The early years of the many young women smoke cigarettes in public. These women were called "flappers" and they were really quite daring. Their self-conscious naughtiness was their reaction to the struggle for the suffragettes and to the men's work many women did during the First World War.

It can be said that these flappers broke the line, for, ever since, women smokers have been on the increase. In 1938, for example, a tobacco company announced that it was able to build a new factory out of the profits of its sales to women smokers.

So it is that today there are more adult women than men smokers. And not only adults, but young children, too. Many of the latter, after all, are smokers, and countless thousands of children in their early teens contract a puffing habit.

And now it has come to pass that the cigarette scare has reached the point where "coffin nail" and "that filthy weed". Thousands of people are quitting their favorite cigarettes, never forever, and many for only a few days. Some are even getting sick and pipes. The day has arrived when a cigar-smoking woman is also a lady, a throwback to nineteenth century France when George Sand, the original lady beatnik gave her cigar smoke rings for the amusement of Frederick Chopin.

Sir Walter Raleigh, already immortalized by an American tobacco company, surely didn't know that he was getting the rest of us into. He is to blame for all this indecision.

Small World For Big Men

Manchester Guardian

In a question to the House of Lords demanding an end to Government grants for new houses which cannot accommodate beds in which "people of six feet four inches" can sleep comfortable, Lord Harrowby has a point. He is by no means the most oppressed minorities in Britain. It is not only a matter of beds: anyone who has the misfortune of being what shopkeepers refer to as "outsize" in the physical dimension — feet, chest, height, or girth — is liable to experience refinements of unthinking cruelty whenever he tries to buy something that will fit.

The trouble is that mass production of anything for personal use is governed by marketing statisticians, and statistics of national averages for this and that are always liable to be out of date. Men and women are getting bigger. Each succeeding British generation, mainly perhaps, because in childhood we eat more to eat than its parents had, is getting bigger and taller.

The minimum length of a divan or bed for anyone above 5 feet 6 inches or so is found, should be 6 feet 6 inches. For six-footers a bed should be 7 feet long, and there is a growing need for beds of 7 feet 6 inches — twelve inches over the occupant's length is little enough to allow for pillows and a civilized turn of sheet over the blankets. But it is not enough to have beds long enough for tall people beds have to fit into bedrooms, and bedroom doors have to be opened. The "Bilou" modern flat may fit the requirements of the twentieth century but it more nearly fits the people of the Middle Ages.

Canadians Grow Docile

Ottawa Journal

In August of 1940 a national yell of protest and laughter greeted the national registration. It was the prime Minister Mackenzie King had fun. One question on the form was what information work a man might do — and Mr. King answered it: "Leader of the Opposition."

Registration then was on. There any particular exception in which you would like to be specially consulted? He said many's the blush bloomed on the faces of stenographic help handling the answers to that one.

Twenty-three years ago, we were to remember, there remained a good deal of suspicion of governments' peering into people's business and we had not become thoroughly accustomed to census-takers and income tax forms. It is a healthful that in return for masses of personal information the Government supplies many services.

Now we are docile. Labor Minister MacEachen announces, as if it were hardly remarkable, a registration of all employed persons will begin on April 1. Whether they are covered by unemployment insurance or not. It is said these will number 7 million in the record - keeping required for the proposed pension plan and other social security measures.

In the independent days of yore there was the suspicion that if the Government had your name on a card, with a record of your capabilities, you were apt to be pushed around, made to fit some dictatorial, petty scheme of things.

Now a card in good order is the proof the world owes us a living.

Fine Sailors But Get Lost

National Geographic Bulletin

Once a year, men of Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific round sail into wide-open sea in longboats to collect wood on an isle 120 miles away.

The descendants of the Bounty mutineers are superb seamen, but they know little of navigation. Occasionally, they have almost missed their tiny goal. Sometimes they have had a long boat capsized on one voyage, the men lost all of their supplies and nearly starved before finding their way home.

The hazardous trip is necessary to gather sea-drift wood for souvenir carvings — big principal sources of cash income for the Islanders, who sell the wooden figures of fish and birds to passengers on passing ships. Ten Pitcairn boats a year, every three years when he called at Pitcairn on his regular cruises. But Captain Johnson retired from round-the-world travel in 1940.

Lula Marden, the National Geographic writer-photographer who last visited the remains of Bounty off Pitcairn, reports at first-hand the problem confronting the islanders. Marden explained it to Captain P. V. H. Weems, of Annapolis, Maryland-ite, who is leading the only authorities on navigation.

Captain Weems, a retired instructor at the Naval Academy and creator of the Weems System of Navigation, at once offered to solve the islanders' complete correspondence course in navigation.

Through a round robin of correspondence, it was arranged that Pastor Walter Ferris, a descendant of Fletcher Christian, the captain who lives on the island, would teach the Weems System of Navigation to the Islanders.

One night last spring, Mr. Marden showed his Pitcairn friends his film for Explorers Club, which is made up of members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Takoma Park, Maryland. The Pitcairn islanders were converted to Adventism in 1890.

Boat club officials made a collection among members to give the group a film, which they had been the subject of many experiments. If we cut a planarian in half, we find that each part develops into a whole worm; the front acquires a new body, and the back organizes a new head, complete with brain, eyes and feeler!

Then he further asks us to reflect on the meaning of the statement: "the back organizes itself a new head." What is the "self" which creates a new brain? And, moreover, a brain, he points out, complete with cells to guide the regenerated organism as a whole.

"It does not spring, from time to time," he adds, "to reflect deeply on such matters, a boil only because the process of regeneration helps to explain all those healing processes on which our own continued well-being depend every day of our lives, but above all because it brings us face to face with the secret of the 'self' which lies hidden in every single individual, in every separate creature.

The "seat of the soul" was thought by the ancients to be in a pineal gland; others placed it in the liver, in the heart, in various parts of the anatomy. Today we recognize that we can separate it with "mind" and "soul" and "self." But the self is not in organs, it is, rather, in the organization of life as a unit. To learn its secret science is not; and can never be, enough.

Linguacide Threatens

Baton Rouge Advocate

Here's a new word launched word that ought to be snuffed out, immediately before it gets into the dictionaries.

It seems to have first appeared in a news release put out by Manhattan College, Manhattan, in which it was stated that NASA "has definitized a contract" (for research on a certain rocket engine).

Presumably, the word means that all details of the research task have been worked out ("the parameters have been delineated," we've seen it perhaps say). If that's so, what in heaven's name is wrong with good old "finalized"? Or is that recent barbarism already obsolete?

Every space agency these days is a versatile spawning ground for neologisms, as is only to be expected. They are field on the frontiers of human endeavor. But so few of the words have been noted for their grace or euphony or for filling a need no other word could fill. "Impacted" and "destructed" are two ugly examples that come to mind.

If it keeps up, we'll really need a new word: "linguacide" — the murder of language.

To Your Good Health

Emotional Stress Affects Child's Organic System

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My nine-year-old grandson, the second of her children, is an affectionate child, but his feelings are hurt easily. He often thinks he is being mistreated.

His mother had tried every way, such as shame, telling him he is too big to do this, having him wash his soiled clothes, etc. It has done no good so far.

He realizes the problem. He has tears and changes his clothes without being asked. He had his yearly checkup recently. The doctor said he was OK—just waited too long to go to the bathroom. I can't believe that a child his age could be that neglectful day after day.

Members of the family have a nice home and live as well or better than average and the children have pride in their appearance. I would appreciate precise any suggestions; Mrs. K.A.

My suspicion would be, from your servant letter, that this is more than just "waiting too long to go to the bathroom."

The bowel, as well as other organs, can be affected by emotional stresses and this boy obviously has more than his share of these.

What they may be, I can't guess. But they are certainly present — else how do you explain his overcautiveness and his reactions?

I notice that you live in a community of about 5,000 or 6,000, and hence may not have a "child guidance clinic." There may be one in the larger city within reasonable range, or you may be able to find a psychiatrist who works with children.

Perhaps your doctor can direct you. Or the Provincial Mental Health Association will put you where the nearest help of this sort may be.

We still don't have nearly enough psychiatric facilities to meet our needs, but such conditions are improving.

The greatest benefits of psychiatry may not be in dealing with advanced, acute cases, but in applying the art and science to the lesser and earlier problems before they have become acute.

I am not a psychiatrist, but I would strongly recommend such counseling for this youngster.

Dear Dr. Molner: How can I test well water to know if it is good for drinking and cooking? — M. A.

There isn't a simple way. Most county health departments and all Provincial health departments have laboratories which will test water for you. If you send a sample in a bottle or jar to your county health officer, he will ask him what to do about a test.

(While you are waiting, if you boil water when in doubt before using it, you'll be safe enough.)

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the treatments if any for a ruptured navel? Would itching be connected with this? K.V.

The only treatment of value is surgery — assuming that it is a rupture which has continued past infancy. In early babyhood, this sort of flaw sometimes heals itself, but later on in life. There could be itching, no doubt, but this is not usual.

UNION CARBIDE

Trial runs are over and production is starting now in Union Carbide's new polyester laminate department. The fibreglass-reinforced plastic being produced has good electrical insulation, will be used by firms making transformers and similar equipment. Total staff of the department has not yet been settled but general superintendent is G. A. Bradford and foreman is Gordon Rice.

MIKA STUDIOS

New product coming from Mika Studios for sale in the United States: It's an end table surfaced with four of Nick Mika's painted ceramic wall plaques. The table will be sold in kit form, consisting of four plaques (different designs), wrought iron legs, cut-to-size wooden top and leatherette trim tape. Everything with the exception of the leatherette will be made or supplied in Belleville and the tables will be distributed by Souvenir Importers Co. of New York. Five hundred table kits have been ordered so far. Nick credits Jack Layton of Belleville with the idea for the tables.

Being considered as a possible product at Mika Studios is a set of bookends — pressed steel with ceramic wall tiles set in them. Nick has a sample or two at the shop now; is considering cost and potential sales price.

Should be a good year for car sales this year, if Nick's previous business is any indication. Eight car dealers within the past week have ordered fresh stocks of stickers to put on the cars they sell. It's an annual business but they're heavier this year than last.

QUINTE MACHINE AND REPAIR

New equipment at Quinte Machine and Repair in Trenton, a Heil-ave welding machine. The machine includes a normal AC-DC convertible arc welder with 300 amp. capacity, plus a device to pour an inert gas, (argon), over the area being welded. Reason for the argon is to prevent the weld from oxidation while the metal is still hot. Materials such as aluminum, magnesium and others that are highly reactive cannot be welded with normal equipment because the metal burns faster than it can be welded. The new machine, one of very few in the district, was delivered about a week ago according to W. J. Weightman, manager of the plant.

BATA

About 100 foreman and key employees of Bata Shoe are now taking "Bata Winter Study Courses", Saturday mornings at Batawa. The courses, covering quality control and production techniques, have been running nearly for 11 years now. Principal technical research and development at Batawa. A. Cekota founded the courses, is still running them.

ELECTRONIC CONTROLS LTD.

Bill McPherson of Electronic Controls Ltd. appointed the first official R.C.L. representative in the U.S. last week, to cover the state of Michigan. The representative, working out of Detroit will be complemented by representatives in the other six states during the next few years.

PROGRAM FIVE

Letters will be going out to local industries during the next few weeks, to tell them that Program Five's first course in office and building maintenance will be graduating next month. The letters, (which will be typed by students of Program Five), invite commercial-clerical course); will ask the cooperation of janitors in finding jobs for the graduates. There are 22 people in the graduating class, placements will be handled through the National Employment Service.

Other courses under Program Five, two in academic subjects one in each in welding and commercial - clerical will start about the middle of May. Enrollment figures show that 140 previously unemployables have been retrained by the program this year. Some students from the academic courses however, will be back at Program Five classes next year, to continue their upgrading.

Courses to be offered under electronics and restaurant services, (both were offered this year, but not enough qualified students enrolled). Program Five officials are also considering offering the nurse-assistant course, as offered to Quinte Secondary School days students, to Program Five students, according to program co-ordinator Leslie Reid. The course began this year as the only one of its kind in Eastern Ontario and one of only four in the province, but it is proving so popular and so valuable that several other communities in the area are studying it. Students are trained as nursing assistants at the school with some classes taken at Belleville General Hospital. If the course is also offered under Program Five, comments Mr. Reid, other hospitals in the area may be asked to help carry the teaching load.

O.M.C. BOATS

Production lines are going full blast at Canadian Marine in Trenton, producing the O.M.C. 17 inboard-outboard and the new O.M.C. 18 outboard boats. About fifty employees have been taken on at the plant so far, according to manager Jack H. Bearne. Employment may rise to 100 or more during the peak of the season.

Meanwhile, people at the plant are preparing for the big boat show in Toronto around the end of the month. Two new O.M.C. 16 hulls are to be shown in each of the shows and Bernie Ide and one will be surprised if they don't show the under-water configuration. One of the more familiar O.M.C. 17's will be on display at the booth. The 16 footers will be going to Toronto by transport once the booth is erecting schedule is completed, (handling things the size of boats in the building, the show has found it wise to demand that displays be stock-ed and erected according to a strict schedule). The O.M.C. 17 will go to the show on a smaller trailer, and will cause less trouble. The Johnson's booth at the show will be staffed by sales staff from Peterborough, but management of the Trenton plant plans a one-day visit to the show.

Dr. P. Jewett Attends Liberal Assoc. Dance

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford and Seymour Township Liberal Organization held a dance of Friday evening. Dr. Pauline Jewett arrived early in the afternoon and held personal interviews and conferences until early evening, later speaking at the dance.

A large number gathered to meet and confer with Dr. Jewett, and discuss privately problems both political and personal, some merely to wish her well and congratulate her on the arrangement. At the end of the day Dr. Jewett stated that it had been a most happy and satisfying one. Arrangements have also been made to meet the constituents in Wooler, Castleton, Hastings, Bewdley, Cobourg and Roseneath. Dr. Jewett felt that conferences such as these had a double value — it gave the people voters a personal approach to the sitting member. The idea is comparatively new in Northumberland riding and is being favorably received.

General Motors Had Its Best Year in History

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors Corp. in 1963 earned $1,382,000,000, a sum never before equalled in a calendar year by any corporation. Sales, likewise a record, totalled $16,500,000,000, GM reported today.

In summarizing what in many ways was an unprecedented year in the automobile industry, General Motors also reported new high marks in car and truck production, payroll, dividends paid and profit per share of common stock.

The only earnings achievement approaching the GM 1963 figure was the $1,474,404,000 in net income reported by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. for the 12 months ended Nov. 30. A. T. and T. has not yet given its figures for calendar 1963.

DIME DEPOSIT on success of Marching Mothers' campaign is made by Mrs. Marg Kvarda, with Mrs. Bev. Yeotes and chief organizer Mrs. Joan Bunnett (seated) helping to put finishing touches to Belleville March of Dimes.

March of Dimes Objective For This City Set at $6,000

These days around Belleville and vicinity a dime has the potential of $6,000.

That's the target set this year by the March of Dimes in the city — and every local piece is another drop in the achievement bucket.

The Provincial goal for 1964 is $780,000. Funds are badly needed to carry on the vital work of rehabilitating the adult disabled of this district.

Belleville is part of the Southeastern Ontario Branch and there are over 300 cases of disabled persons already known to the Ontario March of Dimes in the Belleville area. There are many more who have not yet come for help, say officials, not realizing that something might still be done for them in spite of long-standing disability. Those knowing of such cases are asked to suggest that they write the District March of Dimes office, 189 Union St. W., Kingston, Ont., and the caseworker will call on them. There are some people who cannot be rehabilitated for various reasons but the March of Dimes is anxious to be sure no one is missed who can be helped.

Meantime, February 3, is the night when Marching Mothers' canvass the area to round off the campaign. "Volunteers for that night are still being sought by chief organizer, Mrs. Joan Bennett.

BEEF and KIDNEY PIE

BY MARY MOORE

My sister-in-law's sister-in-law Nellie asked me for a recipe for Beef and Kidney Pie, adding that she wanted to return some of the hospitality she and her husband had received over the Christmas holidays. Nellie said she was tired of chicken and turkey and wanted something homey and good. She thought if she had a superb recipe for Beef and Kidney Pie it would be a new feather in her cook's cap.

So I made one that will serve 5 or 6 and served it to my crowd on Sunday evening.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Mixed Vegetable Juice; Sausage and Liver with Thin Milk Gravy; Mashed Potatoes; Brussels Sprouts; Canned Bartlett Pears; Icebox Cookies; Coffee.

BEEF AND KIDNEY PIE (with English Pastry):

Make English Pastry first: (Note: If desired plain pastry or biscuit dough may be used instead but lowers this to an ordinary-class Beef and Kidney Pie.)

2 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup good-quality shortening, ½ cup boiling water, 2 teaspoons vinegar or lemon juice, 1 egg yolk.

In a mixing bowl add the salt and baking powder to the flour. Add ½ cup of the shortening and cut in with pastry blender. In a small bowl pour the boiling water over the remaining ½ cup shortening to soften and melt it. Add vinegar or lemon juice and when cool enough, stir in the egg yolk. Stir this liquid mixture into the flour mixure to blend. Press it into a mass, cover and chill until ready.

Meat Filling: 1¼ lbs. beef kidney (1 large), 1½ lbs. lean stewing beef, ½ cup flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1½ tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 cups boiling water, 1 chicken bouillon cube, 2 tablespoon green onion flakes or grated onion.

Cut kidney in quarters lengthwise and trim out centre fat portion. Cut kidney into 1" or 1¼" pieces. Soak in 4 cups cold water for ½ hour. Cut beef into 1 or 1¼" pieces. In a paper bag mix together the flour, salt and pepper and dredge the beef in it. Melt the butter or margarine in large heavy pan. Brown the beef from flour and brown in fat. Drain and dry kidney pieces. Dredge in remaining flour in bag and add to beef in pot and brown it a little. Add the 3 cups boiling water, bouillon cube and onion, cover and simmer 1½ hours. Cool and chill.

Cut chilled dough in half. It is a lovely plastic dough and your warm hands will soon make it rollable. Roll out on floured board into a long oblong. Cut in half lengthwise and use long pieces to line sides of deep baking dish. Roll out second half of dough to fit top. Gash at centre. Turn cold meat filling into side-lined baking dish. Seal on gashed top crust. If desired brush with diluted egg yolk. Bake at 400 deg. F. for 15 minutes then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours.

Argyll Ch. Enjoys "Winter Fantasy" Event

A most popular and successful dance, "A Winter Fantasy," was held recently in the Armouries under the auspices of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E.

Regent Mrs. E. F. Smith, assisted by her husband, Col. E. F. Smith and Major and Mrs. A. Cunningham received the guests.

The setting, as suggested by the title, was a veritable winter wonderland. Silver lighted trees and natural trees and evergreens adorned the mess and dance floor.

Conveners for the dance and decorations were Mrs. R. Allen and Mrs. C. Bristol, and they are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts. The co-operation of all the members who, through the sale of tickets and assistance generally over needed, helped to make the evening a most enjoyable one.

A most necessary part of the planning was a bountiful buffet supper, consisting of cold meats and salads. The enjoyment of those showed evident appreciation of the conveners, Mrs. K. Willcocks, and her committee.

Lt. Ross Allen acted as master of ceremonies and a special vote of thanks is extended to him.

Members appreciate the support given by HDHQ of the different merchants who so kindly donated prizes for the dance.

A number of special dances helped to entertain the dancers, the following being the winners in the "Spot" dances: Mrs. Rayma Smith, Trenton; Mrs. M. Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie. A "Twist" contest created much interest and the winners were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Heaney; door prize winner was Mr. Jack Stewart, and raffle winner, Mr. Murray Sheppard.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA L.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, Monday, Jan. 27, 196

MAY A GUEST BRING A GUEST?

Love me, love my guests.

This is the attitude often taken by someone who's invited to a party and suddenly finds he has a guest of his own. For example, an old college chum may suddenly pop in out of nowhere, just as you're about to leave for an important engagement. You don't want to be rude and just walk out. So, the question is: Should you cancel your appointment at the last minute, which is hardly cricket, either, or simply take your new-found guest with you and hope the hostess has room for him in her heart — and at her table?

Being caught in the middle like this luckily isn't an everyday occurrence, but it does happen occasionally, and there are some tips on working yourself out of a situation:

A) Ask the unexpected guest — an acquaintance, for instance — just drops in as you're about to go out, there's really no reason to feel obligated about staying home or taking him along. Just explain the situation, and suggest he drop in again when you have time to visit.

ASK YOUR HOSTESS FIRST

Once in a while, the visitor may be someone you've been dying to see and rather than break your current appointment you feel you'd like to take him along with you to the party. Of course, you can't do it without asking your hostess first. But even then you pick up the phone, consider:

B) Is it a dinner party, and won't an extra guest upset the hostess' seating plans?

Is it a cocktail or cocktail party? Possibly she simply won't mind an extra guest, so you have a better chance of success in this case.

C) Is your guest the type who is out of place in a party and the kind of person the hostess would welcome with open arms? If it's a dinner party, you might be wiser to forget the whole idea, and suggest your guest curl up with a book and wait for a gab fest until you get home. If the hostess is a particularly close friend, though, you might go out on the limb and ask if she'd mind an extra guest if it's inconvenient in any she may prepare by voice her reservations and you'll have to along with her decision.

A cocktail party usually a no pitfall, and a buffet su to can usually be stretched to commodate one or two u If either is on the agenda, less hazardous to phone a ne ess at the last minute and If you may bring along an sional person. Chances are y meet with success and every will live happily ever after or, at least, for this evening

Generally, though, asking bring along an extra guest any party has its social pe So, before you embark on a reckless adventure, be sure you know your hostess and know y own guest. It's only when t three are a complete mist that the outcome will be pl ant and successful.

Bullet Jack Ruby Fired Destroyed Lee Oswald and Left History With Riddle

By BERNARD GAVZER

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The bullet Jack Ruby fired on Sunday, Nov. 24, 1963, destroyed Lee Harvey Oswald and left history with an unanswerable riddle:

Why was President Kennedy assassinated?

A mountain of evidence—circumstantial though it is—points to Oswald as the killer of the U.S. president. But before Oswald could begin to provide the answer to the riddle, Ruby slew Oswald, while millions watched on television.

Why did Ruby kill Oswald?

There have been quick answers:

He was insane with grief and killed impulsively to avenge the president.

He killed to get publicity for himself and the strip joint he operated.

He was part of a superplot. . .

Ruby's behavior in jail indicates he may be troubled by the question, too.

"He talks, to my, how he talks," says one of Ruby's visitors, "But not once have I heard him ask, 'What will happen to me.' He does ask, 'Do people approve of me?'

SEEKING ANSWER

"Just this week, he spoke with me nearly two hours, and over and over he talked about that Sunday morning. . . He goes over every single detail . . . as though he is trying to learn something or find something."

Prison routine hasn't cooled Ruby's long-time passion for keeping trim. With close to 185 frame, he's 15 over but exercise keeps him solid.

He swings between emotional etremes. Old Dallas acquaintances say "Ruby is the kind of guy who reads a newspaper and lives it. He reads about a kid getting polio or a dog getting run over, and he cries. The same way in a movie. If the good guy gets double-crossed, Ruby acts like it happens to him."

Most of all he worries about what people think of him.

"When he reads letters from people who tell him he did right, or otherwise compliment him," says one of his visitors, "his spirits go way up."

"Class" is an important word to Ruby.

PROSECUTION VIEW

A source close to the prosecution says:

"Ruby is a class-conscious nobody who saw an opportunity to do something that would put him in the public eye and even make him a hero. He wasn't insane. He was rational. But he figured wrong. He's not a hero; he's a heel. Because of fooling up history."

The evidence seems to agree. Indications are it will try to show that Ruby's preoccupation with class not only was irrational but at certain times bordered on insanity.

Ruby was the sixth of nine children born to Joseph Rubenstein, a carpenter from Sokolow, Poland, and his wife, Fannie. He was born March 25, 1911, in an area of Chicago known as the Maxwell Street Ghetto.

They called the youngster Jake.

In the Smith Elementary School yard, young Jake learned toughening games and how to fight the Italians who came down from Little Sicily.

His sister, now Eva Grant, remembers him as a kid who moved fast. She called him the "sparkplug," after a plug-horse in a popular comic strip. He also was called Jack.

MOVED OFTEN

"Sparkplug" became Sparky, a name that has remained with him, especially among his Chicago friends.

"Sparky was a real scrapper, even when he was 10," says brother Earl. "He was always getting into fights and winning 'em.'

The family began having troubles the younger kids couldn't understand. Joseph and Fannie separated in 1922. Sparky, Earl, Sam and baby sister Eileen were placed in foster homes.

Ruby reached confirmation age, 13, while in a foster home. But he never had a bar mitzvah, the traditionally vital event in Jewish life.

The elder Rubensteins became reconciled in 1925 and moved into a new flat on the west side. Sparky and the others had their first Thanksgiving turkey in this flat, sister Marian says.

The big event in Jewish social life was the Sunday softball game. Sparky was good at it.

ALWAYS SCRAPPER

"Sparky wasn't just good," says brother Earl, "He had that extra something. He was a scrapper, a go-go guy."

So it was no surprise that Sparky's first hero should be Barney Ross, late world welterweight and lightweight boxing champion.

"When I was in the amateurs, Sparky was with me," says Ross. "He'd come around to carry my bags and go in free at the club fights. He was with me the night I won the golden gloves in '29. I've been his friend ever since."

Sparky dropped out of high school when he was 16.

In 1933, Sparky went west, along with Benny Barrish and a few others from the neighborhood.

"I was fighting as a featherweight," he says, "and was working my way west by fighting. But when we got to Frisco, we all went into the canvassing business."

The newspaper paid the sales company from 75 to 90 cents for each one-month subscription. A salesman could make $15 a day, and a real hustler could even pick up $30.

GOOD SALESMAN

"Sparky was damn good at it," says Barrish. "He conned the doors for The Examiner and would tell people all kinds of stories."

Cooke was killed in December 1939 and according to a lawyer who was close to the situation, "it didn't seem like there was any room for Sparky any more. One thing I'm sure of is that he never was on the payroll of the Waste Material Handlers Union."

The union was expelled from the AFL-CIO during a corruption purge in 1957.

Ruby worked around Chicago "concessioning sporting events and concerts and things like that," as he puts it. Others translate this to mean he sold souvenirs, programs, etc., until he was drafted.

BECAME MECHANIC

He received training as an Army air corps mechanic at Republic Aviation Corporation's factory-training course at Farmingdale, N.Y. He emerged with a rating of "very satisfactory."

He saw service at five air fields in the U.S. Mustered out in 1946, he went to Dallas a year—later at the suggestion of Eva Grant, who had moved there.

They opened a night club called the Silver Spur on South Harwood Street. It subsequently was succeeded by a place called the Club Vegas. Backed in part by a friend, Ruby opened the Carousel, a brassy strip-tease joint in downtown Dallas.

Ruby, who changed his name legally from Jake Rubenstein to Jack Leon Ruby in 1948, soon had a reputation in Dallas as a guy who wanted class.

"He wanted to be liked, and he was," says Joe Cerrone, a hotel executive. "He'd do anything for you if he liked you."

His idea of the ultimate in class was a man who would dedicate his life to something, despite its heartaches and aggravations.

It was the search for class that drew him to a soft-voiced, gentle woman who now is secretary to an insurance company executive.

GENTLE WOOER

"We went together most in 1955 and 1956," she says. "Mr. Ruby and I talked often about marriage but we never became formally engaged. We began to drift apart and stopped seeing one another in 1959.

"He certainly was a gentleman to me. He was kind and considerate. Anything I would say about him would be nice."

But for all his gentlemanly behavior, he still was a fast man with his fists. He broke his hand in 1956 hitting a patron.

"Jack didn't like hecklers," says one of his strippers.

He was quick to tip police about shady characters, too.

"Ruby was no stool pigeon, but he was damn good about tipping the cops about drunks or police characters," says a source in the district attorney's office.

But Ruby stayed clear of serious trouble. There is no police record on him in Chicago or San Francisco, and the only marks against him in Dallas are for after-hour sales of beer.

Mostly, he seemed preoccupied with his four dachshunds. He often called them "my children." He had a special place for his dogs behind the stage of the Carousel.

As a rule, he left his apartment each day for a workout at the YMCA. He shared the apartment with George Senator, who describes himself as a wholesaler of postcards and an occasional ticket-taker at the Carousel.

Recently a visitor asked about his ambition in life. Ruby thought about it a while. Then he said:

"A success."

Missionary

there is no landing strip.

"Then we got a letter telling us she was dead—killed by an arrow," he said.

Bertha Miller from Glendale, California, who also reached Leopoldville today from The Congo Inland Mission's station at Kamayala, said she had been forced to flee because Mulele's men had set fire to the savannah (grass prairie) and the flames were sweeping down on the mission.

Buller told how he had helped bury three Belgian Roman Catholic priests slaughtered by Mulele's guerrillas and local villagers at Kilembe mission last Tuesday night.

WAS HORRIBLE

"It was horrible," he said with a shudder. The priests were hacked to death with machetes and their bodies mutilated.

The missionary said his Mukedi mission, a few miles north of Kilembe, had not been attacked.

"Mulele's men gave us permission to leave," he said. "The local chief took our side."

He said all villagers either sided actively with Mulele or followed him for fear of being killed by his partisans.

Until recently, Mulele was estimated to have between only 400 and 600 men under arms.

But latest reports from Kwilu indicated his forces were growing rapidly since he unleashed wholesale attacks on mission stations last week. Refugees said he was apparently trying to wipe out all traces of law and order in the region.

Congolese Planning Minister Cleophas Kamitatu declared that Mulele had captured the town of Idiofa in the east of Kikwit. Kamitatu's partisans control Kwilu's legal government and he is in close touch with the area.

LAUNCH OPERATION

Meanwhile, the United Nations began launching an armed-helicopter operation to evacuate all remaining missionaries who want to leave the strife-torn western province.

Idiofa is the first town to fall to Mulele. Last reports said it was garrisoned by fewer than 50 Congolese soldiers. Mulele's men were reported to have encircled the town last week.

The 34-year-old rebel leader began his revolt in Kwilu last summer. A western diplomat who visited Kwilu last week described the rebellion as a "textbook" Chinese Communist-style peasant uprising.

Mulele spent several months in Peking, where he had been envoy to Cairo of imprisoned separatist leader Antoine Gizenga, whose 1961 Stanleyville regime was backed by the Communist bloc.

In the past few days the revolt has begun to spread into neighboring Kwango Province to the south of Kwilu, where both Roman Catholic and Protestant missions have been attacked. Mulele was also reported by Kamitatu to be moving into Kasai Unity Province to the east.

Col. Mayer, 47-year-old native of Ottawa, was formerly deputy director of public relations at army headquarters in Ottawa.

He was promoted to lieutenant - colonel from major last May when he was given a one-year assignment with the United Nations Emergency Force in The Congo at Leopoldville. One of his main qualifications for his liaison post with the Congolese National Army is that he is bilingual.

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP - Reuters) — Missionary sources here said Sunday a missionary couple, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barkman of Steinbach, Manitoba, were safely evacuated Thursday from Mukedi mission station in strife-torn Kwilu Province.

British soldiers disarmed 1,000 men of the 1st Battalion of the Uganda Rifles in a dawn raid Saturday, 20 mutineers were said to have been arrested. Command of the battalion was handed over to an African.

Uganda's Prime Minister Milton Obote, who called in the British forces, imposed press censorship in his country.

The main buildings in Kampala, the capital, were guarded by steel-helmetted police and cars were checked at police roadblocks on the highway to Jinja. One company of the Staffordshire Regiment is holding Jinja Barracks. The remaining British troops pulled back to Kampala and Entebbe.

Commandos who attacked the barracks near Dar es Salaam following a mutiny Jan. 20 were reported searching for about 70 African soldiers who escaped with their weapons.

Some Tanganyika soldiers gave themselves up at police stations after an appeal by President Julius Nyerere. Others marched to their barracks to surrender and 100 were detained for questioning.

A spokesman at the British East Africa command post in Nairobi said "This has been a day of settling in for British troops in East Africa. Everywhere is quiet."

The spokesman said no evidence had been found that the three mutinies were concerted rebellion but investigations were continuing.

Asked how long British troops were likely to remain in their present positions in East Africa, the spokesman said: "Our strategic reserve already is badly stretched and we want to get them out as soon as security requirements will allow."

Britain now has a total of about 2,400 troops in Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda, about 2,300 of them in Kenya, the nub of British power in East Africa.

Successful Living

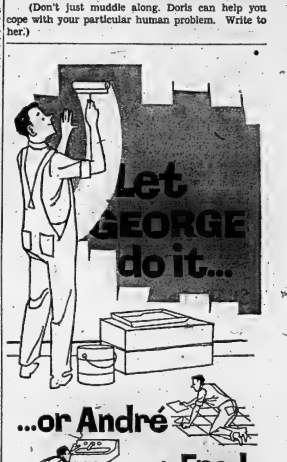
Adult Has Great Faith In Younger Generation

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — You are heavily on the side of parents, I am afraid. I refer to a letter in which you advise a 13-year-old that she cannot yet expect to take care of herself, and that she should stop fighting with her parents.

What if you had told this child that girls of 13 have frequently been in positions of immense authority as queens of Egypt, had been successful mothers, and had been forceful influences on heads of state at various times in history? It could have been said that this is unusual — even frowned upon — today, with the result that most of us are asked to postpone the gratification of our most obvious desires until legal adulthood.

Meanwhile, she obviously has some self-knowledge. Why not turn being "boy crazy" to some account and use the time between now and the approved age of discretion to a dispassionate examination of the male sex? To close off all avenues of release is like screwing the lid down on a boiling saucepan. — FAITH IN OUR YOUTH.



DEAR FAITH —»One glance at my heavy stack of mail from Canadian girls and boys and it would occur to you that they feel I am on their side. Actually, I pull hard for better understanding between generations.

I too find that young people respond well to any challenge. But I still don't want a 13-year-old to put her head in a noose by striving for 16-year-old status, as it is understood where she is, namely in Canada.

You're right that emotions need release. But can this be managed through any study which is "dispassionate?"

A shift of France and eight other members would give Communist China a simple majority in the assembly. This is not impossible, but Peking supporters have a more difficult problem.

They must either muster enough votes for a two-thirds majority—required by an assembly decision in 1961—or they must reverse that procedural ruling as a simple majority would decide. Either course would require a more sweeping change of votes than appears likely this year.

The 1961 vote in favor of the two-thirds rule was 61 in favor, 34 against and seven abstaining. To reverse this decision at least 14 delegations would have to change positions. The vote to seat the Chinese Communists that year was 36 in favor, 48 against and 20 abstaining.

Word that France was about to recognize Peking brought predictions that most of the French-speaking African countries would follow. The first one to announce its position, however, said it had no intention to change its policy. This was the Malagasy republic.

In Washington the state department called France's action "an unfortunate step" and reaffirmed intentions to stand by the nationalist regime.

France is the second major U.S. ally to recognize Communist China. The other was Britain, which opened diplomatic relations early in 1950, before the Korean War. But the Chinese have never agreed to exchange ambassadors with Britain. The top official of the British mission in Peking is a charge d'affaires.

The state department said French recognition was particularly unfortunate since it came "at a time when the Chinese Communists are actively promoting aggression and subversion in Southeast Asia and elsewhere."

President de Gaulle's government had informed the United States that it would soon recognize the Peking regime, U.S. officials made no secret of their opposition, and President Johnson told a press conference Saturday his government had given its views to France along with an estimate of its general effect on the Atlantic alliance and the free world in general.

Life Membership Given Premier By Press Club

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Premier John Roberts met many of the city's journalists informally here Saturday night and told them he believes newspapers, radio and television have a "very large part" in creating an informed electorate in Canada.

People now know what is going on," he told a gathering at the London City Press Club, where he was presented with a life membership by Club President Robert G. Howe.

Recalling that some people voted for one party in the last federal election and for a different party in the provincial election, Mr. Roberts said: "This indicates to me that we are achieving a very informed electorate . . . able to change their mind and make up their mind. The press, radio and TV can take a lot of credit for this."

"I see changes in our political life as a result of the vastly wider dissemination of news. I am aware of the very large part these news media play in our life."

Pet Hates Around Campus Are Called 'Phony Follers'

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've heard considerable rumbling on campus as a result of that letter signed, "Betty Co-Ed." It seems Betty polled her sorority sisters then sent you a list of their major beefs against college men.

You offered Joe College equal time and space. I haven't taken a poll but I've sat in on enough bull sessions to know what guys hate most about dames. The monster gripe is the girl who won't let you get near her because it might wreck her hairdo.

Last week I had a date with a doll who whipped out a lace hairnet when I went to kiss her goodnight. She reminded me of my grandmother. And that's exactly the kind of kiss I gave her, too. — BROWN HOWL.

FROM BOSTON — The pet hates in Beantown and surrounding territory are what we men call "phony follers." They are, in order of their offensiveness:

(1) falsies
(2) girdles
(3) false eyelashes
(4) wigs
(5) white lipstick.

MICHIGAN STATE — My candidate for jerk of the year is the female who mooches cigarettes. It's bad enough to see a dame smoke but when she insists on smoking my cigarettes all evening I do a little burning myself.

STANFORD — Down with the frail who snuggles, coos, sighs, makes with the come-on, does everything but give you an engraved invitation. Then, when you do what comes naturally — pow — right in the kisser. Teasers should be banished from the face of the earth.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY — My Number One gripe is the telephone at dorms and sorority houses. I'd like to have a dime for every time I just gave up in sheer disgust and called an in-town girl whose telephone was free.

NOTRE DAME — Speaking only for myself I nominate as Pill of the Year the girl who insists on pumping a man for information about what other girls do. I can't imagine why they'd be interested, but an awful lot of them are.

UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA — Thumbs down on the girl who says when you ask for a date: "I will have to let you know." Any idiot can translate that line. It means in plain English, "If I don't get a better offer in a few days I'll settle for you, Bub." When I get this sort of stall I chop her dead.

PENN. STATE — we hate the date who is late. Especially if it means beatin' the gums for 30 minutes with her old man or her kid sister while she's up there putting on a fourth layer of barn paint or spraying her head with glue.

REED COLLEGE — My loudest bleat is against the dame who, when the romance is dead as a mackerel, trots out your letters, notes, pictures and other love relics and entertains her girl friends with them.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON — I can't stand the girl who doesn't know her limit and gets sick in your car. Usually this happens when she switches from beer to martinis or goes to vodka from bourbon. Anyway it's a mess and the chick who does not know better gets no second chance with me.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I. O. O. F. Will Contributes to Peace Gardens

STIRLING — During the month of January all Independent Order of Odd Fellows Lodges in North America are sponsoring the various ways to provide $10,000 for the erection of entrance gates for the International Peace Gardens which is nestled in the Turtle Mountains on the border of North Dakota and Michigan. It is hoped to have the dedication ceremony on July 26, 1964.

The Peace Gardens combines natural beauty with a central area of flower borders and landscaped sections. The original idea was planned in 1928 by the late Harry Moore of Islington, Ontario. His plan was presented to the National Association of Gardeners of America and leading horticulturists have worked on the idea. The garden is now incorporated under the laws of New York State. Many organizations have plots and picnic areas in the Turtle Mountains and this includes a bird bath in memory of the late Mrs. Alfred Watt, first president of the Associated Country Women of the World.

The three lodges in Stirling I.O.O.F. Encampment and Rebekahs are sponsoring a card party on January 29 in the lodge hall with substantial cash prizes. The proceeds are for this special project.

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander

The man knew and loved baseball. That much was apparent after listening to him for a very few minutes.

He talked freely and with sincerity to a cluster of Sales and Adders and their guests following a club meeting here last week.

The man's name is George "Sparky" Anderson and he is the field manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, baseball variety. He was guest speaker at Sales and Ad but proved far more impressive in his informal confab with admirers following the official part of the evening.

Anderson was named field manager a couple of weeks back, although the move has been in the making since the spring of 1963. He wears his appointment gracefully now, but then why not—the season is just in the talking stage at this point.

Six or seven years back, maybe less, the Leafs were assured of somewhere around 14,000 fans for a Sunday afternoon twin bill.

It's a very different story now. The club loses ball games and few know or care. The fact that the stadium is "the coolest spot in town" fails to entice more than a few thousand—on a good day.

Anderson, at 30, the youngest field manager in the pro game, knows full well that his new job will not be an easy one. "No, it will take more than a winning ball club to bring the fans back out.

"Promotion has a lot to do with it—but not everything," Anderson continued, but I hope we can find the answer somewhere. We will have a real good club this season, should win it all in fact, with help from Washington and the Braves. But I'm afraid our crowds will not come close to those of a few years ago. Weather is another major problem up here in the north.

"Sparky" spoke fondly of baseball, although it has not been all that good to him. Winner of the "Silver Glove Award" as a top fielding second baseman, he was never able to stick in the majors despite several chances. The sport also keeps him away from "that warm, beautiful and dependable weather" in his home state of California a good part of the year.

Anderson was sure-fire big league when we watched him make sparkling play after play for Montreal Royals in 1958. He got his shot the next season but not with the parent Dodger squad. Traded to Philadelphia Phillies, "Sparky" was soon to find himself back in triple "A" ball.

The greying young manager spoke of the great men in baseball. "Robin Roberts is one of the finest fellows I have ever met, on or off the diamond," he offered to several youths standing near. "Stan Musial ranks second to none. Man, there is one great guy. He always stuck with the rookies, made them feel like part of the team.

"Also in the offices, fellows like Branch Rickey and Bill Veeck, truly great men of the game. Charlie Dressen is another. He's a little man who is and will go on proving until the day he dies that a little man can be just as good as a big one. You have to get to know Charlie to appreciate him. I did not like him at first but now I have nothing but respect and admiration for that guy.

"These are the kind of men who 'made' baseball. They have color, guts, are smart and know how to handle all types of men. And, most important, they know the right moves to make and when to make them. Rickey proved that when he broke the color line with Jackie Robinson," continued Anderson.

No phase of baseball was bypassed during the lengthy chat. "The National League is the strongest in the world today," he said, "but the Yankees are probably the greatest single team."

Anderson may or may not lead the Leafs to a pennant. He may or may not be able to fill the ball park again. His first job as a manager could depend on one or both of these matters. That's the way things are in the rough world of pro sport.

"Sparky" is the kind of fellow you can't help hoping makes it.

Scores Five For Braves

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ray Cullen scored five of St. Louis's 12 goals as the Braves gained two weekend victories in the Central Professional Hockey League.

The Braves defeated visiting St. Paul Rangers 7-5 Saturday and blanked the Wings 5-0 at Cincinnati Sunday.

In the other weekend game the Bruins edged the Braves 5-4 at Minneapolis Sunday.

The Big Seven

Two weekend goals gave Bobby Hull a total of 32 in the National Hockey League's point-gathering competition.

His teammate with the Chicago Black Hawks, Stan Mikita, picked up an assist and leads in total points with 61 as well as assists with 37.

Hull is three points behind followed by Montreal's Jean Beliveau who was inactive, the result of a sprained left wrist.

Bruins Fire Double-Barrel Blanks

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Break up Boston Bruins?

It might be a trifle premature for any such suggestions.

But the Bruins are upsetting everything in the National Hockey League instead of bedeviling the way a drag-end club should.

In weekend play they swept to a pair of shutout victories.

Add that to the resurgence of New York Rangers, who rate ord be shares with Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion and retired Maurice Richard.

only a notch higher in the standings, and indications are that it's going to be a frantic struggle for those last couple of playoff positions.

The Bruins, backed by Eddie Johnston's fine goaltending, upended Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0 before a full house of 13,909 fans in Boston Sunday night after grabbing the Canadiens 6-0 in Montreal Saturday night.

At the same time Jacques Plante's brilliance carried the Rangers to a win over the Leafs. Although outshot conclusively in both games, Plante blanked Detroit Red Wings 3-2 before a crowd of 15,925 in New York Sunday night after trying the Leafs 1-1 in Toronto Saturday.

TUSSLE AT TOP

The Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks were unable to resolve their private tussle for the No. 1 position in the standings. They produced a 2-2 standoff Sunday night in Chicago before 16,110 fans, the biggest NHL gate of the season.

In the other weekend game, a Saturday afternoon affair in Detroit, the Red Wings beat the Hawks 5-3 on two goals by Bruce MacGregor in the third period.

Chicago's Bobby Hull, who seems to be getting harder to stop each time out, found the mark once in each of his club's games and ran his production for the season to 32 goals.

He has a working edge of 29 games to crack the 50-goal record he shares with Montreal's

Maurice Richard.

Toronto follows with 51 and the Red Wings are 10 behind. Two more back lie the Rangers. Then comes Boston with 33.

IMPRESSIVE STRING

But the Bruins are the hottest club in the league right now. The last seven times out they have rolled up the score at tie, including an 11-0 fiasco in Toronto.

In a 12-game stretch, the Rangers have won eight and tied one.

The two weekend shutouts gave Johnston five for the season and a share of the NHL lead in that department with Chicago's Glenn Hall.

In Boston Sunday night, Johnston stopped 26 shots in Montreal Saturday night, it was 28.

Gendron was a central figure Saturday night in a third-period brawl in Montreal that led to 94-minute's assessment in penalties.

OTHERS JOIN IN

His jostling with Montreal's tough rookie, John Ferguson in front of the Boston net touched things off. Two other sets of players squared off. Everyone got in a couple of good blows but there was no perceptible damage.

Andy Hebenton, at 34 the oldest of Boston's forwards, and Gary Dornhoefer, at 20 the youngest, popped in two goals each for the Bruins. Dornhoefer, running his total to five goals in nine games, also collected an assist on a goal by Murray Oliver rounded out the attack.

It was the first win against Montreal for Boston in 10 games this season.

Earl Ingarfield's goal at 14:58 of the final period powered the Rangers to the win over Detroit. Donnie Marshall set it up by stealing a Detroit pass at centre ice.

Camille Henry counted twice for the Rangers, Doug Barkley added a goal for the campaign—while Alex Delvecchio and Gordie Howe beat Plante in a 48-shot attack. It was No. 15 of the season for Howe.

Henry's goal early in the third period Saturday night gave the Rangers the tie, with Plante making 37 stops to 19 for his Toronto counterpart, Johnny Bower.

LATE OUTBURST

In Chicago Sunday, the Hawks potted both their goals in the final seven minutes to salvage the tie, Hull and defenceman Pierre Pilote making good. Hull's tying marker came at 17:36.

The Canadiens unleashed only 16 shots at Hall. But Yvan Cournoyer beat him on a power play and Red Berenson got another goal while on penalty-killing work.

Cournoyer was up on call from Montreal's junior Canadiens farm club. Chicago's Phil Esposito was in the penalty box when he hit, with his junior teammate Andre Boudrias at slating.

In Detroit Saturday, Alex Delvecchio's two goals and one by Eddie Joyal rounded out the Detroit attack with MacGregor's two.

Hull, Esposito and Billy Hay were the Chicago goal-getters. It was Esposito's first NHL

Records Fall At Legion Meet

WINNIPEG (CP)—One world indoor track record was broken here Saturday night while three Canadian records fell and one was tied at the Royal Canadian Legion's International Meet of Champions.

Tom Robinson of The Bahamas established the world mark and broke Canadian record in doing it in the men's invitational 300 metres run when he zipped the distance in 35 seconds flat.

Robinson reduced the 36.4 standard held jointly by George Short of the University of Alberta and Larry Dunn of Artizona.

Earlier, Robinson tied the 6.1-second Canadian 60-yards record, held by a number of other athletes, including Harry Jerome of Vancouver, Olympic star, for second with Brooks Johnson of Chicago in 6.2 seconds.

Perhaps the most spectacular record to fall was Bruce Parry O'Brien of Pasadena, Calif., when he put the shot 61 feet two inches, almost nine feet farther than the existing mark.

BROKE 61 TIMES

O'Brien tossed the 16-pound missile six times and broke the record on all six heaves. The record was 51 feet 9¾ inches set by Francis Hircock of Nebraska State.

Behind O'Brien, with a toss of 55 feet 8¼ inches, was Yul Yost of the Canadian Athletic Club and Yugoslavia. Yost was just ahead of George Woods of the University of Southern Illinois.

The gruelling men's two-mile was taken by Chris Williamson of the University of New Brunswick in 8:50.8, ahead of Ireland Sloan of Kansas State Teachers.

Bill Crothers of Toronto clipped a full second off the Canadian 600-yards mark as he blazed up a 1:09.7 clocking. Frank Tomoe set the 1:10.3 record in Hamilton in 1962.

At the same time, Crothers pulled Bill Cornell of Great Britain and Southern Illinois to a British open mark of 1:11.1 and second place. Both were paced through the first 400 yards by Tom Bowden of Oklahoma Baptist, who ran himself out of contention.

WINS HURDLES

The meet also featured a new mark for the men's 60-yard low hurdles, won in 7.2 seconds by Pete Poripah of Grand Forks, N.D.

Jan Underwood of Oregon State sped to first place in the men's 1,000 - yards event in 2:13.8, ahead of Jamaica's George Kerr, who switched from the 800.

Three Teams Win Twice In A.H.L.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Springfield Indians, Cleveland Barons and Pittsburgh Hornets had one thing in common in the American Hockey League during the weekend.

The three teams enjoyed double victories. The last-place Indians defeated Rochester Americans 4-2 Saturday then dumped Hershey Bears 7-2 Sunday. Both games were before hometown fans.

While winning two in a row is an oddity for the Indians, at the bottom of the Eastern Division, it's old stuff for the Barons and Hornets, currently battling it out for top spot in the Western Division.

The Barons battered the Bisons 8-2 on Saturday then edged them 3-2 in Buffalo Sunday. Pittsburgh defeated Baltimore Clippers 6-4 at home Saturday and had little trouble in Providence Sunday, dumping the Reds 5-1.

In other action Hershey scored a 6-3 win over Providence Saturday and the eastdivision leaders, Quebec Aces, edged the Americans 4-3 in Rochester Sunday.

Says Canadians In Hockey 'Cold War'

Habs, Marlies Tie

Hawks Blank Kitchener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks are making a determined run for a second-place finish in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

They've piled up a long way to go, to overtake Montreal Junior Canadiens, eight points to be exact, but the Hawks are riding a six - game winning streak.

They polished off the last-place Kitchener Rangers Sunday 6-0 while the Canadiens and the league-leading Toronto Marlboros were held to ties.

In Sunday's other encounter, Oshawa Generals dumped the fourth - place Peterborough Petes 8-4.

Toronto tied 3-3 with Hamilton Red Wings and Montreal tied 4-4 with Niagara Falls Flyers.

St. Catharines outplayed and outshot the Rangers, scoring three times in the first period, three times in the second and twice in the third. Art Graham and Bob Lind led the way with two goals each. Ken Laidlaw and Chuck Kelly added the others.

Hamilton earned the tie with Marlboro with only 13 seconds remaining in regular play on a goal by Nick Libett. Peter Mahovlich and Jim Peters counted the earlier goals.

'In Beautiful Shape'

Soviets Beat 'Old Pros'

◆ INNSBRUCK (CP) — Larry Regan of Ottawa, former National Hockey League forward playing his second year with the local Innsbruck team, says the Russian Olympic hockey team is in such good physical condition that it "will be hard to beat" when the winter games open Wednesday.

The Innsbruck squad, top-heavy weight Canadians brought in from other European clubs, defeated the Russian seven for two periods Saturday night before bowing 7-2 in an exhibition game.

Regan said later the Russians have "a lot more power that's hard to match."

The score was 2-2 until the Russians added two goals for five third-period goals.

"They are in beautiful shape," said Coach Harold Regan, who started with Boston Bruins in 1957 and two years later with Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Innsbruck team had in its lineup Jack MacDonald, who was with Penticton Vs when they won the world title in 1955.

For the Saturday game Jack Simon of Kitchener, Dell St. Germain of Edmonton and Don Longhalbe of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., joined the club from other European teams.

Queen's University Golden Gaels, spearheaded by guard Doug Evans's 22 points, dumped McGill University Redmen 60-46 at Montreal and University of Waterloo Warriors set their winning streak at five games, trouncing McMaster University of Hamilton 70-50, in Osler league action.

Carleton University Ravens defeated Bishop's University 58-33 in a close-checking Ottawa-St. Lawrence Intercollegiate basketball game at Lennoxville, Que., Saturday.

And at Toronto, University of Toronto Blues dumped Rochester Institute of Technology 85-60 in an exhibition game.

Maroons Drop Pair

Dogs, Komets Split Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs weren't given much chance when the International Hockey League opened last fall but they're holding on by their own—right on the middle rung of the seven-team circuit.

In fact, they have a 30-30 record with 17 wins in 34 games. Windsor played true to form again during the weekend, splitting a pair of games with league - leading Fort Wayne Komets, losing 5-4 at Fort Wayne Saturday and winning 5-4 on home ice Sunday.

In other action Saturday, Muskegon Zephyrs blanked visiting Chatham Maroons 5-0 and Des Moines Oak Leafs upset second-place Toledo Blades 4-2.

On Sunday, the Blades bounced back to wallop the Oak Leafs 6-1 at Des Moines and Fort Huron completed Chatham's winless weekend dumping the visiting Maroons 5-3.

SCORES TWICE

Joe Conners scored a pair as the sixth-place Oak Leafs came within a point of the fifth-place Maroons Saturday. Jere Ambelle and Minnie Menard got singles and Bert Moiseyn while Moe Morissette and Rich Brown replied for the Blades.

Bruce Gamble and Jerry Jablonski fired two each as the Blades came back to defeat Oak Leafs Sunday and keep pace with points behind the Komets. Walter Bradley and Chick Chalmers replied for other Toledo marksmen.

Eight-School Tournament

Moira Matmen Place 3rd

Competition was at a high level at West Hill Collegiate, Scarboro, Saturday, when wrestlers from eight high schools throughout the province vied for top honors.

The host team captured four first place trophies and sufficient 2nd, 3rd and 4th places, to accumulate 108 points, well ahead of second place Kirkland Lake and third place Moira Secondary School, who scored 77 and 71 points, respectively.

Other teams present were: Listowel, 47 points; East York Collegiate 35; Kitchener 27; Victoria Park 24, and Bathurst 23 points.

The Trojans from Belleville gained two championships, three second places, one third first and two 4th places in accumulating the total of 71 points, which placed them third.

Most exciting match of the day was the battle for the 130-lb. championship between Wayne Allen of West Hill and Len King of Moira. At the end of regulation time the bout was tied 0-0, after six minutes of excellent wrestling. In the first overtime period King gained a reversal and a near fall for 5 points. He then went on to completely control Allen and won the match 5-0.

Other Trojans placing in the first four were:

Says Former NHL Referees

Told How To Call Penalties

TORONTO (CP) — Two former National Hockey League referees said Sunday they were dictated to by league executives on how to call penalties.

Dalton McArthur and Red Storey said in a television interview that they often failed to call obvious penalties on orders from NHL officials.

They were interviewed by columnist Scott Young on the CBC television program Big Question Week. NHL president Clarence Campbell is to appear on next weeks program.

McArthur recounted a Boston-New York game when without the game meant a Stanley Cup playoff berth for the Rangers, $200 dollars was told to call "good penalties for New York by referee-in-chief Carl Voss.

"Good penalties" in referee language, he said, means calling only those infractions that were a put to everyone watching the game. McArthur said he took the instructions to mean he should refrain from calling and close Ranger infractions because the officials were keen to win.

WORK FOR BOX OFFICE

"Do you mean that much of the rule enforcement in the NHL is for the benefit of the box office?" asked Young. The referee referee agreed.

Storey recalled that when Montreal Canadiens were the dominant team of the NHL a few years ago, referees were told to call "good penalties" against the visiting teams.

"If you called all penalties it would have ruined the game," said Storey. "You gave the edge to the visitors."

McArthur was fired by the eight will qualify for the championship Group A bracket and the gold medal.

The Canadians are expected to breeze past the Yugoslavs, taking part in their first Olympics, while Norway tackles Switzerland in another qualifying match tonight.

The six remaining qualifying games are scheduled Tuesday.

The schedule makers figure that Russia, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, the United States, Germany, Norway and Finland will enter Group A.

Playing a major upset Switzerland, Yugoslavia, Italy, Japan, Romania, Poland, Hungary and Austria will be in the consolation B group.

Both groups are round-robin tournaments with each country playing the others in its group once.

The championship competition starts Wednesday following the opening ceremony for 1,000 athletes from 32 countries.

SOME EXPECT TROUBLE

Canada and the favored Russians are scheduled to meet Saturday, Feb. 15, and some hockey officials fear ill feeling between the Canadians and Russians may bring trouble on the ice.

The Russians claim the Canadians played too roughly in their pre - Olympic European tour. The Canadians lost to the Russian national team 8-1 in Moscow and were beaten by Brno by the Czech Olympic squad 5-0.

Art Potter of Edmonton, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association who accompanied the Canadians on the tour, said the Russian charges were "absolutely wrong."

"If anything, it was the Russians and Czechs who broke rules and got away with it," said Potter.

Canadian teams are being used for political propaganda in Russia and Czechoslovakia, Potter said.

"Hockey should not be used as a cold war item and this is being done whenever Canadian teams visit these two countries. It's about time we took a good look at any suggested tours behind the Iron Curtain. Certainly Canada and our players are given a bad name."

'CHARGE WAS WRONG'

Potter said the Canadians played exceptionally clean hockey throughout the tour. The charge carried by Tass, the official Russian news agency, that Rev. David Bauer, the Canadian coach, failed to teach his team "meekness and how to behave correctly on the ice" was labelled as "absolutely wrong" by Potter.

"In Russia and Czechoslovakia Im convinced the Canadians not only played against the men on the ice but also the timekeeper and goal judge. This is not intended as an excuse for the many instances the lights weren't flashed when we scored obvious goals and received penalties for no apparent reason."

The goal posts were not fastened to the ice and Canadian defenceman Doug Mohns was most surprised person in the game in the Czech game when he leaned against a post. The nets moved about, a foot and Broderick was promptly given a minor penalty.

Told How To Call Penalties

NHL prior to this season while Storey quit in 1959 after he was scribbled by Campbell for events that occurred during a wild brawl in Chicago.

McArthur said his firing resulted from an incident in Chicago when Canadiens' coach Toe Blake was given a penalty later fined $2,000 by Campbell.

He said from that time on, the number of games he was asked to referee declined until he was told his services were no longer required.

Both former referees agreed with Young that the league does not want good player or referee, in the league who will not conform to the system.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Despite icy track and blizzard conditions, 2,443 patrons attended the second winter sulky season at the Western Fair Raceway here Saturday and didn't have to twist hands in their pockets just to thwart the cold.

They bet a total $76,251 during the nine race card; topping the previous week's total for eight races by $14,000.

Feature race of the card was the Invitation Trot and Pace, a $200 dash, won by Adios Yates with Wes Coke at the reins. Adios Yates and Coke also won the first session's invitation.

Outsider Port Vale Scores Upset

Liverpool Held To Draw

LONDON (Reuters) — Liverpool, joint favorite to win the English Football Association Cup, was held to a scoreless draw on its own ground by 1,000-to-1 outsider Port Vale in the Cup's fourth round Saturday.

Liverpool, also challenging for the English League's first-division championship, was shaken out of its stride by the quick-tackling third - division club and was fortunate not to be at least a goal down at half-time. The replay is today.

There were few surprises. Bedford, the only non - league club left in the competition was well beaten 3-0 by fourth-division Carlisle United.

Fourth - division Aldershot, which knocked out Aston Villa in the last round, put up a good fight against Swindon Town and there were no goals at half-time. Swindon finally won 3-1.

The other cup favorite, Manchester United, was a 4-1 winner over Bristol Rovers.

EARN REPLAY

There was plenty of excitement at West Bromwich, where the home side after being 3-1 down at half-time, scored twice in the second half to earn a replay with Arsenal.

Morton's great victory run in Scotland came to an end Saturday. It was beaten 3-1 by Celtic in the second round of the Scottish Football Association Cup. The loss was Morton's first defeat this season.

Rangers beat Duns 9-0.

'Not A Good Challenger'

Liston Gets 'Lip' Welcome

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)— Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston arrived Sunday, got a loud-mouth reception from challenger Cassius Clay, and said he doesn't believe Clay deserves a shot at the world title.

"I don't think he's a good challenger," Liston said. "They rated him No. 9, we gave him a chance. But I don't have anything to do with the rating."

Before leaving Las Vegas, where he did his early training for the Feb. 25 fight with Clay in Miami Beach Convention Hall, Liston said this would be his first "grudge" bout.

His trainer, Willy Reddish, said Liston was enraged because Clay, speaking at a Black Muslim meeting in New York, commented that Liston was "trading with white men" in Las Vegas while Clay was working at Miami Beach among Negroes.

Clay also remarked that Liston "wanted to rent a house in a white neighborhood." The champion recently cancelled plans to rent a $40,000 home in a white neighborhood.

"Clay ought to mind his own business," Liston growled, "and leave mine alone."

When Liston's plane landed at Miami International Airport, Clay stood on the ramp, shouting, "let him out of there. Let him out." Clay had five stooges making a show of holding him away from the champion.

When Liston emerged from the plane, he turned a bored look on Clay, managed a feeble grin, then stepped into a baggage cart that took him to an employee entrance into the airport building.

Clay followed on the run, swinging a cane, and when Liston was hustled into a room for a press conference, the challenger stood outside yelling, "Bring him out."

Bill MacDonald, wealthy sportsman who bought the live gate with a guarantee of $625,000 for the fighters, was more upset than Liston by Clay's badgering.

"Get the airport cops," MacDonald yelled several times. "Get that clown out of here. Fun is fun, but people can get enough of anything."

Asked if he had expected Clay to show up, Liston said: "No, and I don't think he'll show up the night of the fight, either."

When somebody wanted to know whether Clay bothered Liston, the champion replied, "Naw. He's just trying to build up courage to get into the ring with me."

January, Rodriguez Play Off

Oakville Beats Guelph

Burloaks Sting Hornets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Welland Burloaks and Galt Hornets are taking turns holding down second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series.

The Burloaks shunted Galt out of a share of second spot Sunday with a 6-3 triumph over the Hornets at Welland. The victory moved the Burloaks to within six points of league-leading Woodstock but Galt has three games in hand.

Meanwhile, Oakville Oaks took a solid hold of fourth place with a 6-2 victory over the third-place Guelph Regals in the other Sunday game.

The Burloaks let no doubt about their intentions as they jumped into a 3-0 first-period lead and held a 4-1 margin after the second. Dave Earley and Vance Miller fired two goals each and Bill Owens and Sonny Deason contributed one each.

Ron Brain, Joe Hogan and Lele Kowalchuk scored for Galt.

Oakville's Jack Rogers went on a scoring spree against Guelph, scoring three of the six goals and getting assists on the others. His linemates contributed seven more points—Larry Slinker with two goals and two assists and Bob Hawkins with three assists. Charlie Doucette was the other goal-scorer.

Keith Worral and Rik Hay rounded the Regals goals.

Two Courtroom Dramas Happen Upon Same Theme

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Two television courtroom dramas, CBS' The Defenders and ABC's Arrest and Trial, happened upon the same theme for their weekend shows.

The crime was murder. And the problem was to get the killer to confess. There the resemblance ended.

The Defenders, in its earnest made-in-New-York style, took up the case of a derelict poet addicted to drugs and drink. He was accused of killing a heroin pusher in a scuffle outside a night club.

The homicide was committed by the club owner when he came to the aid of the eccentric old rum. Before he decided to confess, there was much talk of life, death, failure and conscience, a specialty of the series.

Arrest and Trial tackled the situation in a more forthright Hollywood style. The victim was a call girl of the blackmail stripe. The murderer was a disgraced policeman making a living as a private eye.

After the plain scenes and an extra killing thrown in, he too was preparing to confess his crime.

'ARREST' TAKES HONORS

Despite a lot of padding to occupy that 90-minute stretch, Arrest and Trial was better entertainment.

Canada Makes Final Bid For 1968 Winter Olympics, Banff National Park Site

By BOB TRIMBEE

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Canada made its final bid Tuesday for the 1968 Winter Olympics with a site described as better prepared at this stage than ever offered the International Olympic Committee before.

Banff National Park in the Rockies will be the scene of the first Olympics ever held in Canada if the IOC at its Jan. 29 meeting in Innsbruck, Austria, chooses it over five other sites.

The other candidates are Grenoble, France; Sapporo, Japan; Oslo, Norway; Lahti, Finland, and Lake Placid, N.Y. Banff and Grenoble are rated one-two.

The Calgary Olympic Development Association, set up five years ago by a group of business and professional men, is the organization behind the Banff bid.

CODA president Ed Davis, vice - president Hans Macie), Canadian Olympic Association president Jack Kyle and Calgary Mayor Grant MacEwan will represent Canada at a 30-minute meeting with the 65 IOC members. Detailed briefs were submitted to the IOC previously.

HILLS ALMOST READY

"We have taken a positive approach to gaining the bid because it's the only efficient way to prepare for the games," said Jack (Bud) Meadmore, CODA general manager, before leaving for Europe.

"With only four years between the IOC decision and staging the games we had to find preparations for the games. Banff to ensure no last-minute hitches would upset plans."

Much of the physical construction, such as the Olympic Centre, new roads to the finish of various alpine events, new lodges to accommodate competitors and spectators on the mountains and lifts, will not start until after the games are awarded.

But, says Les Blight, project engineer with the federal parks department here and the man in charge of the physical facilities, "more than 90 per cent of the work on the hills and various events is now is done."

"We are better prepared to handle the games now than Squaw Valley, Calif., was a year before the games. Banff is probably the best prepared site ever to bid for the games . . . We hope that a year before the games we will be ready to go in all phases."

SPEND $15,000,000

Banff, Canada's oldest national park, has a $15,000,000 face-lifting if it is successful at Innsbruck. CODA has already signed an agreement with the federal and provincial governments and the City of Calgary for $15,000,000 in capital arrangements.

Banff, a town of 3,629, is connected with both Vancouver and Calgary by the modern two-lane Trans - Canada Highway and the Canadian Pacific Railway's transcontinental line. By road the distance is 80 miles to Calgary and 500 miles to nearly 700 miles to Vancouver on the west.

The park, which also contains the beautiful resort of Lake Louise, has 2,500 square miles of virgin forest and abundant wildlife.

It was established as a national park in 1885 after engineers building the first transcontinental railway discovered hot sulphur springs at the site of the 8,400-foot Sulphur Mountain.

The government wanted to ensure the area would retain its true natural beauty," says Blight.

BUILD TWO ARENAS

The town, located in a picturesque setting at the foot of Sulphur, Rundle, Norquay and Cascade mountains, lies in a wide valley where the Bow and Spray rivers meet about 4,580 feet above sea level.

Mount Rundle at 9,628 feet is the tallest of the imposing nearby peaks and will be the backdrop for the proposed $6,000,000 Olympic Centre.

The centre, to be built on unused land near the present town site, will be at the base of 8,275-foot Mount Norquay, three miles from town, would be the scene of all medal presentations.

It would include two enclosed arenas, one seating 10,000 and the other 3,500. Outside would be a 400 - metre speedskating oval, with space for 70,000 fans. The olympic flame and flagpoles and a long mall. Figure skating and hockey would be held in the arenas.

Outdoor practice rinks would be built near a recently completed eight-sheet curling rink; the first structure built on a new town centre. Other buildings would include an administration building and a press centre for the games.

WOULD USE SCHOOL

The Banff School of Fine Arts, used exclusively during summers for conventions and university extension courses, overlooks the town on the slopes of Tunnel Mountain a little more than a hill compared with the lofty peaks surrounding the town.

A branch of the University of Alberta, the school now can handle 300 resident students. Dormitories and food services are to be expanded and the work will be completed by 1968 if Banff gets the games.

Also available for use during the Olympics would be a golf course and 1,200-seat theatre.

Don Weber, assistant director at the school, says the reaction to the bid "has been very positive in school planning.

"We intend to increase our facilities and if the Olympics are awarded we only have pushed them ahead to coincide with the games."

Claude Brewster, president of the Banff Chamber of Commerce and son of a man who played a leading role in making this mountain retreat one of North America's top summer resorts, says the general belief once was that it could never be developed into a winter sports centre.

GETS MANY SKIERS

"We were all wrong. Transportation has changed and now many people come here to ski and enjoy the outdoors in the winter."

Looking to the future, CODA president Ed Davis says:

"The games also provide Canada with an opportunity to get its first ever - all winter sports centre. So good are the facilities here it could become the training site of future international and olympic teams — both summer and winter."

Hard by the hot springs that started the first tourist trickle at the beginning of the century is the beautiful rust-colored Banff Springs Hotel, owned by the CPR, it has more than 600 rooms. Now used only during the summer, it will be winter-opened for use of IOC officials for the games.

Banff's weather is almost ideal. CODA has proposed Thursday, Feb. 15, to Sunday, Feb. 25, as the dates for the 1968 games. The 30-year average temperature for this period ranges from 20 to 30 degrees. The average February snowfall is 20 inches.

SNOW JUST RIGHT

"It's the snow conditions that make the Banff - Lake Louise site so great," said Davis. "By the time the games arrive we reach the area the heavy snow is deposited on the western slopes and the eastern slopes get a constant fall of powder snow, the best for skiing."

Mount Norquay, a half-hour hike from Banff, would be the site of the slalom and giant slalom events for both men and women and the 70-metre and 90-metre ski-jumping events.

All runs have been prepared to meet IOC specifications and the slopes were raked by hand and seeded to grass to provide a better base for holding snow. Alternate sites on Temple Mountain, 42 miles west of here near Lake Louise, have been charted and will be prepared if Banff stages the games.

One of the four Norquay slopes—the 4,950-foot North American which would be used for the men's giant slalom — has been called a "classic giant slalom run" by Prof. Friedl Wolfgang, secretary-general of the 1964 Olympic Games at Innsbruck.

NOT TOO HIGH

The downhill for both men and women would be held at Mount Whitehorn, an 8,650-foot peak near Lake Louise. This ride is adjacent to the alternate slalom runs.

"If snow conditions at Banff are superb, they are sensational at Whitehorn," said Davis.

Former Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, left, offers congratulations to Allen Anderson, newly elected president of the Prince Edward - Lennox Progressive Conservative Association.

NAPANEE (Staff) — Former Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker addressed 350 members and guests of the Prince Edward - Leanox Progressive Conservative Association on the occasion of their annual meeting held at the Napanee High School Saturday night.

The guest speaker was introduced by Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P., who took the members back through Mr. Diefenbaker's life history to such a lengthy extent that the guest speaker quipped, "If I ever write my autobiography, I will let Mr. Alkenbrack do it.

Like a true politician, he gave the 350 members a spirited talk. If some present felt that he dwelled on knocking the present Government too long, they did not show it. Several times he was interrupted by applause from the floor.

Mr. Diefenbaker paid tribute to Douglas Alkenbrack for what he termed, "a fine job in the House of Commons."

The speaker dealt at some length on the Government's avowed intention of "numbering all Canadians, who are registered with the Unemployment Commission."

"We will all have a number," he said, "then when two people marry it will be just that 345676 married 332878, no names. The same thing will apply when you are dead, they won't bury a person, they will bury a number," he added.

"I speak seriously, though, when I say that I think this is a step not in keeping with democracy. This is a characteristic of the countries where they live in a dictatorship and where they must live under a dictator. I think the Liberals will withdraw this plan before they put it into effect," he continued. "This is a plan devised by people, who are indoctrinated in the life of the Civil Service," he added.

LIVING COSTS HIGHER

"In the 250 days they have been in power," the Leader of the Opposition went on, "they have done nothing but plunge us further into debt. They said they want to get the economy rolling—well, the cost of living is higher now than in history, and is forever rising, which only the housewife knows.

"They have added four billions of dollars to the supply of money, and those on fixed incomes and pensioners suffer," he added.

"Deficits are all right, so long as they are for the right purpose is the claim of the Government, but how different it was when the Progressive Conservatives were in power, and we were faced with a deficit, which we inherited from the Liberal Government, then, of course, we were all wrong. It's an amazing situation, simply amazing," he added.

"I see also, where Walter Gordon is now claiming the peg of the dollar at 92½ cents was his idea originally. They said they were going to reduce taxation. Since then they have placed an 11 percent tax on building materials. They offer a bonus of $500 if you buy a house during the winter months, but they have added costs of $750 which you must pay in order to qualify for the bonus," he continued.

On Canadian-American relations, Mr. Diefenbaker maintained that Canadian policies should be made in Canada, by Canadians. "Why at the time of Mr. Kennedy's untimely death, he and the present leader of the Government were hardly speaking. The 30 percent tax on foreign purchases has lost us over 100 billion dollars a month based on the last three months."

GIVES FORMULA

"When we tried to do business with the communist countries the Liberals raised a hue and cry, now of course they are expanding trade with these countries and it is fine."

"According to the Government, 300 million increase in taxes, bigger patronage, bigger deficits, are good for Canadians, but I maintain that the only way we can pull out of the financial hole we are now in, is by: 1—rigid economy in Government spending; 2—further tax incentives to encourage new products and 3—extension of credit for export business," he added.

"Canada has been degraded by the Liberal Government," he continued. "Are we to break this nation into a state of states, or are we to renew our national purpose to work together for the good of all Canadians?" he asked.

"What we need is a united Canada, not one divided by intolerance and strife. The voices of moderation will speak in moderation. What we must have is a spirit of unity. At the present time in Ottawa, we have what can only be described as a rudderless mess."

"It was the Conservative party that made Confederation possible, and it will be the Conservative party who preserve Confederation in the country," Mr. Diefenbaker concluded.

Allen Anderson New President Of PC Assoc.

NAPANEE (Staff) — Allen Anderson, prominent Picton merchant, was elected president of the Progressive Conservative Association for Prince Edward - Lennox Riding at the annual meeting of the association held Saturday night at the Napanee High School.

Bernard Hepburn, who has held the presidency for the past three years, advised the meeting that he would not stand for election for the 1964 term.

Mr. Anderson was elected on the first ballot over his only opponent, Lieut.-Col. Harry Babcock. Mr. Babcock is confined to hospital and was unable to attend the meeting.

Vice-presidents elected, in that order were: J. K. Pearce, first; Donald Walker, second; William Briscoe, third; Harold Bonter, fourth; Earl Morrison was elected secretary-treasurer with Dwight O. Reynolds as assistant secretary-treasurer.

In his acceptance speech, which had to be very brief, Mr. Anderson said that he would try to do as fine a job as the past-president, Mr. Hepburn.

The election of officers had to be terminated after the election by ballot, of the second vice-president. Seeing that the meeting was running overtime, John Diefenbaker, former Prime Minister, who was waiting to speak, sent in word that the elections would have to be suspended for a time.

Some arguing came up when it was discovered that some people were casting a ballot, who were not residents of the riding.

At the meeting a motion was passed that the association would support the present leaders of the Progressive Conservative Party, both at the Provincial and the Federal levels.

Warden Douglas Brown, of Lennox and Addington, Mayor Glenn Harrington and Prince Edward County Warden Ken Hicks brought greetings to the 350 assembled for the annual meeting.

Police Probing Theft of Wire

Police say that 16 pounds of wire was taken sometime over the weekend. Their investigation continues.

Cash, Cheques Stolen From T. Eaton Store

PICTON — Sometime between closing hours Saturday night and early Sunday morning, thieves broke into the T. Eaton Company store in Picton, drilled through and opened a large safe, escaping with a large amount of cheques and cash.

Police Chief George Pitt said that entry was gained through a window on the roof after heavy steel bars over the windows were pried apart and the window broken.

"This is definitely the work of professionals, who knew exactly what they were doing," said the chief.

The janitor noticed the broken window and open safe early Sunday morning.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville have sent their fingerprint experts from the Identification Branch to Picton to assist Chief Pitt.

Terrorists Lop Off Both Hands of Woman

CP from Reuters-AP

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (Reuters)—A Canadian Army officer was beaten up Monday night as he tried to negotiate the release of missionaries from a station in the terror-stricken southwest Congo, it was learned today.

Lt.-Col. Paul Mayer, 47-year-old native of Ottawa, left his United Nations helicopter to speak to some 500 Congolese at Kisandji when the council of chiefs refused evacuation permission for members of the Roman Catholic mission.

During negotiations Mayer was struck on the head, his pistol was stolen and his pockets emptied. The crowd grew to more than 400 and the chiefs eventually said the missionaries could be taken if all UN weapons were left behind.

Mayer, a bilingual officer who was formerly deputy director of public relations at army headquarters in Ottawa, went to The Congo last May for a one-year assignment with the UN force.

The extent of his injuries was not known. It was not clear either whether the UN group had left its weapons with the Congolese.

NUNS RESCUED

Eight women missionaries and one man were rescued after being held by members of a terrorist organization Monday.

Earlier unconfirmed reports said a priest and a nun had been killed at Kisandji last week, but there was no confirmation of this today.

Other reports reaching here said the Congolese National Army in the same region had killed 12 local youths who had attempted to cross a river ferry.

At Kisanga, 10 Congolese troops travelling in two jeeps are reported to have been ambushed. Two were killed in the ambush and the others were

Ballots To Be Given Delegates

OTTAWA (CP)—Ballot books will be distributed to all voting delegates to next week's annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association when they register, party headquarters said Monday.

The machinery will thus be ready for a secret ballot on a motion endorsing John Diefenbaker's continued leadership of the party—if such a step is sought.

Party officials said the provision of blank ballots—usually printed on special paper prepared by a bank note company—has been standard practice for earlier annual meetings of the party. In some meetings they have not been used.

The ballots normally are used for election of party executives but the annual meeting can decide to use them for any resolution that comes before it.

The annual meeting of the association will be held at the same time as meetings of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association, the Young Progressive Conservatives and the Progressive Conservative Student Federation.

The YPCs meet Saturday and Sunday, the Student Federation Sunday and Monday, the women at the downtown Chateau Laurier Hotel Monday and the senior body on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, also at the Chateau Laurier.

MEMBERS MAY ATTEND

Under the party constitution, any member of any Conservative constituency association can attend the main meeting. There will be about 1,500 voting delegates, who will receive the ballot books along with their delegate ribbons.

The leadership question probably will come up at the senior association's Tuesday afternoon meeting. It is expected to be the second item in the resolution committee's report, after a resolution of loyalty to the Queen.

It will take the form of a resolution endorsing Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership. A debate is expected on whether the vote should be by an open show of hands, or by secret ballot.

The party's constitution does not stipulate how votes should be taken in the annual meetings, by secret ballot or show of hands. It has been custom in the past to deal with resolutions by open votes, amending them if necessary to try to cover all shades of opinion.

Secret ballots have generally been limited in the past to the election of party officers.

Approve Extra Grants

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government will pay out an extra $52,000,000 for education during the coming fiscal year under a program of provincial education grants announced in the legislature Monday.

Education Minister Davis, in announcing regulations under the government's new foundation plan for education, said the provincial output this year will total $285,600,000 compared with $233,600,000 this year. The normal annual increase because of population growth would have been about $15,000,000.

He said no school board would lose more than a small percentage of its current expenditures under the scheme. Grants to these small boards with financial difficulties would rise sharply.

The new system is expected to be a boon to separate school boards, who have contended in the past they do not receive a fair share of provincial corporation taxes. Mr. Davis said he did not know how much the separate schools would receive.

But large urban boards with high assessment rates are not expected to gain, Mr. Davis said.

SET LEVELS

The operating levels of expenditure for the plan have been set at $210 for each elementary school pupil, $200 for a continuation school pupil, $420 for an academic high school pupil and $300 for a vocational school pupil.

The regulations will be mailed Wednesday to the province's 3,200 school boards.

Under the foundation plan, the basic level of education costs is established for the province along with a uniform mill rate and assessment.

The government will use this as a base for grants to assist poorer boards to provide an educational service approximating the provincial average.

At a press conference following the legislature announcement, Mr. Davis said steps were being taken to reduce the number of elementary school boards in the province.

"Control over school construction and research and investigation into new materials and new methods of construction are

McNamara Favors Missiles Over Manned Bombers

WASHINGTON (CP) — Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara said Monday that United States missiles can be counted on to reach their targets more consistently than can manned bombers.

Without any direct reference to recent criticism by Senator Barry Goldwater, the Arizona Republican seeking his party's presidential nomination, McNamara told Congress that he has no hesitancy whatever" about the dependability of the new U.S. solid-fuel quick-firing Minuteman missiles.

Goldwater said in New Hampshire Jan. 9 that U.S. intercontinental ballistic missiles are undependable. He also expressed concern about the diminishing role of manned bombers.

McNamara appeared at a closed session of the House of Representatives armed service committee, starting hearings on the defence department's annual authorization bill. His statement, a 171-page review of the state of U.S. defences, was given out by the Pentagon.

He also said:

1. The U.S. Bomarc anti-aircraft missile force will be reduced to less than one-half the present weapons total, with 196 Bomarc-A weapons to be removed from U.S bases during the latter half of 1964. This will leave only 188 Bomarc-B missiles on launchers at the U.S. bases. There also are two Bomarc-B squadrons based in Canada.

2. By June the number of Minuteman missiles in place will reach 800, or almost equal to the total of 630 long-range B-52 jet bombers. By June, 1965 there will be 950 missiles in place. Ultimate goal is 950.

3. Second only to the problem of defending against intercontinental ballistic missile attack is the problem of Russian missile-launching submarines. "We do not now have any significant defence against missiles once they have been launched by enemy submarines," McNamara said.

In another section of his report, McNamara indicated that by 1970 there may be some decrease in the number of big U.S. aircraft carriers.

In discussing the international political and military situation, McNamara said:

1. U.S.-Soviet tensions are easing after the Cuban crisis of 1962 but there has been no change in the Soviet leaders' ultimate objective to extend communism throughout the world.

2. The continued existence of Fidel Castro's Communist regime in Cuba poses an increasing threat to many Latin-American nations, since it serves as a base for subversive activities.

PSI Asks Govt. to Safeguard Position With Legislation

TORONTO (CP)—Physicians' Services Incorporated, the doctor-run prepaid medical plan, said today its survival under Ontario's projected medical insurance law depends on whittling down an alleged competitive advantage held by commercial insurers.

PSI, by far Ontario's biggest plan with almost half the province's 3,000,000 medical insurance subscribers on its books, asked a government committee to safeguard its position with a series of legislative plans.

In particular, PSI asked for the right to stay outside a risk-pooling arrangement whereby commercial insurers might be able to lay off some of the risk of covering high-cost subscribers, such as the chronically ill.

PSI said in a complex argument that it would be unable to assign its high risks to the pool because it does not identify its high - cost members through health examinations upon enrolment.

—PSI should be permitted to continue paying out benefits at a rate lower than that prescribed for insurers in the draft act, the Ontario Medical Association's schedule of fees. PSI now settles accounts by paying 90 per cent of the OMA fee.

—Members of group medical plans, such as employee groups, should be prevented from opting out to seek cheaper individual coverage under Bill 163, the government's medical insurance legislation.

Eleven Hats In 2 Rings

MONTREAL (CP) — There were 11 hats in two rings when nominations closed Monday for the Feb. 10 federal byelections in the Montreal ridings of St. Denis and Laurier.

Both candidates were nominated in St. Denis, five in Laurier.

Both ridings have always elected Liberal candidates. St. Denis was created in 1917, Laurier in 1933.

The byelections were made necessary when two cabinet ministers resigned from the House of Commons last month. Postmaster-General Azellus Denis, who had represented St. Denis since 1935, was named to the Senate, and Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier gave up the Laurier seat to become high commissioner in Britain.

Trying to maintain the Liberal grip on the two adjacent ridings in the east-central section of Montreal will be Marcel Prud'homme, 29, a political scientist, in St. Denis and Fernand Leblanc, 46, a chartered accountant, in Laurier.

CREDITISTES RUN

Real Caouette's Ralliement des Creditistes will be represented in St. Denis by Hengi Paquet, 34, an auto parts dealer, and in Laurier by Gilles Caouette, 24, an industrial designer and son of the party leader.

The same two men ran under the Social Credit banner in the April, 1963, general election and finished second to the Liberal victors in their respective ridings.

A new Progressive Conservative nominated Rodolphe Sauve, 42, a haberdasher, in St. Denis and Henri Paquin, 50, a publicist, in Laurier.

The only woman seeking either seat, Mrs. Rejeanne Dubelle, 43, will represent the New Democratic Party in St. Denis.

A member of two, an international labor organizer and member for 23 years of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (CLC).

Gerard Picard, 57, the Quebec NDP leader and a former president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, is the party's candidate in Laurier.

The Social Credit party is contesting neither byelection.

Baxter Canning Plant Destroyed In Fierce Blaze

Nearly 200,000 Cases Canned Goods Burned

PICTON (Staff)—A spectacular fire completely destroyed the huge Baxter Canning Company plant in Bloomfield about nine o'clock Monday night. Damage was estimated at one and a quarter million dollars.

No one knows for sure where, or how, the fire started, but it is believed to have started in the label room.

Fire companies from Picton, Belleville, Camp Picton, Wellington and Bloomfield were called in by Fire Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville, under the Mutual Aid. Some 65 volunteer firemen battled the blaze, and concentrated their efforts on keeping the inferno from spreading.

Fanned by a brisk west wind, the sprawling plant was soon beyond control, despite the fact that at one time there were 12 two-inch lines of water being played into the heart of the blaze. Water was pumped from a river that flows by the plant.

The 35-year-old plant has a storage capacity of 300,000 cases, and according to Earl Smith, assistant general manager, more than half of this amount went up in the fire.

"Went up" would probably describe it best, as small "booms" could readily be heard as an after can blew up. The larger "booms" were, of course, the one gallon cans.

Only about 15 people are employed at this time of the year, but the plant had a summer staff of about 200. It is not known at this time if the plant will be re-built, as Don Baxter, the owner was not at the fire, but if it is not rebuilt it will mean a terrific loss to the farmers of the surrounding areas, who grow various crops under contract for the canning factory.

It was estimated that at the peak picking, the plant could process 13,000 to 14,000 crates of tomatoes in a single day.

It is believed that the loss is

More Mass Protests Planned

ATLANTA (AP) — Militant civil rights leaders planned more mass protests of segregation today after more than 100 persons went to jail Monday in street demonstrations.

A siege of the downtown area for the third night by marching, milling demonstrators, mostly Negro students, heightened the worst racial crisis in years for this city which has been cited as a model of good race relations.

Despite mounting arrests, now totalling nearly 200, youth leaders said they would continue the mass onslaught, centred on a segregated restaurant.

Police officers declared a state of emergency for about two hours Monday night in the busy downtown area surrounding Leb's, a restaurant which refuses to serve Negroes.

Demonstrations began with about 50 pickets marching around the block on which Leb's is located.

When they refused to disperse, they were hauled off to jail in police wagons. Cheers and applause came from hundreds of white spectators.

DEMONSTRATIONS BEGAN

Three hours later, demonstrations resumed. About 150 circled the city jail twice, they called several blocks to join about 50 others in marching around the block at Leb's for nearly two hours. Then police stopped them.

Chanting and singing, the demonstrators massed in a narrow street a block from Leb's. Paddy wagons drew up and near-bedlam ensued.

But when the next paddy wagon pulled up, demonstrators went limp. Hoisted bodily into the vehicle by white and Negro policemen, the demonstrators kicked, screamed and struggled wildly.

Demonstrators were charged with disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace. In the group were two white girls, ages 8 and 12. They were turned over to juvenile authorities until their parents were located.

Suspicion Hinders Diplomatic Relations of Panama, U.S.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Deep suspicion and distrust are hampering inter-American peace committee efforts to restore diplomatic relations between Panama and the United States.

For almost a week, the five-country Latin American team has tried to reconcile differences between the two countries whose relations were shattered by the riots, bloodshed and slaughter that resulted from flag-raising incidents in the U.S. - controlled Panama Canal zone a half-month ago.

An informant disclosed there were moments during the exhaustive committee talks when it seemed a compromise would be reached; that this could provide the way for resumption of diplomatic relation. and the beginning of negotiations to remove the roots of the problems that blossomed into the first foreign policy crisis of the Johnson government.

But then first one side and then the other would stiffen and the committee would be back where it started.

KEY ISSUES

The key point is that Panama insists that any agreement on restoration of diplomatic relations contain a U.S. promise to renegotiate the 1903 Panama Canal treaty under which the U.S. controls the waterway and adjoining territory and in return provides Panama with an annual payment of $1,900,000.

The U.S. is reported to have informed the committee privately that it agrees the treaty is obsolete and needs to be renegotiated but it adds that if this is stated publicly, it could have adverse political effect for President Johnson's government in this presidential election year.

The U.S. would like to see the Panama request framed in more general language, to provide for discussion on all points of difference but not specify in particular that the treaty itself be renegotiated.

With this Panama won't budge. The view of the Panamanian envoy is that the U.S. failed to keep a promise in the pact and that the only way to make sure of U.S. fulfilment is to get a firm agreement in writing.

FAVOR PANAMA

On this point, committee discussion moves back and forth. While public statements are made that progress is being attained, an observer who has been watching the situation closely says the U.S. and Panama appear as far apart as ever.

He senses that the bulk of committee opinion is on Panama's side. And this brings up the question of the future American role in Latin America. The committee is made up of Venezuela, Argentina, Colombia, the Dominican Republic and Chile.

The U.S. has been spending hundreds of millions of dollars to build up its own stature among the Latins. The Panama issue can boil up into a volcano that could react strongly against the U.S. position among the Latin American countries.

Recognizing this, the U.S. appears to have concluded at least privately that revision of the treaty may be inevitable. The only course that appears open is how to keep the renegotiations issue fluid until the November elections are over.

Belleville Girl Burned in Blast At Halifax

HALIFAX (CP) — a 27-year-old woman chemist employed with the food and drug division of the federal health department was reported in good condition in hospital Monday night following a laboratory explosion here earlier in the day.

Carolyn Naftel of Belleville, suffered second- and third-degree burns and leg burns in the blast in the laboratory on the fifth floor of the Ralston Building, which houses federal government offices. Miss Naftel was the only person in the room at the time.

A department spokesman said the blast was an "ether explosion", but there were no other details.

Editor's Note: Miss Naftel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Naftel of this city. Mr. Naftel is in the advertising department of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Security Guard Proves Worth At Hospital

Officials at Belleville General Hospital are well pleased with the work of security personnel hired last fall.

Principal duties of the commissionaires are to see that there is no abuse of visiting privileges and also to enforce car parking regulations in driveways next to hospital emergency entrances.

"Hospital officials are pleased with the service as are members of the nursing staff and other employees," stated Hospital Administrator Stan Johnson.

The security personnel at the hospital are provided through the Industrial and Domestic Protection Company, an organization which provides such service coast to coast. Many hospitals throughout Ontario, including the Kingston General Hospital, subscribe to the service.

At Belleville hospital one man is on duty each day from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m.

In many instances a local man or men are hired and trained for the position and preference is given to men with former army or police experience.

"In this way it is assured the men know what they are doing, but always there is emphasis on courtesy," Mr. Johnson said.

As noted above the main reason for the security service was to guard against the abuse of visiting privileges.

"According to the hospital administrator most visitors are co-operative about observing visiting regulations but there have been cases where visitors have refused to leave when a doctor or nurse gave admonition to another patient in the room.

And again some visitors decline to observe no parking regulations at the hospital emergency entrances.

In these exceptional cases it is important that some one with authority is on hand to see that regulations are observed.

Martin Favors Recognizing Red China

WINDSOR (CP)No nation should be isolated in this modern world, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said Monday.

Commenting on the announcement by Conservative governments in France that it would recognize Red China, Mr. Martin said: "When the prime minister and I were in France a few days ago, we discussed this matter.

"The Canadian government does not believe it is wise to isolate any country in this interdependent world of ours. We intend to keep up commercial and cultural ties with all countries—including Red China, beyond that, I have nothing further to say on the matter."

HALIFAX (CP)—The Anglican Bishop of Ottawa said Monday Canada's long delay in recognizing Communist China is "short - sighted and incongruous."

Bishop E. S. Reed told a service club that the decision to establish diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China should be Canada's own.

"What our neighbors to the south do is their affair. The decision is one for the United States government. Similarly, Canada's decision must be ours to make."

Bishop Reed said that, despite differences which still remain between Communist China and the West, the time has come to establish diplomatic relations.

Reformatory Terms Given Three Youths

Three Belleville youths will serve the full years in reformatory for a burglary they never carried off.

Sentenced this morning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills were: Carl Ransom Haines and Robert Whitmore, two years less-a-day definite, one year indeterminate; Kirk Raymond Downey, one year definite, three months indeterminate.

Magistrate Wills noted there was a basis for discriminating the seniences imposed since Haines and Whitmore had been in jail before.

The three youths were arrested January 14 at Patterson's Service Station on West Dundas Street, after they were surprised by police.

"These people are simply determined to prey on the public," commented the magistrate. "They even have a full employment and reasonable remuneration — still it's not enough to satisfy them."

Before being removed to the cells Whitmore asked:

"Can I have just two years less-a-day changed to three in Kingston Penitentiary?"

"No you can't," retorted the magistrate. "I expected that."

Road Contracts Will Provide Winter Work

Contracts totalling $311,000 for clearing right-of-way, awarded in recent weeks by the Department of Highways, Ontario, are part of an over-all policy to provide the greatest possible amount of Winter employment on a local basis, according to a statement just issued by Highways Minister Charles S. MacNaughton. The contracts total 50 miles of new right-of-way. More contracts will be awarded in the coming months for an estimated total of 119 miles.

In addition to the work done on departmental contracts awarded for clearing and highway construction, the Department has had under way its own program of Winter work. In the extensive program, various types of work are performed by men hired locally on a day labor basis.

This program, representing an estimated 900,000 man-hours of work, will cost approximately $1,875,000.

"Clearing of brush and trees for widening the rights-of-way of existing King's Highways, as well as clearing for new mileage provides the greatest number of man-hours of day labor," the Minister stated. He estimated that the total number of men employed on day labor basis for the type of winter work would range from a low of 700 in the early months to a high of 1,600 by February.

Other works which the Department reserves for the winter months is the preparation of new or enlarging established picnic sites. Expenditures in this grouping approximate $61,000.

Over and above the men recruited locally for the department's "Make - Winter - Work" projects, the regular Winter Maintenance program of the Department of Highways, Ontario, provides jobs for some 2,000 on a seasonal basis. Operators and helpers for snowplows, along with drivers and operators for the hundreds of privately-owned trucks and other vehicles hired by the department, form the largest group employed for the annual battle.

"As an example," Mr. MacNaughton said, "in the department's Port Hope district administration, more than 200 men have been taken on for winter maintenance work, and there are 18 districts within the department."

Pas-de-Deux To Be Danced At BCI Here

As well as presenting full length classics in their entirety, and master works by internationally reputed choreographers the National Ballet of Canada includes in its repertoire several short works, pas de-deux which have become world famous because of their brilliance and the opportunity they give to artists to display their virtuosity.

Among the most beloved are divertissements from "Swan Lake" and "Le Corsair" both of which will be presented on January 29th in Belleville. The celebrated "Black Swan" pas-de-deux is from Tschaikowsky's magnificent "Swan Lake." Odile, the cruel daughter of the enchanter Von Rothbart, dances at the dazzling ball with Siegfried the Prince, who has fallen under her spell.

The pas-de-deux from "Le Corsair" has leaped into prominence in the western world again recently, after long remaining dormant apart from frequent presentations in Russia. Originally a French classic, the full length work is seldom presented outside Russia even today, but the sensational pas-de-deux has become extremely popular. It is daring and dazzling and calls for the greatest in virtuosity. This pas-de-deux is staged by Galina Samtsova. She and Earl Kraul are its stars.

Life has moved swiftly for Miss Samtova in the few years since she left her native Ukraine. As a student with the Kiev Ballet she was assured a career already showing brilliance but marriage to a Canadian dancer, studying at Kiev, transformed her life.

Now a prima ballerina with the National Ballet of Canada, she had the thrill recently of starring in the full four-act "Swan Lake" during a return visit to Kiev. She received a standing ovation from the packed opera house.

She has been featured at "Jacob's Pillow" and with the Canadian Company on its transcontinental tours. She was featured also on the silver anniversary television broadcast of the CBC on a national network. The slender fair-haired young artist is the talented product of a life-long devotion to, and training in, ballet. At twelve her application to the Kiev State Choreography School was accepted. Then followed six years of six-days-a-week study, ten months a year.

When she left the Kiev Company in 1960 to come to Canada with her husband, she had been a first soloist. Two years later on her return to the big company, third largest in all Russia, she performed Odette-Odile in "Swan Lake," in an emotion-charged performance that drew the rare rhythmic applause given only for unforgettable interpretations.

The Belleville people will have a chance to see her at the B.C.I. auditorium on Wednesday.

Dress of Nylon Stockings Earns Sulphide Woman Spo On Garry Moore's TV Show

Telephone Day Is Observed At Rotary Club

Monday was Bell Telephone Day at the Rotary Club of Belleville and present to address the club was Paul Lavallee, a representative of the company, from Montreal.

In opening Mr. Lavallee said "there are various systems of communication and the main reason I am here today is because people like to talk — over the telephone I mean."

"There are more Canadians carrying on conversations over the telephone per person than any other nationality in the world and it is our job to help you talk better over the phone."

"Many advancements have been made since the first telephone was invented by Alexander Graham Bell and today there is a dial in almost every home. For instance, today you can make a telephone call by dialling a set of numbers but Bell Telephone scientists are presently working on a telephone that will enable you to push buttons instead. This will not only save time, but in some cases could save you money."

"Transmission is the most important aspect of the telephone and today there are over 150 million telephones in the world which can be connected to each other by means of wires and cables, over land, and under the sea." The speaker stated Bell scientists are now looking to outer space for an element through which to transmit.

PUT IN CABLES

"During the early stages of the telephone," he said, "there were so many wires suspended from poles that the wires alone could almost be used as a screen to keep out the sun, but through modern scientific development, cables have been developed through which the telephone wires can be run and put under the ground."

The speaker stated that although more modern and advanced equipment has been introduced by the Bell Telephone Company, the cost of the telephone to the customer has not risen, in fact it has been lowered. "For instance," said the speaker, "about 40 years ago it would cost over $9 to phone from Montreal to Vancouver for a period of three minutes; today it costs only a little over $2."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Don Grant and thanked by Rotarian Bud Trill.

Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian Don MacKinnon.

What Motivates de Gaulle?

Harold Morrison, Washington correspondent for The Canadian Press, says that General Charles de Gaulle of France believes the split between China and Soviet Russia involves something more than a controversy over ideology. Instead, he views it as a geopolitical battle.

Others besides de Gaulle share this opinion. The greater their knowledge of history, the more likely observers are to consider communism as just the latest in a continually changing parade of political systems, dating back to man's earliest civilizations. From this viewpoint, adherence of any country to the code of communism is a mere incident in its history, not to be compared in importance with the diversity or identification of interests imposed on nations by geography, population and economics.

In this framework, the fact that the present rulers of China happen to have embraced the same political philosophy as the present rulers of Russia is likely to have much less influence on their future relations than is the fact that China is a heavily-populated country whose natural resources have been depleted by thousands of years of civilization, while neighboring Russian territory in Siberia is sparsely populated and rich in undeveloped resources.

De Gaulle, with his almost mystic faith in the importance of tradition and of culture strangely wedded to a rock-hard realism, would naturally be more impressed by the geopolitical diversity between Russia and China than he would by any ideological unity, even before this unity started to show fissures.

Up to this point, other Western leaders might be found who would be in accord with de Gaulle's view. These leaders might share what Morrison describes as de Gaulle's hope, that French diplomacy, by its actions, may help moderate and contain Chinese aggressiveness. But is this really the reason why de Gaulle is suddenly courting Red China? Or is he, perhaps, merely acting in accord with one of the primary principles of geopolitics, that one makes friends with the natural foe of one's potential enemies, and that one is doubly eager to promote this friendship with one's foe if the latter is a distant land, whose natural interests cannot possibly come into conflict with one's own?

If the latter is the explanation, then de Gaulle's recognition of Red China is not aimed at controlling Chinese aggressiveness towards the West, but rather at utilizing Chinese aggressiveness in such a manner as to control Russian aggressiveness in Europe.

PBI on Spot Again

Well, we see where the army brass is again sticking out the necks of the PBI, the poor bloody infantry.

The foot-sloggers have been selected to test a bright idea by Jamie A. Sudderth of the U.S. Army's infantry board. In case you need to be told, Sudderth is Lieutenant-Colonel.

Sudderth has been plagued by one of modern man's major irritations and, evidently under the illusion that this was a source of woe confined to men in uniform, has undertaken to devise a solution.

The Lieutenant-Colonel has discovered that, male clothing being what it is, it is easier to adjust the clothing on the top part of the body to the prevailing temperature than it is to achieve a similiar equalization of need and equipment for the nether portion of the body.

Or, in simple words, it is more convenient for a man to take off his coat than his pants.

With one of those sudden inspirations which sometimes change the course of history, Sudderth decided that the thing to do was get to the root of the problem—underclothes. Sudderth has devised a pair of drawers which can be unzipped, from ankle to waist, without taking off pants and boots.

This certainly solves the problem of what to do when the sun climbs from the horizon to the zenith in the course of a morning's march and temperatures in the PBI's machinery of locomotion are uncomfortably.

The PBI, though, may face a rather difficult problem as the sun falls, and the evening chill grips the land. Unzipping a pair of drawers without taking off pants and boots is one thing, but we should like to watch the process of zipping on these same drawers underneath the unshed pants.

Troops caught in the midst of this manoeuvre are likely to find themselves badly outflanked.

Has Sudderth never heard of the custom of wearing two pairs of pants, permitting the top pair to be doffed as easily as a jacket?

There are no nifty solutions to the ever-present prospect of total war.—Dr. Robert Oppenheimer.

Cauliflower Ears Could Be 'In' With B & B Commissioners

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Those two salesmen extraordinaire — for that is exactly what they are, agents specifically assigned to selling the rest of the country on the Federal Government's compulsive bicultural kick — Andre Laurendeau and A. Davidson Dunton, by now ought to be sporting two pairs of badly bent ears.

For they spent last week in what Ottawa insists on calling a "dialogue" with the three Prairie Premiers, Manitoba's Roblin, Saskatchewan's Lloyd and Alberta's Manning.

This was the first time they have wandered, in their official capacity as Royal Commissioners, beyond the bounds of Ottawa, and so they probably got their ears pinned back.

Here in the Capital, bicultural-ism is the high fashion. It is the thing to do.

You're "with it" biculturality, or you're dead.

To even question the very "rightness of biculturalism is like being against motherhood or peace on earth.

The two Royal Commissioners go to now, have held their "dialogues" — two days of hearings — only in Ottawa where opinion has been tallo-made, by both persuasion and pressure, to accept biculturalism almost as a national religion, certainly a cult.

THE MANIPULATORS

In those two days of hearings it was made clear — and remained undenied — that the "B and B" Commission is in the business of manipulating as well as even manipulating public opinion.

They call it a Royal Commission, but it is really that at all. Instead of being a carefully selected group of specially qualified experts appointed to find the facts, it actually is a body handpicked for its built-in bias to the Ottawa dogma that Quebec got the short end of the Confederation stick.

With almost everybody on the Commission's staff, including the vice-chairmen, having a Montreal and Quebec background, this is no cool, detached, impartial study of biculturalism.

It is a campaign, even a crusade.

The Commissioners are not disinterested, but pre-committed.

The idea is not a study or assessment, but persuasion, propaganda, even pressure, to put it across.

At the opening two days, the "dialogue" was between French Canadians and other racial groups, the Germans, Italians, Poles, Ukrainians, two-nations-within-one concept.

The powerful St. Jean Baptiste societies of Quebec sent in blasts — there could be no thought of preserving or protecting the cultural identity of the "two races" or ethnic groups," but only the question of whether they would prefer assimilation into two-nations-within-one concept.

The powerful St. Jean Baptiste societies of Quebec sent in blasts — there could be no thought of preserving or protecting the cultural identity of the "two races" or ethnic groups," but only the question of whether they would prefer assimilation into the French Canada's two-nations-within-one concept.

Certainly not the voice of dissent.

Those English-speaking organizations which have been heard so far were those whose officials admitted they were on what Ottawa will accept as side is a nation - wide bicultural binge.

There were one or two small voices which suggested to the "B and B" Commissioners that maybe Quebec actually hasn't any real, genuine complaint, but that French-Canadians actually had been getting a pretty fair Confederation shake all along.

But people and organizations that hold such a view have been branded cultural heretics by those on the "B and B" spree, and as bigots in the more outspoken voices in Quebec.

Even Prime Minister Pearson has spoken of these people who question the wisdom of compelling Canada to become a bicultural two-nations-like-one as "English - speaking Separatists."

So it has been a pretty one-sided "dialogue" which the Royal Commissioners have been conducting — almost a monologue with the Quebec-biased Commission on the same wave-length tuning out what those on this bicultural bash like to call "the rest of the country."

Until last week, of course, when, for the first time, Messrs. Laurendeau and Dunton began hearing in First Person Singular terms from the Prairie Premiers how what Ottawa and Quebec know as "the rest of the country" is thinking.

Before the Commissioners finish their rounds of the provincial capitals, they could be wearing cauliflower ears.

Strictly Personal

Dog-Lovers Are Often People-Haters

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

After an absence of many years, I have rejoined the ranks of dogowners, succumbing to heavy pressure from several junior members of the family, who (falsely) promised that they would do most of the work involved in training, feeding and exercising a large, clumsy and omniverous domestic puppy.

What most interests me in talking this spirited creature (who keeps, somehow, bumping into himself) is the high degree of congruence between owners and their dogs. Everyone has remarked on the fact that many dog people and their equally ancient canines begin to resemble each other in looks; what is more remarkable is the assonance of temperament.

Why do persons select the breeds they do? On the surface, some of the answers would seem quite logical and rational — this breed won't shed hair, that one is small enough for an apartment, another is a good watchdog, and still another is said to be gentle with children.

But beyond the "good" reasons, there is always a deep reason. And the real reason, in most cases, I suspect, has more to do with the psychological needs of the person buying a dog, even if it is presumably for the child.

It is no accident that men as people have dogs that bristle with hostility outward, suggesting that fat, self-absorbed, spoiled rich women tend to have cuddly beasts that yap and pout and demand pampering; that weak and frightened men have large dogs that look menacing but are really quite tractable; that indolent people have animals who scarcely move away from them.

It is not so much — as commonly believed — that dogs and their dogs begin to look alike; it is rather, that their attitudes toward the world complement one another. The expressions of their personalities are somehow similar, even when they live together in a kind of hostile symbiosis.

There is also a profound difference between the dog lover and the dog hater. The warm and dedicated dog lover is often a people hater, who has displaced the emotion proper to humans onto dogs, perhaps without being aware of it. At bottom, such persons are deeply disappointed in life, scarred personalities and some infantile sense of rejection.

To love a dog too much is to do him a disservice, to bring him too closely and cloyingly into the human orbit, to destroy whatever independent personality and small free will he may have had originally. Dogs are the masters (or mistresses) of how to look alike when the dog becomes too much a person, and the owner too little a human being.

Now it is proposed to study the idea of putting out a contract to the inventor of a machine designed to melt snow and leave the sidewalks clear and dry.

It is not known whether the idea is going to meet with the requirements of officials concerned. But if it should prove acceptable to all involved parties, the experiment would be watched with close interest all over the northland where snow removal is a heavy item in municipal budgets.

Unanimous endorsation of a marketing scheme to be set up by the Hog Producers' Association to exercise greater control over hog marketings was seen at a district meeting producers' meeting held in Canniton, Friday evening.

The meeting was held under the sponsorship of the County Federation of Agriculture with Mr. Charles McGinnis of Dundas County, President of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association as the guest speaker. A similar meeting was held in Madoc on Friday, while on Saturday Mr. McGinnis spoke to a meeting in Picton.

The resolution as passed by the meeting laid down no specific program for the provincial organization to follow in their movement to attain greater control over hog marketings, but a discussion heard following the general meeting, indicated that a marketing board run on something the same lines as the cheese board, will be formed. A second resolution passed asked for the federal government "to increase the price of 20 cents per pound dressed weight.

"With at least four names before the public, the present opposition is likely to feature the race for the Wardenship of Hastings County, when the January session gets underway next week. According to reports emanating from county council circles the four reeves who will seek the wardenship are Fred Wilson of Sidney, Thomas Fleming of Huntingdon; John Bell of Marmora township; and Lewis Hicks of Madoc township. All four reeves have been active in county council circles for a number of years and are held in high regard by council colleagues.

What Should Patient Know?

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

How much should a patient be told about his illness?

Dr. Joan S. Dodge, a social psychologist of Cornell University discusses the question in Hospitals, the Journal of the American Hospital Association. She found patients' demands to know more about the nature of their illnesses and the treatment they are receiving that doctors are usually willing to give them.

"The doctor won't take time to explain things to me," was one of the most frequent complaints of patients, according to Dr. Dodge. She commented: "Lack of information when the patient wants it may increase his anxieties, may make him less satisfied with his care, or make him more difficult for nurses."

She reported that too much information might have the same effect of increasing anxiety. The double pressure undoubtedly created a dilemma for doctors and particularly for nurses whom a patient may question.

Those whom Dr. Dodge questioned generally held the opinion that a patient whose illness was likely to be fatal should be told of his prospects, and that what a patient should expect in the course of any illness should be made known to him. Doctors, on the other hand, she writes, "attach less importance to information of this nature."

To Your Good Health

Lack of Honesty Harmful To Younger Children

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My problem is a common one, I suppose, but it does concern me very much. I have talked it over some time for my daughter to ask how a baby gets in the mother.

Although she has asked other questions and I have answered them as honestly as I can, she seemed to avoid that one. I just hoped that when she finally would ask, I could answer her honestly and in a way that wouldn't worry or scare her.

Well, she asked this morning and my mind just went blank. I'm so ashamed that I couldn't handle it better. I put her off with the excuse that I was afraid she would be late for school, and I'd talk about it when we had plenty of time.

My daughter is 12 years old and very easy to talk to, as we have discussed all sorts of things about growing up. She knows how a baby is born (I had a new baby a few months ago).

I would appreciate any advice you can give. Or maybe I am making a big problem out of nothing. — Mrs. R. L.

It seems to me as though you had a case of "buck fever," like the hunter who looks forward to his first shot—and then freezes. Or, the person who prepares for a speech or a concert or whatever, and is so well prepared (and so keyed up) that he is briefly paralyzed when the awaited moment finally comes.

Yes, I think you are making too much of the incident. Children, being logical, are trained always easy to talk to when their parents conscientiously try to be honest and sensitive.

One little stumble doesn't destroy that. Your honesty will ask again when the question crosses her mind, and that will be that.

You've fallen victim to what I think is the one big failing of so much that is written and said about bringing up children.

We put so much emphasis on this or that point that we lose perspective. To be sure, lack of frankness or honesty with a child has its consequences, but so, or she gets an idea that one "mustn't ask questions" about something or other, and stops asking.

But that doesn't come from just a single incident.

So. Mrs. R. L., relax. Thus far you've done very well.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can Addison's Disease be cured? If negative, could the following symptoms be characteristic of Addison's Disease as well as other diseases? Extreme weakness, dizziness, loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, pain in the abdomen, bronze (almost black) can the patient expect to regain good health and vitality? What are the chances of survival when a thyroid deficiency complicates the case? — D. B.

Addison's Disease is not cured in the sense of complete recovery — like measles or a broken leg. Yet with cortisone-type drugs and adequate salt intake, it can be controlled, just as diabetes can be controlled but not cured. In many cases the presence of the tuberculous process (in the adrenal glands rather than in the lungs) is a causative factor. Hence the future prospects depend on controlling the germ.

Thyroid deficiency can be one of the complications in this disease, and should be treated with appropriate doses of thyroid substance.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard that a person can go to a doctor for a "shot" every day and, along with diet, lose weight only where necessary. Can you give me any information about this? — L. M.

It isn't true. Sorry. When you lose weight, your dimensions decrease in all areas of the body.

Queer Choices For Prizes

Washington Post

It was an admirable gesture for Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite, to endow the prizes that bear his name. But Nobel erred sadly in allowing the Swedish Academy of Literature to determine what writer each year is worthy of the award. For five years in a row the academy has managed to baffle the world with its strange choices, the latest being Giorgos Seferis, a Greek poet of monumental obscurity.

Everyone will rejoice that Greece has won its first Nobel prize in literature and no one can begrudge Mr. Seferis his good fortune. But if the Swedish academy wanted to bestow Nobel glory on a Greek writer, why did it pass over a Hellene with world stature as a poet and novelist, Nikos Kazantzakis, author of A Modern Odyssey, Zorba the Greek and The Greek Passion, who made into the moving film, He Who Must Die?

Kazantzakis is dead and he thus joins the purgatory filled with men of letters found wanting by the Scandinavian Swedes. Those who never received a Nobel prize include Proust, Zola, Ibsen, Tolstoi, Maxim Gorky, Hardy, Wells, Conrad, Meredith, Ruskin, Mark Twain, Joyce and Thomas Wolfe. Kazantzakis fell below the Academy's exacting standards, the Nobel prize was bestowed on Henrik Pontoppidan of Denmark and Karl Gjellerup, a Danish writer who took up Buddhism, and another time named Johannes V. Jensen, chiefly remembered for his valiant effort to prove that Columbus was Danish.

In the last few years, the academy has successively extended its bonanza to Salvatore Quasimodo (1959), an Italian best known for winning a Nobel prize to Alexis Leger (1960) a French poet who lives in Washington; to Ivo Andric (1961), a Yugoslav writer well known in Yugoslavia; and to John Steinbeck (1962), who was the most successful surprise at his award.

In the same period, the academy managed to ignore the claims of Andre Malraux, Edmund Wilson, Alan Paton, Robert Graves, Jean-Paul Sartre, Alberto Moravia — and all the writers of Latin America, Africa and Asia. The awards have been neither intellectually nor geographically representative: they signify only the declines of an important honor.

It can be maintained that all prizes are misleading and that genius has no need of a Swedish laurel. But the prize exists and its purpose is indisputably justified by the academy's pedantic choices.

Youth Remanded For Psychiatric Examination

Magistrate T. Y. Wills today questioned whether a 19-year-old farm worker, charged with indecent assault, was eligible for legal aid.

Joseph Ralph Wells was arraigned before him on two indecent assault counts and remanded for psychiatric examination. He was arrested Friday on Front Street after a woman alleged she had been accosted.

The magistrate was told the youth, a native of Newfoundland has been living with his brother in Belleville for the past three months. He is employed as a laborer at a district chicken farm.

The youth said he had retained no lawyer so far.

"There is no reason that any lawyer, or society or the public should pay for a lawyer to help," said the magistrate.

However, he asked acting crown attorney Tom Lally to have county sheriff Roscoe Robson so discover if Wells was eligible for free legal representation.

"You can tell Mr. Robson," he added, "from the cursory glance we have had at it here a question very much whether he is a candidate for legal aid."

captured and killed later by the terrorists.

After evacuating Kisandji, the UN group flew north to the Idi-Ocehonour Wil. Gold 395 on a reconnaissance mission at Kisidwa was reported in "grave danger."

Reliable sources said all whites had left Idiofa itself except for a Roman Catholic priest who stayed with a woman Protestant missionary who was unable to travel. The reports said both her hands had been cut off by the terrorists.

At least four missionaries, including an American woman, have been killed by bands of warriors armed with poison arrows, spears, homemade bombs and primitive guns.

About 150 Canadians and Americans, including several children, have been stationed at Protestant mission posts in the threatened area. The U.S. embassy in Leopoldville said 14 Canadians and 21 Americans including 10 children, had been rescued.

As the terror spread, The Congo government said it had documentary proof Communist China is supporting the uprising. The leader of the rebels is former education minister Pierre Mulele, 34, who spent several months in Peking last year.

TERRORISM SPREADS

The rebellion is centred in agricultural Kwilu province, 250 miles east of Leopoldville, but the terrorism is spreading to the neighboring Kasai and Kwango regions near the Angola border. Fewer than 600 government troops are in the province opposing several thousand guerrillas.

A Congolese general staff officer said the army has not ordered additional troops into the area. A state of emergency was declared in Kwilu last Tuesday and Roman Catholic and Protestant missions in the area have been sending urgent appeals to the United Nations for help.

KILLED BY ARROW

The confirmed victims of the roving bands were three Belgian Roman Catholic priests and an American Baptist missionary, Irene Ferrel, 43, of Jerome, Idaho. Miss Ferrel was killed by a rebel's arrow at the baptist mission's centre in Manyanga last Friday.

A companion, Ruth Hege, 58, of Wellington, Ohio, was wounded in the arm during the attack. Miss Hege sent a letter by African runner disclosing her friend's death and pleading for rescue.

Roman Catholic Bishop Rene Toussaint attempted to reach Idiofa, a town of 5,000 reported to have been overrun and set aflame by the rebels.

Two Protestant missionaries reported they were captured near their mission at Kandale last week by a band of 40 guerrillas.

"For the first three hours or so of our captivity we thought it was the end," said the Rev. Charles Sprunger, born in The Congo of missionary parents. But the guerrillas released him and his Canadian companion, Rev. Loyal Schmidt, after 31 hours.

The mission, affiliated with the American Congo inland mission of Elkhart, Ind., was burned.

School Board to be Asked To Consider Including Oral French in Curriculum Here

Members of the Belleville Public School Board are to be asked to consider inclusion of oral French lessons into the regular day school curriculum.

The request will be made at the February meeting of the board by a delegation representing the Avondale Home and School Association.

At the present time French classes are being taken by interested public school children on a strictly voluntary "after four" basis. Costs of the lessons are paid by the parents with the school board co-operating by making the classroom available.

Currently such classes are being held at 11 of the city public schools but it seems the "after four" studies are not working out quite as well as hoped. In September there was a considerable enrolment for the oral French classes but attendance has fallen off since the Christmas holidays.

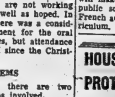
TWO PROBLEMS

Apparently there are two main problems involved.

One is that most small children are in no mood to study French on an early particular basis once the four o'clock bell rings. The other is that parents seem to be expecting too much from the once a week half-hour lesson.

The after four classes were set up with a minimum of 20 students. Last September there was considerable interest and several schools had big registrations. Since Christmas, however, there has been a drop-out and in some instances there is danger of classes dropping below the 20 student minimum.

But many parents feel the interest in oral French is still there and would be continued by the children under different circumstances.



NO TIME AFTER SCHOOL

"After four is no time to expect a small child to show a interest in French," said Avondale district mother. "The children have already put in a full day at school and are tired."

"Oral French in Belleville should be part of the public school curriculum the same as it is in many other centres," she claims.

That is why the Avondale Home and School Association will make its request to the public school board to have French added to the school curriculum.

No Way for Lady to Alight With Grace From Sport Car

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm 23, a blue-eyed blonde, 5' 10" and love to think of myself as statuesque. To be honest, when I have to get in and out of these teeny-weeny sports cars I'm afraid I look like a hippopotamus.

I am dating three men who have sports cars and these cars were not designed for the likes of me. I feel as if I'm sitting on the floor. My knees are right up under my chin and it's altogether most unladylike.

The worst part is getting out. There must be a dignified, graceful way for a female to alight from a sports car. Do you have any suggestions? If so, I will be forever grateful — as will countless suffering sisters who share my problem. — BOARD WALK BETTY.

DEAR BETTY — I'm 5' 2" and I feel like a moose when I try to extricate myself from those iddy biddy vehicles, so my heart goes out to you tall gals.

I know of no way for a lady to alight with grace from a sports car. She will appear less cow-like, however, if she keeps her knees together, scootches as near the door as possible, then exits sideways, offering her right hand to the gentleman who will be there — if he's a gentleman.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My favorite brother married a little nothing of a girl with no looks, no brains, no money, no family and no personality. She doesn't have a single redeeming feature except that she is harmless.

They now have three youngsters under five years of age. I've killed myself trying to be nice to her. I've helped her with the babies when she came home from the hospital. I've cooked, cleaned, and baked for her. I even did her washing and ironing when she had a dislocated shoulder.

In spite of everything she still doesn't like me. She's polite, but cold — or perhaps frozen is a better word. Why? Why? — NO THANKS.

DEAR THANKS — Your sister-in-law has no warmth for you because you dislike her intensley and she knows it. Your opening sentence betrays you.

Doing things for people — yes, even killing yourself — is not proof of friendship. You've tried to buy her with favors and it won't work.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 11-year-old daughter arrived from school yesterday with a swollen eye. Rosemary told her father and me that she had gotten into an argument with a 12-year-old girl and the girl hauled off and hit her.

My husband said, " I certainly hope you beat the daylights out of that roughneck." Rosemary said she did not hit the girl back, but just walked across the street and came home. Her father said, "I'm ashamed of you. You should have stood up to her and knocked her block off."

After Rosemary went to bed I told my husband I didn't agree with him, and that I was sorry he had encouraged his daughter to get into a brawl on the street. He said I was wrong, that children should be taught to defend themselves against bullies. May we hear from you on this? — L. M. N.

DEAR L. M. N. — Your husband gave the girl poor advice and I hope he will reverse himself.

The 12-year-old who socked Rosemary in the eye is indeed a roughneck. If your daughter had returned the wallop she would have put herself on the same level — way down here.

Oriental Line Introduced By Designer

PARIS (AP)—One of Paris' bright new designers, the House of Ferreras, introduced an oriental line of women's clothing Monday.

With appropriate colors—cherry and peach blossom pinks, pale almond greens—Ferreras' look was the slim-hipped, wide-topped look of the kimono. Prints, bold or pale, had the feeling. There were stiff obi belts and wide ribbon-tied obi midriff insets; tubular fabric pipings that looked like bamboo, and pipings of shiny straw braid.

Narrow Ferreras suits had giant kimono sleeves that winged out from set-in belts.

There were slim, wrapped wool coats and soft silk dresses that followed kimonos line for line. Lime silk was used for a strict afternoon kimono dress with lime organza bands. Pink print chiffon was sashed and banded in pink satin.

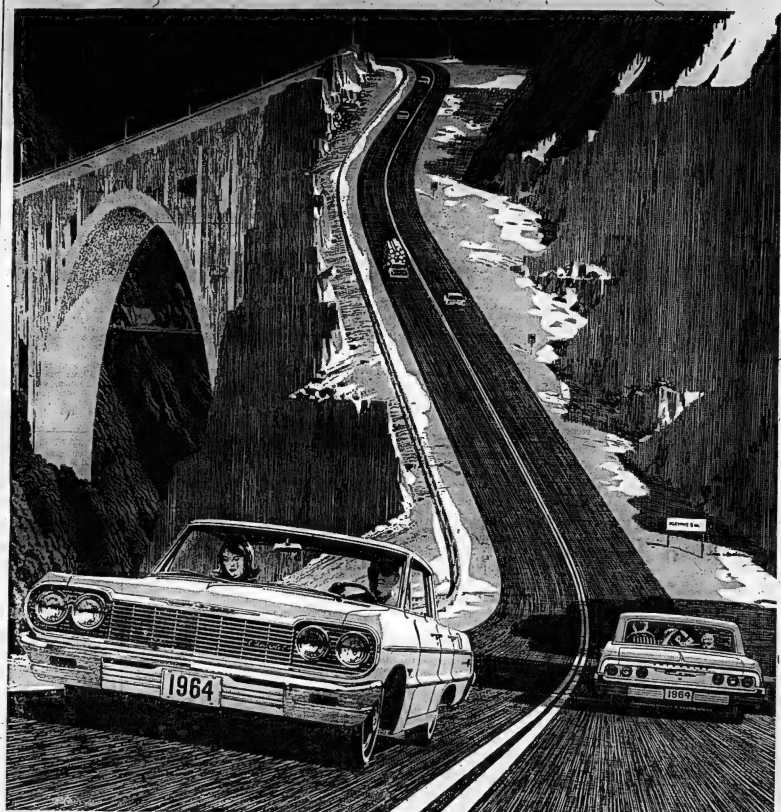
Most effective was a strapless flaring pants-gown in stiff white silk. This was covered by a hooded, midriff - knotted ski-jacket bolero in pink and acid green print silk organza. Other versions of the ski-jacket top came in silk print or cotton organdy.

Jacques Esterel opened spring fashion week with short hemlines, belted waistlines and two-piece silhouettes.

The first Paris collection was peppy and young, evolved on shirt and skirt themes, sleeveless coats and hats copied from apache caps.



Esterel showed tailored shirts made of heavy linen tucked into check tweed skirts and jointed by wide suede belts.

He suggested the gamin from the Marseilles waterfront with jaunty apache caps, and triangular scarves filling the shirt neckline. Jumper dresses and sheath coats were dominant themes with sleeves and collars of contrasting fabrics.

A navy blue wool jumper was shown over a wide organdie blouse with balloon sleeves and choir-boy collar.

Coats were cut straight and narrow. Their armholes showed the contrasting colored dress sleeves.

The great highway performer

'64 Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan and (background) Impala Sport Coupe

'64 Jet-smooth Luxury Chevrolet

What does it take to make a car a great highway performer?

If the car happens to be a '64 Chevrolet, one thing only. A highway. You'll find everything else already neatly packaged for you — on the car exactly as you pick it off the showroom floor.

There's a choice of seven engines — all the way up to a twin-carb high-compression 425-hp V8* — and three transmissions, smooth-shifting standard 3-Speed Synchro-Mesh, optional Powerglide automatic* and 4-Speed stick shift.*

And underlying it all — a bump-skimming Jet-smooth ride that helps keep the performance great even when the highways aren't so great.

Nobody has to doctor or coax or soup up these Chevrolets to get the best out of them. They were built to be driven by you — on the kinds of roads you drive on. And that's really the test of a great highway performer: just about anyone can get a kick out of driving one just about anywhere, just as it comes out of the showroom, summer or winter.

Or winter? Sure. Your Chevrolet is built to weather the weather — to keep its good looks through fair days and foul. Things like Magic-Mirror finish, flush-and-dry rocker panels, special inner front fenders, long-life exhaust system . . . all of these keep corrosion at bay — keep your Chevrolet looking great and going great right up till trade-in time.

Next time you're out your dealer's way, allow a few extra minutes to sample one of these highway performers on your own. A few are really all you'll need. That's enough time to do a lot of driving in a Chevrolet. *Optional at extra cost

Vegetables With A Difference

by Mary Moore

Finding and serving vegetables that are different is a challenge at this time of year and I have been focusing my attention on them.

Two that turned out to be quite cheap and popular were for turnip as gratin and rice with peas and parsley. Another which was exotic was fried cucumber (courtesy of my daughter-in-law Margy). Clip and add these "different" recipes to your vegetable file.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Chicken Fricasse; Buttered Noodles; Steam-Fried Green Peppers; Tossed Light and Dark Green Salad; Ice Cream with Fresh Frozen Raspberries; Tea.

RUTABAGA (TURNIP) AU GRATIN

4 cups diced raw rutabaga (turnip);
1 teaspoon salt;
1 teaspoon sugar;
2 tablespoons butter or margarine;
2 tablespoons flour;
⅛ teaspoon pepper;
1¼ teaspoons salt;
1½ cups milk
¾ cup grated old Cheddar cheese;
1 cup soft bread crumbs;
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

Cook rutabagas in 1" water, the 1 teaspoon salt and sugar, covered, for 12 minutes or until tender. Drain. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in a saucepan. Blend in flour, pepper and the 1¼ teaspoons salt. Gradually stir in milk until thick. Stir in cheese. Arrange rutabagas and cheese sauce in alternate layers in a 1-quart casserole. Mix crumbs with melted butter or margarine Sprinkle over the top. Bake 15 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr., until golden.

RICE WITH PEAS AND PARSLEY

The rule is to add twice as much water as you have raw rice. So for 4 or 5 people, use 1 cup raw long-grain rice, 2 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt. Cover, bring to boil, turn, off heat, let stand 5 minutes. Turn heat on as low as possible and cook 25 minutes longer. Each grain will be separate and fluffy. Add ½ package frozen peas which have been cooked in ¼ cup boiling water just until they come to boiling point. Drain off the little bit of liquid left. Add ¼ cup finely chopped parsley and 1 tablespoon butter, gently stirring over low burner to heat through. Lovely with chicken.

FRIED CUCUMBERS

To serve 3 this cost 45c but was a lovely change. Pare 3 medium - large cucumbers and cut into quarter lengthwise. Cut strips in half. Scrape out and discard seeds. Gently fry in butter (½lb) hot and cooked but only delicately browned. Rest still slightly crisp. Sprinkle with salt and paprika.

Sen. Smith Of Maine In Ring

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine recited Monday all the reasons she should not run for the Republican presidential nomination and then said:

"So, because of these very impelling reasons against my running I have decided that I shall."

As a "moderate Republican" the 66-year-old senator will enter the primary election in New Hampshire March 10. She also will enter the primary in Illinois, but have no objection to her name being entered in the District of Columbia and assumes it will be entered in Oregon.

In state primaries, registered supporters of political parties indicate who they wish to have as their party candidate in the U.S.-wide election for president.

The launching pad for her candidacy was a luncheon of the Women's National Press Club and she built the announcement into a suspense story.

CITED REASONS

People had cited grave reasons for her not running, she said: Lack of money, organization, time. Heavy odds against her. This is a man's world, etc. Then, with a twinkle, she made her positive announcement.

In her voluminous correspondence, she said also, are reasons why she should run, including:

The argument that she would be pioneering to break the sex barrier—to make it easier for some woman in the future to be elected president.

But the argument she seemed to find most fetching is this: "It has been contended that I should run in order to give the voters a wider range of choice — and specifically a choice other than that of conservative or liberal—to give those who consider themselves to be moderates or middle-of-the-road advocates a chance to cast an unqualified vote instead of having to vote conservative or liberal."

She said she will run on her record. This includes support for civil rights legislation.

Mrs. Smith is the widow of Clyde H. Smith, who ran for office in Maine 48 times and won 48 times. On his death she ran successfully for his U.S. House of Representatives seat and later became a senator.

MAIL CALL

Question: When a person orders a casserole in a restaurant how is the service supposed to be handled? Isn't it the waiter's job to dish it out on the dinner plate? I'm never sure whether I should wait for this service, or simply go ahead and help myself — D. L. M., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Usually, the waiter places the casserole on the table and spoons the first portion onto the dinner plate. If the patron wants more, he simply helps himself to the remainder without waiting for the waiter to do it.

Question: I'm taking a trip to the Midwest shortly, and would like to look up some old friends who live in a city I'll be visiting for a few days. I don't have their address, but will find it in the telephone book when I arrive. Would it be impolite to call them without writing in advance? — C. H., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Answer: It's certainly permissible to call when you arrive, but, in the event they cannot make arrangements to see or entertain you, it would be tactful simply to let them know you're in town, where you're staying, how long you'll be there and let them take it from there.

Annual Burns' Supper Held By W.M.S.

CAMPBELLFORD — The W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Campbellford held the annual Burns' supper on Friday evening. As usual with this event tickets were sold out some time ago.

A frequent guest at the Campbellford Burns' Supper is Dr. Jabolel Laird of Queen's University, who gave the address to the immortal memory.

Scottish songs were given by Mr. Jon Druff and highland dancing under the direction of Mrs. Jean Muir of Lindsay.

GUEST SPEAKER

Speaker at the dinner was Dr. D. L. C. MacLachlan of Queen's University, introduced by Miss Winnifred Hay. Dr. MacLachlan's address was based on quotations from Burns' poetry, spoken in the true Scottish dialect.

The Haggis was piped in by Pipers Carl Linn and Robert Watson and carried by Hector MacMillan and Murray Locke in appropriate highland apparel.

The skirl of the pipes and the Scottish songs under the direction of Francis DeCarroll gave a true Burns' theme to the evening.

THE IDEAL TRAVEL WARD ROBE TO STAY HOME IN

During the past few years, the development of travel into a big business has brought along in its swell, a trend to planned wardrobes. In these, crease-resistant fabrics of varying weights play a very large role. Ward-robe planning for a travel holiday should highlight little or no worry about pressing and ironing. Many hardwashable items are included in these wardrobe plans, none of them calling for the use of even the smallest travel iron. Hats are designed to be rolled up and shoved into the corner of a suitcase, shoes are chosen for style, comfort, and their ability to withstand a sudden shower. Often the assembled wardrobe looks quite seamless, because of the choice of color.

While all these planned wardrobes make sense for the traveller, they also make sense for the woman who is going nowhere except on her daily round of duties — care of the house, den mother, family chauffer and part-time volunteer worker. Or as who are caught up in a schedule that always calls for fancy footwork and organization, could do with a wardrobe of these "go-everywhere, easy-to-care-for" clothes.

LITTLE CARE REQUIRED

Well-organized, busy women, who never give the impression of being rushed or pushed, rely heavily on clothes requiring very little care, aside from periodic trips to the cleaners. But they always have something to wear and they always look well-dressed. I have seen a beige, three-piece knit dress and a fur hat in December and I have watched the same suit appear in May with a different blouse and hat. Each time, it looked smart and composed. I know one lady who always has a creative duty for at least another two seasons with few, if any, changes. It went to Europe in January and it appeared at the seaside last summer on a cool evening. It adds nothing except the right accessories for the season and confidence to wear it until it almost falls apart. The acid test for this type of seasonless suit is when it brings compliments for the owner just when she is thinking of discarding it.

COMMON SENSE

The common sense of a travel wardrobe also holds true for the busy woman, who would rather take a course in the History of Art than spend the leisure hours pressing blouses and skirts. "Easy-care" wardrobes make sense when there are so many more interesting things to do than wash and iron. The basic household chores must be done — and this includes the laundry — but if the load can be reduced through the use of fabrics that need no pampering then let's accept them happily. The travel wardrobe for the non-traveller makes good sense.

Celia Driver Of Victoria 103 Years Old

VICTORIA (CP) — A former woman typesetter says today's women are missing a great deal of life by not going out in the world to make their own living while they have the chance.

Celia Driver should know. She's 103 years old and has done her share of travelling in those years.

Born in Mineral Point, Wis., in 1860, she tried teaching in her late teens, found it too dull, and moved to Chicago. There she married her late husband, Robert, and set type in a printing house.

She and her husband in 1906 moved from Chicago to suburban Esquimalt, where she still lives.

"It does women a lot of good to get out of the house when they are young," she says. "Teaches them a few things outside the kitchen."

Did working help her to longevity?

"I'm 103, sonny, it didn't appear to hurt me any."

Mrs. Driver was among six Victoria centenarians who celebrated birthdays in December.

Others were: F. C. Cornish, 101; Mrs. Sarah Marshall, 101; Mrs. C. H. Maber, 101; Mrs. Susan Pearse, 101; and Edgar Crosley, 106.

FOREST FIRES UP

Ontario had 1,886 forest fires in 1963, or 365 more than in 1962, although acreage burned was below the 10-year average.

PSI Asks

tive organization made up of all insurers should be weighted in proportion to the number of subscribers enrolled with each member insurer. Under present conditions, this would give PSI about half the vote.

—The government, instead of purchasing medical insurance for the indigent as proposed, should perpetuate the publicly financed, doctor - operated, Ontario medical welfare plan under which an average 222,000 and - carrying welfare cases get medical care from doctors who recover about 75 per cent of their regular fees from a government fund.

—The proposal for part payment of medical insurance premiums for other needy persons should be limited to those who do not earn enough to pay income tax after deducting personal exemptions. Individuals earning no more than $21 weekly and a man with a wife and two children earning no more than $52 a week would qualify for payment of at least 75 per cent of a standard medical insurance premium.

—Municipalities should be required by law to purchase standard medical insurance, as defined by Bill 163, for residents on municipal relief.

GIVES APPROVAL

PSI recorded its approval in general of Bill 163's principles that medical insurance should be non-compulsory and universally available through "multiple carriers."

However, the PSI brief noted "good and bad points" in these principles and recognized difficulties in attempting to reconcile the principles with a workable plan.

Making the plan "voluntary will mean higher costs because it will attract the unhealthy, high-cost risks without bringing in a fully balancing proportion of the young and healthy."

PSI approved the idea of freedom of choice as a democratic action but said there should be an exception in the case of the indigent.

"It is a tradition that the medical profession assumes responsibility for the care of the indigent," the brief said, urging the government to pay for indigent care through a plan administered by the Ontario Medical Association.

Where Justice Is Sought

"Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt"

TORONTO (CP)—An old, two-tone Ford was seen passing through the empty streets of suburban Scarborough in the early hours of June 10, 1960.

A few hours later the slashed, half-nude body of Margaret Bennett was found on a service station lot in that district.

Police traced the car to London, Ont., where it had been stopped after crashing into a road barrier. Large stains that looked like blood were on the seat.

The owner of the car had been released from Kingston Penitentiary two months earlier after serving a long sentence for manslaughter.

His evidence was conclusive. There was nothing to connect the owner of this car to the slaying of Mrs. Bennett.

This is an example of the work done by the laboratory, headed by Dr. H. Ward Smith, 49, a pharmacologist who left a teaching career at the University of Toronto to become director when the laboratory was reorganized in 1951.

SEEKS FACTS

The incident illustrates why Dr. Smith does not like to have the laboratory referred to as a crime-detection centre. He calls it a forensic laboratory; that is, one attaining to the courts of justice.

Its work is just as important in establishing innocence as in proving guilt, he says.

The laboratory staff numbers 54, including pathologists, biologists, toxicologists, chemists, firearms experts and experts on handwriting and documents.

It may establish guilt or innocence in a hit-and-run case, for instance, by analyzing a fragment of paint no larger than a pinhead. Fraudulent cheques, fake stock certificates, obscene letters, may be traced to their source and the authenticity of a suicide note can be established.

A small quantity of wax on the hammer of a gun was all the laboratory needed to confirm that the gun was fired accidentally when dropped on the floor. Examination of residue where an explosion knocked out a wall of a house in Kirkland Lake proved a stick of explosive was responsible for the blast, not a leakage of gas.

SCIENTIFIC AIDS

The laboratory's scientists have been called in on many of Ontario's murder trials in recent years, and have trained the nearly 300 breath analysis operators in 42 offices in the province.

It analyses the concentration of alcohol in the blood of persons involved in 1,500 traffic and other accidents, or violent deaths, every year.

It has three new machines—called chromatographs — capable of measuring as little as one-billionth of a gram of drug or poison in blood. A new method of analysing the petroleum content of gasoline may determine the brand of gasoline used by an arsonist. A new method of studying the concentration of metals in hairs may make human hair as positive a means of identification as the fingerprint.

But, says Dr. Smith, techniques and research have failed to keep with the development in today's sophisticated crime operations and intelligent criminals.

"We're 30 years behind and falling further behind every day."

He said he would like to see more time available for his staff to devote entirely to research.

SEEKS SAFECRACKING CLUES — Diane Gillies uses microscope in Ontario attorney - general's forensic laboratory at Toronto to examine dust taken from clothing of suspected safecracker. The laboratory, as well as seeking evidence of crime, devotes similar attention to establishing innocence of accused persons in such cases. (CP Photo)

Seething East Africa Has Sprouted in Zanzibar First Republic of the People

A century ago Zanzibar was a centre of the slave trade. The Portuguese controlled the area, then came the Arabs; the British took over in 1890. Six weeks ago Britain gave up its protectorate role; Zanzibar joined the United Nations. Then revolt broke out. Here is a report from an Associated Press correspondent who spent 10 days in Zanzibar after the revolt began.

By DENNIS NEELD

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP) — Seething East Africa has sprouted in Zanzibar the dark continent's first people's republic, replete with "freedom fighters," Communist slogans and bearded revolutionaries flicking ashes from Cuban cigars.

To western ears, the two-week - old revolution in the nearby spice island sounds weirdly bloodthirsty and there is deep concern that it may have kindled flames of revolt on East African mainland, now echoing to sporadic uprisings.

Violent events in East Africa are likely to have striking impact throughout the unstable area of newly-emerging independent regimes, and Zanzibar is a potential base for subversion.

Fifty miles across the sea from Tanganyika, in Zanzibar, there is no mistaking the strong Communist Chinese and Communist Cuban influence. This is blended with the Afro-Arab Zanzibaris' own brand of political violence which left their self-styled "field marshal," John Okello, voicing bloodthirsty threats against any who would oppose him.

Early last week Okello broadcast a warning to the people to inform on civilians — particularly the formerly dominant Arabs and Asians — who might have sold or bought guns. Those who sold the guns were told to report it and warned if they did not "your execution will be by burning, by pouring gasoline over you and letting you burn like a dog."

TAKES CREDIT

Uganda-born Okello, who reports he once interpreted dreams for Kenya bloodletting Mau Mau terrorists, claims to have planned the entire Zanzibar revolution. Westerners say his prominence may be largely the result of accident, traceable to the fact that he was first to reach the radio station and first to realize the power this gave him.

There are indications that politicians now are trying to edge Okello out of the picture.

Zanzibar's new president is Aveid Karume, head of the former opposition Afro - Shirazi party. He is popular in the island but seems largely the pawn of left-wing extremists.

The Cuban and Chinese influence is palpable. Men wear the brightly colored workers' caps which Abdul Rahman Mohammed Babe, foreign minister in the new regime, brought back with him from Red China. Many sport berets of the type made popular by Cuban premier Castro.

A blandly smiling correspondent of Peking's New China news agency arrived in Zanzibar two days before the revolution but says it was coincidence. He filed few dispatches but was constantly in the company of the island's revolutionary leaders.

Scores of Zanzibari Africans report they received Communist indoctrination from Cuban revolutionaries. At one time there was an office for Zanzibari exiles in Havana. Western sources say up to 300 Zanzibaris were trained either in Cuba or Red China. Some have picked up a smattering of Spanish. But it is doubtful whether any Cuban nationals took part in the one-day revolt that toppled the sultan from power.

"Zanzibar is a pretty small island but communism has gained its first real bridgehead in East Africa," said a worried westerner. "That represents a very real danger to the rest of the continent."

When news of the revolution reached mainland Africa, Babu, soon to be named foreign minister, was in Dar es Salaam and his first calls that day were on the Cuban and Chinese embassies in Tanganyika. This illustrates the importance potential as a base for Communist subversion in Africa.

presently being pursued by the Department of education," he said.

GOVERNMENT CRITICIZED

In other legislature business, the government was accused of failing to increase in the wholesale price of rye whisky announced by one distillery must have been made with the "firm knowledge" of a planned government increase, Kenneth Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) said.

It was an incredible state of affairs when the government made known its intention to "special interests" before informing the public.

Distillers - Seagrams announced last Thursday that the price of its 25-ounce bottle would go up between five and 10 cents.

Mr. Bryden said any increase in the price of liquor should go into the public treasury, and not to the distilleries.

"Their latest financial statements indicate that they are feeling no more pain than those who have imbibed their product freely."

Former Railwayman Puts On Shows in Hospital

WINNIPEG (CP) — Retired boilermaker Dennis Martyn now has a full-time job of a different sort—chasing fears from the minds of little folk in the children's hospital here.

The former railway man, known as "Uncle Danny," at 69 does tap dances and magician's tricks, plays records and reads stories to cheer the little ones.

Born in London, England, he came to Canada as a youngster and started with the railway as an apprentice when he was 14.

After retiring from the CNR in 1956 he came here from Jasper, Alta., and he becomeattached to the children's hospital shortly afterwards.

While in Alberta Mr. Martyn was a veteran of the First World War and one-time vaudeville performer—put on shows for his buddies and got such celebrities as Bing Crosby, Alan Ladd, Robert Mitchum, Joan Fontaine and Marilyn Monroe to join him in singing and dancing acts.

HELP TO NURSES

Children now make up his audiences.

A nurse said she never had seen anyone "who can do so many tricks and so completely occupy a child as Uncle Danny. It helps us to know that he's around."

In a brief chat with a reporter, Mr. Martyn said: "I think I'm sort of standing equipment around here now."

Then he went back to work.

He turned to a child about to be given an anesthetic, and said:

"You just grab my nose now and if it hurts you can twist it as much as you like."

The little boy was already half asleep.

Tensions Could Make Canadian Culture Thrive

MONTREAL (CP) — Present tensions between the two major language groups could bring Canada to the highest level of culture in North America, an expert on French Canada said Monday night.

Prof. Michael Oliver, chairman of the French Canada studies program at McGill University, said the time could come when the cultures of English - speaking Canadians and French - Speaking Canadians will have enough in common to allow cross-fertilization between them.

Prof. Oliver, expected to become a director of research for the Laurendeau - Dunton royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, gave the opening lecture of a McGill series on current change in French Canada.

He warned against blind optimism, however, saying tensions between Quebec and the rest of Canada could lead to sterile bickering and the stagnation of both cultures.

Other teams that have qualified for Group A are Canada, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia. The loss drops the Hungarians into consolation play in Group B along with Norway, Yugoslavia and Japan.

The fire was still smouldering this morning. The office has been moved to a vacant building across the street once used as the company's cafeteria. All office records and equipment were saved.

The shipping room, located at the east end of the property was reported as still intact this morning as are the 325 horsepower coal fired boilers. Plant engineer Harvey Vance said that he had inspected the boilers this morning and they appeared to be all right.

In an interview with general manager this morning, Don Baxter said, "as far as I am concerned we will rebuild. It is up to my board of directors but it is my hope that we will be ready for the next canning season."

Mr. Baxter also said that "85 per cent of the inventory was destroyed, and as far as he could see the loss would run one and a quarter million dollars."

"If the plant were not to be rebuilt, it would mean a loss of one and a half million dollars annually to the growers in the area."

Main items canned at the factory labelled "Silver Ribbon" were tomatoes, tomato juice, pumpkin, peas and pork and beans.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There's a big badminton tournament coming up this weekend and don't tell any member of the Garrison Badminton Club that jousting is "strictly for the birds" unless you want to get a racquet over the noggin.

I intimated that some time ago and my favorite feminine "racqueteer" promptly squelched me with the rebuttal that while it might be a game for some kind of "birds" it was no recreation for bald-headed eagles of the press box.

However the punster that originated that quip did not refer to the lads and lassies who find the game fascinating and which has a wide appeal as an organized and informal form of sport.

The original name of the game was "Poona", an Indian (Nehru-type) word meaning "It flutters here; it rockets there; where it will light, I know not where."

The name was given by a spell-bound Hindu who watched a British officer of the Indian Army insert a feather into a cork he had withdrawn from a flagon of Ireland Dew, and bat it with his swagger stick.

A game developed from the "Scotch Mist" incident and the soldier sahibs of the Indian regiments around 1868 produced racquets of a type and started firing the erratic "birds" across a net at one another.

This "shuttling" back and forth brought out a new name for the game and it was dubbed "battledore and shuttlecock.". I can understand the "shuttling of the feathered cock" resulted in the name, but where "battledore" comes from, your guess is as good as mine.

The name "Badminton" resulted from the lack of a better one. It seems the game became very popular with British blackheads after it was launched as a posh party given by the Duke of Beaufort at his estate at Badminton, in Gloucestershire. The peasantry called it the "Game played at Badminton." The name stuck. That was back in 1872.

"Poona," Battledore and Shuttlecock" or "Badminton," call it what you will, the birds will fly merrily across tournament nets in the Bridge Street Armouries come Saturday.

The host Garrison Club, enjoying the best season in years, will entertain some 200 badmintoneers at their annual Class "B" Tournament starting 10 o'clock in the morning.

Practically all the clubs in the Central Ontario District will be represented. These include besides Garrison, Peterborough, Picton, Bowmanville, Whitby, Oshawa, Cobourg, Trenton and Napanee.

"There'll be some mighty whingin' and whangin," when the cream of the Central Ontario Badminton District players go into trophy-seeking action. The Garrison Club is noted for its excellence of tournament arrangement while its post-tourney hospitality leaves little to be desired.

Club president Merv Potts and his executive have done an outstanding job this season with emphasis on new members and the part they play in the success of the seasonal activities.

Saturday's tournament sees competition for ladies, men's and mixed doubles only. The ladies' and men's doubles will be played in the morning with the mixed doubles going in the afternoon. Finals in all three will be decided in evening play. Handsome trophies are up for competition.

Nor is the social side forgotten. Following play the contestants will be entertained at luncheon and dancing in the officers' mess.

Entries and arrangements indicate the tournament will be the best "B" Class competition in a number of years.

Dennis Hull Climbs To Fourth Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andre Boudrias of Montreal Junior Canadiens scored two goals and picked up two assists in as many games last week to stay well in front in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring race.

Playing in 40 league games, Boudrias has scored 28 goals and assisted on 73 others for a total of 101 points.

Boudrias' linemate Yvan Cournoyer, who a week ago held down second spot among the scoring leaders, dropped to third place after last week's action, two points back of Fred Stanfield of St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Stanfield fired three goals and picked up six assists in two games. Cournoyer had a pair of goals and assists.

Three goals and six assists for Dennis Hull of St. Catharines in his last two games brought him just one point behind Cournoyer. Hull is the brother of Bobby Hull, all-star leftwinger with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Bernie Parent of Niagara Falls Flyers has the best goal-tending record with a 2.61 average. He has allowed 47 goals in 18 games.

EXPECT GOOD FIELD

REVELSTOKE, B.C. (CP)— Olympic skiers from Japan, the United States and Canada are expected to compete in the Canadian nordic and British Columbia jumping championships here March 6-8. Officials expect the twin meet will fit into the homebound schedules of many top athletes now at the '64 Winter Games at Innsbruck.

MONTREAL (CP) — Internal strife or whatever the cause, it was a miserable week for Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League.

In three games, the club's once-prolific attack produced nothing more than a solitary goal.

Things maybe could have been worse. They salvaged a point for it tie on the goal.

But that kind of play won't win any Stanley Cups.

The cause of the Leafs' troubles is unclear. However, there have been reports that talk of impending trades has troubled some Toronto veterans, throwing them off their game. Yet no trades have materialized.

TOOK TWO DEFEATS

Apart from the outing where Bobby Pulford scored to enable the Leafs to tie New York Rangers 1-1 in Toronto Saturday night, the Leafs were drubbed 3-0 by Montreal Canadiens and 2-0 by Boston Bruins.

At that, Pulford's goal was an unassisted effort—he stole the puck from Junior Langlois—and how far back do you have to go to find a week at the height of the schedule where Toronto's defence was good for only a single scoring point?

The fade actually set in the previous week. The Leafs were bowled over in two of their three games Jan. 15-19 and one shoot-out setback was the 11-0 pasting the Bruins delivered.

Official NHL statistics released today meanwhile show Stan Mikita of Chicago has overhauled montreal's injured Jean Beliveau for the lead in the playmaking department.

BELIVEAU SIDELINED

The Chicago tough guy is also the No. 1 point collector with 61.

Two goals meanwhile gave Stan's teammate Bobby Hull a league-leading total of 32. At his current pace, he would wind up the schedule with something like 48.

Another Chicago hardrock, Reg Fleming, is the penalty leader with 114 minutes. He added four minutes to his total during the week. Vic Hadfield of the Rangers has 113 minutes, rookie defenceman Terry Harper of the Canadiens 110 and Mikita 109.

Badminton Juniors Make Good Showing

Junior members of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club made a creditable showing at the Central Ontario Junior Tournament held in Peterborough Saturday.

Mott was runner-up to his doubles partner in the age group singles.

Doug Grant Jr., won the singles consolation award and helped win the consolation doubles.

He was a finalist with clubmate Don Desaulnier in the men's doubles consolation competition.

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)— The Olympic hockey elimination tournament winds up today with six games that will complete the makeup of the championship group A competition. Canada and Switzerland qualified Monday.

Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and the United States still must qualify but their opponents are considered pushovers and it's really only a question of how one-sided the margins will be.

Canada swamped Yugoslavia 16-1 with an 87-shot barrage Monday and the Swiss team showed a strong defence in downing Norway 5-1.

Eight countries play for the championship in group A while eight others are relegated to the B consolation group.

Because a record 16 countries entered teams in hockey, Olympic officials decided on an elimination tournament before the Games open Wednesday. But only the strongest teams were matched with the weakest ones. In that way, the top eight clubs virtually are assured of competing in group A.

- Today's - scheduled - matches were: Czechoslovakia vs. Japan, Russia vs. Hungary, Sweden vs. Italy, the United States vs. Romania, Germany vs. Poland and Finland vs. Austria.

Ten players shared in the Canadian scoring spree against Yugoslavia as coach Rev. David Bauer juggled his lineup frequently and used all but one of his 17 players.

The Canadians scored five goals in the first period, six in the second and three in the third. Terry Clancy of Ottawa, Bob Forhan of Newmarket, Ont., Roger Bourbonnais of Riviere Qui Barre, Alta., and Ray Cadieux of St. Adele, Que., each scored two goals.

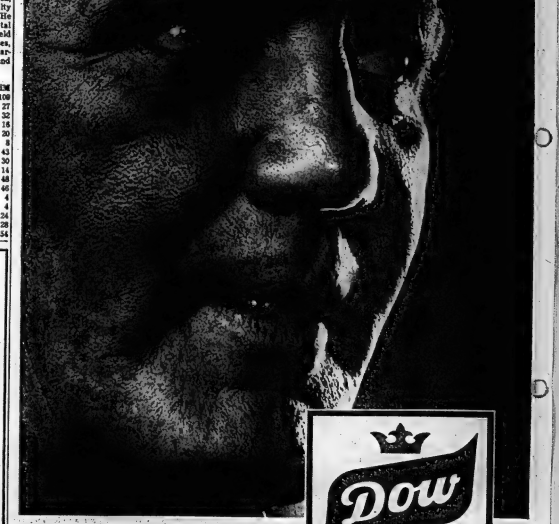
HAD SLOW START

The Yugoslavs didn't have a shot until the ninth minute of the first period and shortly after that John Bugo beat Canadian goalie Seth Martin of Trail, B.C.



While Yugoslav goalie Anton Gale made 73 saves, Martin and Ken Broderick of Toronto, who came into the game in the third period, had only 10 saves between them. Broderick received a two-stitch cut on the chin when he was hit by a puck.

Swiss goalie Gerald Rigolet was the star of his country's win over Norway. He made 45 saves and lost a shutout in the last 20 seconds of play. Fio Parolini scored twice for the winners. Other Swiss scorers were Rolf Diethelm, Peter Stammbach and Kurt Pfammatter. Bjorn Elevenes scored the Norwegian goal.

The Norwegians outshot the Swiss 46-23 but the light Swiss defence blunted their attack.

Campbell Raps Former Commentator

'Despicable Thing'

TORONTO (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Monday an interview with former NHL referees on a television program Sunday was "character assassination."

Dalton McArthur and Red Storey, interviewed by newspaper columnist Scott Young on the CBC television program Question Mark, said they often failed to call obvious penalties on orders from NHL officials.

Campbell said in Montreal: "I regret that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation would allow this sort of character assassination by three disgruntled ex-employees."

The third ex - employee referred to by Campbell was Young, who once worked as a television commentator for NHL games in Toronto.

"It is too bad when people are permitted to conduct this type of program without a check of any kind," said Campbell, even if this is a typical McCarthy approach."

TOLD WHAT TO CALL

McArthur and Storey had told Young that game officials do not call what they see in all cases, but what they are told to see. Obvious infractions are ignored to give a weak team an advantage.

"It is despicable to think any organized attempt is made to control games," continued Campbell. "I have been invited not to appear on the same program in two weeks and perhaps I shall.

"I say I like to see the lowest team win. It's an arbitrary rule of thumb. It's my arbitrary rule of a neutral and if it is to be converted to something insidious or nothing one can do."

Of Young's part in the program Campbell said: It's the most despicable thing he has ever done.

WORE TWO HATS

"He was in the position of a man with two hats when he was employed by the hockey broadcasts. It was his feeling that his position as a newspaper man gave him immunity from the rules governing our programming in regards to what he said on the air.

"He was disgruntled when he left us."

McArthur was dismissed by the NHL prior to this season while Storey quit in 1960 after he was criticized by Campbell for events that occurred during a wild brawl in Chicago.

Campbell said he has been offered the second half of the Question Mark segment Feb. 9 to give his viewpoint. The first half will be a continuation of the Young - McArthur - Storey presentation.

Defeats Brighton HS Cagers

BCI Wins Triple-Header

By ROBERT WILLIAMS

Three B.C.I. hoop squads won their fifth straight triple-header victories by clobbering Brighton H.S. Bunny scrambles and unfinished plays were the order of the night as neither team played particularly interesting basketball.

B.C.I. seniors took their win 67-34, the junior 70-33, and the Brighton bantams were also trounced 48-13.

The first quarter of the senior game saw nothing of interest but a 15-4 lead by the winners. B.C.I. picked up a bit of steam in the 2nd quarter but still missed a lot of simple layups and jumpers. The half ended 33-5 with Bob Chick and David Anderson potting some nice long shots.

The 3rd quarter saw B.C.I. increase their lead by 17 points on some fine rebounding by Lyle Adams. Brighton had their finest effort in the last quarter scoring 7 to B.C.I's 14.

R. Williams, B. Chick, B. Burley and L. Adams scored 16, 11, 10-and 10 pts. for B.C.I. while Stewart Hentworth and McFarlene had 7, 6 and 2 pts. scoring all Brighton's points.

R. Walsh, D. Hurd and D. MacCormack came through with fine effort for the B.C.I. juniors looping in 15 and 12 pts. while Brighton's Ewing and Brown had 12 and 11 pts.

R. Lorres and J. McCreary remained dominant in the banam game scoring 17 and 13 pts. while J. Cooper had 7 for Brighton.

Officials: P. Annis, G. Smith.

Lightfoots Win 85-76 Over Picton

By TED BLACKMAN

RCAF Flyers and Belleville Lightfoots continued to run one-two in the Bay of Quinte Basketball League race last night when both clubs chalked up victories.

Lightfoots clipped Picton Army 85-76 while RCAF topped Cobourg 64-44 in the other tilt.

Flyers are four points ahead of Belleville with a record of eight wins and two defeats.

Belleville led Picton by a slim 47-44 score at the half-way mark and the game was a nip and tuck affair most of the way. Picton tied the score at one point while at another Lightfoots led by 15 points.

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec International Bonspiel today entered its second day with two former champions leading the charge and most of the other curlers on the rocks, if not on the broom.

When the merrymaking of the first round subsided, Frank Boterac of Kirkland Lake, Ont., and Carl Bastedo of Burlington, Ont., were the eight path to repeating their previous victories. Both are within one victory of reaching the prestigious Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy competition.

Butorac, who swept the competition with a grand slam last year, defeated two opponents in Monday's opening round to move within one win of the quarter-finals of the Francois Jobin Trophy, which would qualify his rink for the Lieutenant-governor's event. Bastedo, a 1962 winner, also reached that stage.

But these are the serious curlers. Most of the other 128 rinks from the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and the United States are here to take part in the winter carnival, an undertaking that would handicap even the most serious curlers.

One skip from the Maritimes summed up the whole affair. He got a well-balanced rink" he declared as he stepped onto the ice: "Two drinkers and two non-drinkers."

DOESN'T WANT WIN

Another captain revealed that he aspired to return home empty-handed. "If we were expected to win, we wouldn't have come."

Butorac began his climb to the qualifications with a tight 10-8 victory over A. J. Assaff of Bathurst, N.B., deliberately blanking the ninth, and to take last rock coming home and pick up another point. In th seventh, he easily knocked off Romeo Roy of Quebec 10-8.

Bastedo dumped Luther Clarke of Windsor, Ont. 13-8 in the morning and outcurled Quebec's Rene Giguere 13-6 in the evening. Today's first round pits him against Dr. E. Smockum of Alliston, Ont., who beat Robert Verchere of Quebec 10-4 and E. W. Springs of Halifax 11-6.

Butorac meets H. J. Goodman of London, who defeated L. E. Hanman of North Bay 10-7 and Al Papenfus of Wausau, Wis. 13-4.

The only upset was the defeat of Nels Finlay of Galt, a finalist last skip dropped 8-5 by Gerry Jobin of Quebec in one of the feature matches of the opening day. Jobin was the big winner in the tilt.

Losers in each event drop down into the next competition. There are 14 events and after every rink curls until the end of this week.

Flyers Hap Emms Charges Partiality

Says OHA Referees Favor Toronto Jrs.

TORONTO (CP)—Hap Emms, owner-coach of Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Monday charged referees favoritism toward Toronto teams.

Emms, speaking at a meeting of the OHA junior executive the day night, charged:

"There is more of watching junior hockey here I have always felt the referees lean toward the Toronto team, especially in the matter of penalties.

"This doesn't only apply to the Marlboro team — which doesn't need any help—but also the Weil Mill (of the Metro Junior B League). . . .

Emms questioned the wisdom of the OHA in appointing a referee from Toronto to handle games at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The OHA in appointing referee Bill Hanley, reminded Emms that his complaints should be done in writing and not by phone.

President Pat Patterson of Guelph instructed council members to read over the correspondence to the OHA and he assured them the complaints would be reviewed. The referee-in-chief is C. F. Patterson of Georgetown.

JIMMY SKINNER

Jimmy Skinner of Hamilton Red Wings complained about inconsistency and their aggressiveness in attempting to break up fights between players. He said only a husky lineman can put one player in a fight at a disadvantage.

Following a fight a Hamilton player had his nose broken by an antagonist while his arms were pinned to his sides by a husky lineman."

On playing conditions, Ken Campbell, Guelph chairman said that in Bowmanville where Oshawa plays most home games the ice surface is somewhat terrible because of the number of fans allowed in the arena.

"Pucks bounce from the rafters and lean over the screen to interfere with the players," Campbell said. "The referee can't stopped someone is going to be hurt. I think the Oshawa club should be forced to impose an attendance limit."

Wren Blair of Oshawa General said the seating accommodation at Bowmanville is about 1,500, but that 1,500 fans attended at least one game.

SKORICH GETS JOB

Juniors Trounced 13-3

Belleville "B"s absorbed their worst defeat of the season in Kingston last night, a 13-3 lacing in a penalty-riddled OHA Eastern Junior "B" League game.

Kingston took an early 3-0 lead and never looked back. It was 4-2 at the end of one frame and 7-2 before the winners firmly established a row in the third period.

Penalties outnumbered the goals 20-16. Four of the sentences were majors, for fighting, while the remainder were minors.

Belleville made its bid for a comeback in the first heat after Earl had scored once and McMillan twice in the first two tences ahead 3-0. Jim Ruther, ford got the "B"s first marker, assisted by Bob Boyle, at 11.20. McMillan completed his hat trick for Kingston minutes later but again Rutherford kept Belleville within reach, scoring his second marker in the final minute of the period. Bill Lang drew an assist on this one.

Kingston then completed the walk-a-away with nine goals in a row, three of them coming in the third period.

Belleville ended the scoring at 10:44 of the third. Grant Hagerman completed a three-way play with Rutherford and Boyle but that was it.

Defenceman Rick Eaton spearheaded the Kingston attack, getting a hat trick and two assists. Gary McMillan had his first-period hat trick while Ron Earl collected two goals. Chuck Conery, Barry White, Bob Bruce and Mike McMahon contributed a single goal apiece.

The first of two flights broke up the 2-2 tie between the two Kingston's Gary McMillan and Belleville's Roy Maracle drawing majors. Ted Rowland, of the "B"s tangled with Kingston's Don Smith, also for majors, at 16.00 of the same period.

All in all Belleville drew 12 penalties and the winners ten.

Driving Club Schedules 16-Meet Season

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The annual meeting of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club last night produced discussion, argument, a sixteen-meet season, a paid race secretary and the re-election of president Gerald Vance.

The meeting centred around the activities of the harness racing division of the club. The riding and horse-show division decided to hold its own meeting to make 1964 plans.

Three presidential nominees declined the honor which left Vance holding the Mrs. Evelyn Zebedee, a licensee, was named race secretary at a weekly salary of $25. The question of payment and the amount involved drew long discussion before the motion carried.

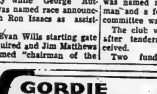
First vice-president is Douglas Hedger second vice. Bob Barker and the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Al. Vance.

The position of treasurer, a highly responsible post, failed to bring an acceptance and the appointment was laid over to the next meeting.



Al. Vance was named track supervisor. He will also act as a liaison between horsemen and executive in case of weather threatening to postpone meets.

APPOINTMENTS

Bill Prest with the 1963 and 1964 treasurers, was named to represent the club's case to the Canadian Track Association with regard to subsidies.

By GORDIE HOWE

Speaking of centre ice, Milt Schmidt, centre on Boston's famed "Kraut line" now the coach, was a short stirred hockey player.

He had complete control of his puck. He kept it in front of him at all times. He was a hard rock and a great competitor.

He was not used to be feared because of the way he'd go up against a rugged defence,man like our Jack Stewart. Jack would move to block his path. Smitty didn't even try to avoid him. He'd try to go right over Stewart. That was almost impossible but at times he did make it.

In contrast to Schmidt's fiery play, Montreal's big centre Jean Beliveau is going to be a gentleman wherever he is and on the ice he is no exception.

Beliveau is a fabulous individual. I think he's one of hockey's greatest. Some say he doesn't fight as much as he should.

Maybe he doesn't fight with his fists but take it from me, when he's out there he's puffing and working as hard as he is skating. I know that from playing against him.

Some people say he's not as greasefree as far as hitting or laying the lumber on. I think they're wrong. He has tremendous power in his arms.

When he puts the lumber to you, he won't hit real high, but you'll know it's there. You're not going to go through with it. He has tremendous reach. With his great strength - this enables him to make accurate passes on his stick side even with his arms at full length.

I played briefly against another fine Montreal centre, Elmer Lach. I know he must have been a great competitor because he and Sid Abel used to feud continually.

They used to go out there and if neither got a good clean whack at the other, he'd lay everything into it. With all the skating and stick handling up Rocket Richard, Lach must have been a good man. Besides, he came from the West.

were presented to the meeting. One was a ten-dollar per plate dinner with a large financial draw, the other the sale of "shares" to fifty persons at $50. per share. Decision was laid over.

The meeting was told the club must have $1,000 in the treasury in order to start the season meets. According to the treasurer's report the club has something over $400 to its bank credit.

The club will hold a sixteen-meet season starting May 23rd through to September 5th inclusive. It was felt that such a fairs would be a deterrent to additional meets.

Jack Bush also declined the vice-presidency of the horseshoe division told the meeting that the riding and horse-show personnel would hold a separate meeting and elect its officers.

Horsemen who have suffered some criticism regarding substitution of horses on meet programs, should be reassured by statements that some horsemen enter their horses then fail to put in an appearance.

Brighton driver Roy Mitchell suggested that any horseman entering a horse and failing to show without a veterinary's certificate be set down as stated under CHA rules.

It was also emphasized that the race secretary's decisions in classifying horses be final without interference from other sources.

The proposed agreement between the club and the City Parks Board was read in its entirety to the meeting. It was laid over and referred to the executive for decision.

Skyline Like Christmas Card

Innsbruck 'Sleek Buildings, Old Castles'

By JIM BECKER

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)— This alpine city, where the Winter Olympics open this week, is a curious combination of sleek modern buildings and ancient old castles that look as if Hansel and Gretel have just stepped out to lunch.

The skyline along the river Inn apparently was copied from a Christmas card, or vice versa.

The buildings erected for the Olympics, including the skyscraper Olympic village, are as sleek as an Italian railway station.

The narrow streets in the old town leading to the Hapsburg Palace contrast with the modern highways built for the Games. The new roads have put Innsbruck 10 years ahead of its planned development.

The 100,000 residents of Innsbruck have a flair for mixing the world's leading linguists.

IS CAPITAL

The city is the capital of the alpine province of Tyrol, in the corner of Austria where it meets Italy and Switzerland. The Brenner pass is 30 miles away, and all the roads and rails lead through it.

That explains a lot of the languages that are rattled off, but not the fact that an amazing number speak English.

"We learn it in school," was the explanation of one young lady, who was wearing a smart suit out of a Paris shop and high heels from Italy.

Leopard, ocelot, mink and seal are the popular furs, and they're needed. Innsbruck is only 1,500 feet above sea level, but it sits in a bowl of mountains and the January daytime temperature is around 20 degrees.

There is one television channel here, the Austrian state network, with three hours of programs a night.

ADD TV BITS

The schedule will be extended during the Olympic events, and judging from the number of television sets being installed in Innsbruck hotel lobbies many of the expected 100,000 visitors are going to take the easy way out and watch the games on TV.

Many people follow the ski circuit but never go near the slopes. They customarily get their exercise from dancing the twist in tight ski pants before an open fire.

This is among the major after-dark activities in Innsbruck, along with wenching and tankard-banging to the accompaniment of an accordion.

Eating is another pastime. The specialty of one house, which describes itself as the oldest restaurant in Europe, is the Song without Words.

It is a heaping platter of steak, wienerschnitzel, pork cutlet, fried egg, potatoes, vegetables, salad and fruit. It is billed to serve two. Cost: $4.

40 Per Cent of Prime Time Shows Expected to Fold

Rodriguez Outhits Januarry

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television viewers may steel themselves for a major reshuffling of network programs next season.

About 40 per cent of the prime time shows are expected to fold. The normal rate of attrition averages 30 per cent a season.

Among the programs in shaky condition, according to the authoritative broadcasting magazine, are Sing Along With Mitch, Rawhide, and The Joey Bishop Show which have been around for several seasons. Shows which probably will disappear after one season are The New Phil Silvers Show, Grindl, and The Lieutenant. All have low audience ratings.

If television is interested in any one category of program for next season, it appears to be the James Bond type of hero. Bond is the super-secret agent created by British novelist Ian Fleming. He constantly and stylish-gle-handedly saves the world from dangerous foreign powers and ils, in addition, is a suave, man-of-the-world with distinctive tastes in weapons, food and drink, and in beautiful women. It's pure, uncomplicated escape with comic overtones as Fleming writes it. The flavor will be hard to convert to television.

Nothing daunted, however, NBC expects to present Mr. Solo, a character created by Fleming himself. CBS has two—Mark Dolphin and Dr. Stryker.

Want Club Moved To Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Agreement to try to move the Kansas City Athletics to Oakland is time to start the 1964 baseball season was announced Monday by club owner Charles Finley and city officials. But they can't do it, unless other American League clubs approve.

Arthur C. Allyn? Chicago White Sox president, told the Kansas City Star that he would not take the trouble to respond to Finley's telegram asking another league owners meeting.

A Los Angeles Angels spokesman said the Angels would like another American League club on the west coast but "I think the league would again abide by its decision of last week that the Athletics should stay in Kansas City."

Finley conceded he has no assurances whatever and that it is a big "if".

The colorful, controversial owner earlier made a bid to transfer the Athletics from Kansas City to Louisville, Ky. but was turned down by a vote of 9 to 1 by the other owners.

He was also ordered by the league owners to sign a lease in Kansas City by Feb. 1 or face expulsion from the league.

Finley responded immediately with a threat to take the league to court to test its powers to order such a move.

In Boston, American League president Joe Cronin said: "As I have said many times since the league owners voted against the transfer to Louisville and Mr. Finley threatened suit, we are, under the advice of counsel, referring everything to him (Finley)."

Finley talked about the proposed switch to Oakland at a press conference in the west coast city.

It was called after the Oakland city council voted 5-0 to build the baseball arena.

The council promised to reconvert 20,000-seat Frank Youcell Field, now a football arena, and make it usable for baseball by April 22 with 27,500 seats. The cost would be $500,000, the council was told, but city officials said the city would have to put up only $100,000 of this. Finley would pay in $300,000 for the parking concession and make two annual $50,000 rental payments.

1968 Winter Olympics

Canada Makes Final Bid

By ROD CURRIE

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Canada makes its final bid today for the 1968 Winter Olympics Games, hopeful that the International Olympic Committee will pick Banff over five other sites.

The IOC in closed session first will hear the Canadian presentation, followed by those of Grenoble, France; Lahti, Finland; Lake Placid, N.Y.; Oslo, Norway, and Sapporo, Japan.

Each country is allowed 20 minutes to present its brief—detailed briefs were submitted to the IOC earlier—and face likely questioning by the 65-member committee.

The IOC then will begin voting on its choice. More than one ballot may be needed under the IOC's voting procedure.

If one country hasn't more votes than all others combined on the first ballot, the country drawing the least votes is eliminated. The procedure is repeated until the winner is picked.

COULD BE DELAYED

Deliberations could delay the announcement. The IOC at its meetings has been regularly running behind schedule in its rulings.

Choice of the Olympic site was the main item on Canadian interest today as the 1,250 athletes awaited the opening of the ninth Games Wednesday. Canada never has been host to the Olympics.

BANS PAPERS

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (Reuters)—Home Affairs Minister Job Lusinde Monday signed an order banning the Kenya newspapers Daily and Sunday Nation from sale in Tanganyika. No reason was given.

Scottish, British Soccer Draw

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Glasgow Rangers and Partick Thistle, two of Scotland's top soccer teams, have been paired in the third round of the Scottish Cup.

A crowd of 60,000 is expected when the teams clash at Glasgow's Ibbrox Stadium Feb. 15.

The draw for the third round, made Monday, included:

East Stirling vs. Dunfermline; Dundee vs. Clyde or Forfar; St. Mirren vs. Falkirk or Berwick or Berwick Rangers; Motherwell vs Hearts; Rangers vs. Partick Thistle; Kilmarnock vs. Albion Rovers; Celtic vs. Airdrieonians; Aberdeen vs. Queen's Park or Ayr United.

Qualify For Carling Cup

The qualifying round for the Carling Cup was held here over the weekend for bowlers from Belleville and Picton.

Four bowlers will qualify from these two centres. Paul Bailey led the field with 884, followed by Glen Hamilton with 870 and George Hammett 790. The fourth spot is yet to be decided. Cliff Black and Jim Hutquist tied at 776 and a rolloff will be held.

Finals, with qualifiers from numerous areas, will commence on February 15 over the Kingston TV station.

1964 Summer Olympics

Hold Up South Africa Bid

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP-AP)—The International Olympic Committee ruled Monday that South Africa cannot participate in the 1964 summer olympics Games in Tokyo because it has not changed its racial policies in sport "adequately."

The IOC thrashed out the problem in a closed meeting and passed a resolution saying that South Africa's application remains "withdrawn," but another resolution left the door open for reconsideration.

The IOC also rejected a motion to suspend the South African Olympic Committee.

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, told a press conference that South Africa had failed to meet Olympic requirements that frown on racial policies in sport as practised under South Africa's apartheid—racial apartness—policy.

The IOC at a meeting in Baden Baden, West Germany, in October passed a resolution calling on the South African Olympic Committee to persuade the South African government to drop apartheid in sport by Dec. 31, 1963. That deadline was later extended to Jan. 15 of this year.

REQUIREMENTS NOT MET

Brundage, referring to the Baden Baden resolution, said: "The South Africans have not yet met the requirements and therefore the invitation to participate in Tokyo remains withdrawn.

"We have not slammed the door in their face. We have passed a negative resolution expressing our views and giving them an opportunity to come back into the fold if they meet the IOC requirements."

Clint Walker Got Break With Jack Benny Show

By BOB-THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Whatever happened to Clint Walker? The six-foot-six actor has rarely been heard from since he toped 200 pounds as the Cheyenne over a year ago.

He had shot his way out of popular television series often after seven years as its star. Some cynics predicted he also had gunned down his career.

This is to let them know that there still is plenty of life in the big boy. It is beginning to show after a season of waiting and watching.

"There were times last year when nothing seemed to be working for me," he said. "But I never gave up hope, and I didn't go hungry. I could earn just as much on my own as I did under contract to Warners."

How? By touring the rodeo circuit. Clint spent five months of the year appearing with bronchos and brahmas for big money.

ADMITS STAGE FRIGHT

"When I first went out, I was scared to death," he admitted. "My throat dried up and I couldn't talk, and my knees were actually shaking. But gradually I got used to it, and now I look forward to playing rodeos. I guess it proves there's plenty of ham in me."

He admitted that it was good seasoning for him to tell jokes and sing and be prepared for any emergency. Once he even fell off his horse, but saved the situation with a wisecrack.

His rodeo experience led to a guest appearance with Jack Benny, and that has led to a lot of things. Right now he's doing a comedy with a Texas tycoon with Doris Day...Rock Hudson and Tony Randall in Send Me No Flowers. Universal also has signed him for other pictures, and he has deals cooking at three other studios.

"Everything is looking fine for the future," said Clint. "All it took was the Jack Benny show to demonstrate that I could do something besides western. Everybody in this town just won't believe anything until they see it."

Send Me No Flowers will mark the first time Clint has appeared on the screen in modern dress. Besides his years in Cheyenne's buckain, he made three Warners features — all westerns. His previous experience was playing guard to the Pharaoh in The 10 Commandments."

Lead Five-pin Tournament

Betty Heffern led the women's division and Leo Lucciola topped the men's section as the first ten games of the B.P.A.O. Eastern Canada five-pin tournament was held here on the weekend.

Lucciola rolled 2902, including a terrific 400 single, to lead the field by a wide margin. Other top scorers were: Paul Bailey 2557, Ken Bailey 2544, Jim Begley 2384, Ron Elliott 2354 and Horace Ormahaw 2320.

Betty Heffern had a 2219 total to lead the way for the women. She was followed by: Audrey Aziz 2078, Bea Hunt 2057, Rosa Spry 2000, Lenora West 1986 and Mary Fox 1970.

The next ten game block of the tournament will be bowled in Trenton.

Departmental Hockey

Public Works lost their chance for a perfect schedule record in the final league tilt of the season last night when the Police Department battled them to a 3-3 tie.

In the other contest, Ontario Intelligencer Inkspots edged Public Utilities in a close fixture.

Public Works ended the schedule in first place with a record of 10 wins, no losses and one tie. The Works now receive a bye into the league finals.

Ontario Intelligencer and the Police will meet in a two-of-three semi-final series. The last-place Utilities squad will not take part in the playoffs.

Following is the final league standing:

	W.	L.	T.	P.
Public Works	10	1	1	21
Ont.-Intell.	6	4	1	13
Police	3	6	2	8
Utilities	1	9	2	4

SET SKATING DATES

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The Eastern Canada speedskating championships, postponed last weekend because of mild weather, have been re-scheduled here for Saturday and Sunday. A spokesman for the Ontario Speedskating Association said Monday he expects about 120 entries from New York State, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio and Ontario.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For, January 29

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Best to depend on ideas away from usual sources. Bring forth usual abilities. Pay little heed to the "organization man." Friend who urges you to rush is not informed.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Make sure you "have it in writing." Don't rely on promises. Important that you are practical. See persons, situations as they actually exist. Be realistic.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Hold off on travel. Seek ways to economize. Time when there is flurry of activity. Don't scatter forces. Refuse to act against basic convictions. Take your time.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Self-control essential. Time to be productive. Build on solid base. Don't neglect important details. Your ideas are sound. Start putting them into action.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Cycle high, but there is tendency to be argumentative. Exciting possibilities if you are diplomatic. Remember those who were loyal in past. Key is consideration. Golden Rule.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Hold feelings under control. Being over-aggressive today could lead to costly error. Key is being calm, deliberate. Take most practical course to arrive at destination.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Restless tendency prevails. Solution is creative activity. Throw caution to winds would be mistake. Applies especially in dealing with member of opposite sex.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Offer ideas. But don't try to force them on individuals. Avoid disputes at place of work. Smile — even if it hurts! In personal life, offer encouragement to loved one.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Be willing to experiment. Try new methods based on added knowledge. Be careful about what you write, say. Be constructive. Avoid criticizing merely for sake of "showing off."

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Money pressure should be no reason for worry. Careful, thoughtful consideration will solve problem. Consult family member. Obtain co-operation of responsible persons.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Display initiative. It's definitely your move! Be a self-starter. Get projects in motion.

Speak up — show that you are sincere; and that you mean business.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Pacing important. Don't attempt to do too much at one time. Obtain sufficient rest. Avoid rushing merely to appear busy. Attitude of confidence wins adherents. Stress maturity.

If today is your birthday . . . you are intuitive, capable of perceiving future trends. Would make fine architect, engineer, problem analyst.

General Tendencies: Plans on massive scale could "fall apart."

NFL Will Telecast Twin Bills

By JACK HAND

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—National Football League owners took a second look at their fabulous $28,200,000 contract for television rights Monday and found a new weapon to combat the rival American Football League—the Sunday afternoon television double-header.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle and Bill MacPhail vice-president of the Columbia Broadcasting System who made the winning bid Friday for 1964-65 television rights, held a press conference on the eve of the NFL annual meeting.

MacPhail said that in order to meet the new high costs CBS planned a series of Sunday afternoon pro football doubleheaders, probably starting in late October.

"We plan to bring a west coast game into eastern cities after an east coast game is over and vice versa," said MacPhail.

"For instance, if New York is at Pittsburgh the game would be seen in New York followed by a California game from San Francisco or Los Angeles. We would do the same thing for the west coast, preceding their game with an eastern contest," he said.

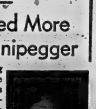
Paper Says Cornwall Man Will Get Job

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the appointment of Crown Attorney R. Percy Milligan of Cornwall as chairman of the Ontario Police Commission will be announced today.

Mr. Milligan will succeed Judge Bruce J. S. Macdonald, who announced his resignation from the position last year to return to the bench.

It is expected the replacement for Maj. Gen. H. A. Sparling, whose resignation from the three-man commission was also accepted, will be announced at the same time, the newspaper says.

Judge Macdonald's resignation becomes effective next weekend. However, he will remain to complete the commission's annual report and a report on organized crime ordered by Attorney-General Cass last summer.



The present commission's tasks, the newspaper adds, are nearing completion. A final report on its investigation of the administration and morale of Sudbury's 100-man police department was to have been delivered to Mr. Cass Monday.

Club Leaders Need More Training Says Winnipegger

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Thanks for referring Miss Winnipeg to us. There is more to the organization of friendship clubs than meets the eye. Facilities, sponsorship and financing are but a few of the details. Our Bureau has had a good deal of experience in helping clubs get started. We are quite prepared to be used as a resource.

Leadership is important and we have training programs for leaders and a handbook to help them. At the moment there are over 65 such clubs operating in metropolitan Winnipeg and we try to keep in close touch with them all, lending whatever assistance we can. — DOROTHY HARDY, Age and Opportunity Bureau, Winnipeg.

DEAR MISS HARDY — Good for you. You are doing wonders for Winnipeggers. And there are other Canadian cities which have been dreaming up useful and imaginative ways of adding life to our years, over the past decade.

(Eve Henderson, of Edmonton, supplied me with some Tips for Organizing Friendship Clubs, and these are available to any ambitious organizer writing in.)

DEAR DORIS — I study five hours a night. I still can't get good grades. My teacher says I could do better, but I don't even care. I'm due to death at homework. Don't you think people need some time off? — STUPID.

DEAR STUPID — Couldn't agree more. But that word "study" is used pretty loosely. Try turning off the radio, the TV, the telephone, the snack bar and (or) the record player. Or am I being unfair?

The usual trouble is failure to concentrate; this ability has to be acquired and then encouraged with the right environment and an attitude of self-confidence — among other things.

Write in for my pamphlet on How to Study. (Enclose 10c and stamped envelope.) If you really mean it, you can cut down study hours and improve results.

(Doris is a trained social worker who has studied human behavior and knows how to help. Write to her with your problem.)

Kiwanians Taken on Tour Of New School by Principal

PICTON (Staff)—The Picton Kiwanis Club held their regular weekly meeting at the Prince Edward Memorial Collegiate on Monday night and after an exceptionally fine dinner, served in the large spotless school cafeteria, were taken on a conducted tour of the new Technical Wing by Kiwanian John Syrett, principal of the school, and Douglas Baker, technical director.

The Kiwanians, which included five members of the West Kingston Club, were shown where the $177,000 cost of equipment was spent, in the one million dollar addition.

One of the things that proved most interesting was the closed circuit TV, and how it worked. William Babbitt gave a graphic illustration of just how this new concept of teaching is handled.

First he told the group that he and his group had re-designed parts of the equipment, which makes it possible for the students who are watching the screen, in various rooms in the school, to ask questions of Mr. Babbitt, while he is conducting the TV lecture. This is the first time in Canada that this has been accomplished, according to Mr. Babbitt.

"For instance," he said, "let us assume we are dissecting a frog, only a very few of the students can actually see this being done, where as by the use of these TV cameras, we can show it to four, or five classes and also can bring it right close to them."

"Let us assume further that we have some 150 students that would like some extra work after supper hours, and we do have lots of them that enjoy it. We can use one teacher and the TV, and he can teach four or five classrooms at the same time."

"If it saves the time of the teacher which can be put to use with individual students, it will be well worth the cost," said Mr. Syrett.

COST BROKEN DOWN

According to the figures, there have been $250,000.00 spent in the past two years in these new technical additions, and in this connection Ontario received more than all the rest of Canada together. The Federal Government grant comes to 75 percent, the Provincial to 25 percent of the cost of the additions.

The total cost to each person in Ontario is $40 and we would be paying this even if no school were built here. The Prince Edward addition cost about $1,000,000. Of this figure, it has been estimated that about $500,000 was pumped back into the county from labor and material for the addition.

Mr. Syrett added that he did not think the operational costs of $25,000 would go any higher than the grant for the same amount.

LOW DAILY COST

The average daily attendance cost in Ontario is $622. Here in Prince Edward County the cost is $580. "We are always below the Ontario average," Mr. Syrett explained.

He went on to explain that the school population has tripled in the past ten years, although the population of the county has increased very little. "We teach more students per teacher here, than any other high school in the province," he added.

Mr. Syrett paid tribute to Mr. Baker and the late Robert Norval for their extreme care in the purchasing of equipment. "In a lot of cases, the school boards looked at the equipment the 'crash program' suggested and simply ordered it. We did not do this. Mr. Baker personally supervised the purchase of every piece of equipment in the new wing, with the result that we purchased what I truly believe is a lot more equipment that we can use, than most other schools. I think, that for what we wanted, we have the finest equipped school in the country," Mr. Syrett concluded.

$7,000 in Cash, Cheques Taken In Robbery

PICTON (Staff) — Approximately $7,000 in cash and cheques was stolen in the week-end safe robbery at the T. Eaton Company store at Picton over the week-end.

The break-in was discovered by store caretaker James Wish. Police are still investigating.

Three Games Kick Off Minor Hockey Week

PICTON (Staff) — Three games were played at the Picton arena last night to "kick off" Minor Hockey Week in Canada.

In the first game, the Picton Bruins and the Trenton bantams played to a two-all draw. Ed. Aris assisted by Bob Hewitt fired goals for Trenton. David Killoyle assisted by Douglas Seeley fired one and Alan Carey took a pass from Danny Halloran to tie it up. Trenton led 1-0 at the end of the first, increased this to 2-1 going into the last frame only to have the locals fire one for the draw.

In the midget game, Picton went up against a powerful Belleville "A" team and held them to 5-4 in a game that was fast and exciting from start to finish.

Belleville took a 2-0 lead into the second period on goals by Jim Ling and Brian Fullerton. Dale Duval picked up an assist on Ling's goal. Belleville led 4-2 at the end of the second, Dale Duvall and Stephen White each getting one. Bill Wickens drew an assist on White's goal.

John Stringer and Craig Fredericks fired one each for Picton in the second frame. Matt Howe and Ron North each fired one for Picton in the last period. Terry Sharpe picking up an assist on Northern's marker. Stephen Holmes fired the lone tally for Belleville in the last period with Dave Emmerson picking up an assist.

In the Juvenile game Picton clobbered Trenton by a lop-sided 7-0 score. They led 2-0 at the end of the first, increased this to 4-0 at the end of the second and belted three more in the last period to win in a breeze.

Matt Howe and Paul Jones each fired a pair for the winners, with singles going to Ken Craigland, Clive Williams and Richard Ricker. Hicks picked up two assists, Rick Jones, Matt Howe, Albert VanDusen, each were credited with one assist.

"All right—break it up!—I NEVER cut myself!"

RESCUE CANADIAN WOUNDED — Canadians wounded in the savage First World War fighting at Passchendaele in Flanders are evacuated by stretcher bearers. Heavy enemy bombardment made rescue work all but impossible and many wounded drowned in shell craters filled with the ever-present mud. (CP Photo)

Gas Attack at St. Julien

Memorial to a Terrible Morning

Fifty years ago, on Aug. 14, 1914, the First World War began. Few places were the scene more tragically than Flanders, in western Belgium, where more than 500,000 Commonwealth casualties piled up in the defence of Ypres and the Channel ports. Canadian Press reporter Carol Kennedy, on a visit to Flanders, finds that the old war and the exploits of Canadian troops in the Ypres Salient are still fresh in memory.

By CAROL KENNEDY

YPRES, Belgium (CP)—Maple trees stand in Flanders fields—as eloquent a symbol of sacrifice as the blood-red poppies of summer, for they mark the site of some of Canada's greatest battle exploits in the First World War.

Planted in the early 1920s when the now rich farmland was a desolation of mud and blackened stumps, Canada's tree has flourished in this chill western province of Belgium.

Maple groves have grown tall round the plain six-sided Canadian memorial at the Passchendaele Ridge, scene of terrible slaughter 47 years ago, and its twin on Hill 62 above the iron ically named Sanctuary Wood fought for with fierce desperation by Canadian infantry in June, 1916.

One lone sapling, planted seven years ago by survivors of the original Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, grows on the site of the front-line trenches of Frezenberg Ridge, a famous action of May, 1915. Here, where Flemish farmers now trudge placidly behind horse-drawn plows, the celebrated Patricias—first regiment of the Canadian Expeditionary Force into the front line—faced repeated German attacks that reduced them to four officers and 150 men.

FIRST GAS ATTACK

Two of Canada's great "battle exploit" memorials — St. Julien and Sanctuary Wood—marked important actions in the trench - war defence of Ypres, 1915 and 1916. The third, Passchendaele, was the climax to the three-year Flanders campaign in November, 1917.

The monuments, built of stone, imported by the Canadian government, are maintained locally by the British and Belgian staff of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission in Ypres.

Most impressive of the three and one of the most moving of all war memorials is St. Julien, scene of the Canadian stand in April, 1915, against the first gas attack in the history of war.

You come upon it dramatically at the end of a long haul up the old Gravenstafel Ridge three miles northeast of Ypres. At the foot of the ridge is the reborn village of St. Julien. At its crest is a thicket of conifers and rising out of them, silhouetted against the sky, the colossal bowed head and shoulders of a soldier carved in white granite.

2,000 GRAVES

Beneath the lawns 2,000 victims of the German gas lie buried. Wherever you walk in the garden the great mourning head looms over the trees, seeming in the words of American historian Leon Wolff to "grieve for all soldiers of all lands since time began."

On this spot, on the sunny afternoon of April 22, 1915, some 18,000 men of the crack 1st Canadian Division were holding a line connecting on the left with French colonial troops, mostly African Zouaves.

At 5 p.m. men on the left of the Canadian line saw clouds of greenish-yellow vapor rolling towards the French sector from the German positions at Langemarck. Under the impact of 160 tons of chlorine the French line broke and German infantry began to pour through the gap.

For two days the Canadian line, bent back like two sides of a triangle to protect its rear, beat off the attackers. Two Alderson, general officer commanding, had predicted: "Before long the army will say 'the Canadians never budge.'"

In a fantastic counter-attack at midnight April 24 two battalions of the 2nd and 3rd Brigades dashed through nearby Kitchener's Wood to recapture some British guns. They stormed through the German lines taking prisoners as they went, apparently oblivious to the machine-guns that one survivor said "played on us like watering-pots."

Then in the early hours of April 24 the Germans launched gas straight at the Canadian line. The men had only makeshift masks of wet cotton, useless against the blinding, choking gas. But when the Germans in their respirators came up behind the gas, expecting a second breakthrough, they found the Canadians still hanging on grimly to the parapet, emptying their Ross rifles until nearly three-quarters of them were overcome by gas.

Two months earlier, addressing the 1st Division on its arrival in Ploegsteert (Bloody Street) Wood, Lt.-Gen. E. A. H.

DEFIED DEATH

And British historian Alan Clark, in his recent book The Donkeys, a criticism of First World War generalship, had this to say of the gas attack:

"It is impossible to exaggerate the bravery of these Canadians who in defiance of an almost certain and particularly ugly death held on in these critical positions at the upbringings of the Allied line . . . yet one more example of the gallantry of individual soldiers saving the commanders from the effects that should have followed on their own folly."

In all the controversy over the British high command in 1914-18, no battle has been so hotly debated as Passchendaele, that agonized mud-crawl into the German guns that Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig planned to smash decisively through the eastern rim of the Salient.

It has even been compared with the Somme, Verdun and other Passion Dale, so great was the suffering. The weather broke the day before the start of the attack, July 31, and from then on men and guns were trapped in the liquid clay like flies in a gluepot.

DROWNED IN MUD

Stretcher - bearers could not collect the wounded: they drowned in shell-craters filled in the green slime. And all the time the German shells pounded down from the 60-foot ridge that Haig threw wave after wave of fresh troops into the gaps: all told, about 150,000 died in that three-month assault planned to take three days.

Winston Churchill called it "a forlorn expenditure of valor and life without equal in futility." The Canadians took over the spearhead of the attack Oct. 18, in the streaming dawn of Nov. 6, 1917, they finally struggled up the ridge and the 6th Brigade of the 2nd Division trailed wearily into Passchendaele village—or what was left of it, a scribble of stones where the church had been.

Today all horror has drained from the prosaic cluster of cottages. But men still remember —and accuse.

"Speaking as an old soldier, I cannot forgive Douglas Haig," said one Belgian veteran. Behind us on Passchendaele Ridge the Canadian memorial gleamed pale among the maples; below us the sunlit meadows sloped down to the triple spires of Ypres, four miles away.

"Look at that," and he swept the long view with an arm. "The Germans were here, we were struggling uphill, always uphill into their fire. There was no solid ground anywhere.

"There was nothing to do but throw your life away."

Tomorrow: Battlefields revisited.

Woman Bound, Then Stabbed By Two Robbers

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A 47-year-old Windsor woman was gagged, bound, and then stabbed in the abdomen late Tuesday night when two men broke into her apartment and stole about $1,400 in cash.

Mrs. Danice Djukic told police she was awakened shortly before midnight when two men climbed in a kitchen window and upset a pan of water on the radiator.

When she got out of bed to investigate, the men gagged her, tied her to a chair, and one of them stabbed her with a knife in the upper abdomen. They then ransacked the apartment and fled with the cash.

The woman was found about one hour later by her husband when he came home from working a night shift. Mrs. Djukic was taken to hospital where her condition was described as "satisfactory.

Canadians Lead Swiss End of Second

FINAL S-S

Canada's young hockey team led the Switzerland team 6-0 at the end of the second period in the opening game of the Olympic hockey championships at Innsbruck, Austria, today.

Russia's favored world champions defeated the United States 5-1 despite the valiant stand of the American goalie, Tom Yurkovich.

Held to a 1-0 margin in he first period by the brilliant netminding of Yurkovich, the Russians broke loose for three goals in the second period to put the game away.

Victor Yakushev, a crewcut Russian who refuses to don the white crash helmet used by his teammates, was the star of the Russian attack, scoring two of the second period goals and leading repeated surges down the ice.

Yurkovich, of Rochester, Minn., has bad knees and played the last two periods in pain when he twisted his left knee three minutes before the end of the first period. But he insisted on continuing the game after treatment with an ice pack and turned in an amazing total of 37 saves compared with 25 for his Russian counterpart, Victor Konovalenko.

Anatoly Firsov, Vyacheslav and Boris Mairov got the other Russian goals.

Both teams came into the game highly keyed but there was only one skirmish between the rivals. It came at the end of the game and was quickly put down by the officials.

NUNS REACH SAFETY IN CONGO — Nuns leave plane at Leopoldville, Congo, after being flown to safety from terror-stricken Kwilu province. Christian missionaries are being threatened by rebel guerrillas in the southwest Congo. (AP Wirephoto via cable from Brussels)

United Nations Helicopters Fly Missionaries From Kwilu Region

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (Reuters)—A 58-year-old American woman missionary was picked up by United Nations helicopters in revolt-torn Kwilu province Tuesday night and was flown into Leopoldville, it was reported today.

Miss Ruth Hege of the American Congo Baptist Mission at Mangungu survived an attack on the mission early Saturday morning, in which her companion, Miss Irene Ferrel, was killed by an arrow.

She was brought to safety as the UN helicopter group continued to bring out missionaries —Canadian, American and European—threatened by the revolt in the southwest Congo in which 150 persons are reported to have been killed.

Among the missionaries, three Roman Catholic priests from Belgium are known to have been slain besides Miss Ferrel.

The commander of the UN group, Lt.-Col. Paul Mayer of Canada, was knocked unconscious by a rifle butt Monday night as he tried to negotiate the release of nine Roman Catholic nuns and priests at Kisandji.

Mayer, a 47-year-old native of Ottawa, had walked up alone to a group of 150 Congolese warriors when he was attacked. Three nuns scrambled aboard a helicopter as the rebels rifled the officer's pockets and took his watch.

When he regained consciousness, Mayer continued the negotiations and succeeded in getting the missionaries freed. He said later that the warriors had wanted to kill him, but were prevented from doing so by their chiefs.

Missionary sources in Leopoldville said Miss Hege, the rescued American missionary was once left for dead by terrorists and was later captured by them as friendly villagers attempted to evacuate her 40 miles by bicycle to the nearest town.

She was shot in the arm by an arrow during the attack, but the wound was not believed serious.

Reports said Congolese troops killed 12 youths in the Kisandji area. At Kianga, however, 19 Congolese troops in two jeeps were said to have been slain in an ambush.

A Protestant mission at Vanga, 50 miles northwest of Kikwit, was reported under evacuation.

UN helicopters were on their way to the Protestant missions of Mangungu, Kinshasa and Ipungu, all of which asked to be evacuated.

Cuba Prospers Says Socialist

MONTREAL (CP) — Michel Chartrand, president of the Quebec Socialist Party, said Tuesday night socialism has been long to labor unions through which they choose their foremen and discuss working conditions and standards.

In the contrand, just returned from a four-week visit to Cuba, said there was no unemployment in the country and the Cuban government had negotiated a contract to supply Russia with 24,000,000 tons of sugar over a six - year period.

Cuba is the most prosperous country in Latin America and more so than Mexico, he said.

He said Cuba particularly lacks technicians, skilled in the managerial ability, veterinarians and agronomists.

The Socialist party was formed by a Quebec group which broke away from the provincial wing of the New Democratic Party.

Liz, Dick Fool Hollywood But Not Toronto's Hundreds

TORONTO (CP) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton failed the disappearing act in Hollywood earlier in the day, but they had their problems Tuesday night evading newspaper men and fans when they landed at Toronto.

The screen stars, principals of the most publicized romance of the decade, were whisked through immigration and customs and out to a waiting limousine while several hundreds merged around the main entrances to the recently-opened international Airport.

Ninety minutes later they arrived at a side door of the King Edward-Sheraton Hotel in downtown Toronto where security guards, hotel staff, uniformed policemen and detectives formed a wedge to escort them through the doors and into a waiting elevator.

They arrived here by way of Chicago. Mr. Burton is due to begin rehearsals Thursday for a modern-dress version of Hamlet.

Although their departure-point from the airport was to be a secret, about 200 persons—most of them youngsters—caught a glimpse of the screen siren and her companion as they emerged from the immigration offices.

Only about 30 newspaper men were allowed on the airport tarmac.

Minister of Trade Sharp Hits Economic Sectionalism

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Trade Minister Sharp said Tuesday the federal government will continue to oppose "economic sectionalism" in Canada.

"As...the world grows smaller and more heavily populated, as trade alliances develop, as everything conspires to favor the strong, Canada cannot afford to be weak or divided," he said in a speech to the annual meeting of the Newfoundland Board of Trade.

Mr. Sharp made his first speech in the Atlantic Provinces since entering the cabinet last year.

He also predicted that the economic growth expected this year will continue beyond 1964 "with reasonable luck and favorable external environment."

Mr. Sharp said "one of the glories of Canada" is that it provides room for diversity—for two official languages, for the survival and development of French - Canadian culture, for people of many other lands to contribute to Canada's destiny.

"Let us never forget, however... that we are all Canadians, regardless of where we live or what language we speak, and that national unity can contribute to the attainment of those things we hold dear—spiritual as well as material—rather than over origin, culture or language."

The government's purpose, would be to oppose economic sectionalism in Canada and to try to bring the resources of all regions and all provinces to bear for the advantage of the whole country."

It would be "folly of the worst kind" for any government or organization to advocate policies that would set one part of Canada against another.

OTTAWA (CP) — Leon Balcer, transport minister in the former Conservative government, said Tuesday all parts of Canada should recognize the advantages to be gained in a strongly united Canada.

"Instead of submerging ourselves in exaggerated language, the leaders from all parts of Canada should define publicly the advantages and the pride that derive from being a Canadian, in a strongly united Canada," he said in an address to students of Carleton University.

Wants Housing Minister

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government was urged Tuesday to establish a department of housing and to extend regional planning.

The government's housing spending now amounted to "peanuts," Kenneth Bryden (NDP — Toronto Woodbine) said in calling for a full-scale public housing program to provide new job opportunities and remove slums.

Speaking during the Throne Speech debate in the legislature he said the province needed a full-time housing minister so "we may have a chance of getting real action on our critical housing problem."

Albert Walker (PC—Oshawa) said regional planning should be extended gradually until it covers the whole province in 20 or 30 years.

Presenting his maiden speech he also called for larger municipal grants.

"We are rapidly reaching the stage when, in our own best interests, bigger municipal units of government must be adopted."

EXTENDED TO SIX

Labor Minister Krawtzow announced compulsory certification will be extended to six trades.

These are refrigeration and air-conditioning, electrical (domestic, commercial and industrial), plumbing, steam fitting sheet metal working and watch repairing.

He said certification confirms a tradesman's status and safeguards him against unfair competition from unqualified persons. It has already proven valuable in the auto repair, hairdressing and barbering trades.

Extension of compulsory certification, combined with a rewriting of the province's apprenticeship program, was intended to increase the numbers of skilled tradesmen.

Workers will have two years to achieve certificates after the new system goes into effect. The government will help them to this, he said.

NEED PROOF

A Workers who can prove they have worked in a trade as long as its apprenticeship period will be granted certificates automatically. Others will have to get classroom instruction at a provincial trade institute and serve apprenticeship.

He also announced certification will be provided on a voluntary basis for cooks, ironworkers (structural steel), tool and die-makers, cement finishers, machinists, moulders; welders, millmen, radio and television repairmen and heavy-duty equipment repairmen. Provincial training programs will be established for these trades.

Second reading was given to the labor department's Apprenticeship and Tradesmen's Qualification Act and a bill to amend the Industrial Relations Act.

The first bill would require contractors on government jobs to employ an appropriate number of apprentices.

Greek-Cyprios Refuse NATO, Want UN Force

Pres. Thant Appeals For Utmost Restraint

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Greek-Cypriots have indicated that they want a United Nations force to keep peace on the Mediterranean island and not the NATO contingent Britain has been trying to muster.

Zenon Rossides, Cyprus' delegate to the United Nations, told Secretary-General U Thant in New York Tuesday a UN peacekeeping force would be acceptable on his territory. Thant appealed to Cyprus, Greece and Turkey for "the utmost restraint" in handling the explosive situation.

On the island, Greek-Cypriot newspapers assailed the United States and other Western nations expected to take a hand in the crisis and asked that the case be placed before the UN Security Council.

American and British diplomats strove to keep the lid on tempers in Athens, Ankara and Nicosia as signs mounted that U.S. troops might soon be assigned to help keep Turkish and Greek - Cypriots from each other's throats.

FEAR INVASION

The London Daily Sketch reported that U.S. 6th Fleet ships with combat troops aboard had been ordered to "within striking distance of Cyprus as fears of a Turkish invasion swept the island."

A defence department spokesman said in Washington that, since the 6th Fleet is normally stationed in the Mediterranean, it would not be unusual for its ships to appear in the vicinity of Cyprus.

Britain, whose military reserve has been drained by fighting in Aden, East Africa and Malaysia, has suggested that the United States provide some help. Similar appeals have been made to Canada, West Germany, France and Italy, all members of the North Atlantic Alliance, along with Greece and Turkey.

U.S. officials in Washington said the U.S. is seriously considering sending a contingent of troops to Cyprus, but that it wants more information before acting.

MEETS TURKS

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, NATO's supreme commander in Europe, flew from Paris to Ankara Tuesday for consultation with the Turks. He was to go on to Athens today.

Diplomatic talks were also in progress in Nicosia, the Cyprus capital.

A deadlock continued in the Cyprus constitutional talks on the island's future, where representatives of the Cyprus government, the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities, Greece and Turkey are meeting with the British.

Turkish Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal Erkin said his government has decided to withdraw, but he fixed no date for the walkout.

Dies in Fire

GALT (CP)—Garrett Barry, 66, of nearby Prescott, died Tuesday night when flames trapped him in bed in a third floor room at the Royal Hotel here. Firemen said they believed he smoked in bed and fell asleep.

Third- and fourth-floor residents evacuated their rooms as thick smoke filled the hotel.

Satellite Planning Under Way

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and U.S. authorities conferred Tuesday on the proposed global satellite communications system and a U.S. spokesman said the meeting indicated the two countries will be able to cooperate closely on global planning.

Heading the delegations were John Baldwin, Canada's deputy transport minister, and Abram Chayes, the state department's top legal adviser.

The spokesman said the delegations discussed the attitudes of the two countries on their approach to the Rome communications conference of about two dozen countries.

The meeting, to open Feb. 10, has been called on the initiative of European countries wanting to form with the U.S. plans in the way of global satellite communications and how Europe will fit into international ownership of a global system.

The importance of the Rome meeting was emphasized by the indications that the transatlantic region will be the "key traffic path" of commercial transmissions of pictures, telephone calls, television and other broadcasts, the spokesman said.

Canada is eager to get on the ground floor of planning. The spokesman said the Rome meeting will be exploratory with no negotiations to be undertaken. The U.S. hopes to have the beginnings of a global satellite system in operation by late 1966 or early 1967.

Dutch Princess Becomes Roman Catholic

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Princess Irene, second oldest Dutch princess, has become a Roman Catholic, the secretariat of the princess announced today. The Dutch royal family is Protestant.

Princess Irene is at present in Spain, staying at the Dutch Embassy in Madrid. Last week Dutch newspapers reported she had secretly been received into a 25-year-old Spanish nobleman, Don Juan Bosco Alvear.

Her private secretary denied the stories, saying they were not correct—just wishful thinking."

Today's statement said Princess Irene was "highly interested in ecumenical rapprochement," and thus "recognizes a common basis of the Christian faith in all these churches."

The communique said she showed her preference for the R.C. church "after carefully studying" as seen in the ecumenic light."

The communique said the princess was received into the church by Cardinal Alfrink, Archbishop of Utrecht.

The communique also said Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard fully respected the choice of their daughter.

100 New Stations to Replace OPP's 'Claustrophobic Cubby-Holes'

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police Commissioner Eric Silk outlined Tuesday how simplicity of design for new detachment headquarters is intended to solve the problem of the "claustrophobic cubby-holes" now in existence.

Mr. Silk said in an interview that amputating frills from new buildings can has also slashed costs to a point where the OPP is getting more buildings for the same appropriations from the department of public works.

The new design, already built in Brockville, is one storey, electrically heated and has administrative offices with accommodations for personnel, prisoners and courthouse, he said.

The approach is one of utmost simplicity, efficiency and adaptability to future expansion.

He said future plans include construction of district headquarters in Peterborough, Mount Forest and Timmins.

The recently established precious metals branch (formerly the anti-highgrading squad) will be quartered at the new Timmins barracks, he said.

He also revealed that tenders will be called, within a month, for detachment buildings at Kenora, Marathon and Langton.

Mr. Silk said 100 of the 225 detachment stations must be replaced to handle the increased size of the force.

Charges Fear of Big Business Blocks Control of Air Pollution

HAMILTON (CP)—The government is afraid of big business and won't introduce industrial air pollution controls until the people of Ontario force the politicians into action, it was claimed in Hamilton Monday.

This, said air pollution fighter W. G. Harris, was the biggest problem faced by some 60 municipal representatives attending an air pollution meeting.

Mr. Harris, chairman of the Hamilton air pollution control advisory committee, added: "The provincial government doesn't want to offend big industry. It has given us power to deal with every other type of air pollution but the big one —industrial pollution."

He was enlarging on remarks made at the meeting.

Those attending the meeting came from 11 southwestern Ontario counties.

It was the first attempt to launch a form of regional control over the industrial air pollution problem.

The representatives decided to meet again in the near future when each will be empowered to act on behalf of his municipality, not simply as an observer.

A resolution was sent to the Ontario Municipal Association and the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves urging that provincial legislation include industrial as well as other forms of air pollution.

The drive, organized by the Canadian Labor Congress, is expected to flood Ottawa with petitions and printed postcards, demanding adoption of a plan.

Features demanded of the plan to be adopted include full portability, contributions and benefits are to be related to wages of the individuals, pensions to be payable at age 65 and the plan must include protection against inflation after retirement.

The C.L.C. provided the council with a packet of leaflets outlining their demands, and free postage materials to be signed and mailed by supporters of the plan. Union locals have received similar packets.

The cigarette machine was smashed, five cartons of cigarettes and some small change were missing in the theft, at Carter's Restaurant on Highway 2.

New OPP Rank For Belleville

Belleville OPP district headquarters is one of three police districts where proposed administrative changes will go on trial.

To meet the demand for increasing supervision of a rapidly expanding force, the rank of sub-inspector has been created on a test basis.

District headquarters at Barrie and Toronto will join Belleville as testing grounds for the administrative experiment.

Promoted to sub-inspector this month to serve in Belleville is Sergeant J. Hanson, now stationed at Fembroke.

The standard administrative establishments in all district headquarters so far has comprised a district inspector, a staff sergeant, traffic and detective sergeants with appropriate clerical staff.

Announcing the new rank, the office of OPP Commissioner Eric Silk points out that larger districts — such as Belleville — have more than 30 uniformed men scattered among as many as 19 detachments.

"For efficient functioning this involves regular inspections and visits from district headquarters," says the announcement.

"With the paper work at district headquarters, adequate supervision is difficult to accomplish with the present establishment.

Other promotions also are contained in the announcement.

Among them is that of sergeant R. T. Garry, now stationed at Belleville. Promoted to staff sergeant February 1, he will be transferred to Timmins.

Other promotions of personnel known throughout the lengthy service in the Belleville area also were noted in the announcement.

Inspector R. H. Devereux, of the force's Criminal Investigation Branch, and Inspector C. E. Parmenter, Emergency Measures expert, have been appointed staff inspectors. Both men served for several years in Belleville.

Hospital Hire Of Guards Questioned

Why should a hospital hire professional security guards? Belleville and District Labor Council asked the question, by letter, soon after Belleville General Hospital hired the services of the Industrial and Domestic Protection Company. The firm has one man on duty at the hospital for eight hours a day, seven days a week.

Council felt that a letter to police parking regulations, enforcing parking hours and patrol the buildings for fire and safety hazards, according to the hospital board, which the Labor Council is not satisfied.

Employment of a Commissionaire for the job was discussed at some meeting of the Hospital Board, according to a board meeting delegate. Mr. Pointer does not know when the decision was made to contract with the commercial firm. The hospital board has been assured though, that the guards will be hired by the firm for the hospital contract.

Mr. Pointer will ask the board at today's meeting about the cost of the service offered by the commercial firm, and about the wages and benefits offered the local men employed by the firm. The labor council wants to know how much profit the commercial firm is making on the contract.

Agriculture Association Elects Officers

A record crowd was in attendance for the annual meeting of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture on Monday afternoon, January 27, at the township hall in Ivanhoe. President Russell Sills reported the highlights of the year's meetings. A plea was extended for underwriters for the C.I.A. for the Marysville area.

The O.F.A. report was given by George Carlisle of Stirling.

Mr. Cecil Ketcheson of Hallowsay reported for the Women's Producers. The 200 wheat producers in Hastings County sold 46,883 bushels of wheat last year, an increase over the previous year. The yield of peas and corn this year was above average, as reported by Glen Myers.

"Safety does pay" was the slogan used by Mr. Wesley Farrell of Stirling, and he emphasis this year will be on water safety. Do you realize there were 107 drowning accidents in 1962? This would represent a whole village if all got together. Most of these are due to carelessness. Place mats may be had free for banquets and dinners to anyone asking for them.

Burton Hubble reported on membership. There was a good growth for the Co-op Insurance.

A good year was reported for the cheese industry by George Woods of Ivanhoe. Hastings County increased their production by a million pounds last year and rates 4th in production. Production maintains the cheese centennial in 1964. In 1902 there were 1200 cheese factories in Ont. In 1962 — 132. It is hoped that a cheese factory will be built in Tweed or Madoc.

Griffin Ketcheson introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Don Middleton, Toronto, who chose to predict some of the things that were going to happen in the county and province. "More and more lands will be taken by new industries and subdivisions. For every acre we use to put houses on we lose 5 acres of food. The car still will be the preferred means of travel. There will be a tremendous increase in population and industry. Land values will increase but will not change. The farmer will continue to be a free agent and the corporation. We are facing change and the only thing we have to worry about is change in ourselves. We are ahead of a way of life is being made an agric-business. The 70's will be the era of Special. The goals have moved from national to inter national federation. Agriculture is involved in these changes. The speaker was thanked by Mr. F. Hubble.

The following slate of officers were elected for the coming year: President — Griffin Ketcheson, Foxboro; 1st vice-president — Roy Sills, Hallowsay; 2nd vice-president — Glen Morrow, Stirling; secretary — Wilfred Forestell, Madoc; treasurer — Norman Fargey, Stirling; press representative — Mrs. P. TRENTON— An employee of Data Technological Products of Canada, Elmer Young, for the past ten years, Elmer Young, has been transferred to the Los Angeles, USA plant and will leave Trenton on Friday to take up the position of salesman, working out of the L.A. office, Monday.

Mr. Young started with the Wragge St. Trenton firm in March, 1954 as head of the Final Test Section. Then Quality Control manager three years later and two years ago became a salesman for Erie working out of the Toronto office.

Mr. Young is the son of Blake Young and the late Mrs Young of Gardenville. Kiwanis Club Donates Funds To Strikers

Money realised by the Belleville and District Labor Council from dissolution of a joint committee with the Trenton and District Labor Council will be donated to the striking employees of the Belleville Memorial Hospital, the Belleville group decided last night. The fund had been initially raised and used in the past for joint ventures of the two councils, including several labor days conducted during the past few years. The Belleville council had been unsatisfied with the arrangement, however.

Trenton Labor Council at its last meeting voted to disburse the fund. Belleville Labor Council last night agreed to co-operate with the dispersal and, on a motion by W. Peoples, a donate to Mr. Feaney realised to the strikers. About $40 is involved, according to some sources.

Both Trenton and Belleville Councils have been asked, by C.L.C. representative Henry Nokes, to appoint committees to consider amalgamation of the two groups. No action on the suggestion was taken last night.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — In loving memory of a mother and grandmother, Mrs. Ivy Smith, who passed away Jan. 29, 1963.

A wonderful mother, womanly and old,
One who was better God never made.
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million — mother we knew.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright,
Loved by your friends, all you knew,
A wonderful mother — mother we knew.
—Sadly missed by son Ronald and wife Doreen and granddaughter Rosemary Ann.

WEIR — In loving memory of my dear husband, Matthew Weir, who passed away January 29, 1961.

His cheery ways and pleasant face,
Are a picture to recall.
He had a kindly word for each,
He was liked by all.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day we'll clasp his hand in the better land.
Never to part and never to sever.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Jean and son-in-law Clarence, and grandchildren.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Percy Winifred Smith, who passed away one year ago today.

UP ON THE ICE after checking control cables on the swing section of the Bay Bridge are divers Earl Dicknoether, (left) and Ron Chapman. Rope held by Chapman was being used to lower cement from the bridge for the divers to use in fixing the cable in place. It was pulled loose by ice coming through under the bridge.

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

BAY BRIDGE

Ken Fox and his crew from Central Bridge have finished repairs to the trusses of the north section of the Bay Bridge now, and are starting on the welding job on the grating of the swing section. Plans were to do this from below to avoid disrupting traffic, but since the double-decker raft dumped last week this idea has been scrapped. The men just don't want to work on the wobbly raft in this weather. Working from above, the men may slow traffic a bit but they say the delay will be minimal. Job should be finished in a week anyway, if the weather holds.

Scuba - divers Ron Chapman and Earl Dicknoether went down Saturday for a final inspection of the new control cables and to cement the cables in place. Temperature was about right for the job, (that means air temperature more than 25 degrees), but high winds, (gusting to about 50 mph) on the bay broke the ice west of the bridge and shoved sheets of it through the gap. One chunk of ice zapped Earl Dicknoether across the mask as he surfaced, another caught the rope with which Wally Hitz and Mark Keyworth of Electric Motor Sales had been lowering cement to the divers, and ripped it from their hands. Unable to work with the ice coming through, and in danger of being trapped if the open water east of the bridge became choked with ice, the divers quit after five minutes.

The cementing job was an experiment, bags and sand and cement mixture were lowered to the divers, who packed them in place about the cable. According to the theory, the bay water would soak in and the cement would form itself into concrete. Sixteen bags of cement were planned to hold the cables to the contours of the bay floor and to hold it against the current.

The wind Saturday was strong enough to shake bridge supervisor Frank Keene's shack on the Rossmore side, and it whipped up a six or seven mph current of water through the bridge, according to the divers. The job will be resumed next Saturday, if the weather is promising.

CAR WASH

Floor poured in the office section of the new car wash on Dundas St. Monday, and work started on the foundations for washroom, storage room and electric-service room in the main section. Concrete block foundations, built in a hole. They should be finished by now and Fred Smith planned to fill the hole with the dirt excavated from the sump and grease trap. Don Kleinsteuber put in a four-inch water main and a six-inch sewer lateral to the building last week.

UNION CARBIDE WAREHOUSE

Bradshaw Construction, subcontracting for White Lumber is laying block on the new warehouse for the Bakelite Div. of Union Carbide. Doug Louks is foreman for White Lumber, Frank Kovarcs in charge for Bradshaw. Blocks are starting to show above ground now, might be up to roof height in two weeks if the weather is good, according to Edwards.

Plant warehouse will be almost invisible from the highway, because it's in a depression to the east of the plant and partly hidden from the highway by some of the complex, although it is around the outside of the plant. The construction site is right beside the plant, just about under the big water tank on the roof, with the Union Carbide sign.

LIGHTFOOT

Lightfoot Construction finished a sewage disposal plant at Batawa last week, is putting the finishing touches on a sewer and water job at Frankford and a filtration plant at Campbellford. No date set so far, for a start on the big water main job in Belleville. Ontario Municipal Board hasn't yet approved the project according to Norm Lightfoot.

SMITH'S TRANSPORT

Starting to frame the roof now at the new Smith's Transport Terminal. Howard Lewis of Trident's thinks it might be ready to pour in two weeks, but he doesn't want to bet on the weather. Brick is laid almost to roof height on the office section in front, block wall on the west end of the terminal section is finished. Part of this wall will be faced with brick later.

BLACK DIAMOND

Steel construction is finished and pulled out at the Black Diamond plant and the roof was started this week. Decking should be in place by now, and the rest of it will come as weather permits, according to Slim Yunwak of McAlpine's.

BANK OF MONTREAL

Finishing date for the Bank of Montreal branch at North Front and College St. is March sixth, according to Mike Vocamp of Miron-Wiggers. Bricking is finished now, except around the vault. Vault itself is installed and surrounded with reinforced concrete, but no door so far. Mostly inside work now, and windws and frames may be installed within the next two weeks.

BELL BUILDING

Centre section columns were poured to slab height last week at the new office building at Pinnacle and Victoria, and Charles Farmer, supervisor for Dodge Construction, hopes the slab may be poured next week some time. South wall, the only concrete wall in the building, is also poured to slab height. This is the last slab to be poured for the time being, but the south wall and the columns will be continued about five feet above the slab. Reason is that the design of the building allows four floors and only three are being built. When the fourth floor is needed, it will be a simple job to break some of the concrete around the columns, and run them up the extra height.

Parking lot for the building has been leveled, opening onto Victoria Ave., and air conditioning unit has been delivered. Air conditioning is not installed yet, but the men on the job don't miss it.

Don Kleinsteuber is working with Province Wide Piping Co. to run a gas main in to the new building. Main starts on Church St., across from the County Museum and goes up to the corner and down Victoria. Pipe is being "blown" under roads and sidewalks along the way. This means the pipe itself is used to carry compressed air which drills the hole the pipe is to go through. It works fine in sandy soil, but the method can't be used everywhere.

GREENLAWN

Plastering is finished, plumbing is roughed in and the electrical work is all done at the Greenlawn apartment project's last building, on Bridge St. Work now is concentrated on woodwork — stairs, cupboards and such like, most of it made in Lambert's own cabinetmaker's shop on the site. Interior of the building should be through in a few weeks, bricking on the outside hasn't started yet.

CHEESE WAREHOUSE

Insulation is on the floor of the cold storage rooms now, at the addition to the cheese warehouse, and reinforcing rods are all in place. Slab for the section was poured last week, slab at the front may be poured by now. All six insulated floors, (they're eight inches thick) are in place, and work is going fast on the grading room. Final part of this part of the job is to fill in the hole left in the wall between the grading room and the cold storage room. In the office section, the floor and ceiling are yet to be tiled, plastering and partitions to be done.

NEW MOTEL

Second floor is all painted and kitchen equipment is installed at the new motel, corner of Highways 14 and 401, and all mechanical and electrical work will be completed sometime next week, according to George Shaw, superintendent on the job for Begg and Daigle. Breathtown may be laid this week. Demolition is starting on one of the small frame houses in front of the new building, the other will be moved elsewhere on the lot and used as a manager's residence. Landscaping, paving and building of the swimming pool will begin in the spring.

Women's Auxiliary Praised By Hospital Board Member

TRENTON — In her annual report to the Women's Auxiliary of Trenton Memorial Hospital, Miss Hazel Naudet, hospital administrator, described 1963 as "a varied year," "a challenging year," and at least, "a year of interest."

Mr. Kenneth Couch, representing the official Board of Directors, told the auxiliary members that they had been "a great help to the board."

"And if ever the board needed your encouragement in the 15-year history of the hospital, this is the year," said Mr. Couch, evidently making reference to the strike against the hospital administration by the members of Union Local 163 of the Building Services Employees International Union. The strike will enter its fourth month February 1. While the W.A. meeting was going on in the auxiliary room at the hospital last night, union pickets continued to walk up and down the hospital's entrances, wrapped snugly against the cold.

"After the appearance of untrue statements against the hospital in the Toronto Telegram," said Mr. Couch, "the board invited press representatives from all the Toronto newspapers down to look at the hospital. Evidently our side of the story was of very little interest . . . nobody came."

"The department of health sent men down here," continued Mr. Couch, "and they reported that the hospital was being operated in a competent fashion."

PATIENT DAYS INCREASE

Miss Naudet reported that patient days in 1963 had increased by 1,000 last year over 1962. This must mean that more people are using the hospital, she said, as the increase in population in the town wouldn't account for the increase in patient days. The use of outpatients' services at the hospital doubled last year over 1962. Hospital personnel has risen to 210 and the medical staff has been increased by two. A new department of pathology will open in March.

Miss Naudet referred to the auxiliary as "an effective arm of the hospital."

Elected Auxiliary president for 1964 was Mrs. L. H. Bearne who, as vice-president filled in for the 1963 president, Mrs. C. A. Baker, who was forced to withdraw part way through the year for health reasons.

Mrs. A. S. McConnell of Belleville, is honorary president; Mrs. Murray Dixon, honorary vice-president; Mrs. T. W. Spear, immediate past president; Mrs. Walter Scott, first vice-president; Mrs. W. J. B. McLaren, second vice-president; Mrs. S. Liversidge, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Spear, recording secretary; Mrs. H. Weller, treasurer; Mrs. Douglas Adams, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Keefer, past president, head of volunteer services.

Mrs. Keefer reported that 100 women had carried out volunteer work at the hospital during 1963. Volunteers provide the patients with extra comforts from the "little red wagon," (painted green last year), provide reading material for patients, assist in the children's wing, assist in visiting control, and provide flowers for chronically-ill patients.

"The volunteers provide the 'extras' in hospital care," said Mrs. Keefer.

Mrs. E. D. Magnus, chairman of the Blood Donor Clinic, said that last year had been "most encouraging." Of the three clinics held, one had met the quota set. In 1962, 840 persons contributed blood. In 1963, 679 gave blood. Trenton fell short last year of the annual quota set by Red Cross officials, but with the upswing in interest, Mrs. Magnus said that she felt very encouraged about the future.

Mrs. J. Hatch, RCAF Auxiliary representative on the Trenton Auxiliary, said that the RCAF W.A. would continue to assist the Trenton ladies in every way possible.

Asks Help for Recreation Centre Project

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald has asked Trenton residents . . . individuals and such groups as service clubs and church organizations . . . to make the development of a recreation centre in the sanitary landfill area a project for 1967, Canada's Centennial Year.

Monday night, the project took a step forward with the showing of a film, sponsored by the Eddy Company of Canada and narrated by Frank Willis, to members of council, representatives of service clubs and heads of civic bodies. The film was first shown at the Trenton Rotary Club meeting, then in the community gardens' auditorium. Tuesday, the film was shown at several of the town's schools. The film outlined various projects which could be undertaken by municipalities to boost Canada on her 100th birthday.

It was suggested that a committee be formed, to enquire, investigate and recommend a course of action to council. In the past, the suggestion has been made that each service club take on one particular project at the waterfront site. The general feeling at Monday's meeting was that everyone . . . from the youngest citizen to the oldest . . . participate in some way in the project.

Mill Employee Injures Hand

He is reported to have caught his right hand in a machine while attempting to clean it.

He was rushed to hospital by Rushnell Ambulance of Trenton. His condition is unknown.

Have a Care, Sirrah!

The Ontario Legislature has been discussing possible changes in the province's election machinery.

Andrew Thompson, Liberal member for Toronto Dovercourt, presented a resolution calling for a select committee to consider election expenses, government payment of a portion of the expenses, open statements of expenses by candidates, permanent registration of voters and voting ages.

All these matters are well worth studying.

At this point, though, Mr. Thompson advanced an additional suggestion which leaves us something less than enthusiastic.

He thought the committee might investigate whether television, radio and newspapers could give free facilities to candidates during election campaigns.

This runs us to the quick. Speaking only for newspapers, we are hurt to discover that somebody of Mr. Thompson's experience and intelligence has missed the fact that newspapers have been providing free facilities for politicians all along, not merely at election time but on every publication day throughout every year, whether an election be held or not. For instance, we found room on the front page to announce that Mr. Thompson thinks newspapers should give free facilities to politicians, and we would not think of sending him a bill for this free publicity. It is just part of a newspaper's normal service, to politicians and to the public. At election time, The Ontario Intelligencer, in common with most others newspapers, greatly increases the amount of free space devoted to informing the public about the views of politicians, and it intends to continue to do so.

Added to our disquiet at being so misunderstood by Mr. Thompson, we have experienced a second wave of discomfort at the thought that perhaps it is really us who are misunderstanding Mr. Thompson. Could the "free facilities" he wants provided to candidates have anything to do with a newspaper's advertisements, rather than its news columns? Does he want to require newspapers to publish all the nice things candidates say about themselves, without them paying a cent for the privilege? Is he seeking to reword that time-honored phrase, "This is a paid political announcement" so that it reads: "This is an unpaid political announcement?"

Surely not. The results, we assume him, would not be what he desires.

Randall Speaks Out

Hon. Stanley Randall, Ontario's Minister of Economics and Development, says that the United States is wrong in its trade embargo of Cuba.

"You don't starve a country into submission and I don't believe you should even try," he told the Don Mills Young Progressive Conservative Association.

We are not sure that Mr. Randall is right in the first half of his statement; it seems to us quite possible, under certain circumstances, for a large nation to starve a small one into submission.

That, however, just adds additional weight, if any were needed, to the second half of Mr. Randall's opinion, that no country ought to try to starve another.

This needed to be said, and it should have been said before now by some person with an even greater right to speak for Canadians than a provincial cabinet minister.

Any attempt to subdue another nation by starving it is just as much an act of war as would be an aerial bombardment.

What Price "Patriotism?"

Jenkins is 17. A student of Balboa High School in the Panama Canal Zone, he raised a U.S. flag where his government and the government of Panama had agreed no flags should be flown.

Jenkins has returned to the U.S. to complete his education. He says he thinks he was right to raise the flag.

But he admits that if he had the choice of doing it again and if he knew his act might result in rioting which would cause the death of four U.S. citizens, he would "have to think about it."

His concern, apparently, would be only for the four U.S. lives his act would cost—the fact that 20 Panamanian citizens would die as the result of his display of "patriotism" is evidently inconsequential, in his opinion.

Letter-Writing Lost Art

Orillia Packet and Times

With the advance of technology has been coined the term "lost art". Included among the "lost arts" are such things as candlemaking, barrel weaving, wringer-washer operating, Quebec heater stoking, bob sledding and letter writing.

The excuses for not writing a letter are as numerous as the letters never written leave unanswered during the course of a lifetime (or a week, depending on the fickle popularity of the individual). The ballpoint pen has run out of ink; the ballpoint pen hasn't run out of ink, but it contains red ink and who writes letters in red ink except around Christmas time, or to debtors; the washing has to be done; the washing has to be dried (both amazingly automatic processes and not nearly as time-consuming as they were in the days when grandmother did the entire job by hand and then pleated the quill in her puppy fingers and penned her immortal epistles); there's a good show on television; and "who was Mable Jones anyway?

Another indication that letter writing is on the road to certain extinction is the fact that letter paper is getting shorter and shorter and is no longer getting longer. Our letters, when we finally do go through the motion of writing, usually consist of such deathless prose as: "Won't be home for Christmas. Please send presents." Meanwhile conscience stricken friends and relatives are compelled to send Christmas messages of Junior's latest exploits, the fact that Junior exists and other family events, to Hallmarks moving messages.

It is unfortunate that people no longer take the time to write letters. At today's long distance rates, it's hard to believe that a phone call will really suffice, but the human voice is one thing the human heart is another. So much can be expressed, so much felt, when one voice sits with the solitude of his thought expressing them to a dear friend, a mother, father, a loved one. From the Apostles to Scott Fitzgerald, there has been more human desire, more philosophy, more feeling expressed in personal letters than in any other form of communication. What the heart feels can often be written far easier than it can be spoken.

The only art to writing a letter is the art of self-expression. The only comodity it draws upon is time and time spent in writing a friend is time well invested. There is, in fact, no better investment.

Assuredly, history will suffer as letter-writing declines. One of the few dissenters would probably be Harry Truman with all of the former president. Shortly after he entered the White House, Harry Truman wrote his wife kneeling before a fireplace burning pieces of yellowed paper.

"I'm destroying your letters to me," she explained.

"You shouldn't do that, protested the President. "Think of history."

"Hell," said Mrs. Truman as she continued burning the letters.

The First Canadian Car

Windsor Star

With Studebaker concentrating on the compact car market there's some mildly excited talk around as an "all-Canadian car" and "the first all-Canadian car." To the latter, Studebaker says it is "Whoa! There already has been a first Canadian car, one fashioned in 1908.

It was made in Windsor, enjoyed and all, by Canadian citizen Moise (Mose) L. Menard, blacksmith, turned carriage-maker, then by trend automaker and truck-maker. The latter move was his big mistake, he says in connection with Studebaker that the motor vehicle's best promise was not in sales of passenger cars but in commercial demand for trucks. So he dropped the "auto-buggy" he had put on display and in 1908 and went over to trucks.

Pleasure car sales soared and on them Henry Ford built his dream, the river in Dearborn, became enormously rich. Menard never became more than well to do, but even that was something for the man who, born in Belle River in 1850, quit school at 12 to become a blacksmith in his father's shop, and at 16 became apprenticed to a wagon - maker in Ruthven.

At 24 he was in the wagon and carriage business for himself, in Stoney Point.

This pattern shows he was out from the same fabric as is the American monkey-wrench mechanic who put the world on wheels. A dissatisfied tinkerer, ideas, energy to burn, and a heady optimism that would not countenance defeat by the odds.

Statistics will show that in 1908 when Menard produced the first all-Canadian car, the Ford shop at London Street, and Carrie Avenue, the relatively new Ford of Canada turned out 5,000. But Ford then was largely an assembly plant, with 90 percent of the parts brought in from Detroit. Menard had to design and often make his own parts when he couldn't find a fly shop that would turn them out on time.

The trucks he concentrated on were called Menard's Commercial Car, and were in several sizes. The builder was well aware of the value of promotion in a business which is showing signs of becoming highly competitive. Two trucks models, a one-ton and a half-ton, were exhibited at the Toronto Exhibition in 1911.

Once he went over to commercial vehicles the builder diversified production to the extent of adding street flushers to his line, and they found a pretty fair market in Ontario cities.

The largest of them weighed seven tons and was powered by a six-cylinder job that operated the flushing equipment. One of them saw long service in Hamilton.

Menard sold his business at London and Caron to the Maple Leaf Manufacturing Co. of Montreal in 1920 and thereafter left city much took his ease. Municipal government long was his hobby, and the Riverside town Council became his favorite forum.

Letter to the Editor

Columbia Power Treaty Is Assailed

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

It seems to me that in a figurative and within this context a literal sense, Canada is being "sold down the river" — the Columbia River. To say the least I have been marginally astounded by the apathy exhibited by most people in that this subject has aroused only a minimum of controversy.

This so called "deal" whereby Canada will lease the power rights of the Columbia River to the United States of America for a period of thirty years has been made possible only by the reversal of a long standing policy which dictated that such treaties should not be entered upon; perhaps this policy did have restrictive tendencies but indeed it retained one of Canada's natural resources for Canadians. If a satisfactory agreement had been reached this reversal of policy would be perfectly acceptable. As the agreement now stands however the "about face" becomes rather difficult to comprehend or accept.

This statement should in no way be construed as an attack solely upon the present Liberal government in Ottawa, as one recalls the previous Conservative government agreed to sell more than some $100,000,000 below the figure recently announced as part of the new arrangement. The brunt of my attack comes to rest upon the apathetic, poorly informed and disinterested public of Canada particularly those of us in the eastern central provinces who rest on "insecure state of security."

I urge the Ontario Intelligence, and its readers to take up the challenge and the chase. Do your part to see that Canada is learned in so doing. Who knows the Moira might be the next one to go.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 29th, 1944.

Though few Manitobans know it, their province grew something like 14,000 acres of sunflowers last year, almost half the Dominion total of 29,000 acres. That may mean little to Canadians except that they'll have a lot of ground to devote to flowers. And so it is — but it pays off.

Sunflower seeds are a valuable source of edible oil and Canada's supply, now limited, needs all the bolstering it can get. Cultivating sunflowers is a profitable undertaking, too, for cash returns run as high as $35 an acre, with the crop of only about $29; oats $28 and barley $21. Returns from flax, the only other crop of importance run about $18 an acre. Sunflower oil may be hardened by hydrogenation to produce shortening. In its refined form it is used as a cooking oil.

The first Clinic of 1944 was held in the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic, Kiwanis Centre on Sunday morning when some 90 donors passed through the Clinic and contributed their blood.

A group of donors came in from Marmora by bus which is the usual procedure twice monthly. The blood donors group of Marmora has been organized by Mr. Walter Hilton and Mr. W. J. Cottrell, who see that at least fifteen persons make the trip into Belleville and are brought back to their homes. Eighteen persons donated blood from this well organized group which totals 400 out of a population of 960. The preparation of the toast and coffee with the other supplies to the donors following their period on the table is handled by the Red Cross Women's Auxiliary, and all were extravagant in their praise of the splendid spread they did.

Mrs. J. S. McMullen spent the weekend with friends in Toronto.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Life Underwriters' Association, Mr. P. C. McGuire, district manager, acting in the absence of the president, Mr. McEwan who has been transferred to Toronto, gave a report on the activities of the association during the past year and election of officers resulted as follows: president — D. O. Wallace; vice-president — H. M. Ward; secretary-treasurer M. W. Sparling. Executive committee — A. L. Milne, R. L. Sexsmith, S. R. Burrows and H. M. Ward.

Miss Evelyn Mackenzie of Burton Street, entertained a group of the Baptist young people at a St. Valentine party and an enjoyable time was passed.

Miss Stell VanBlaricom, Highland Avenue, has returned home from Toronto where she has been visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Connor of Madoc, celebrated the diamond anniversary of their wedding on Sunday, January 28th. Mrs. Connor who was born in Ameliasburgh, Prince Edward, is in her 82nd year; she came to Canada with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hamm, when she was seven years of age. Mr. Connor who is 81 years of age was born in Thurlow township. After living in Belleville until 1887 he moved to Madoc and entered the hardware and tinsmithing business, which is now known as M. W. Connor and Son.

The report of Chief W. J. Brown shows that the firemen answered 111 fire alarms during the year, and the property loss during the year amounted to $30,764.75. During the previous year, 1922, 64 alarms were answered and the property loss was $17,699.15.

Ald. W. R. McCreary introduced a by-law in the city council whereby the assessment for the year 1923 will be accepted as the assessment for this year. The by-law was passed through its various stages and confirmed. The advantage in the adoption of this system of assessment is that the estimates for the year can be prepared in the near future and the collection of taxes will take place in the spring instead of the late summer or early fall.

It is also claimed that a considerable amount will be saved in the city in interest charges.

Some spectacular rushes were made by Armstrong, Woodley and Lolly for the high school team, and Hay, McWilliams, Hertly and Doolittle played a strong game for the Octavia St. team. Walter Allore did a good job of referee and the timekeepers were Cherry and Doolittle.

3,000 B. C. Homework

Brantford Expositor

High school students wrestling with a homework assignment in English composition will no doubt be interested, if not helped, to know that homework was required of students near the dawn of recorded history.

Nearly 3,000 years ago, in what is now lower Iraq, then Sumeria, a student wrote his composition on a hunk of soft clay in which he punched cuneiform characters with a wedge-tipped stick. The clay was then baked by sun-dried. Thousands of such tablets lie in museum basements around the world.

One specialist in mining these lodes of baked human effort is Prof. Samuel Noah of the University of Pennsylvania. He has translated an essay by boy who lavishly flattered the teacher who taught him mathematics and how to get on in the world. Another student, writing of school activities, complained that his six holidays a month were not enough and that each of his 24 days in school were too long. Some things haven't changed much in 3,000 years.

To Your Good Health

Diverticulosis Different From Diverticulitis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have diverticulosis. My doctor has put me on a limited, bland diet, and has prescribed medication.

The report, after my X-rays, said the diverticula were "innumerable, severe and widespread." This sounds to me like a serious condition.

I am by no means wealthy, but I can travel elsewhere for treatment if there is any chance of a cure. — Mrs. U. J. N.

Your X-ray report does not indicate that you have any reason to become panicky.

Before I continue, let me make this suggestion: Read my booklet entitled "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You". To obtain a copy write to me in care of the Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing 25 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The booklet describes diverticulosis, and how it differs from diverticulitis. The former means the outward bunching of parts of tube or other in the body, usually of the digestive tract. The latter means that this pouched area has become inflamed. And I go on from there, trying to explain what you probably won't try, and when you should.

If you have "innumerable, severe and widespread" diverticula, treat them kindly. Follow your bland diet. They may or may not cause you any future trouble, such as surgery. I'm no soothsayer, just a doctor. All a doctor can do is tell you what he might or might not occur, and advise you what to do to try to for, and what to do if trouble erupts.

Diverticulosis is such common problem that people should find out the basic facts concerning it. In the majority of cases, only sensible and moderate precautions are required. Severe cases — with the "innumerable" of the "osis" — merit medical treatment.

In your case, Mrs. U. J. N., Because of your X-ray report, I'd be pretty careful. I'd follow diet or any other instructions. I'd know what to look out for. The rest of the time I'd relax.

I'd quit looking for a "cure." But even in a severe case, with knowledgeable following of medical instructions, you can keep it under control. Ignore it, and you are asking for trouble. To travel around hunting for a "cure" will be a waste of money.

Dear Dr. Molner: At what age should a child be allowed to drink coffee? — Mrs. R. L.

If you mean small children, I wouldn't give them coffee at all. The objection — and there is — involved in coffee is its caffein, which is a stimulant. The young don't need it. For older people, it is a good pepper-upper.

Note to Mrs. R.: I don't know of any exercises that will increase one's height.

Strictly Personal

Total Maturity Is Almost Impossible

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A college student in Kansas has written to ask me if I could define the word "maturity" for him. "The word is thrown around so loosely these days," he writes, "that it seems to mean everything to everybody."

I quite agree. In my time, when a girl threw a boy over, it was because he was a "jerk" or a "drip." Now we use that for the grand-sounding reason that he's "immature" — when he's really no more immature herself.

It reminds me of the comedian a I recently heard who explained he divorced his wife because she was "immature" — "She'd come into the bathroom while I was taking a bath, and ask all sorts of questions!"

I wouldn't care to try a consentence definition of the word "maturity" because the idea covers too much ground. Besides it's important to recognize that maturity is wholly relative in every direction, and that it is a goal we should keep aiming at, rather than a pinnacle we can never attain.

But I do think it's possible to set down a few of the more obvious the most important aspects of the word. And the first condition of which would be to make this list for judging ourselves, rather than others.

1. We can recognize, accept, and (most of the time) act upon the following nine maxims, I think we have a right to call ourselves grown-up:

1. Everything must be paid for, either in material or psychic coin.

2. The similarities between people are much greater than the differences; differences are accidental, similarities are essential.

3. The more we get to know a person, the harder it is to dislike him.

4. It is impossible to understand oneself except by understanding others, and impossible to understand others without understanding oneself.

5. Nobody can cheat us as we cheat ourselves; nobody can deceive us as we deceive ourselves nobody can defeat us as we defeat ourselves.

6. Everyone is more or less irrational, more or less infantile, more or less tied to the past with invisible strings; therefore we must not be quick to judge or quick to blame.

7. The sins of the parents are handed down to the children; no law of heredity is more certain than this, or harder to accept.

8. What we call "intelligent self-interest" always fails in the end for the reason that we are slow in the self, the less intelligent we become.

9. The more we use eventually change our ends; we become what we do.

Kiwanis Club Given Talk On Survival

"Do we need a survival program?" asked Col. Angus E. Duffy, co-ordinator of the Quinte Area Emergency Measures Organization as he addressed the Kiwanis Club of Belleville at their regular dinner meeting in the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday.

"All nations have one," he continued, "and in Russia over two million people have taken a 10-day survival course and in some countries all new homes constructed must be equipped with a fallout shelter."

"The Emergency Measures Organization is responsible for co-ordinating, planning, public information and training courses and is governed by all three levels of government: Federal, Provincial and Municipal. In Hastings and, Prince Edward Counties the E.M.O. is known as the Quinte Area E.M.O. and has a full time co-ordinator. The Quinte E.M.O." is capable of performing all functions of the three levels of government, if necessary in an emergency," he said.

Mr. Duffy went on to explain that in Belleville the E.M.O. provides an emergency warning system, having five warning sirens installed throughout the city, mutual assistance in the event of a nuclear attack or other types of disaster.

The speaker pointed out the emergency plan outlined for Belleville with its headquarters at BCIVS. He explained the five different areas in which the city is divided, having a headquarters station located in each one.

In closing Mr. Duffy said that the co-ordinator was always available to assist in any aspect of the survival program, and that during the past year the E.M.O. had conducted five first aid courses, one home nursing course, two restricted radio operator courses and two radiation monitoring courses.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian E. Fairman and was thanked on behalf of the club by Archdeacon A. S. McConnell. Vice-president B. Gradley conducted the meeting in the absence of President R. Freestone.

Industrial Managers Hear Greater Use of Capabilities Of Individual Worker Urged

Greater utilization of the individual worker's capabilities, together with a more liberal sharing of production responsibility, is the latest trend in the manufacturing field.

This was the gist of talk given on Tuesday night by T. N. Davidson, works manager at Northern Electric, as he addressed approximately 125 industrial managers at the monthly meeting of the Quinte Chapter of the Industrial Management Club.

Northern Electric was host for the monthly dinner meeting held in the cafeteria at its Belleville plant. A tour of the factory preceded the dinner meeting.

Mr. Davidson said that Northern has begun to evaluate its approach to "people utilization" the move having been brought about because of changes in the company produc and a close look at its cost structure, which indicated better use could be made of available resources.

The plant manager said Northern was trying to develop a more integrated and more adjustable work force so that all company personnel working together could meet change more readily and enter what has been described as the "Era of the Skilled."

INCREASE RESPONSIBILITY

Mr. Davidson advanced the opinion that more responsibility was needed by workers if their capabilities were to be more fully put to use and said there was a trend to reverse the process of job fragmenting.

"The party line now is less job description and more job discretion," he said.

Giving more responsibility in the industrial scene, however, was much easier to talk about than to implement. More communication was the key, he said.

To illustrate, Mr. Davidson referred to the case of a California electronics plant which three years ago threw out its assembly lines and staked its future on the belief that each any people have great potential for growth and will perform better if trusted with important responsibilities.

The president of the firm, a psychologist, removed the pyramid structure from his company. The workers were organized in groups with self contained functions and responsibilities, with freedom in how they work and when they work.

Business from many parts of the world (including a representative from Northern Electric) had visited the California plant to witness the remarkable results.

UNION CARBIDE INTERESTED

Another firm which had shown interest in the system is Union Carbide, of which the Belleville Bakelite plant is a member unit.

Mr. Davidson said this philosophy of a new look at management was not yet widespread but there were definite indications that responsible organizations were interested.

"We at Northern have been very interested in this concept for some time and believe that break-throughs are required and that a new plateau must be reached in our industrial endeavor, not merely from the profit point of view but from the social aspect as well."

Management people at the Northern plant in Belleville have been asked to review job functions and responsibilities and every supervisory person has been encouraged to prepare his own job rewrite and to discuss it with his immediate supervisor.

Every effort was being made to create a real team effort to improve communications throughout the plant.

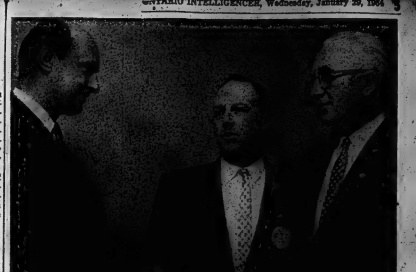
Summing up, Mr. Davidson suggested that there be basic concern about possible automation and a devotion to efforts to make the utilization of capabilities.

PREPARE FOR FUTURE

"In this way, I submit, we will be preparing for the impending era of the skilled. Instead of reading about it we can make our own breakthroughs."

He suggested that there be more definition of company purpose in terms which all employees can understand and then this should be followed by a clear definition of responsibility by individual supervisors.

"These responsibilities, of course, should be couched in terms compatible with the company purpose document. We should start thinking now in terms of what, why and whether, leaving the how to the doer."



In conclusion Mr. Davidson said he thought there was a great deal of room to do better communications networks and it was conceivable that some companies might end up organizing themselves differently to facilitate communications.

This, he said, could well involve a departure from the military pyramidical organizations of today.

Chapter president Stan Cournoyer of Nicholls Chemical at Sulphide, presided over the dinner meeting, attended by representatives from about 15 industries in the district.

Announcement was made during the meeting that a one day workshop seminar, sponsored by the Industrial Management Club of Canada, would be held April 23rd, at Moira Secondary School. Speaker for the seminar will be Dr. Margaret Nix, Ph.D.

Topics to be discussed will be "Quality of Leadership," "Motivation and Productivity," "Criteria for Balanced Living" and "Making the Most of One's Self."

Mr. T. N. Davidson, works manager at Northern Electric, welcomes chapter officials Stan Cournoyer of Sulphide and Elwood Wickerson of Belleville to last night's Quinte Chapter meeting of the Industrial Management Club. Northern acted as host for the monthly chapter meeting.

Congregational Meetings

VICTORIA AVE. BAPTIST

The annual business meeting of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was held last week. Members of the church and congregation gathered at the supper hour to enjoy together an excellent meal served under the supervision of the Dorcas Association.

Before the presentation of reports and associated business Reverend Gordon Woodcock directed the meeting in the singing of several hymns and a brief devotional period, followed by the showing of a film, "Anniversary," produced by the Southern Baptist convention, sharpening as awareness in all who viewed it of the preciousness of family relationship.

At this point the younger children retired to the primary room, spending the remainder of the evening under the direction of Miss Mary Bristow and her assistants.

Mr. Woodcock, as chairman, called for the presentation of reports which were presented by the secretary of each organization submitting a report and were many and varied, representing much time, talent and treasure given to serve the cause of Christ.

The year 1963 was one of missionary emphasis in the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec and this was reflected in many of the reports of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, and especially in the decision of three young men from Baptist churches in Belleville to prepare for Christian service: Wayne Sobis, Robert Campbell and John Schofield. These young men left Belleville last fall to begin training.

Being reminded of the Lord's commission, "Go ye into all the world," a strong mission ary effort was endorsed by the acceptance of a substantial missionary budget for the year 1964, remembering the promise accompanying the commission, . . . and lo, I am with you alway."

NOT ALWAYS RIGHT

TORONTO (CP)—In a plea for freedom of thought, Dr. Brock Chisholm, Victoria lecturer, told a Toronto audience: "Mother doesn't always know best. But many children go on believing she does, and this could be disastrous." If people clung to the ways of their ancestors, the human race could be wiped out.

Congregational Meeting

ST. THOMAS ANGLICAN

The annual vestry meeting of the St. Thomas Anglican Church was held on Monday January 27th, with the Rector, Archdeacon A. B. McConnell in the chair. Following prayer by the Rector, Mr. F. J. Lancaster was appointed as vestry clerk and the minutes of the previous annual meeting were read and approved. The Rector's address to the vestry showed a considerable increase in attendance at the 8.30 a.m. services with other services about the same. A total of 335 services of all kinds took place in the Parish of which 165 were celebrations of the Holy Communion. There were 69 baptisms, 20 marriages and 33 burials. The Rector paid tribute to the work the Rev. D. W. Sinclair assistant curate, and Mr. W. W. Davenport, lay reader and all who assisted in any way in the work of the church during the past year.

YEAR'S HIGHLIGHTS

Among the highlights of the year mentioned by his report by the Rector were the completion and opening of the Parish House which by Bishop Evans in the presence of his Worship Mayor A. MacLean Hind and a large group of people on Palm Sunday; the generous Easter Offering on behalf of the Missionary Fund; the Anglican Congress and the visit to St. Thomas' Church of the Right Reverend A. H. Dolbey from Ireland: the success of our partnership in the Gospel and the new ecumenical plan in the church during the past year.

The Vestry stood and paid tribute to the memory of 33 persons who died during the past year.

The Rev. D. W. Sinclair also presented a report detailing his work in the A.Y.P.A., the Bible Class, St. Paul's Mission and the religious study group, and thanked all members of the congregation for their support, encouragement and confidence.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The financial statement presented by Mr. A. J. Fort showed receipts for the general account in excess of $43,000 of this amount $7000 went to Diocesan budget $8,000 for current payment of the building fund debt. Following reception of the report the thanks of the Vestry was extended to the auditor's Mr. W. S. Stone and Mr. F. J. Leach to Mr. D. C. Irvison and Mr F. J. Lancaster were appointed auditors for the present year.

Officers and members of various Parish organizations presented their reports and were thanked by the Rector for the fine work done by them.

The Rector was pleased to announce the acceptance of Dr. P. G. Loder of the appointment of Rector's warden and paid tribute to his qualities as a citizen and churchman. In presenting Mr. A. J. Fort with an inscribed picture of St. Thomas' Church on his retirement as Rector's warden, the Rector spoke in the highest terms of his loyal service to the church in his various offices during the past three year.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The Vestry elected the following: Peoples' warden, Mr. R. T. Morton; junior wardens, Mr. R. W. G. Prentice and Mr. J. A. Sneisinger; lay delegates, R. W. G. Frestone, M. F. L. Jones, Mac Smith, W. S. Stone; A. S. Lewis, Ron Keel; alternate delegates, Brig. J. E. Genet, C.B.E. M.C.; A. L. Gnaedinger; H. L. Carruther.

Executive council: P. H. Bellstedt, L. A. Kells, J. A. Pringle, F. P. Clarke, W. S. Wills, A. A. Clarke, E. B. Morden, A. J. Fort, S/L L. J. Minion, D. Ivison, D. Holmes, R. G. Lanning, J. Denton, G. Hales, F. Newman, R. E. Churcher, H. H. Murray, R. J. Wilson.

In the unavoidable absence of Mr. Mac Smith, chairman R. T. Morton presented the report of the partnership in the Gospel which noted the fact that by the efforts of this hard working committee the financial position was strengthened, yet the emphasis was on the spiritual, rather than the physical.

The budget for the year, presented by Dr. P. G. Loder showing increases in salary for the clergy and church staff and an increase in contributions to the Synod, and items outside the parish, was passed unanimously by the vestry.

It was announced that Mr. R. T. Morton, people's warden, Messrs. Mac Smith, W. S. Stone and M. F. L. Jones, lay delegates; Mrs. Harry Smith and Mrs. M. F. L. Jones, and the clergy will represent the parish at the Diocesan congress on Wednesday in Kingston.

Earlier in the evening, Mr. O. Hales on behalf of the vestry, delivered letters of greeting and good wishes to the vestries of Christ Church and St. Margaret's also meeting on the same evening.

Mrs. T. E. Smith was appointed VON representative from the parish.

At a men's supper held previous to the vestry meeting the guest speaker was invited to office in the Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen: president, Mr. Ron Keel; vice-president, Mr. F. J. Lancaster; treasurer, Mr. D. C. K. Ivison; secretary, Mr. William Mumford; chairman of sidesmen, Mr. M. F. L. Jones.

RECTOR'S ADDRESS

The rector finished his report with the following remarks:

"On the whole this has been a good year. We have lost, by removal from our city, some excellent families but...we believe they have been replaced by new families, who have attached themselves to this parish during the year.

"Loyalty to a parish warms the heart of every rector and I would say a word of appreciation for that loyalty shown by quite a few of our families who live five, ten, yes fifteen miles from the church and are most regular in their attendance. They set an example for the rest of us to follow.

"While Belleville is not a large city, yet, we have to admit that ours is something of a 'down town' church and we require the loyalty of all, both old and young if we are to continue to be a symbol of true family worship in this community. One good sign is a general loosening up of that unfortunate Anglican coldness which can very well drive people away from a church. So many new people have said 'The welcome we received in St. Thomas' Church was so warm and sincere and your people are easy to get to know.' That is what we like to hear, and in that spirit of fellowship let us continue our witness for Christ and His church in this parish."

The Rev. D. W. Sinclair closed the meeting with prayer.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

AN APPLE FOR THE TEACHER

Mr. Charles W. Tisdall of Toronto who addressed the Belleville Association of the Women Teachers' Federation recently on the subject Schools and Teachers — Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, read some rules for teachers given by a principal in the city of New York in 1872, which were certainly amusing taken in the context of today's ideas. 1. Teachers each day will fill lamps, clean chimneys, and trim wicks. 2. Each teacher will bring a bucket of water and scuttle of coal for the day's session. 3. Make your pens carefully. You may whittle nibs to the individual taste of the pupils. 4. Men teachers may take one evening a week for courting purposes or two evenings if they go to church regularly. 5. After ten hours in school, the teacher should spend the remaining time reading the Bible and other books. 6. Women teachers who marry or engage in unseemly conduct will be dismissed. 7. Every teacher should lay aside from her pay a goodly sum of her earnings for her benefit during her declining years so that she will not become a burden on society. 8. Any teacher who smokes, uses liquor in any form, frequents pool or public halls, or gets shaved in a barbershop will give good reason to suspect his worth, intentions, integrity, and honesty. 9. The teacher who performs his labors faithfully and without fault for five years will be given an increase of 25 cents per week in his pay providing the Board of Education approves.

But number 10 tops everything: Reading is worse than fiddling or other rural entertainments nowadays is very infectious in point of neatness, clearness and legibility to what was commonly seen 20 or 30 years ago. This continued on and on with the admonition that teachers should do something about THAT too.

POWDER AND PAINT

A friend of mine once said to me, "I never felt like myself until I slopped using all cosmetics and make-up. I felt I was always acting a part, trying to pretend I was something I was not. Then I stopped putting on lipstick, rouge, eyebrow coloring, hair coloring and so on, and suddenly I felt free, and began to realize that I could do without this artificial aid, and be myself."

This was a novel idea in a world that spends millions and perhaps billions on cosmetics, and spends formidable hours in the beauty parlors of the nation. Over eight million dollars was spent on lipstick alone in the United States last year.

But there is another side to this. Many a "Plain Jane" has blossomed out with a little help from the cosmetic counters of the drug stores, and has changed from an ugly duckling to a swan. It does something to the female personality too, to feel that she looks as beautiful as it is possible for her to look. Looking beautiful she feels beautiful, and it reflects in her actions.

Real beauty of course, does not depend on make-up. It goes much deeper than superficial appearance, and that always shines through whether the person is wearing make-up or not. But I think that was what my friend had in mind. Inner beauty is more to be desired than outer attractiveness.

Joan Fairfax of Toronto Getting Rave Notices in N.Y. With All-Girl Band

By JIM PEACOCK

NEW YORK (CP)—Toronto songstress Joan Fairfax has added a new facet to her musical career and it is helping her to charm the New York critics.

She has become a band leader—and she and the other 12 in her all-girl orchestra are attracting rave notices here.

What probably is just as important to their success, they are filling a New York night spot that was closed "permanently" at Christmas, but reopened when the management discovered Miss Fairfax and her girls.

The Fairfax All-Girl Orchestra, assembled for the first time only last November and fresh from its inaugural engagement in Florida, opened at the Roosevelt Grill here Jan. 9.

A BIG NIGHT

Opening night was the biggest the room had enjoyed since another Canadian native, Guy Lombardo, ended a 30-year association with the hotel two years earlier.

The critics became enchanted. Gene Knight wrote in The Journal-American:

"Quite the nicest thing that's come along in many a day to cement good relations with Canada is the beguiling ash-blonde Joan Fairfax . . . with her all-girl band. . . . They have the great sound of the big bands of the past."

Said the show business publication, Variety: "Joan Fairfax's torch scored here opening night with the most spontaneous applause heard in the grill for months."

The warmth of the welcome delighted Miss Fairfax and her husband, Tom Higgins, a Toronto businessman with small real estate holdings there, who risked $20,000 in the orchestra venture and who face at least a year's performances to get into the black financially.

WE'VE BEEN LUCKY

Miss Fairfax, a Toronto native who studied music from the time she was eight, broke into television there and worked her way to stardom with her own weekly CBC-TV national show in 1959 and 1960, discussed her latest move in an interview here.

"We've been lucky," she said, "but, we've worked hard, too."

Miss Fairfax and her husband moved to the New York City area in 1961 at the suggestion of Joan's agent, Marty Kummer. Joan worked the U.S. night club circuit and made many guest appearances on network TV shows. Last summer, she decided she'd like to try something different.

"We had an all-girl band on the TV show in Canada," she recalled. "It went over so well, and I thought the same thing would be accepted here.

"It's really been an enormous job, finding girls who were interested, capable and liked to travel."

FLYING RECRUITERS

Flying about the country, she and her husband found the girls in points scattered from Toronto, where they hired pianist Marie Peaker and trombonist Alyce Sherratt to Texas. Most of them are university music graduates and many of them had studied at Stan Kenton's campus jazz clinics.

They obtained Matt Betton, formerly with Kenton, as arranger—"I phoned Stan and asked him for help," said Joan. "It took me two days to reach him, but I finally got him in Flint, Mich., and he told me about Matt. He's been our big gest help."

The group assembled in Toronto, at the Sandy Beach Motel owned by Joan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Pickup, and put their music and show together there. In December they made their initial appearance at Guy Lombardo's Port-o-Call night club in Tierra Verde, Fla.

That's where Roosevelt manager Arthur Dooley found them. He signed them for a week to reopen the grill, then added three weeks to the engagement as the critical raves began. Next, the band goes to Harrah's Club in Tahoe, Nev.—the club where Frank Sinatra Jr. was acting when he was kidnapped—for a seven-week stand starting Feb. 6. They hope to have a record contract signed here before they leave.

The girls, with Joan conducting, play for dancing, then put on an hour-long floor show that features the singing of Miss Fairfax. Joan helps with arrangements, too, but hasn't applied her piano and accordion-playing ability to the production yet.

The blue-eyed, five-foot-two, 27-year-old blonde is enthusiastic about her girls. She says they're well disciplined and extremely interested in their work, adding: "Men are great, but you can't get men to take the interest that the girls do."

Band members range in age from 18 to 27 years, with the exception of their "den mother," Alyce Sherratt, a grandmother who played with the famous Ina Ray Hutton all-girl band in the 1930s.

"I can hardly believe this band is only two months old," Miss Sherratt enthused. "When I was with Ina Ray it took us two or three years to get the sound we wanted. This group has hardly started and they're doing great things."

Home and School News

BAYVIEW-HARRY J. CLARKE

A committee for the annual Valentine card party met at the home of Mrs. Stuart Howell, Northwood Crescent for the purpose of making final arrangements for this annual card party which has developed into a "Community Effort" of the Bayview - Harry J. Clarke Home and School Association.

Mrs. Gordon Hutchinson reported that the tickets have been distributed in both Bayview and Harry J. Clarke School. The children have been asked to have their money back to the school by February 7th in order to give the committee an idea how the sale is going. Additional tickets may be procured by phoning WO 2-1612 or WO 2-7130 or at the door the night of February 13th.

Mrs. K. McLaughlin reported that 70 card tables will be needed. Mrs. S. Barbour, in charge of the bridge reported on arrangements.

Mrs. H. Edey and Mrs. S. Howell have had many donations from the parents, merchants and interested citizens which will help to make an interesting game.

Mrs. V. Dales, reports that she has help in making the sandwiches and is asking for help from the mothers to serve.

Mrs. Jouvard and Mrs. Stier have the candy sale preparations well in hand.

OTTER LASTS LONGER

MONTREAL (CP)—Otter is the king of furs when it comes to durability, says J. L. Walkden of Montreal, vice-president of the National Federation of Fur Retailers of Canada. He says otter, beaver and mink are the best furs for all-round value. The current "social schizophrenic" vogue for ocelot and leopard had priced them "all out of proportion."

Time Wife Broke Silence Husband in for Surprise

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — My husband comes home weekends and just as soon as he gets home he has to go over to see a married couple we know. And he stays. Everywhere we go they have to go too.

When I ask if I can drive the car he says no but he lets both of them drive it, and that makes me angry but I don't say a word.

When we go some place and they come with us, he says I am too fat, and the other couple have no chance to talk for they are fat also. My husband is skinny. And then they start in on me too. I and my husband have been married a year; he 22, me 18. — INDIGNANT BUT SILENT.

DEAR INDIGNANT — Time you broke the silence. Your loving husband would be surprised to know that all this hurts. Probably sees you as a child, his friends as capable grown-ups. Then they all chip in when it comes to raising you.

You should be driving the car; having some say in who goes with you — if anyone. Have you thought of taking lessons while he's away? And of doing something special to keep him home — like his favorite dish for dinner? Or inviting other friends in for an evening?

Following the meal an offering was taken up to defray expenses and this amounted to $22.

Several folks joined the group for the entertainment. Ralph Johnson was master of ceremonies and introduced a few of the new neighbors in the Valley. A special guest was Gordon Palmer, Star City, Sask., who was born in the Valley and attended River Valley public school. Later he went with his parents to the prairie provinces and at present is hoildaying with relatives at River Valley.

SINGER STUDIES INDIAN PROBLEMS — Buffy Sainte-Marie, a Cree Indian, sings professionally in coffee houses and nightclubs in the evening and spends a good deal of her free time studying the problems of her race in modern America. A university graduate, she also presents children's educational programs on Indian culture. (CP Photo)

Cree Indian Folk Singer Loves to Visit Reserves

VANCOUVER (CP) — Buffy Sainte-Marie has roots in Canada, a home in the United States, and a way of entertaining that may be unique.

She is a Cree Indian folk singer equally at home with a coffee house audience or with her own people.

"I'm an entirely different girl in the daytime from the one I am at night," she says. "I love this life so much—the singing and the travelling. And I like travelling to Indian reserves all over the U.S. and Canada.

"I'm interested in Indian problems, one of which is that the Indian hasn't got the opportunity to travel himself. He has to stay where he is and yet there is such a need for co-ordination and co-operation between the tribes of the two countries."

Miss Sainte - Marie's family originally came from Craven, Sask., but she now lives in Maine.

GLAMOROUS LIFE

"I started singing in college. I majored in Oriental philosophy and minored in elementary education. There is a very good system whereby you can take advantage of the best that is offered at several colleges, so I went to Smith, Mt. Holyoke, University of Massachusetts and Amherst."

She put herself through university by singing in local coffee houses and occasionally on television. A trip to New York and a spot on a hootenany opened the way to many offers and she decided on a life of travel and song — "It's as glamorous as anyone could imagine."

Miss Sainte-Marie composes her own songs. She has about 200 in her repertoire, few of them about Indians or Indian life. She performs with a strange traditional instrument — a mouth bow that makes a light sound and is played by using the mouth as a resonating chamber.

"My songs are strange. Some people say they're raw. They're powerful if not pretty, they're weird and driving.

SHOWS FOR CHILDREN

She also gives children's educational concerts, illustrating them with costumes, books and stories to show the diversity of culture and ways among various tribes.

"I want children to know that Indians aren't what Hollywood makes them."

Miss Sainte-Marie, who was here for on engagement, said she is particularly concerned with plans for assimilation of Indians into white man's society and cities. From her experience, she said, most of her people don't want integration.

"There is a group of Senecas, for example, who have been flooded off their reserve by a new dam. They've given no compensation, the tribe is broken up and the people move to cities and slums.

"This is happening rapidly and the Indians are concerned that soon there will be no distinct tribes left in which to preserve their cultures.

"In order to survive in the cities, the Indian is faced with giving up what he considers to be important. The people are poor, poorly educated and not ready for city life. More important, they don't want it. They don't want to annihilate themselves in a melting pot."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

POINTERS FOR THE WEDDING GUEST

So you've been invited to a Spring wedding

According to our mail, a large number of readers have already received these joyous communications and are anxious to obtain a few pointers on correct behavior during the ceremony and at the reception.

Any number of handbooks are available to the bride and groom concerning the parts they and their families are to play on this important occasion. But, often, guests are left milling around wondering when they should take their seats in church and how they should edge themselves down the receiving line.

Here are a few capsule answers:

Guests should arrive at the church at least a half-hour to fifteen minutes before the ceremony, so there won't be any last-minute confusion in seating. If there are ushers, guests wait to be shown to their seats. A woman takes the usher's right arm and walks beside him down the aisle. Her escort follows a pace behind. If a man is alone, he walks beside the usher to the proper seat.

At the end of the ceremony, guests provide their own transportation to the reception. No need to rush, though. Enough time should be allowed for the bridal party to have pictures taken and for the receiving line to form. After checking their coats, guests go through the receiving line, greeting both mothers, offering best wishes to the bride and congratulating the groom. A very close friend or relative may kiss the bride, but otherwise the practice is no longer taken for granted.

After greeting the wedding party, the guests may then partake of refreshment. If the service is buffet, they may help themselves. If not, they accept a glass of champagne when the waiter passes with a tray. If a meal is to be served, guests may take a seat at any of the tables, unless tables are assigned in advance and there are place cards. Guests, of course, do not sit at tables reserved for the bridal party and for the parents.

CHECK THE SEATING LIST

If there are place cards, guests check the seating list at the entrance to find the table they've been assigned to and then take the place designated by their names.

During the reception, guests need not stand on formality about speaking to people, but may circulate and introduce themselves. They should stand and toast the bride and groom when the best man begins that part of the festivities. Guests enter into the dancing after the bride has danced with her new husband, both fathers and the ushers. Men guests may ask her to dance afterward.

Guest are expected to remain at the reception until after the bride and groom have left. Before leaving, of course, guests should say goodbye to the bride's parents, the host and hostess.

It's not absolutely necessary to send the bride's mother a thank-you note after the party, but I've never yet met a mother of the bride who didn't appreciate this little gesture as a morale booster during the letdown period that usually follows when the excitement of the wedding with all its preparations and activity, is finally over.

Daily Trials Trivial When Blessings Counted

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Yesterday was one of this impossible days. Dad was sick in bed with the flu. Any woman will tell you it's easier to have four sick kids than one sick husband. He almost drove me crazy with his complaints and small demands.

Our oldest boy had to be driven to his music lesson. His sister was late for choir practice. The second boy had a dental appointment and was making excuses to stay home. The youngest son decided to spend the day picking on his 5-year-old sister.

I had run out of milk and oranges and couldn't possibly get to the market before it closed. The basket of unwashed laundry seemed to be leering at me from the corner. There it was, 11:00 p.m. and I was polishing shoes for Sunday.

As I polished I felt sorry for myself. After I had put everything away and prepared to switch out the lights my eyes fell on the row of polished shoes — five pairs of them. Then the thought struck me. What if I lost just one of these dear people who fill those shoes?

That's the thought I plan to hold from now on. It sure straightened me out in a hurry. Pass it along, will you? — COUNTING MY BLESSINGS.

• • •

DEAR COUNTING — Your wonderful letter should help put things in proper perspective for those who think it's the end of the world when the washing machine breaks down or Junior needs glasses. Thank you for writing.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've always said anyone who had to write to you must be nuts. Well, add me to the list of nuts because now I need help.

Three months ago I started to date an executive with an advertising agency. He was evasive about his home life but I didn't think much of it.

Friday he phoned me at work to break a date because of a wrenched back so I decided to surprise him. I got his address from his boss and rang the doorbell of his apartment at 6.30 p.m. A frowsy little redhead, about 22, opened the door. She was wearing an old bathrobe and a pair of men's slippers. I was so shocked and hurt I pretended I had the wrong apartment.

The next day when he phoned to say he was feeling better I decided to clear the air. I asked him about the girl. He said she was the daughter of friends from Boise who had run out of money and needed a place to stay. He insists he is really a philanthropist and that I have an evil mind. What do you think? — LINDA.

• • •

DEAR LINDA — I've heard this sort of thing called by many names — but never philanthropy.

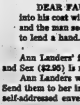
If he wanted to help the girl he could have paid for her room at the YWCA. Tell him to run that campaign down the flagpole. Nobody in his right mind would salute it.

• • •

DEAR ANN — My friend and I both work in a department store and we ride the bus to and from work every day.

Yesterday a man removed his coat because it was warm in the bus. We were all getting off at the same stop and the man was standing in the aisle, just ahead of us. He was struggling to get into his coat so I assisted him. He seemed grateful.

My friend said I had committed a grave social error — that a lady never helps a man with his coat. Is she right or wrong? — FAUX PAS.



• • •

DEAR FAUX — Ordinarily a man would prefer to get into his coat without assistance. If the coat is bulky, however, and the man seems to be having trouble it is perfectly proper to lend a hand.

Beef Porcupines From the Twenties

by Mary Moore

You are a great crowd to work for. You let me know what you want. You let me know what you like.

Any recipes that I give that call for ground beef or hamburg meat get a great reception. Another thing you clamor for is dishes that may be made in advance.

We were invited out to dinner at the home of a former music teacher who used to come to our house to give Marianne and Pete their piano lessons every week. This was a delightful evening for we reminisced about the good old days and everybody gave a rendition of their favorite number on her piano. It was a great everybody-participating party.

For dinner she served Beef Porcupines. This set me off on a long-ago recall of our domestic science classes in high school when I learned to make this dish with such an intriguing name.

If Beef Porcupines are not on your regular agenda maybe you would like to buy a pound of ground beef or hamburg meat and serve them to your family on some cold night this week.

BEEF PORCUPINES:

Sauce: 4 cups tomato juice, 2 teaspoons chili powder (optional), ½ teaspoon allspice, ½ teaspoon celery seed, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon brown sugar.

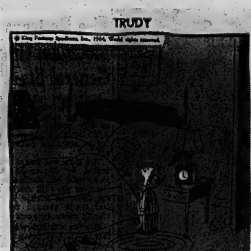
Porcupines: 1 lb. lean ground beef, or hamburg, ½ cup uncooked rice, ½ cup chopped onion, ½ cup chopped green pepper, ½ cup finely chopped celery, 1 egg, beaten, 1 or 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ to ¼ teaspoon pepper.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Pork Chops; Applesauce; Rice with Peas and Parsley (see Tuesday); Generous Cabbage and Radish Salad; Lemon Snow; Date Squares; Coffee.

Combine ingredients for sauce. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Mix ingredients, combine ingredients for porcupines; mix well. Form into 1½" balls. Place in a baking dish. Pour sauce over balls (see note). Cover and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour.



NOTES:

1) If after sauce is poured over meat balls this dish may be put in refrigerator until 1½ hours before dinner time and then baked. Because it will be refrigerator-cold bake it 1½ hours at 350 deg. Fahr. when it is made in advance.

2) Don't worry about the rice cooking. It is nice and tender and bristles like a little porcupine all round the balls of meat.

PUBLIC SPENDING

Schools take about 12 cents on the Canadian dollar of public spending, and social security and welfare 25 to 30 cents.

Big Corporations Trying To Draw Cream of Young French Canada Into Careers

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

MONTREAL (CP) — Without fanfare, some big corporations have begun a vigorous effort to draw the cream of young French Canada into business careers.

It is perhaps the main step in a deliberate campaign to bury, once and for all, the notion that the world of big business is one for the English-speaking in Canada.

French Canadian nationalism is spurring many firms to a fresh concern for their public image in Quebec.

English - speaking businessmen are trying to look at themselves through the eyes of the French - speaking majority in this province.

What they see is some sort of self-perpetuating, exclusive English-speaking club running the economy of the province.

Whether or not this is a true picture now, they are trying to make sure it won't be true in the future.

One businessman put it this way:

"Responsible French - Canadians are saying their people have been subjugated, that they have been denied equal opportunity in the economic sphere. Whether the charge is entirely true or not doesn't matter.

"The important point is that they believe it to be true. Therefore it is up to us, the business community, to demonstrate convincingly that in French Canada we want to be part of French Canada."

SOME ARE HAPPY

In most cases the search for what might be called a bicultural identity seems to be patient and careful but there is here and there, a suggestion of great haste to become more French - Canadian than the French-Canadians themselves.

Claude D. E. Armstrong, head of McGill University's commerce faculty, tells of a Montreal business firm that went to Laval in Quebec City, French Canada's senior university, looking for a young man to join the ranks of its executive trainees.

"The employer, a friend of mine, was told by a Laval professor he had a student who seemed to be just the sort of man he wanted. Well, the student was French-Canadian, of course, in fact he could hardly speak English, but his name was Johnson. This put my friend in an awkward position.

"You see, business firms are not merely looking for bright French - Canadians, they are looking for people who are obviously French-Canadians, they want the public to see what good corporate citizens they are by hiring and promoting the sons of the province. If the potential executive's name is Boudreau or Lalibarte, a different thing's fine, but if it happens to be Johnson or O'Neill, he doesn't suit the purpose quite so well.'

CANT MEET DEMAND

Port Armstrong says the demand for young French-Canadians in business "has increased astronomically."

"A few years ago this demand was virtually non-existent. Big companies, even those with head office or large operations in Quebec, saw themselves getting along nicely without French. Why bother change?

"As far as employment policies were concerned, these companies showed hardly any awareness of the existence of French-speaking institutions of higher learning.

"This has changed dramatically. Now the demand for French-Canadians in the managerial and technical sectors of business and industry greatly exceeds the supply. The situation has changed so much that jobs are going begging even when there are English-Canadians available to fill them."

At Laval, Emile Simard, director of placement, says big business has been increasing its campus recruiting annually for the last few years. There were a record 174 companies based on the campus last spring and he expects at least as many to be chasing the 1964 graduates.

"Although Laval had 1,300 graduates last spring, we were positively amazed at how far this fell short of the demand."

COMPETITION FIERCE

At the University of Montreal, largest French - speaking university in Canada, 130 companies were registered last year and placement director Marcel Cloutier expects the number will exceed 150 before the end of the 1963-64 term.

"I have never seen anything like it. The competition among the federal government, the Quebec government and private business and industry for our graduates is fierce."

In this competition the federal government has been faring rather badly.

"The federal civil service hasn't been so popular with our students in the last couple of years," says Mr. Cloutier. "So far this year we have more students lined up for jobs in Africa than in Ottawa.

"Those who are interested in civil service careers seem to think they will find more challenge and opportunity in Quebec than in Ottawa. This, I must emphasize, is quite a new trend and it isn't necessarily permanent. The federal government is making greater efforts to find bilingual people and it could be getting its share again in another two or three years."

OUTDRIVERS IN ARCTIC

At Quebec's newest French-speaking university, the 10-year - old University of Sherbrooke, the number of companies seeking graduates has jumped from 30 in the last year. And they're not exclusively Quebec-based firms.

Bernard Lemaire, Scotian Beachesne, whose job didn't exist until last year because there was need for it, says one company with its head office in Hamilton came to Sherbrooke in search of personnel.

"The situation now is far better than we had foreseen," he says. "There has definitely been more thought given to the French - Canadian by employers."

Agreeing this is so, one business executive says:

"When French - Canadians complain about lack of opportunity, I think they are pointing the finger at us, the business community.

"Where else would they be claiming to lack opportunity? They don't lack it in the professions. The vast majority of clergy, doctors, lawyers, leaders and dentists in Quebec are French, and this is getting to be true of engineers and architects as well.

"They don't lack it in government service. They certainly don't lack it in the arts, in fact the opportunities are almost embarrassing in that field in comparison with English-Canadians.

"That pretty well leaves the field of business and industry as the field where, with a few exceptions, they have not found a road to the top."

Tomorrow: English - speaking employees flock to learn French.

County Lashes Prov. Govt. on Tax Exemptions

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario County today lashed out at the provincial government for "increasing the number of tax exemptions and dispensing of aid to charities at the expense of the population of local municipalities."

In a brief to the Ontario committee on taxation, the county stated: "In some instances the policy of granting this type of tax exemption would seem a fair way in that some of the favored institutions serve the local population. But in many cases they are regional, provincial and national."

Regarding real estate taxation, the county's brief said: "It cannot be expected that a satisfactory assessing job can be done by the employment of untrained part-time assessors."

The county said farmers are burdened with unduly heavy taxation because of a law which requires the assessor to assess at actual value. The brief says that if the value of the property is to be determined by the influence of urbanization upon the rural scene, the farmer will not be able to pay the high taxes and will be forced to sell out.

ANNOUNCE PROJECT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spain and the United States have announced plans for the construction and operation of a space tracking and data acquisition station about 30 miles west of Madrid. The station will be used primarily to support U.S. sonar and planetary exploration projects.

The first invitational bonspiel sponsored by the ladies' division of the Prince Edward Curling Club, in its new building, was an outstanding success. When the final tallies were made, the rink from the RCAF Trenton won the first draw. A rink from the Kingston Curling Club won the second draw. These rinks are pictured above: standing, the RCAF Trenton rink, left to right, Mrs. Laura Millar, skip, Mrs. Betty Cuthbertson, Mrs. Kathleen Dobbin and Mrs. Margaret Osborn; kneeling, the Kingston rink, left to right, Mrs. Barbara Bell, skip, Mrs. Jeanette Wilson, Mrs. Vi Duff and Mrs. Phyllis Clark.

Students Pepper Questions At Martin After Address

OTTAWA (CP) — Carleton University students exposed External Affairs Minister Martin Tuesday to a cross-fire of questions on topics ranging from recognition of Red China to Canada's foreign aid effort.

The impromptu "press conference" developed at the conclusion of a formal address by Mr. Martin in connection with a students' fund-raising drive for scholarships to bring overseas students to Carleton.

The luncheon-hour meeting in a lecture hall then was thrown into a question-and-answer session that left the students' queries thick and fast:

Do you think provision of Canadian military equipment to India is hampering a solution of the Kashmir dispute?

Will Canada join the Organization of American States? Is the Commonwealth in danger of breaking up?

What is Canada doing to meet a suggestion that countries give one per cent of their gross national product to foreign aid?

Mr. Martin resisted the international policies of the Liberal government without indicating any significant changes.

However, on foreign aid, he said he hopes the previously-announced increase in Canadian government assistance might make it possible for the government to share in some way in the operation of Canadian University Service Overseas. But he hoped nothing would be done to alter the organization's essentially voluntary nature.

Following are some of the views expressed by Mr. Martin:

Commonwealth — "It would be regrettable if the British Commonwealth was to disintegrate. I don't think it will . . . It's a very important and essential organization for preservation of peace. . . . The stresses and strains obviously are great because the problems of the moment are great."

Latin America — "Increased economic assistance by Canada to Latin America wouldn't necessarily mean involvement in the Organization of American States. . . .

Assistance to India — "We wouldn't embark on any policy towards one country (India) which would be inimical to the other (Pakistan). I am sure our military assistance to India is not designed to be prejudicial in any way to Pakistan."

Aid—"The forthcoming United Nations trade and development conference in Geneva represents the most fundamental way of dealing with the problem of bridging the gap between the have and have not countries . . .

Liquor, Wine Prices Go up February 1st

TORONTO (CP)—Whisky and gin prices in Ontario will go up 30 cents a bottle starting Feb. 1, the Liquor Control Board of Ontario announced today.

LCBO Chairman Harry Sheppard told a press conference the price of beer returns will be increased 20 cents a bottle, as well as all other Canadian spirits.

Canadian wines will go up 10 cents for those selling at $1.55 or less. Higher priced wines will be increased by 15 cents a bottle.

Mr. Sheppard said the increase will mean an additional revenue to the province of $12,000,000 a year. The increase was ordered by the government as a source of additional revenue.

Eskimo Mother, Premature Baby Safe, Sound

WINNIPEG (CP) — An Eskimo mother, her premature baby daughter and the RCMP constable who delivered the baby are in good condition here Tuesday after a 4,000-mile RCAF mercy flight.

But another child, Helen Kitkwojak, 2, of Rankin Inlet, N.W.T., died just before the Albatross aircraft landed here.

RCAF officials said the child, suffering from a lung infection or meningitis, was picked up at Churchill, Man., Monday night by the plane on its way back to Winnipeg from Thule, Greenland.

RCMP officials Tuesday said Const. Bob Currie, formerly of London, Ont., suffered an undisclosed foot injury while assisting in the premature birth at his Grilse Fjord outpost on Ellesmere Island.

Fire Destroys Mountain Grove General Store

MOUNTAIN GROVE (Special) — Fire completely destroyed the only general store in this small community 25 miles north of Belleville causing an estimated $40,000 damage.

The store was owned and operated by Mr. Fearvald D. E. MacDonald Mr. MacDonald said the store was built shortly after the Canadian Pacific Railways laid tracks through the community about 90 years ago.

The fire was discovered early this morning by postmaster Albert Brown. Unable to reach anyone by telephone because of failles telephone lines, Mr. Brown roused residents in the area by sounding his automobile horn.

Fire Chief F. E. Lake of the Sharbot Lake Fire Department said he believed the fire started in an overheated coal furnace. The Sharbot Lake department was summoned to the scene at about 1.40 a.m. this morning.

A bucket brigade was made of residence in the area when flames roused citizens from bed and set fire to a home owned by Mrs. Florence Hawley. It was reported it has received only slight damage.

When fire threatened the post office next door to the Hawley residence, Mr. Brown and his wife removed all postal supplies and equipment. However, the bucket brigade put out the fire at the Hawley home before it could reach the post office, while firemen concentrated there efforts on the general store and two gasoline pumps in front of the store which were in danger of exploding.

The store and contents were a complete loss.

Canadian Delegate Presses For New UN Housing Agency

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Delegates of 21 countries split Tuesday over the question of establishing a new UN specialized agency to deal with housing and planning.

Before the 21-nation committee on housing, building and planning was a survey prepared by George F. Davidson of Canada at the request of Secretary-General U Thant and including a proposal that a UN centre to co-ordinate the subjects be set up within the UN secretariat.

The United States supports that idea.

But Stewart Bates, another Canadian delegate to the UN, called for a new international agency "responsible for this area of human needs." Bates is the Canadian delegate on the committee. A number of other delegates supported his point of view.

William L. C. Wheaton, professor of planning at the University of California, opposed setting up a new specialized agency. He argued that UN members would not pledge the voluntary funds necessary to make the agency workable and it efforts would weaken the role of the Food and Agriculture Organization, the World Health Organization and other specialized agencies that have done some work in the housing field.

EFFORTS SCATTERED

Bates charged that the present efforts are scattered and said a new agency would not cost any more than the programs now in effect. He said he did not agree with Wheaton's argument that a new agency would weaken the claim on existing specialized agencies dealing with housing needs.

Asserting that housing was a peculiar industry, he cited the example of Elliot Lake, a town in Ontario he said was built to produce uranium for the United States but now the United States does not want uranium.

"So what do we do with the new town, with all its housing and people?" he asked.

Bates also questioned whether the various specialized agencies would not have done a better job in their fields if they had functioned as an integral part of the United Nations, rather than outside it.

mac when their plane landed and while Liz, dressed in a fawn-colored coat, kept repeating: "It's cold." Temperature was 12 degrees. Burton glanced over the crowd and was heard to say: "I hope they're coming to see Hamlet."

On their 15-mile trip to the hotel, Miss Taylor and Mr. Burton stopped for drinks at an inn.

Meanwhile, crowds gathered outside several mid-town hotels after it was rumored the couple might have changed their reservations. However, they showed up as expected at the King Eddie much to the delight of about 200 chilled fans.

As the elevator whisked them to their eighth-floor suite, the crowds broke through a restraining police barrier and poured into empty elevators in an effort to follow the couple upstairs.

Peterborough Widow May Get Hidden $70,000

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) A 70-year-old partially blind Peterborough widow may inherit more than $70,000, found stuffed in an old chair in the decrepit California house where her sister died last week.

Mrs. Ethle Millen, the only surviving relative of Mrs. Annie Atkins, 76, who died of a heart attack in Coulterville, Calif., lives here with her only daughter, Mrs. Violet Devlin.

Mrs. Devlin said in an interview Tuesday her mother had been informed of her sister's death but not of the inheritance.

Mrs. Millen was "tired and unable to speak."

Mrs. Devlin said her mother heard frequently from Mrs. Atkins who was in Peterborough on a visit two years ago.

The money was found by Rev. Carl Plebank, 64, who lived with Mrs. Atkins in her tumbledown shack.

Mr. Plebank thought there was money in the house but could not find it until he had a vision that it was in the chair, he told sheriff's officers.

They found the money — mostly in denominations of $1,000 Canadian bills, amounting to $70,464.

Mr. Plebank also turned over $6,400 he said Mrs. Atkin had given him.

District Attorney Dean Lauritsen said under California law the only surviving sister would inherit the money. No will was found.

Ask Non-Profit Organizations Pay Normal Tax

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario hotel and Motel Association today called on the provincial government to discontinue total tax exemptions to non-profit organizations.

In a 10-page brief to the Ontario committee on taxation, the association says "all non-profit clubs and organizations, to varying degrees, provide tax-exempt services and accommodation which are, in all respects, competitively unfair.

"We recommend, therefore, that all non-profit organizations which engage in providing social and meeting room facilities, food and beverage service, guest rooms and such ancillary services, be no longer granted total provincial tax exemptions as non-profit organizations."

The brief said the recommendation should apply to a non-profit organization which obtains a profit "in excess of its needs for the designated purpose of the organization."

The association represents more than 700 hotels, motor hotels, taverns and public houses in the province. Membership is voluntary.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1964

Federal Spending Will Rise Despite Cuts - - Gordon

Labor Federation Gathers 80,000 Signed Demands for Changes in Medicare Plan

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Labor, demanding "drastic changes" in government-backed private insurance, has collected thousands of signatures from Ontario residents who want a comprehensive, public medical care program.

The OFL plans to present cards bearing the signed demands to the 14-member committee appointed by the government to study draft legislation under which standard physician-care plans would be offered to the public through private insurers.

"We haven't counted the cards yet," an OFL spokesman said Tuesday night, "but we have at least 80,000." He said the cards would be presented to the inquiry committee at a hearing next Wednesday.

The OFL and the United Church of Canada were scheduled to present briefs to the inquiry Tuesday and the hearings were slated to close today with the Ontario Medical Association having the final word. But the committee postponed the OMA and United Church briefs at the last moment to devote the whole of Tuesday's session to examination of submissions by Physicians' Services Incorporated —the first time it has given a full session to one organization.

MORE COSTLY

The OFL brief says the present government legislation represents capitulation to the idea that private profits take precedence over the public good. Operating the plan through private insurers makes medical care more costly than it would be under government operation, it says.

"Only a public-sponsored program can encompass the measures that a well - organized health service must have, consistent with the highest quality service and the number of facilities that are needed," says the 500,000-member labor organization.

The United Church's board of evangelism and social services, also calling for a comprehensive health - care program suggests a government plan to provide medical care should be based on charity in the biblical sense —an attitude of humanity and concern—rather than in the sense of a handout.

BACK SASKATCHEWAN

It reminds the committee that the church's general council passed a resolution endorsing Saskatchewan's tax - supported, universal medical care program.

The brief criticizes the draft legislation's implication that the needy would undergo a means test in order to qualify for government help in buying medical insurance. Such a system would discourage the participation of self-respecting, medically needy persons.

In a brief presented to the committee today, the Ontario Podiatry Association, calls for inclusion of its services in the government - defined standard insurance plan, which now excludes all but medical care by a physician.

The podiatrists, foot-care specialists once known as chiropodists, say an insurance plan which contracts to provide a service but limits the manner in which the service can be provided is unfair.

CHARGE CONTROL

PSI, a prepaid plan organized by the Ontario Medical Association and providing medical insurance for almost half the 3,600,000 Ontario residents who now prepay medical expenses, faced charges Tuesday that it aims to corner the medical insurance market and control the economics of doctoring.

PSI said its survival depends on getting amendments that would preserve its present methods of operating.

Among other proposals, PSI said it should be allowed to continue paying out benefits at a rate lower than prescribed in the legislation—the OMA schedule of fees—and that it should have the right to opt out of any system of pooling high - cost risks under the program, while receiving financial credit from the pool for covering such risks.

"If any of these recommendations is not implemented the entire service principle as established by the medical profession . . . would be seriously disrupted if not destroyed," PSI said.

WOULD DOMINATE

But inquiry member P. J. Mulrooney, general manager of Cumba Co-op Health Services said implementing PSI's proposed policies would mean "PSI would dominate medical insurance in the province and control the doctors." PSI denied this.

Committeeman Carman A. Naylor, a London Life Insurance executive, suggested the PSI proposal on discounting benefits would be inconsistent with the government's aim to provide comprehensive coverage because a subscriber might be required to make up the difference between the 80-per-cent PSI benefit and the full fee.

A. Roy Coulter, chairman of the Ontario Wheat Producers Marketing Board and another committee member, asked PSI representatives if their request to pay out discounted benefits would not give them a significant advantage over other insurers under the government program. He noted that public funds would be available to the insurers to cover the indigent and suggested it would be incongruous if PSI was required to distribute a smaller percentage of these funds than others.

SIDETRACK REPLY

Any response to this from PSI President J. O. Lockhart was sidetracked when W. S. Major, a member of the inquiry committee and general manager of PSI, intervened to explain another point. Mr. Major frequently interjected with replies and explanations for fellow committee members on behalf of PSI during the hearing.

Mr. Mulrooney and other committee members, however, persisted with questions showing that principle proposed by PSI sometimes conflict with practice.

The PSI brief said the legislation must protect the right of the individual to go to the doctor of his choice. Mr. Mulrooney pointed out that PSI's contract permits cancellation of services to a subscriber who goes to a doctor who is not a participant in PSI—that is, who does not accept 80 per cent of the OMA schedule of fees as full payment of his account.

PSI representatives responded that this is a safeguard clause which has been invoked only rarely.

"Nevertheless," Mr. Mulrooney said, "PSI arrogates to itself the right to limit the subscriber's choice of physicians." In effect, he suggested, PSI is "compelling the doctors of the province to participate in PSI."

Dr. Lockhart disagreed, saying doctors want to participate because they founded PSI and have "a very direct interest" in the plan's success.

EASES BORDER BARS

VIENNA (AP)—Bulgaria has announced it will simplify border formalities and the granting of tourist visas. It thus follows the line of its sister satellite countries, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

Biculturalism Study Called Sham by NDP

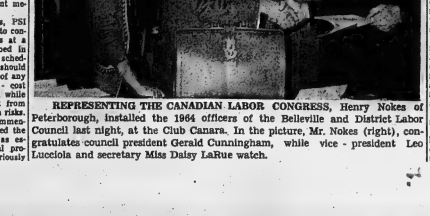
TORONTO (CP)—The current royal commission on biculturalism and bilingualism has been described as "the greatest sham" by the president of the Ontario Young New Democrats.

Vincent Kelly, also NDP candidate for Armourdale riding in last September's provincial election, argued Monday night at a three-party panel discussion that Quebec's separatist movement would gain momentum until the federal government took action.

He told the panel meeting at a Lutheran church in suburban Scarborough that the government should provide a leadership that would divert the attention of the separatism-impetus.

Tom Summerville, Liberal candidate for Scarborough West in the last general vote, said: "It is time to stop diverting and face the problem squarely. The commission on biculturalism is a move in the right direction."

Mr. Kelly replied: "It wasn't my intention to divert attention with show and sham. The biculturalism commission is the biggest sham ever perpetrated."



A suitable diversion, Mr. Kelly said, would be to join Quebec in its demands that executive-level personnel for large Quebec firms be recruited from the ranks of qualified bilingual young people of Quebec in lieu of being imported.

Labor Council Plans to Change Meeting Date

Monthly meeting date of the Belleville District Labor Council will be changed, the council decided last night, to the third Tuesday. Canadian Labor Congress representative to attend the meetings. The meeting date until now has been held on the fourth Tuesday each month, at the request of the council president, Gerald Cunningham has been directed to find out if the hall is free on the second Monday of each month.

Reason for the change is that Henry Nokes of Peterborough, C.L.C. representative for Central Ontario, has been asked to cover the northwestern Ontario as well. He spends the second half of each month in the Fort-William area, the first half of the month in Central Ontario, and does not his spare time to a position as National Secretary of the Farm Implement Workers' Council and as Farm Labor representative to the C.L.C.

At meetings of local labor councils in the area, Mr. Nokes provides advice, explains C.L.C. policies and acts as liaison agent between different labor councils and the labor councils and the C.L.C. Last night he installed the officers of the Belleville and District Labor Council. The officers had been elected last year.

REPRESENTING THE CANADIAN LABOR CONGRESS, Henry Nokes of Peterborough, installed the 1964 officers of the Belleville and District Labor Council last night, at the Club Canara. URGES ALL BOMBER FORCES BE SCRAPPED — Seymon K. Tsarapkin, chief Soviet delegate, to the 17-national disarmament conference in Geneva, Switzerland, talks to newsmen after proposing on behalf of Russia that all nations destroy their bomber forces as a step toward disarmament.

U. S. Rejects Red Bid to Destroy Bombers But Hopes It Means Ban on Their Resale

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

GENEVA (AP) — U.S. officials have rejected a Soviet call for destruction of all the world's bomber fleets. But they were hopeful it signified Russian interest in a U.S. suggestion to keep obsolete bombers from smaller nations.

The bomber proposal was put forth at the Geneva disarmament conference Tuesday by Soviet chief delegate Seymon K. Tsarapkin. Chief U.S. disarmament negotiator William C. Foster said he would like to discuss it in detail.

The state department in Washington said any move to destroy the bombers of all countries was neither acceptable nor practical.

But it expressed hope Tsarapkin's proposal meant the Russians would look with favor on an informal suggestion State Secretary Rusk made to Soviet officials in Moscow last summer. Rusk suggested that big powers destroy nuclear bombers as they became obsolete lest they fall into the hands of less-nuclear nations.

Rusk suggested destruction on a one-for-one basis of U.S. and Soviet jet bomber aircraft. His suggestion would not apply to such supersonic bombers as the U.S. B-58A and the Soviet Bounder.

The United States and the Soviet Union, which rely mainly on long-range missiles for nuclear delivery, would not be vitally affected even by a total ban. But the British are certain to oppose the Soviet proposal because it would wipe out their bomber-borne nuclear deterrent.

The proposal also will certainly be ignored by France, which is boycotting the Geneva conference. The nuclear striking force that President de Gaulle has made a keystone of his policy is built around the bomber.

Maritime Unions' Trustees Confer With Labor Minister

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government is satisfied that the maritime trustees have already accomplished a "great deal" and are doing a "good job," Labor Minister Mac Eachen said Tuesday.

"I would hope that the steps taken to reduce the extent of the trouble on the Great Lakes will be continued," he told reporters following a four - hour meeting with the trustees in their Montreal offices.

Neither the labor minister nor the trustees would say what had been discussed.

Mr. MacEachen said the government has received no formal request from the Canadian Labor Congress urging the removal of Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) from office before the start of the 1964 shipping season.

The trusteeship reports directly to Parliament and has "full latitude as to how and when it acts," he said.

WON'T BE INFLUENCED

Charles Millard, one of the trustees, indicated the group would not be influenced by Ottawa reports there was union dissatisfaction with the trustees because they have not removed Mr. Banks from office.

"We will choose our own policies and decide what and when to do it," he said. The trustees don't necessarily agree" with the CLC position that a showdown with Mr. Banks is inevitable and might as well come before the start of the shipping season.

The trustees maintained their position, stated following establishment of the board last October, that no union officers would be removed unless they feel this is necessary, he said.

"You can't establish democracy in unions by dictatorial methods," Mr. Millard said.

Mr. Millard said charges made by the four CLC unions under the trustees that the government - appointed body was not acting quickly enough were "generalities," "not honest," and "unfair."

The Norris report recommended dismissal of Mr. Banks, saying he SIU president was a "bully" and a "tyrant" and describing the union as a "corrupt and lawless racket dominated by Mr. Banks and his lieutenants."

"The control of the SIU is now in the hands of the russ...ecessi Mr. Banks," Mr. Millard said. The SIU leader had co-operated with the trustees up to now.

Minister Holds Little Hope For Any Marked Reduction In National Taxation Level

EDMONTON (CP) — Despite recent cuts in defence outlays, over - all federal government spending will increase the fiscal year starting April 1, Finance Minister Gordon said Tuesday.

At the same time, he held out little hope for any significant reduction in the level of Canadian taxation until the economic growth rate increases to a point where it will produce more tax revenues for all levels of government.

Mr. Gordon was speaking to the Edmonton West Liberal constituency Association. It was the first of three speeches he has scheduled this week—likely the last before he presents his budget to Parliament, expected in April.

Mr. Gordon cited no figures on 1964-65 spending, other than to say that in recent weeks the treasury board—a cabinet committee—has passed $200,000,000 from the estimates originally contemplated by civilian departments and agencies for the coming year.

Spending in the current fiscal year, ending March 31, is expected to reach $6,626,617,200. The finance minister has forecast a $725,000,000 deficit.

WANTS MONEY'S WORTH

Mr. Gordon said that Defence Minister Hellyer, in reviewing defence goals, has been making valiant efforts to see that we get our full money's worth for what we spend on defence and that we spend no more than is essential."

However, Mr. Gordon said that as defence spending goes down, expenditures on foreign aid are increasing. Social security costs and public debt charges also were rising.

The minister said that as the economy improves, "we can, I hope, look forward to some decline" in expenditures for defence, for payments to the unemployed, for capital projects such as airports, and for meeting losses and subsidies such as those for the railways.

"We would be deluding ourselves, however, if we felt that there was likely to be a general decline in federal expenditures, much less a decline in those of the provinces and municipalities."

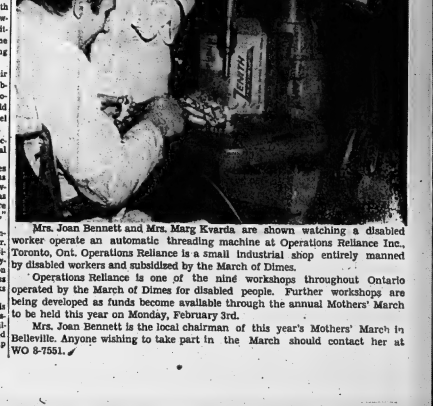
The government was looking forward to receiving the report of the royal commission on taxation on how to improve the tax system.

"But if in practice total government expenditures cannot be reduced appreciably beyond what they have been already, it is difficult to see how governments will be able to reduce the total revenues they must receive in taxes.

"Perhaps the most we can hope for is proposals for making the tax levies more equitable and possibly less painful."

Dealing with federal-provincial tax sharing, Mr. Gordon said the government is trying to establish "a co-operative federalism under which we will endeavor to assess fairly our needs and priorities in relation to those of the provincial governments, both in relation to expenditures and in the use of various tax fields."

Mr. Gordon said the objective in Canada must be to increase the economic growth rate and reduce unemployment. If these aims could be achieved, incomes would rise and so would government revenues.



"When this happens, governments will be in a position either to accede to the never ending demands for increased services, or alternatively, and I say this hopefully, to reduce existing tax rates.

WILL CONSIDER REQUESTS

At a press conference earlier, Mr. Gordon said the federal government will give active and sympathetic consideration to any requests by the provinces that it withdraw from joint programs.

He said the programs, such as the national hospital plan, will be the main subject of a federal - provincial conference March 31.

Until the provinces' thoughts on the matter were made known to the conference it was not possible for the federal government to commence about the future of the programs.

On Visit to Flanders Fields One Can See Reminders of Heroic Role of Canadians

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the start of "the war to end war." Canadian Press reporter Carol Kennedy, on a visit to the battlefields of Flanders, sees many reminders of the First World War and the heroic role played by Canadian troops.

By CAROL KENNEDY

YPRES, Belgium (CP)—"Canadian Front Line," says the signboard outside the cheap cafe. "Visit the immortal battlefield of Sanctuary Wood."

You pay five francs and step into the back garden. A winding path lined with ancient rifles and rusty tin hats leads into a grove of trees.

Suddenly you come upon a dead tree, jagged and ashen as though struck by lightning. There are others nearby, so frail that they sway at a touch.

With a shock, realization dawns that these scarred stumps are the remains of the old Sanctuary Wood, where the Canadian Corps fought in June, 1916, holding the Allied line against one of the heaviest artillery bombardments of the First World War.

"The Canadians did not surrender," recorded a German historian, "but at their guns defended themselves with revolvers to the last man."

Today the trenches they were eventually forced to abandon at such devastating cost are a few hundred yards of sign-post ditches vanishing into a plowed field. It is a moving experience to tread their rotting duckboards and squelch into the dank concrete tunnels where soldiers sheltered from German guns.

Most of them now lie in the flax-shaped cemetery below.

TOURISTS IMPRESSED

Back in the cafe museum there are stereoscopic, grimly lifelike war photographs, spiked German helmets and pathetic remnants—buttons, badges, water-bottles — dug up by local farmers.

Young Belgian soldiers in the next room play the jukebox; to them, perhaps, the "war to end war" is as remote as Agincourt, but it still draws coachloads of tourists from the big coastal resorts 30 miles away.

They come at the vast war cemeteries, the brooding monuments, the sad rusty relics of that far-off slaughter and perhaps sense the air of sacrifice that one naval writer described as "real and pricking" in these lush farmlands.

West Flanders is one huge graveyard of what has been dubbed "the Lost Generation." There are 129,543 graves in the Ypres Salient alone, tended by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission—nearly 50,000 British and Commonwealth soldiers gave their lives to the defence of Ypres from 1914 to 1917, with almost as many again listed as missing.

Nowhere, one feels, will the 50th anniversary of 1914 fall more poignantly than in the little gabled market town the British Tommies called "Wipers," whose name became synonymous with the mud, blood and misery of the Western Front.

MUD WAS DEATH TRAP

The Salient was a horseshoe-shaped knob of unconquered land around the town, protruding into the German lines and guarding the approach to the English Channel. Barely 150 miles from London, the booming of its guns was heard in Whitehall offices. It was dreaded by every fighting man, for its lowlying clay fields, unable to absorb the perpetual rain, became a swampy deathtrap.

Round its rim from Messines in the south to Bolzinghe in the north ran the notorious Ridge, a necklace of low hills forming a vital military stronghold in the Flanders plain. For most of the static three-year campaign it was held by the Germans; down below, crouched in slimy trenches, Allied troops hung on against what often seemed hopeless odds.

Incredibly, the town was held, though reduced to ruins. Today squat posts topped by a German helmet carved in stone mark the limits of the enemy advance.

Between the lines, sometimes only a stone's throw apart, lay No - Man's - Land, a mangled waste of craters and corpses "hanging on the old barbed wire," as the troops sang with grim resignation.

DIED IN TRENCHES

For weeks on end neither side would appear to move except for brief trench raids. Yet the casualties piled up, around 7,000 a day.

On the wooded slopes of the Ridge where today the white headstones glimmer, historic and bloody battles were fought. St. Julien, Menin, Polygon Wood and Hill 60 all. Passchendaele.

Trench life had its moments of brutal humor. It was cartooned memorably in the illustrated London News by young Capt. Bruce Bairnsfather, who was killed in the last year of the war. His character "Wot-ho! Old Bill became a national character when he held the raw recruit in the dugout: "Well if you knows of a better 'ole, go to it."

Today, with a sharp eye and a dash of imagination, you can still trace the path of war in the Flanders fields where Canadian Army doctor John McCrae wrote his famous poem of the poppies and the crosses "row on row."

Trenches are fenced with rusty barbed wire held by German corkscrew stakes. The fertile limestown beets and dig where the shell-torn earth has not yet levelled out.

'POOL OF PEACE'

One huge mine crater on the Messines ridge is maintained as a "pool of peace" by the Toc H organization, a semi - religious club for the fighting men started at Talbot House in nearby Poperinghe by Rev. P. B.A.(Tubby) Clayton. It now is a world - wide veterans' association, but its original headquarters, named for a Canadian signal officer called Gilbert Talbot who lies in Sanctuary Wood cemetery, is preserved with its old chapel in the attic.

For the old soldiers who trickle back steadily to the Salient, the past flourishes and is kept green. Like Sanctuary Wood but less atmospheric, Hill 60 is a natural museum with dugouts and a concrete pillbox.

English beer is served at the Old Tom bar in the cobbled market square of Ypres. Skindles Hotel in Poperinghe, a richly Edwardian relic, keeps the name bestowed on it by officers homesick for a famous Thames-side pub in Maidenhead.

Such landmarks of the old field maps as Canadian Farm, Mousetrap Farm and the windy crossroads they called Hell Fire Corner have all been rebuilt in the same spot.

The tale is told of a Canadian veteran who revisited his old dugout site and found a bottle of rum he had buried there 40 years before.

Sometimes there are more dramatic echoes of battles long ago. Bodies are still occasionally turned up by the plow and one night not long ago two mines laid by the Allies near Messines in 1917 blew up in a thunderstorm.

In Ypres itself, outwardly a cheerful place of plump, cake-eating Flemish burghers, the past sometimes seems just around a corner in time. Memories telescope the years. When you are offered old sepia postcards of the 1918 ruins, you almost feel the Second World War and the German occupation never happened.

After the war, when only the mutilated stump of the Gothic Cloth Hall remained to identify its cloth-weaving city of the middle ages, the people of Ypres trooped back to rebuild their town, a replica of its ancient self. Older citizens recall living in wooden huts while the medieval gabled houses were reconstructed around them.

SUGLES BLOW NIGHTLY

Above the old ramparts towers the Menin Gate memorial, a massive arch of white marble built in 1927 and dedicated to the men of the old empire who fell in the Salient and have no known grave. Atop the arch a crouching lion stares east towards Germany. On the high walls are carved nearly 55,000 names of the undiscovered dead —6,984 of them Canadian.

Through the gate runs the Menin Road, over whose worn cobbles great trucks laden with farm produce now rumble where once the men tramped up the front lines.

Each evening on the stroke of 8 p.m. the traffic stops at the Menin Gate and the Last Post is sounded by two volunteers from the Ypres fire brigade, a personal tribute from the townspeople to the Commonwealth dead. The simple ceremony, begun in 1928, is planned to continue "for all time."

As the bugles send their cry into the night, one recalls that the British soldier-poet Siegfried Sassoon, who named the Salient "the war's worst wound," once wrote with sad cynicism: "Who will remember, passing through this gate, the unbrecide Dead who fed the guns?"

BEST COTTON PICKER

HAVANA (AP)—A pretty brunette from Matanzas Province has won a free trip to the Soviet Union and the Eastern European satellites as the best woman cotton picker in Cuba. Ramona Docampa, 20, handpicked 155 pounds in 10 hours Sunday. Her nearest competitor among the 30 finalists bagged 140 pounds.

Indian Council Outlines Plans For Centennial

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Indian Council outlined an ambitious program to the centennial commission Monday for emphasizing native Indian culture and lore in Canada's 100th birthday celebrations.

Centennial Commissioner Jean Marchand Trumpour, leader of the group, said the council plans a program of exchange visits of Indian students, chiefs and councillors between various parts of Canada, starting this autumn and working to a climax in 1967.

The council also wants to emphasize the contribution of the North American Indian to Canada through pageantry, presentation and display of Indian lore, and promotion of the Indian culture.

AWAIT PROPOSALS

Mr. Pelletier said in an interview that much of the council's planning, however, depends on proposals yet to be put forward by the Indian affairs branch of the citizenship department.

Mr. Pelletier said he expects to confer with Prime Minister Pearson soon on a suggestion Mr. Pearson made during a visit to the Indian community of Wikwemikong, on Manitoulin Island in his riding of Algoma East. Mr. Pearson suggested a North American Indian powwow be held there to mark the centennial.

Wikwemikong might become a focal point for Indian culture in Canada, Mr. Pelletier said. It already has an annual festival, but on a smaller scale than the annual Indian Days at Banff Also, or a festival in the Qu'Appelle Valley of Saskatchewan.

Canada's Youngest Eskimo Pilot Gets Wings at 17

EDMONTON (CP) — A 17-year-old boy who wants to become a flying northern missionary is Canada's youngest Eskimo pilot.

Thomas Gordon completed a 35-hour flying course here to earn his wings, an accomplishment that was particularly satisfying for Rev. Don Violette, a flying Arctic missionary himself.

Mr. Violette, a non-denominational Protestant minister, spotted the youngster at Aklavik in the Northwest Territories shortly before the boy's family —he has nine brothers and sisters — moved 450 miles away from the Mackenzie delta settlement.

The missionary enlisted the aid of the Aklavik school principal to bring Gordon back for more education.

Since then he has completed his Grade 8 studies, attended schools at Aklavik, Inuvik and Three Hills, Alta., and took one year of religious instruction at Temple Bible College, a Pentecostal institution in Edmonton.

He has also travelled thousands of miles with Mr. Violette on missionary duties in the Arctic, has helped build a 71-foot missionary boat and has accompanied Mr. Violette on a 20 000-mile lecture trip across the United States.

WANTS OWN PLANE

While living at the Violette home here, Gordon helped pay for his flying course by working as an apprentice mechanic. His next step is to save enough to buy a plane of his own. Then he wants to log the necessary 200 hours to obtain a commercial licence so he can earn money from flying as well as spread the gospel.

If he is to become an Arctic missionary, however, he will have to relearn the Eskimo language. Since going to live with Mr. Violette, he has forgotten his native tongue, although he can understand a few words.

Mr. Violette and his wife received the ultimate compliment from Gordon's parents recently. From a DEW line site where the boy's father works came a request that the Violettes take another boy from the family. Mr. and Mrs. Violette have four children of their own.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

'It's a trifle late to get into the Olympics "swim" mused Jim "Snipe" Matthews the other night, "but we might make it for the slip-slide-and-slither event down Kingston way."

We were driving home from the Riding and Driving Club verbal hassle where Jim had been appointed the "chairman of the board."

He will be the caretaker of the illuminated sign that promulgates entries, odds and whatnot at the weekly harness meets of the club this summer.

An alleged added attraction to the Winter Carnival being staged down Roddenville way is a challenge to habitants of this fair city to engage in a bobsled duel to take place east 'o here sometime in the immediate future.

"There's nothing those Kingston bombres can do that we can't do better," quoth the "Snipe" with tongue in cheek. "I think we can muster sufficient muscle (you don't need brains) to give the Limestoners a run for the snow roses—and make 'em like it."

"What's the set-up?" he was asked.

"All we need is a strong board, one small sled for the front runner and a heavy one for the rearguard action," snipped the "Snipe."

Somewhere in cobwebby attics or resting peacefully in garages, barns or wherever people relegate these symbols of a boyhood past, there must be sleds or small sleighs that would provide the sled-run transportation.

"Shucks," he said, "if we had the necessary items we could toss a bobsled together in no time."

"Snipe" naturally would skip the risk that would form the crew of the home-made bobsled. He qualifies because of experience gained when he graduated from diapers and took to sledding as a boyhood pastime.

He recalled the days when he with other "kids" staged bobsled races down the West Hill. "There were few cars cluttering up the streets, and the boys had a more or less clear run down the Eastlake."

"Wanna go ridin' downhill?" was a popular pastime invitation years ago before television and radio were chattered up the living rooms. The first snow would see the kids hill-hunting bundled up like teddy bears and the countryside rang with childish laughter in the sheer enjoyment of the pastime.

Impromptu "double-sleds" were sometimes produced. You took a small sled, a larger one and a strong board. The rear sled was nailed solidly to the plank while a spike was used to attach the front one.

Discarded handlebars were pressed into service as a steering apparatus—and the country kids were all set to go.

One fearless foursome took off down a sharp slope on a sideroad near Bloomfield but failed to note that a sway-backed mare was parked directly across the right-of-way. "Old Maud" refused to budge. The sled took the ditch and a second later eight legs protruded out of the snow like a cluster of asparagus shoots.

Perhaps some effort should be made to take up the Kingston challenge. If only to pay for the "humiliation" the Old Lady of the Moira suffered that year when she lost the hockey title to the Limestoners and her mayor was forced to lead a local mustang down the main street of Kingston while his "Hironzer" rode the nag's poopdeck.

Hamilton Council

Rejects 'Hall Of Fame'

HAMILTON (CP)—City council put the boot to the Football Hall of Fame here in decisive fashion Tuesday night, and may have kicked it to the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

By a 12-7 vote, council rejected a compromise proposal which would have sent the city match $50,000 in funds raised by The Hall of Fame committee for a permanent shrine here.

Only Mayor Vic Copps, two controllers and four aldermen supported a last-ditch effort to save the Hall of Fame for Hamilton.

Toronto alderman Joseph Piccininni, a spectator at the council meeting, said afterwards the vote certainly enhanced his city's chances of getting the Hall of Fame.

"We will certainly make representations to the Canadian Football League at its meeting in Edmonton next month to have the Hall of Fame located at the exhibition," Ald. Piccinnini commented. "We may even decide to make it a centennial project."

He assumed the exhibits, now in a temporary Hall of Fame here, would be moved to Toronto if the city was designated the official site by the CFL.

"We're a natural site," he said. "More people will see the Hall of Fame in 2½ weeks in Toronto than will view it in two years in Hamilton.

"And don't forget that it will be just 100 yards from the entrance to the place where the Grey Cup is played every second year."

Mustangs Whip Blues

TORONTO (CP)—Guard Tom Williamson scored 43 points to lead University of Western Ontario Mustangs to a 79-72 overtime victory over University of Toronto Blues in a Senior Intercollegiate Basketball game here Tuesday night.

Williamson hooped 21 points in the second half and six in the five-minute overtime period. The score was 71-71 at the end of regulation play.

Dave West, who fouled out late in the fourth quarter, led Toronto with 21 points, and Ed Bordas tallied 20.

Western Innocente got 14 points for Western.

Tragedy Shadow In Background

Olympics Given 'Away We Go' Signal

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—President Dr. Adolf Schaerf of Austria today officially opened the ninth winter Olympic Games in colorful trappings and perfect weather, but forecasters predicted rain or snow tonight for the Olympic site which hasn't had snow in two months.

Any sort of precipitation at this stage could damage the mountainsides where the ski events will be held. Snow was trucked in from other areas to put the ski slopes in top shape.

A colorful crowd of more than 60,000 jammed Schaerf, as chief of state of the host country, proclaim the games open.

Before the brief speech-making began, there was a moment of silence for the two Olympic competitors killed in training.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, called on the competitors and officials to "set an example of sportsmanship which will further advance the high ideals of the Olympic movement."

36 COUNTRIES

The ceremonies started with the parade of athletes from 36 countries—India was a last-moment entry.

The athletes, now officially listed at 1,350, paraded in alphabetical order under Olympic protocol. Greece, as it traditionally does, led the parade with host country Austria, last.

Each country dipped its national colors as Paul Arte, an Austrian bobsledder, took the Olympic oath of sportsmanship on behalf of 1,350 competitors.

The torch that burns until the games end Feb. 9 was lit by Toni Sieder, a former Austrian world ski champion.

The day's competitive schedule called for: (Times EST)

Championship - round hockey Russia vs. the United States 7:30 a.m.

Czechoslovakia vs. Germany 8 a.m.

Canada vs. Switzerland 11 a.m.

SOVIETS FAVORED

The Soviet hockey team is the Olympic tournament favorite and it rolled over a rank and file ranking Tuesday in the preliminary round by trampling the Hungarian squad 19-1 for the most lopsided score in eight preliminary matches that separated the record 16 entries for championship and consolation groupings.

Czechoslovakia also is among the top-ranked teams and was expected to beat the Germans handily today.

The Canadian Olympics, first truly national team to represent Canada in international competition and with an average age of 22 years the youngest the country has ever sent abroad, also was expected to win with little difficulty over Switzerland.

The first actual test of the games is at stake in the figure skating pairs competition and with a little luck on the part of the draw, Canada's chances to repeat the 1960 victory were improved.

IN GOOD POSITION

Debbie Wilkes, the 17-year-old miss from Hamilton, Ont., and her 22-year-old partner Guy Revell of Newmarket, Ont., drew the No. 10 skating position Tuesday night.

The favored pair, world champions Marika Kilius and Hans-Juergen Baumler of Germany, drew the No. 2 skating position and will have to overcome that placing to win.

Seventeen pairs, including three from Canada, will skate in the competition, in which each couple is judged solely on the basis of a five-minute free-skating program.

Skaters generally feel the judges are reluctant to give early competitors high marks and they usually prefer to compete as late as possible so they can see what their rivals are doing before they take the ice.

Miss Wilkes and Revell didn't compete in last year's world championships because Miss Wilkes suffered an injury in a fall while posing for photographs just before the competitions.

The other Canadian pairs entered are Nell Carpenter and Linda Ann Ward of Galt, Ont., and Jim Watters and Faye Strutt of Vancouver, but they placed behind the Wilkes-Revell duo in the Canadian championships earlier this year.

PROGRAM LIMITED

The opening-day program was limited to give most competitors a chance to participate in the opening ceremonies.

On Thursday, the schedule picks up with Canada meeting Sweden and Switzerland meeting Finland in championship hockey and four events are scheduled in the consolation hockey round.

Women's compulsory figure skating will get under way Thursday, along with the first two runs in the men's and women's tobogganing, and finals will be skated in the men's 30-kilometre cross-country downhill skiing and women's 500-metre skating.

The games opened in the shadow of two tragic training deaths and a host of injuries, including a concussion and bruises suffered by Canadian skier Ralph Gartrell, 22, of Fort William.

Howie May Be On Way To Minors

CHICAGO (AP) O— Another spell in the minors may be the next chapter in the stormy hockey career of Howie Young.

The temperamental defenceman missed a practice Tuesday, leaving his spot on Chicago Black Hawks' starting lineup in jeopardy.

Young, 26, came to Hawks from Detroit Red Wings this season in exchange for goalie Roger Crozier and defenceman Ron Ingram. A problem on and off the ice in the three National League campaign with the Wings, he spent half the 1961-62 season with Edmonton Flyers of the Western League, returned to set an NHL penalty record of 272 minutes last year.

He ran into hot water again this season, recently serving a five-game suspension for misconduct in a game at Toronto.

Since his return, Young has been used sparingly and has not been impressive. Hawks already have six defencemen, including Young and general manager Tommy Ivan must draw the line—meaning someone has to go. Young has been playing second fiddle to rookie Aut Erickson in recent games and Ivan has praised Erickson's play.

Slugs Ref. Suspended For Season

WINDSOR (CP)—Bob Bailey, right winger with league-leading Fort Wayne Komets in the International Hockey League, has been suspended for the balance of the current season, the commissioner Andy Mulligan of Toledo announced Tuesday.

Bailey struck referee Frank Slota of Kitchener on the forehead with his stick following assessment of a minor and misconduct sentence in Sunday's game against Port Huron Bulldogs here. It took two stitches to close the laceration.

Leafs Tangle With Habs Tonight

Mr Clancy Lowers The 'If' Boom

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both sides have had their share of injuries lately, but no panic was apparent in either camp as Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs prepared for tonight's National Hockey League tilt at the Forum.

"We're not too alarmed about our chances of finishing first," Frank (King) Clancy, Leafs' assistant general manager, said Tuesday night.

"The potential is there, and if all the players start working a little harder the club will be right on top in a few games."

Toronto is in third place, five points behind Montreal and Chicago, but has one game in hand on the Canadiens and two on the Black Hawks.

ROUTINE SETBACKS

The Leafs have been in a bit of a slump lately with only one victory and one tie in their last seven starts. Clancy says that's just routine.

"The team usually goes off schedule in January but picks up later."

Leafs will be without winger Eddie Shack, who suffered a strained ligament in either knee Sunday, and defenceman Bobby Baun, expected to be out for three weeks with a fractured finger.

Billy Harris is to take Shack's spot on the line with Bob Pulford and Bob Nevin, while Larry Hillman fills in for Baun.

Montreal coach Toe Blake, who engineered a 2-2 tie at Chicago Sunday without the services of four regulars, welcomed two of them back to the lineup Tuesday.

Back in uniform are centre Jean Beliveau, who sprained his wrist at Toronto last Wednesday, and Bobby Rousseau, who suffered a hip injury after stiff bodychecks from the Bruins Saturday.

LAYOFF HELPED

"The wrist didn't seem to be bothering Beliveau in practice, so I guess the layoff did him a lot of good," Blake said. "Rousseau also appears to be all right."

Still missing are Claude Provost, suffering from sore ribs, and Bernie Geoffrion, whose throat injury 10 days ago has turned out to be more serious than first thought.

The Boomer is still in hospital under treatment for hemorrhaging and his return to action is indefinite.

Clancy had high praise for veteran goaltender Johnny Bower, who returned to the Leaf nets Saturday after missing six games with a hand injury.

He said Bower "played two fine games on the weekend and must have quite an impressive average for his last dozen games."

The records show Bower has allowed only 15 goals in 11 games since Canadiens riddled him 7-3 in the Forum last December.

Detroit visits Chicago in the only other NHL contest tonight. New York plays in Boston Thursday.

Esposito Still Tops In C.P.L.

DETROIT (CP) — Phil Esposito, St. Louis Braves centre, continues to lead the Central Professional Hockey League scoring derby, despite nearly two weeks with the parent Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Esposito's 26 goals and 34 assists in 42 games give him 80 points and a one-point edge on teammate Al Caron. Caron's 48 points are tops in the league in that department.

Braves snipers held a monopoly in the latest scoring statistics as Ray Cullen, who scored three goals during the weekend, brought his total in this department to 39 and his points to 77 for the season.

Marcel Pelletier, injured St. Paul Rangers netminder, continues to lead the league in shutouts with six.

Invaders Rack Up 15 Straight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Denver Invaders defeated Los Angeles Blades 4-3 Tuesday night for their 15th straight Western Hockey League victory to run their record at 35-8-2, largest ever to watch a hockey game in Denver, and so have 20 points to increase their league lead to 18 points.

At Vancouver before a crowd of 2,075, the last-place Canucks turned newly-acquired Bill McNeill loose for five points and defeated San Francisco Seals 7-5.

Bruce Draper paced Denver with two goals and an assist. Lou Jankowski took over the WHL lead in goals with his 30th and Ike Saunders' others came from Sandy Hucul, Milan Marcetta, Steve Witiuk, Larry Keenan and Ron Stackhouse.

McNeill, still playing in coach Max McNabb's skates pending location of his own, scored two goals and assisted on three others. It was his fourth game with Canucks since being traded from Detroit Red Wings.

Danny Belisle also scored twice, Phil Maloney, Ron Mathews and Bob Kabel once each. Len Haley , Charlie Burns, Ray Cyr, Wayne Connelly and Moe Mantha scored for San Francisco.

Spaghetti, Pancakes, Spuds

Starch Diet Stiffens Bruins

SUDBURY (CP)—An American doctor, eminent in the field of physical fitness research, is partial to a lot of starch into a last-place club in the National Hockey League.

Jerry Toppazzini, veteran winger with Boston Bruins, said in a telephone interview Tuesday with the Sudbury Star that Dr. William Guild had prescribed a diet featuring pancakes and mashed potatoes for the Bruins.

Toppazzini told sports editor Paul Patton the all - starch diet was suggested by Dr. Guild, who has been conducting tests on the Boston club.

Dr. Guild also tested Detroit Lions of the National Football League and worked with American astronauts before space flights.

"Dr. Guild has written a book on the theory," said Toppazzini, a native of Sudbury. "He told us to forget about eating steaks before games. He's got us eating a plateful of spaghetti and I've never felt better."

NO VALUE

The doctor informed the players that steak has no value unless eaten at least seven hours before a game. Most players eat steaks about 3 p.m. on the day of the game, Toppazzini said.

Dr. Guild opposes vitamin pills for players and scorns the theory that smoking is harmful to an athlete's wind.

"The players are convinced they'll make the playoffs," Toppazzini said and added: "We have to beat out New York and Detroit but we have it pretty well against themselves five against New York and six against Detroit."

The Bruins have been the hottest team in the NHL of late and Toppazzini has scored three goals in as many games to double his season's total.

Whip Rangers, Generals

Petes, Flyers Post Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top three squads in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series took a rest Tuesday night and watched while Peterborough Petes and Niagara Falls Flyers posted victories in the battle for fourth place.

Peterborough took advantage of the tail-end Kitchener Rangers to register a 7-6 decision on home ice. The win enabled the Petes to hang on to fourth spot with 61 points, one ahead of St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Niagara Falls Flyers remained one point below the Petes with a 6-3 triumph over the sixth-place Oshawa Generals.

Toronto Marlboros boast a comfortable lead with 83 points, Montreal Canadiens hold second with 54.

Goaltender Chuck Goddard was the star of the night in Peterborough, posting his fifth shutout of the season. Ron Naud and Jim Sorrell helped because with'a pair of goals each, while the others came from Mickey Redmond, Jim Paterson and George Godson.

Dave Armstrong and Brian Cornell paved the way for the Flyers with two goals apiece. Singles came from John Arbour and Brian Bradley.

Galt Sinks Sailors 8-5

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Galt Hornets moved into a second-place tie with Welland Buccaneers by defeating Port Colborne Sailors 8-5 in Ontario Hockey Association Senior action here Tuesday night.

Olympics Decision Hurt Canadians

But Penalties 'Can Be Evened'

Can't Fix Hockey, Says Rocket

Try Again For 1972

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Will the Canadian Olympic Association seek a new site to offer when it bids four years hence for the 1972 Winter Olympic Games staged in Canada?

The possibility has been raised here by Canadian officials in the wake of the International Olympic Committee's selection—by a vote of 27 to 24 for Grenoble, France, over Banff, Alta., as the site of the 1968 Winter Games.

The Canadian delegates here were bitterly disappointed with the committee decision, but they promised to be back to get the winter sports extravaganza for Canada in 1972.

At the same time, however, some raised the question of whether Banff, the Rocky Mountain resort 80 miles west of Calgary, should be proposed for a third time when the IOC considers the 1972 locale.

MADE ON MERITS

Jim Worrall of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Association which must endorse the site being proposed to the IOC by Canada, said Tuesday night:

"I think that any future application to the COA would have to be made on its merits before any site is endorsed by the COA. This, however, is a matter for the Olympic association as a body to decide. I am just expressing a personal opinion."

Sidney Dawes of Montreal, Canada's representative on the IOC, seemed more definite, stating:

"Each governing body in the sport—skiing, hockey, speed skating, figure skating, tobogganing—would have to be heard about Canada's site next time. It is not a good idea to make a bid for the same place. There's no use beating a tired horse."

Ed Davis, president of the Calgary Olympic Development Association which during the last eight years won the COA endorsement of Banff ahead of bids from five British Columbia localities and obtained support from civic, provincial and federal governments for the 1968 bid, acknowledged the possibility of a move to change the site offered by Canada.

MAY BE OTHERS

"There is a likelihood other sites in Canada will try to take over from Banff."

But he indicated the backers of Banff will not give in easily. The CODA was organized in 1953. In 1959 it made a token bid before the IOC to stage the 1964 Games at Banff, knowing it had no chance then but wanting to get a foot in the IOC door. In 1961, the COA endorsed Banff over Fernie, Rossland, Manning Park, Alta Lake in Garibaldi Park, and Revelstoke, all in B.C., and the Banff organizers went ahead full blast to prepare their bid for the 1968 Games.

On Tuesday, at the IOC met in closed session here to consider the bids from six countries for the 1968 Games, Canada was first to make its presentation.

BID SWEETENED

It sweetened its bid with offers of financial assistance to competitors from countries outside North America, saying it was prepared to pay $150 a person toward travelling costs to assist competing national teams. It also said it was in a position to offer board and lodging to competitors and officials at $2 a day each, compared with $8 a day each in Innsbruck, where the 1964 Games opened today.

It took three ballots to decide on Grenoble, a community of 250,000 in the Alps of eastern France. On the first, Grenoble got 15 votes, Banff 12, Lahti, Finland, 11, Sapporo, Japan, 6, Oslo, Norway, 4, and Lake Placid, N.Y., 3.

The IOC rules require the winner to get more votes than all others combined and since none got the necessary majority on the first ballot, the three with the lower totals were eliminated.

Banff topped the second vote with 19 votes, Grenoble got 18 and Lahti 17, but in the final vote between the French and Canadian communities the confident favored Grenoble 27 to 24.

Hans Maciej, vice-president of the CODA, said:

"You spend six years of your private life for nothing. Then you lose by three votes."

Would Back College Football

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Lions, the Western Football Conference champions of 1963, have offered to subsidize a football program at the University of Victoria.

Following a meeting with UV director Randy Smith, Lions' number football co - ordinator Denny Veitch said Tuesday Lions will make a minimum grant of $2,000 providing certain requirements are met.

The requirements are that UV agrees it wants first-class football and takes the attitude that it accept a coach of Lions choosing and provide a teaching position on the faculty.

Lions say they already have a man in mind as coach.

In addition to the grant and coach, Lions would also provide a portion of the coach's salary.

There would be no guaranteed players to Lions from such a venture, Veitch said. Football graduates from Victoria would go on the open draft and would be available to other pro teams in Canada.

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Hockey is a game that can't be fixed, Maurice (Rocket) Richard said Tuesday.

The former Montreal Canadiens right winger said in an interview that the game cannot be prematurely decided, but the number of penalties levied against a team "can be evened out."

The Rocket, on his way to Morell, P.E.I., where he is to be special guest at a sports men's dinner today, stopped over in Moncton when a TCA flight was delayed.

He said he did not know of any outright "underhanded tactics" in the league.

"Sure I have known of games where the referees be pressured but under pressure there are too many players involved," he said.

Questioned regarding the NHL's dealing session prompted by a CBC-TV program Sunday night, former referees Red Storey and Dalton McArthur criticized the league.

NF League Attendance Sets Record

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The National Football League, which shook up the sports world last week with a $28,200,000 television deal, announced Tuesday a record paid attendance of 4,163,643 for regular season games in 1963.

In this era of unprecedented prosperity it was not surprising that the league decided to stand pat on its present rule about the games.

An amendment to count the games as one-half game won and one-half game lost was considered after discussion. So the NFL will continue to ignore ties when figuring the league standings on a percentage basis strictly on games won and lost.

(In the Canadian League, tie games count one point.)

There had been considerable agitation for a change last December when Pittsburgh, with a 7-3-3 record, had a chance to win the eastern title by beating Cleveland, 10-3, in the last game. A Steeler victory would have won the championship .727 to .714. However, the Giants won the game.

Minor Hockey

Squirts, Midgets and Juveniles took part in Bellleville Minor Hockey Association games at Memorial Arena last night.

SQUIRT

Canadiens clipped the Bruins 6-2, sparked by D. Lapinette's four goals in a row. D. Payne fired Hab's first goal and James ended his club's scoring. D. Lang got one assist. M. Hayes potted both Bruin goals on solo efforts.

Rangers downed the Hawks 8-2 with R. Meagher firing three goals and C. Janisch a pair. B. Cossins got a goal and assist while M. Flynn and W. Andrews also scored. J. Mulvihill was the triggerman on both Hawk goals.

Maple Leafs blanked the Red Wings 2-0 in a close fixture. G. Duffy and J. Ralph were (the Leaf marksmen and P. Ackerman drew the only assist.

MIDGET

Canadiens and Leafs fought to a 6-6 deadlock. Rosebush starred for Canadiens, scoring their first three goals after assisting on an earlier one. Beecher had a goal and assist, Mike Fahey and Scott a goal apiece. Doran collected two goals and two assists for the Leafs. Smythe, Tomasi, Olson and Foy had the other goals. Durrell, Beeby, Nobile, Muir and Hannah got assists.

In the other Midget tilt, Hawks clipped the Red Wings 4-2. Hawk scorers were Parks, Cole, Harrington and Shartin. In that order, with assists going to Parks and Ford. Dickey and McFarlane scored for the Wings while White picked up one assist.

JUVENILE

In a game between the divisions' two All-Star squads, the Juveniles outscored the Midgets to the count of 9-4.

D. Rathwell paced the Juvenile attackers with three goals and a pair of assists. R. Denard got a goal and three helpers while the other goals were scored by R. Boyle, J. Means, R. Clapp and P. Fleming. B. Goodfellow drew two assists, R. Forte, Fleming, P. Soule, R. Bourdeau and Clapp one apiece. D. Emmerson was a two-goal man for the Midgets. S. White and D. Dickey also scored. D. Walls, Holmes, Fullerton and Lamore had assists.

Postpone Decision On Brundage

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—The International Olympic Committee, after a heated session behind closed doors, voted Tuesday to postpone until its meeting in Tokyo at the summer games any decision over continuing Avery Brundage as president. The committee first learned from an unimpeachable source.

Brundage's third four - year term expires at the Tokyo meeting, which will be in October.

Some national groups reported including the French and Austrians, would like to terminate the presidency of the controversial American.

Brundage, now in his 76s, has ruled International Olympic Affairs with an iron hand since his election at Helsinki in 1952.

Significantly, Brundage left the Olympic meeting shortly after 6 p.m., declining any comment as to the business at hand.

A few moments later the Marquess of Exeter left the room. The British nobleman, himself a gold medal winner in the 400-metre hurdles at the 1908 games, has been prominently mentioned as a possible successor.

Liston Jokes About Training

'All This For One Round'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Sonny Liston, surprisingly happy and good natured, entertained an audience of 200 with a public workout Tuesday and said "it's a shame to do all this training for just one round."

Later, the heavyweight champion met with newspaper men and was so jovial that he was asked the reason.

"I got Cassius Clay for a Christmas present," Liston replied. "That ought to make anybody happy."

The small community centre in Surfside, a community north of Miami Beach, was filled for Liston's workout for his Feb. 25 championship fight with Clay at Miami Beach.

He shadowboxed two rounds and sparred two more with light heavyweight Jesse Bowdry. Then after working on the heavy and light bags, he entertained with his rope-skipping.

Liston made these other observations:

"The only way Clay can hurt me is not show up for the fight."

In reply to Clay's prediction that he will win by a knockout in five rounds: "My victory party will be over before then."

"I get a big thrill of being the champion, especially when I'm around little kids. When I was a kid I looked up to Joe Louis the same way."

Clay sparred 10 rounds with two opponents. He pounded Rudy Clay, his younger brother, with his left for five rounds and then went the rest with Cody Jones of Detroit.

Quebec Bonspiel
Northern Rink Favored

By TED BLACKMAN

QUEBEC (CP) — Frank Butorac of Kirkland Lake claims he isn't a "pot-hunter," but his record says otherwise.

Despite pronouncements of "I'm only here for the fun," his accomplishments at the Quebec International Bonspiel during the last three years—a small trophy in 1962 and a grand slam sweep last year—tend to confirm the suspicions of his opponents.

Luck or not, the Northern Ontario skip has compiled a record of 23 straight wins in this bonspiel with eight in 1962, 11 last year and four wins this year. His latest show of strength has made him the favorite in this competition and the most likely to score two consecutive grand slams in the 51-year-old history of the bonspiel.

Butorac came from behind Tuesday to whip U. Bloc-Andersen of Toronto 10-6 and advance to the semi-finals of the Francois Jobin Trophy. Bloc-Andersen stunned Butorac's highly-rated rink in the third end by taking four to build a 5-2 lead but the Kirkland Lake foursome came on strong, going three-up on the last end, to qualify for Thursday's semi-final.

MEETS OAKVILLE RINK

He will meet Bill Finlay of Oakville who eliminated Toronto's Neil Spiecher 10-8. The other match pits Robert Labaie of Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Que., against G. C. Snowcroft of Summerside, P.E.I.

Snowcroft pulled the first major upset of the bonspiel with an 8-6 victory over 1962 champion Carl Bartedo of Burlington, Ont. Bastedo had built up ends of three, four and five rocks but Snowcroft threw perfect draws to take one point each time.

The other major competition, the Chateau Frontenac Trophy, saw two rinks from the host city of Quebec advance to the semis with crews from Kirkland Lake and Shawinigan Falls.

Quebec's Ted Duchene defeated John Kilburn of Fredericton, N.B. 8-3 and will play on Thursday against Orval Archer of Kirkland Lake, who downed Quebec's Guy Germain 7-5. The other match has Quebec's A. C. Emond, who downed Robert Monast of Quebec 11-5, against Leo Belisle of Shawinigan, who eliminated Montreal's Don Schaeffer 9-6.

Every rink that reaches the quarter-finals of the Chateau, Jean, Jobin and Dow competitions qualifies for the Lieutenant-Governor's event, most prestigious of the 14 trophies. To score a grand slam, a rink must win the Jobin or the Chateau, the Lieutenant-Governor and the Grand Aggregate.

There will be no night draws tonight. All 128 rinks are given the evening off to attend the Grand Curlers' Banquet, at which Quebec Premier Jean Lesage will be guest speaker.

PATTERSON MAY FIGHT

NEW YORK (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and contender Doug Jones of New York may meet in an outdoor fight in Stockholm in May or June, Jones' manager said Tuesday. The manager, Alex Koskowitz of New York, said he received a cable Tuesday from Swedish promoter Edwin Ahlquist asking him if he was interested in the fight.

Y Basketball

Quinte Teachers taught Holloway a basketball lesson in Y Men's League play last night by scoring a 47-33 victory in the second game of a scheduled twin bill.

The first game of the evening was not played, however, when the C.N.E. team was unable to secure enough players for a lineup. Pollock's Shoe Store won the game by default.

Teachers leaped into a 21-14 lead at the half-way mark and increased their margin in the second half, led by high-scoring Gord Mutter.

Mutter hooped 18 points to spark his club's victory. Murray Brydson was also a double-point man with ten points, followed by Paul Breen with nine. Wally Uhrynuk and Jack Sisson had four points apiece while Dave Bell got the other two.

Barry Gerow topped the Holloway scorers with ten points. Terry Parker collected seven, Gary Williams and Don Wilson six apiece, Rich Clarke four and Lynn Reynolds none.

Hicks Tops American

CLEVELAND (AP) — Quebec Aces, who have the two leading scorers in the American Hockey League, have taken over as the AHL's top offensive club.

Aces, who lead the eastern division, have tallied 179 goals, high for the league. This plus their 294 assists gives them 473 points, also a league high.

Quebec's Wayne Hicks leads the league in total points with 55, based on 27 goals and 28 assists, and teammate Cleland Mortson is second with 54 points, 21 goals and 33 assists.

Picton Ints. Wallop Cobourg

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — For the second time in as many nights the Picton Intermediates rode rough shod over the hapless Cobourg Intermediates, scoring 26 goals in the two game home and home series. Cobourg fired a total of 11 goals in the two games. Last night's score was 11-3.

Last night's game at the arena here was a "nothing" game for both teams. The results could not make any difference to the final standings. It marked the last time Cobourg will visit Picton this season.

Cobourg only dressed eight players incinding the net minder, and although they gave it a real try, they were outclassed from the start.

Carl Stacey led the Picton attack with five goals and one assist. Larry Fero fired a pair and assisted on another pair. Keith McDonald, Ron Weese, Shaker Baker and Neil Denard added singles.

For the losers, Gary Sharpe fired a pair, with Al Macklin adding the single point.

It was a clean game with only four minor penalties being called.

Picton led 3-0 at the end of the first period, they each scored a pair in the middle frame, but Picton was all over them like the proverbial tent in the final 20 minutes as they fired six goals to win in a walk.

The Picton club have only two more games to wind up the regular season, home and home with Napanee next week, and now head into the finals with at the present time, an impressive 21 wins against one loss and no ties for the current season.

Biggest Flag Was The Wrong One

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) The mayor of Innsbruck, Dr. Alois Lugger, appealed to all citizens of the alpine city to hang flags from windows as a colorful welcome to Olympic Games visitors.

One woman housekeeper, according to police, told her elderly housekeeper to bring out the biggest flag she could find.

The housekeeper found a really big flag in the attic, shook off the dust and hung it out the window.

But it wasn't the red-and-white Austrian flag.

It brought a policeman to the door.

"What is that Nazi flag hanging from your window?" he asked. "You know that is forbidden."

A formal investigation followed. But police said no charges were pressed because the housekeeper, whom they did not identify, had only done what she was told — picked the biggest flag, even if it was the wrong one.

Aces Chalk Five In Row

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Aces, Eastern Division leaders in the American Hockey League, are in a rut—but it's a pleasant one.

Tuesday night the Aces reeled off their fifth triumph in a row and 11th in 12 starts as they turned back Pittsburgh Hornets 7-3.

The win enabled Quebec to open up a five-point lead over the idle Hershey Bears.

The third - place Baltimore Clippers downed the lowly Buffalo Bisons 4-2 on home ice.

The Aces broke their game apart with four goals in the third period. Pittsburgh took a temporary lead in the opening period on a goal by player-coach Vic Stasiuk.

Clipper marksmen were Ken Schinkel, Harry Pidhirny, Ed Ehrensverth and Aldo Guidolin. Michael Melnyk and Ed Kachur tallied for the Bisons.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—NBC has vision — on Wednesday nights. One new 90-minute series, 90 Bristol Court will consist of three related stories. It will be followed by a two-hour movie.

Among other new shows are an adventure series called The Rogues, co-starring David Niven, Charles Boyer and Gig Young; Solo, an action adventure series created by Ian Fleming, and The 13th Gate, a science fiction effort.

At CBS, the big excitement is that Ed Sullivan will expand his Sunday night hour show to 90 minutes starting April 5. The fate of East Side, West Side, also has been decided. It had been hanging by a thread and CBS cut it, even before the audience had a chance to sample an 11th-hour change in format.

Recommended tonight:

The Danny Thomas Show, CBS, 10-11 EST.

Pretty Car-Selling Soprano Finally Made It to the Net

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mary Costa made it to the Met this month.

You remember Mary. She is the beautiful soprano who joined with movie actor Bill Lundigan to sell cars on the Climax television show for three years. She started studying serious singing eight years ago, and her friends thought it was nice that Mary had a hobby. Only she and a few others realized it was more than that.

"I knew I had a natural voice," she said, "but I also knew it would take a great deal of training."

Despite such matters, Mary won enormous acclaim. She'll return to the Met in La Traviata again this season, but this week she was back at her home base to appear on ABC's Hollywood Palace television show Saturday night.

One thing marred Mary's triumph. Shortly after she returned from the Met, she announced the parting from her husband, film director Frank Tashlin, who helped and encouraged her in the years of training. Her frequent absences and the divergence of their careers was given as the reason. No divorce plans have been made.

"Perhaps I had more pressure on," she said. "When the baritone came onstage, I thought, 'my, he looks different in a beard'. When I got closer, I saw he wasn't the man in rehearsals at all. The original man had gone on."

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 30

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Conditions "steady." You can see direction of path you are traveling. Organize your affairs. Think through a definite program. Applies to personal as well as professional affairs.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Have fun, but remember responsibilities. Day when common sense must be given full rein. Tendency is to go to extremes. Overcome it. Be wise; practice self-discipline.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Associate who promised much . . . may have to confess he did not have all facts. Be gracious. But don't take on extra burdens. Refuse where lending money is concerned.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Financial pressure due to illness. You are better able to make decisions. Chance for greater independence indicated. Spotlight flair for original approach concerning home projects.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) Self doubts may exist. But they are temporary, unfounded. Make basic decisions' - - stick to them. Money question needs attention - - but not as critical as you might believe.

Virgo (August 22 to Sept. 22) You can now obtain answers. Cycle high. Your influence spreads. You can gain more with a smile than with a club. Applies especially in connection with work, fellow employees.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Added responsibilities are good . . . up to a point! Then you must put your foot down, insist on a fair share. Find out whether you are obtaining what's rightfully your own.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Surprise due. Involves friends, member of opposite sex. Outcome is pleasant. Know this - - act accordingly. Be ready for changing plans. Agree to program which requires creative effort.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Slow down so you can "catch up." Advice may appear contradictory. Think it over - - you may have been skipping over essential details. Stress systematic approach.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) Broaden horizons. Don't be bogged down with routine. Try new methods. Be willing to admit past mistakes. Don't permit false pride to cost you hard-earned money.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you weigh yourself down with emotional problems . . . you could have difficulty making loved ones happy. Don't defeat your own, basic purposes. Be a little selfish today.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Finish projects. Don't be in too much of a hurry where new plans are concerned. Think over goals, aspirations. Obtain hint from Gemini message. Be receptive.

If today is your birthday your sense of humor is tremendous asset. But you must learn to finish what you start.

GENERAL TENDENCIES— Major "force" backs down. Relief is key word.

"Frankly, we can't hope to make much progress until you can learn to face life without that 'worry bird'."

Sport Snapsnots

By GERARD McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—The International Peewee Hockey Tournament now backs in more fans than any Canadian series except the National Hockey League playoffs.

The fifth annual tournament, starting Feb. 3 and ending Feb. 8, will have a record 66 entries and is expected to attract attendance up to 120,000. Quebecers just can't resist the peewees.

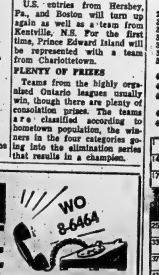
Play begins at 10 a.m. and ends about 11 p.m. each day and during that time, up to 20,000 fans may visit the 10,000-seat coliseum to see the nine-to-12-year-olds compete.

The coliseum, with its big sheet of American Hockey League ice, can and does pack in 17,000 fans for the peewee playoffs.

There are 43 Quebec entries this year and 19 from other areas, including the Sault Ste. Marie squad that won the championship last year.

U.S. entries from Hershey, Pa., and Boston will turn up again as well as a team from Kentville, N.S. For the first time, Prince Edward Island will be represented with a team from Charlottetown.

PLENTY OF PRIZES



Teams from the highly organized Ontario leagues usually win, though there are plenty of consolation prizes. The teams are classified according to hometown population, the winners in the four categories going into the elimination series that results in a champion.

Foe Of Reds Is New Viet Nam Ruler

At Once Breaks Tie With France Over Neutralism

Three Generals Accused Of Plot With de Gaulle

SAIGON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, a 37-year-old army corps commander, became virtual dictator of South Viet Nam today in a swift, bloodless coup. He pledged to smash the Communists and the traitors who advocate neutralism."

A new council of generals took shape to help him in running the country and the U.S.-backed war against Communist guerrillas.

Reuters news agency reported from Bangkok, Thailand, a Saigon radio announcement that the Vietnamese government had broken relations with France.

(The radio said the action was taken by South Vietnamese Council of Notables. However, the announcement came several hours after the coup, and it was presumed the break had been decided by Khanh's new ruling group.)

Khanh dismissed the old government and clapped four key generals of that regime in jail. Three of them were charged with plotting with France to neutralize South Viet Nam. French President de Gaulle has advocated neutralization of both North and South Viet Nam.

MIND NOT HEAD

The fate of Maj-Gen. Duong Van Minh, chairman of the junta that had ruled Viet Nam since the destruction of French President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime last Nov. 1, was uncertain. Minh was not arrested with the other generals and there was a possibility he would be kept on as technical chief of state.

The premier of the provisional civilian government, Nguyen Ngoc Tho, was ousted but was not picked for the Supreme Council.

The top three generals under Minh were held. They are Maj. Gen. Tran Van Don, defence minister; Don's brother-in-law, Maj-Gen. Le Van Kim, armed forces chief of staff; and Maj-Gen. Ton That Dinh, interior minister.

In a radio statement to the Vietnamese people, Khanh said members of the old council had

RUNNING THE GAUNTLET — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton walked hand-in-hand through the lobby of their Toronto hotel yesterday after coming out of seclusion long enough to lunch. Doctors, Insurers Air Views

TORONTO (CP) — The doctors and the insurance companies, who advised the Ontario government on medical insurance legislation at private meetings a year ago, took a public look at the resulting draft act Wednesday and proposed some major amendments.

The Ontario Medical Association and the Canadian Health Insurance Association, representing enterprises consulted by Health Minister Matthew Dymond in drafting Bill 163, both praised the government's decision to provide for medical insurance on a voluntary basis through private insurers. Needy persons would receive government help in buying insurance.

But both recorded reservations and proposed changes to government - appointed inquiry in its longest sitting since it opened hearings on bill 163 last month. The hearing lasted 7½ hours.

The OMA said persons receiving government subsidies under the bill should be identified as such to the doctors treating them. It suggested the OMA should administer the plan for those receiving full subsidy of medical insurance. Its own schedule of fees should not be considered in all cases as full payment for services provided under standard medical plans under the act.

SUGGEST POOLS

The commercial health insurance companies said the aged and unhealthy should be grouped in separate pools for risk-sharing purposes under the act. The insurers would be required to pay maximum premiums into these pools for persons designated as "high risks" over 65 and younger persons judged to be high-cost risks.

The health association said its members would be unable to participate in providing the government's standard medical plan if such pooling were not arranged. In that case, Bill 163 says, they would be required to drop all forms of health insurance.

It proposed maximum premiums should be $182 a year for a family, $150 for a married couple and $91 for an individual. The draft act sets the maximum - premium clause blank.

A CHIA spokesman said the pooling proposal would not

Political Moratorium Suggested

TORONTO (CP) — A "political moratorium" was suggested in the Ontario legislature Wednesday to make the province more financially sound.

Ross Whicher, the Liberal opposition's financial critic, made the suggestion as a solution to rising taxes. Parties should work together on a friendly basis.

The government could not continue to increase taxes, he said during the throne speech debate. Business procedures will have to be brought into government.

Mr. Whicher, member for Bruce, said Ontario firms have to compete with United States firms who will benefit from a planned 10 per cent income tax reduction in the U.S.

He said the government fooled the people by increasing some taxes after implying during the provincial election campaign there would be no changes.

He said the forthcoming provincial budget paper will announce new taxes and even these will not be enough to meet revenue needs.

MENTIONS HIGHER TAXES

He mentioned a liquor tax increase and an increase in the price of drivers licence fees and rumors of increases in the gasoline tax abd the cost of hospital insurance premiums.

The sales tax might go up despite a statement two years ago by Provincial Treasurer Allan that it was a tax to end all taxes, Mr. Whicher said.

In other legislature business, former Toronto Maple Leaf hockey player Syl Apps said athletes should present a good example to youngsters who try to copy their actions.

Turning to his home riding of Kingston, the Progressive Conservative member asked the government to build a bridge across the St. Lawrence River between Kingston and Wolfe Island as a provincial project. It could be called the Sir John A. Macdonald Bridge after Canada's first prime minister.

Leo Troy (L — Nipissing) pointed to the availability of pornographic literature and the subject matter of television plays as a cause of the deterioration of family life.

"We point with pride to our burgeoning economy, the increase of our gross national product, but all the while a cancerous growth is spreading which augurs ill for our society."

FIRE MINUTEMAN

LOS ANGELES (AP) —The U.S. Air Force fired its 29th Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile from Vandenberg Air Force Base Wednesday. It said the firing was a routine training operation.

Synopsis: A disturbance moving out of the Canadian west will bring some snow to Northern Ontario late tonight and Thursday.

Gordon Urges Ottawa and Provinces Share Load, Not Shift Responsibilities

WINNIPEG (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon suggested Wednesday that the emphasis in federal - provincial relations should be on co-operation rather than on shifting responsibilities from one government to another.

"There may be some existing federal tasks which can be transferred to the provinces," he told the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce.

"But I believe that both levels of government can make their existing responsibilities work better by experimenting with new techniques of co-operation and consultation between the federal government and the provinces."

Mr. Gordon said this was one of the conclusions of last year's two federal - provincial conferences.

His statements here indicated the general line the federal government will take at the next such conference, due to open at the end of March in Quebec City, where a main topic will be provincial assumption of some of joint programs now partly financed by Ottawa.

He said the federal government has taken on many responsibilities "that every one of us must hope and expect it will continue to shoulder." These included aid to slow-growth areas and assistance in providing adequate welfare standards.

Mr. Gordon also said that the growth of provincial programs of economic promotion, while welcome, "is not without its dangers to other provinces and to national unity and strength." "It is to be hoped that the provinces will avoid taking measures which can only assist themselves at the expense of the industry of other provinces."

Good Training, But, Hoot Man Its Nae Place for Kilts

FORT CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — Pte. Archie Hannah stepped out of his snowhoes, squatted in the lee of a big snowdrift and grinned behind the bearded frost of his parka hood.

"If I pull through this I'll pull through anything," the army gives me," he said.

The blond, blue-eyed son of a Scottish coal miner is one of 142 members of the Royal Scots Regiment undergoing a month of training at this post where he can kill if a man doesn't know how to duck after himself.

C Company, 1st Battalion, is learning the ways of the north from the Canadian soldiers under British and Canadian supervision at this notoriously cold camp on the west shore of Hudson Bay, 810 miles north of Winnipeg.

Since the Scots arrived early this month they have felt the temperature as low as 38 below and the wind as high as 50 miles an hour.

With the group split into supposedly friendly and unfriendly forces, much of the work day is taken up with digging trenches in the snow connecting the igloo men's quarters and command quarters in a snow vehicle concealed behind a snowbank and a clump of spruce.

Weather danger may be closer and more threatening in the north than a human foe. A sudden strong wind can cut visibility to almost nothing and cause a man to become lost and possibly perish a few yards from camp or companions.

Survival knowledge as well as clothing and equipment is necessary.

The men are taught such things as to wear boots that are plenty big and clean socks with no holes. Rifles must be dry-cleaned. If oil is used they can freeze up. To sweat means to be cold later. To grip cold metal with a warm, moist hand may mean losing a strip of flesh.

U.S., Panama Deadlocked, Seek Emergency OAS Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations aimed at a peaceful solution of the U.S.-Panama dispute have collapsed and Panama, charging aggression, has called for an emergency meeting of hemisphere foreign ministers.

Miguel Moreno, Panama's ambassador to the Organization of American States, delivered a note from his government which included the conference request and the renewed charge of aggression to OAS Secretary General Jose A. Mora.

Said Moreno: "We have searched for a dignified solution to the controversy but unfortunately and in spite of the good offices of the Inter-American Peace Committee and our willingness we have achieved no success."

The note included one of Jan. 9 by Panama Foreign Minister Galileo Solis in which he said: "The Republic of Panama has been the victim of an unprovoked armed attack against its

Rocket Off to Take 3,000 Shots of Moon

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The camera-laden Ranger VI spacecraft was rocketed toward the moon today on a mission to snap and relay to earth more than 3,000 pictures of the lunar surface.

An Atlas-Agena rocket, 102 feet tall and weighing 150 tons, blazed away from Cape Kennedy at 10:49 a.m. EST to start the 804-pound gold-and-silver-plated craft on its lunar journey.

If all goes well, Ranger VI will cover 220,187 miles in 66 hours and crash - land on the moon Sunday.

The early portion of flight appeared normal as the rocket rose smoothly from its launching pad and pitched over on a southeast setting. It was swallowed in a cloud bank about 140 seconds after liftoff.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced 10 minutes after launching that the Atlas booster had performed as planned, and the Agena second stage had ignited and injected itself into a so-called parking orbit 115 miles above the earth.

Securities Taken Here Found In Montreal Bank

First Break-Through In $80,000 Mystery

Police today confirmed a break-through in the search for $85,000 in stocks and bonds missing from a Belleville lawyer's office.

Some $30,000 worth of securities from the offices of lawyer Ronald Cass have come to light in a Montreal bank.

The discovery was the first success scored in a six-week investigation across Ontario and Quebec.

First hint of the development came last night when Belleville Chief Constable J B. McLauchlan hurried to Montreal with Inspector H. M. Sayeu of the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch.

The chief confirmed there had been a breakthrough in the probe which has been pressed by city and provincial police since December 16, when the securities were first discovered missing.

They had been last seen only four days previous.

Full details on the discovery were not immediately available this morning. Montreal detectives told the Ontario intelligencer they preferred any statements on the case be made by Chief McLauchlan. The chief could not be immediately contacted.

However, one report says the securities were deposited with a branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale.

The value of the stocks recovered was first revealed by OPP Assistant Commissioner Harold Graham.

However, it was not specifically known just what stocks or bonds composed the discovered deposit.

At the time of the robbery the greater portion of the securities reported missing made up of government bonds.

Their disappearance presented police with a mystery they earlier confessed had them baffled at first.

There were no signs of forced entry, either of the safe or Mr. Cass's office.

They were last seen in the safe December 10th. Four days later, Mr. Cass, a brother of Attorney-General Fred Cass, discovered the robbery and called in police.

The investigation was kept under wraps for nearly a month while police alerted financial institutions in both provinces. January 17 after five weeks had

Can Fill House in 3 Minutes With New Fire-Quenching Foam

SARNIA (CP) — Polymer Corporation's fire department here has a new piece of apparatus that will fill your house with fire-quenching foam and have it pouring out the chimney while you're still looking for a mop and pail.

And when you open the doors to get rid of the stuff it can fill your yard hip-deep, swamp your car and spill into the road in a foamy tide.

So who needs it?

Firemen do, claiming it can smother almost any type of fire within minutes.

Firefighters from Polymer, a synthetic rubber-producing Crown corporation, Wednesday demonstrated their new unit on a house, 30 feet square and 20 feet high. In just three minutes it had pumped some 90,000 cubic feet of detergent foam into the building and globs of the stuff were whipping out of the chimney in the wind.

Liquid detergent and water are mixed under pressure and blown through a sleeve, attached to a door or window, into the building. The foam penetrates every nook and cranny, the demonstrators claim, and puts out fires.

They say the bubbles dissipate within a few hours and leave just a little water.

In Wednesday's demonstration here firemen opened the doors of the house and let the foam run out—and run out it did. It filled a vacant lot next door, spilled across the road, blanketed several cars and parked cars and it began to look as if it planned to take over the city.

It finally stopped but not before one car owner had tried and failed to make his getaway. As he tried to drive away, the froth surged up over the hood of the car, piled up against the windshield and blinded him.

US Troops Will Go To Cyprus

LONDON (AP) — President Johnson informed the British government today that U.S. troops will take part in an international peace-keeping force for Cyprus, subject to satisfactory arrangements on details.

Informed sources said the president's decision was conveyed by U.S. Ambassador David Bruce to Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys this morning.

It came as the Soviet Union stepped up its denunciation of plans to move soldiers from the United States and some other NATO countries to Cyprus to aid the British in preserving the truce there.

Both London and Washington face the task of persuading Archbishop Makarios, the bearded Cypriot president, to accept the international contingent.

So far Makarios has shown no sign that he would. He received open backing from Moscow for his stand.

A formal statement issued by the official Tass news agency today said the government of Premier Khrushchev warned "that there is now a serious danger of aggression against Cyprus."

The Soviet statement said the London conference on the bitter Greek and Turkish-Cypriot conflict on the Mediterranean island is aimed "at an encroachment on the freedom and independence of Cyprus."

The statement called on the United Nations Security Council to take up the Cypriot question.

Canada Recognizes Mongolia

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has decided to give diplomatic recognition to Mongolia, the largest state of 3,000,000 persons between Russia and Communist China, it was learned today.

It is understood that recognition is being given because Mongolia is a member of the United Nations.

Informants said the move likely will be interpreted as a prelude to Canadian recognition of Red China.

However, they said, Mongolia is regarded as being in the Russian rather than the Chinese sphere of influence.

They added that Canadian recognition of Albania, an ideological partner of Red China in the Sino-Soviet rift, was not interpreted as a forerunner of recognition of China. Canada recognized Albania about two years ago.

Alderman George Wishart Re-named Authority Head

Belleville Alderman, George Wishart was re-named chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority at the inaugural meeting held Wednesday afternoon at Tweddletown.

The meeting saw reports from last year's advisory board chairman, approval of the 1964 local levy, and discussion on projects planned for the current year. In the absence of Chairman Wishart and vice chairman James Sprachett, Bruce Smith of Belleville chaired the meeting.

Total authority budget for this year has been set at $43,125 with grants of $24,400 expected leaving $17,725 to be raised by local levy.

Of this amount the city of Belleville will pay $10,395 or approximately 60 per cent of the total levy for the Authority.

Normally the local levy for Conservation authorities is on a straight assessment basis, but last year Belleville adopted new assessment figures raising its assessment by about three times. Many Authority members felt that if the former levy basis was followed, Belleville's share this year would be all out of proportion.

So a compromise was suggested with five different plans being submitted for approval. Two of these were discussed yesterday, one setting Belleville's share at 60 per cent and the other based on 50 per cent assessment and 50 per cent population which would have raised Belleville's contribution to $11,600.

Sidney Reeve Gerald Irvine spoke strongly in favor of the latter scheme which he said he did not feel was out of order. His motion was seconded by Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow township, who said the 50-50 system was one which could be followed for years.

Earl Sager of Madoc pointed out, however, that Belleville had been carrying the 60 per cent levy responsibility for years and that it would be unfair to increase this ratio.

Bruce Smith of Belleville said setting of the local levy had been a contentious matter with the Authority for years with Belleville always paying the lion's share.

"But the new reassessment figures would put Belleville away up and if we go back with a large increase there will be more questions asked," he said.

In the end the 60-40 levy split was approved but not before a tie vote was broken by acting chairman Smith when Quinte Authority rules had a second vote.

There are 17 member municipalities in the Moira Authority with four of the municipalities, Deloro, Richmond, Madoc and Lake, and Tudor and Cashel paying a minimum levy of $100 to the Authority.

Other member municipalities are Belleville, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, Hungerford, Huntingdon, Kaladar, Madoc township, Madoc village, Rawdon, Sheffield, Shannonville, Thurlow, Tweed and Tyendinaga.

Local levies are based on the assessment of the portion of the municipality within the watershed with a minimum levy of $100 being assessed against four of the municipalities.

One of the future projects planned by the Authority is construction of a control dam at Downey's Rapids near the foot of Moira Lake.

This would serve to maintain the summer level on Moira Lake at a pre-determined level.

The Moira Authority has over 12,000 acres of reforestation land—the largest acreage of any Authority in Ontario—and also operates three conservation areas, the Col. Vandervoort property at Thomasburg, O'Hara Mill, north of Madoc, and the Price Conservation Area at Actinolite.

Chairman and vice-chairmen of the several Authority advisory boards named yesterday, were as follows: Forestry, J. Ian Graham and James Spry; water control, Graham Bell and Goldie McInroy; conservation areas, Bruce Smith and Lloyd Price; and education extension, Gerald O'Irvine and Leslie McLaren.

Conditions Said Excellent For Hospital Construction

The Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors will be on solid ground before construction of the planned new $7,000,000 hospital extension is started sometime next year.

At yesterday's 1964 inaugural session of the board, a report from William Carter and Associates, who have completed their soil survey on the hospital site, said conditions were excellent for construction of the planned multi - story hospital building.

Tests showed that there will be solid rock for the foundation footings, the report indicated.

Plans for the new hospital structure are still under active consideration by the various hospital departments and department heads and medical staff members are reviewing drawings.

Preliminary drawings on a scale one eighth inch to the foot have been completed and larger drawings one quarter inch to the foot are now being prepared by architects.

It is not expected that the hospital board will be in a position to call tenders for the new hospital extension until near the end of this year.

Holds Perfect Cribbage Hand

Mrs. Aileen Burns, a "Lunch Lady" employed at Trenton Ordnance and Grey Trust Company, came up with that once-in-a-lifetime thrill during a friendly game yesterday.

Mrs. Burns, from Trenton, held the jack of spades and the fives of diamonds, hearts and clubs when she got the perfect "29" card with the five of spades.

Mrs. Burns was playing with Mary Pope at the time.

WILL MAKE STAND

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto civic officials will make a last-ditch stand in Ottawa Feb. 10 to keep the CBC from moving its studios from the city's downtown district to suburban Don Mills, Mayor Phillip Givens announced Wednesday.

C of C Head Calls Tourism Horrible Word

Ben Corke, outgoing president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce unwittingly knocked Trade Minister Sharp last night.

During a summation of the year's activities under his presidency Mr. Corke lightly referred to tourism as a "horrible word" and said he hoped Canada never appointed a Minister of Tourism.

Mr. Sharp later noted Mr. Corke's remarks as he began his address to the meeting.

"I don't know whether he knows -- but I'm the Minister of Industry, Trade and Travel Bureau," the Chamber's guest confided amid laughter.

In his report, Mr. Corke also noted proposed changes in the co-operative setup whereby the Chamber and the city's industrial commission share the same secretary - manager. Current plans call for the retirement and appointment of a full-time industrial commissioner.

Mr. Corke noted, however, was of prime importance, he said.

"I regret this has happened but I do know that this has to be changed and that more is going to be asked of members of the Chamber both in time and money if this thing is to be able to breathe again."

Incoming president J. C. Houston dipped into ultra-modern vernacular to describe his attitude to the coming year.

"As our sons and daughters might say: 'Let's get hep daddio,'" he told the members.

"We need your support and support through separation from the commission.

"Nevertheless we as a Chamber are very ready to accept that challenge."

"There is no room for 'no' here any note of pessimism. But let us start the new year with a very definite spirit of optimism."

Chamber support of the commission was "absolutely necessary."

Priests Scarce, May Use Women And Laymen

A shortage of priests may force the Anglican church to press women and other lay workers into service, the Diocesan Anglican Congress was told yesterday. Presenting the report of the committee on recruitment, vocations, theological training, exchange of manpower, and ecumenicity, Rev. Douglas Burns of Bath recommended the Church study the need for more formal involvement of the laity in the worship and pastoral work of the church. He stressed also the need for more active involvement of the clergy in seeking out young people pointing the way of God's call to them.

Rev. Floyd Green of Newburgh criticized the relationship of the theological student to the Diocese, describing him as neither lay-man nor clergy. His needs in college should be more adequately met, Mr. Green said, and his summer training program should be better supervised.

CENSORSHIP CUT

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Prime Minister Apollo Obote Wednesday ended press censorship of outgoing news imposed during the recent army mutiny. Censorship of local news is retained.

New Committee Will Study Parks, Recreation Needs

A close look into the future parks and recreational requirements for the city is to be taken this year by members of the new council appointed Parks and Recreation committee.

Three former separate committees — Parks, Recreation and Arena — are now combined into one committee under the chairmanship of Alderman Donald Joss.

Planned for this year is a stock-taking of present parks and recreation facilities as the preliminary step toward an overall plan to provide adequate park facilities for the future.

To assist in getting a clearer picture of future requirements written briefs will be invited from interested organizations such as the YMCA, school board, service clubs, horticultural society, historical society, Junior Chamber of Commerce and others.

Recommended standard for city parks system is one acre to two and a half acres per thousand population which for a city of 30,000 people Belleville would amount to 75 acres.

Present park area in the city is 30 acres which means the city has a park deficiency of 45 acres.

Amalgamation of the three related committees makes the new Parks and Recreation Committee the second largest department in the city, while parks board employees have been brought up to the public works department's pay standard with equal hospitalization and other fringe benefits.

ALD. JOSS CHAIRMAN

Membership on the new committee is Alderman Joss as chairman with Ald. Don Williams as vice-chairman, and former parks board chairman William Ellis as representative of the special Zwick's Island development committee.

Other members are Alderman Frank Murray and Don Whalen with Don Templeman and Walter T. Elliott.

Lloyd "Red" Doran is the Parks and Recreation committee director.

The committee will work with the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board with the Zwick's Island project as the location for future parks and on zoning and other regulations.

Committee Chairman Joss termed amalgamation of the three related city committees and boards a "good thing", while Recreation Director Lloyd Doran said it will be more workable for much better recreational planning.

Development of Zwick's Island of course is a big item on the committee's future plans.

Initial steps toward this end have already been taken with the provision of a bathing beach, new roadways and landscaping done last year.

Last fall a canteen and bathhouse, complete with running water was constructed and is expected to be ready for the skating season by about mid-January next May.

City water will be piped from the filtration plant, while a septic tank will be constructed in the spring.

Plans are to develop the Island as a Centennial project with ultimate provision of a wading pool and a swimming pool. A life guard will be secured for the 1964 season.

A Centennial grant from the Federal Government of $65,000 based on population has been assured the city, according to Mr. Hurst.

Further development of the Island remains up to the committee and the availability of Centennial grants, Mr. Hurst said. He expected the $65,000 Federal Centennial grant would be available any time.

May Ask Anglicans to Tithe Not Tip God Like Bellhop

Anglicans may be asked to devote a Biblical tithe — ten per cent of their total income — to church work, the Diocesan Congress of the church in Kingston, Some people, said Canon Cecil Bloid Wright of Picton "give as if we are tipping God as the Divine Bellhop for carrying our burden upstairs."

Rev. Morris Souter of Desoronto expressed regret that the question of tithing was not considered at the same time as the other reports.

Communication between clergy and laity was also criticized yesterday. "Communication is a two way street," said the report of Rev. G. Findlater of Adolphustown," and in the Diocese of Ontario we have little or no traffic in either direction."

The report and its question,

Jack N. Yanover Re-elected Chairman Hospital Board

Mr. Jack N. Yanover, proprietor of Belleville's downtown Queen's Hotel and prominent city businessman, was re-elected as chairman of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors at their election of officers yesterday.

Frank Domenico was re-elected vice-chairman, while Past Mayor A. M. Haig was named hospital board treasurer, succeeding F. J. Duke who had filled the position last year.

Mr. Yanover also heads the board executive committee while Mr. Haig as board treasurer is finance committee chairman. Mr. J. Sinclair heads the planning and property committee, Mr. Domenico is in charge of building operations, while Mr. Yanover heads the boards joint conference committee.

Special committees consist of Personnel with Harleigh Hamilton as chairman; Nursing Advisory, headed by Mrs. J. E. Marsh, and Building Committee with Mr. Yanover as head.

Mr. Yanover as board chairman welcomed new members to the board, Mr. R. Legate and county warden Thomas Burnside. Mayor Jack Ellis is also a board member on the board but is holidaying in the south and was not present for the inaugural meeting.

New members of the Hospital Medical Staff Association are Dr. D. C. Hamilton, president, and Dr. J. R. Birchard, vice-president.

The board at its first meeting of the year voted a grant of $500 to the Belleville Community Nursing Registry.

"Anything worth doing is worth doing well," the newspaper said.

Widow, Children Given Award Of $924,396

NEW YORK (AP) — The widow and two children of concert pianist William Kapell, killed in a plane crash more than 10 years ago, were awarded $924,396 Wednesday by a U.S. district court.

Kapell, then 31, was killed Oct. 29, 1953, when Honolulu-bound Pan American Airways crashed in California. The operator of the four-engine plane, and its defendant, was British Commonwealth Pacific Airlines, Ltd., whose assets have been taken over by QANTAS Empire Aviation, Ltd., of Australia.

Dead Boys Poured Gasoline On Family Stove

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — A coroner's jury was told Wednesday night a fire in which five children died in the family home killed started when two boys poured gasoline on a stove.

Testimony was heard in the deaths of Mrs. Erline Nord and her four children who died in a fire that destroyed their home at Sesekinika, 20 miles northwest of here Jan. 14.

Doctors said that before David Nord, 11, died he told them that he and his brother Michael, 9, were attempting to "get the living room stove when it exploded.

Mrs. Nord and her son, Guy, 18 months, were trapped in the living room where they were sleeping. A daughter, April 3, was trapped in an upstairs bedroom.

The jury returned a verdict of death due to fire by misuse of gasoline and recommended installation of public education in fire safety.

Sees Increase In Cheddar Cheese Exports

Cheddar cheese is a promising morsel in the national sandwich of food exports.

Trade Minister Sharp said last night that exports of 37,000,000 pounds last year kept prices above government support levels.

"In 1964 we expect that exports will rise to 30 million pounds . . . and that it may be difficult indeed to get the kind of raw-milk cheddar cheese to meet export demands."

Representations against American quota restrictions limiting imports of the cheddar to a half-million pounds yearly, still are being made to Washington.

While not successful to date, Canada will continue to press its case, Mr. Sharp told the Chamber of Commerce annual meeting.

He also revealed Robert Temple, South Hastings MP, had been the most persistent booster for increased sales.

"Mr. Temple represents himself in Ottawa as an expert on cheddar cheese," the ministry grinned, but beat he so represents himself in me and the other members of the government."

Classes for Projectionists To Be Given

The Belleville and District film council held an executive meeting recently in the public library. Many new members were welcomed to the meeting by the President, Mr. J. W. Berube.

The film "Wilderness Treasure" produced by Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship, was previewed. This film has been purchased by the film council and should be available in February 1964.

Mr. Harry Occomore gave the first demonstration at the monthly classes for projectionists held in the public library. Operators' cards will be issued to successful candidates. These cards will be valid for a three year period at the end of which time the projectionist must be again tested. The projectors will not be loaned to groups or organizations unless they have a qualified operator with a valid projectionist card. Anyone wishing to attend these courses should leave their name and what group they are representing at the public library.

Mental Health Body Told About Program at Cobourg; Elects Officers for Year

Mrs. Jones is a mother with four school - age children. Lately she has been feeling depressed and anxious. The ordinary, everyday chores seem too much for her. Facing each new day is a real struggle which sometimes seems overwhelming and not worth the effort. If Mrs. Jones is lucky enough to be a resident of Northumberland and Durham counties there is very real help available to her with comparatively little disruption to her family life.

Each morning when her husband has gone to work and the children sent off to school, she can make her way to the Day Care Centre in Cobourg. She may have her breakfast there if she wishes. She will be given any treatment that she requires, such as drug therapy, insulin or electro-shock, during the morning. She will see the psychiatrist by appointment, fairly frequently in the early part of her treatment. She will have her lunch in the dining room with perhaps ten to fifteen other patients and afterwards spend a few hours of relaxed enjoyment in the recreation room. She will then go home in time to greet her children as they arrive from school.

This is the sort of program which Dr. Gary Cormack, psychiatrist, and director of Cobourg Day Care Centre, outlined to an enthusiastic audience at the annual meeting of the Canadian Mental Health Association, Belleville branch Tuesday evening at Education Hall, at the Belleville Hospital.

MANY BENEFITS

There are many benefits to be obtained from a day hospital program. It mitigates the shock of admission to hospital and eliminates the need for certification of a patient; it allows the patient to remain in the community with much less upset to family life; and it reduces the number of hospital admissions, thereby lowering the cost of psychiatric care.

There are some patients that a day care centre finds too difficult to handle—the overly-destructive, the homicidal, the suicidal, the very inactive elderly patient, and the severely withdrawn. However in the four years of operation at Cobourg with an average intake rate of 40 to 50 patients per month, it has been necessary to send only about 12 patients to Ontario Hospitals each year.

The goal of the program is to relieve the patient's symptoms and to alter the behaviour patterns which the patient has been following. The psychotherapeutic methods used are suggestion, conditioning, hypnosis and counselling. Many beneficial effects are achieved by the admittance of a patient to the group itself, through recreation and by occupational therapy.

TREAT CHILDREN TOO

One interesting aspect of the day care program is the use of the regular adult facilities to treat children. As an experiment, and because there is such a lack of facilities for treating emotionally disturbed children, last summer the centre began bringing these disturbed children in and allowing them to mix with the adult patients. They found to their surprise that this system has worked surprisingly well. Some hysterical mothers whose own children were most upsetting to them were found to do very well in handling other people's children.

Following a period of treatment at the centre, most mothers are able to go back to their families, most men are able to go back to their jobs or get new jobs themselves. Sometimes help is required through welfare services or rehabilitation officers to re-establish the patient in the community.

"Antisocial behavior can and should only be tolerated so far," concluded Dr. Cormack. "Psychiatry is not the answer for every social misfit, alcoholic or person with a problem. We cannot help every person and we must therefore reject some. We cannot take the responsibility for all the wrong doings of the patients we treat".

GAVE ANNUAL REPORT

Following the meeting Dr. John Stock as president for 1963 gave his annual report stating that he felt as a young branch the Belleville group could be pleased with its accomplishments to date. Perhaps the most significant achievement has been the approval by the boards of governors of the Belleville General Hospital of a modified psychiatric unit to be included in the new hospital addition, plus outpatient facilities is to be hoped that the out-patient service will be started within, the next year and a director is now being sought.

He commended the group of White Cross volunteers who carry on a regular social program for ex-patients and who at Christmas time gathered gifts for over 500 patients at Ontario Hospital, Cobourg.

A number of public meetings have been held throughout the year to better inform about and to promote prevention and treatment of mental illness and the promotion of mental health. Speakers have been provided to a number of other groups that wished to have mental health programs.

NAME OFFICERS

The report of the nominating committee was received. The new executives are past president — Dr. John Stock; president — Rev. R. Fleming; vice-president — Mrs. J. Thompson; secretary — Mrs. Irene Raney; and treasurer — Mr. Roger Roulet. Other members of the board of directors are Miss Kay Abbott, Mrs. Margaret Berry, Mr. Art Bradford, Mr. Jack Coates, Dr. Charles Dondale, Mr. Merritt Hackett, Mrs. Louise Hurst, Mr. Stanley Johnston, Mr. Charles Lundy, Miss Allison MacKeen, Chief John McLauchlin, Father McAvoy, Mr. John Pringle, Mrs. Irene Raney, Mrs. Josephine Heddick, Mrs. W. Simpson, Miss Hazel Thompson and Dr. Evelyn Williamson.

Mr. Fleming, in assuming office, expressed the gratitude of the board to Dr. Stock for his excellent leadership during the past year. He saw the emphasis for 1964 a need to broaden the community concern in the area of mental health and felt that the work done by the association could be of inestimable value to the community.

Public Relations Is Subject of Talk

Det. Sgt. Lyle of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Ontario Provincial Police was the speaker at the January meeting of Branch 48, Civil Service Association of Ontario (Inc.) held at the O.S.D. Belleville this week. His subject was public relations. He stated that most of the customers of the Provincial Police Dept were dissatisfied customers, and although the Police were critic-ized, misunderstood and unappreciated in many cases, they were still doing a great work. The policeman is a valuable public servant and the efficiency of our police forces has a lot to do with the peaceful Canada we live in today. He stressed the importance of good public opinion of all civil servants, not only to the employees but to their departments. Sgt. C. Kirkwood, President of the Branch, gave a short report on the district meeting in Cobourg. He also complimented the staff of the O.S.D. on the exceptional behavior of the O.S.D. Students at the bonspiel last week. Plans were discussed for the annual banquet in May. There were representatives from the Department of Education, Department of Highways, Department of Health, and the Attorney-Generals Department.

Local members are invited to be present to hear the reports of the Legion activities in the various branches. The registration is to begin at one p.m. and a dinner will be served by the Ladies' Auxiliary to Branch 99, at six.

Bengalese Visitors See First Curling

It was a brand new experience for the visitors but the art of curling may have a couple of results following last night's opening of the Quinte bonspiel.

The visitors at the spiel were Mr. and Mrs. Rothindra Kar from Bengal, India, who were without their first curling.

Mr. Kar a former squadron leader in the Indian Air Force and pilot with Pundit Air Transport, for the past three months has been on the engineering staff at Northern Electric. Before being transferred to Belleville he was with Northern in Montreal for several months.

Mr. Kar took a liking to Canada while stopping over on round the world trips with Pundit and he and his wife decided to make this country their home.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Kar were visitors for the opening bonspiel matches and showed keen interest in the game.

Mr. Kar is a graduate in electrical engineering from the University of Calcutta, while Mrs. Kar is an Arts graduate from the same university.

SOLID ACHIEVEMENT

The Freedom from Hunger Campaign in the world, with the help of 600 local committees, raised $3,382,000 during 1963.

Board of Health Head Given Another Term

TRENTON — H. S. Pane, chairman of the Trenton Board of Health for the past several years, was yesterday re-elected to the post. Other board members are Miss Marjorie Gothard, E. J. Topping, Dr. E. W. Dow, MOH. At board meetings, Mrs. Violet Kennedy acts as secretary.

At yesterday's meeting, Miss Gothard suggested that a volunteer examine cups, plates, knives, spoons and forks at such affairs as church suppers and service club dinners. She said that she had found lipstick on a cup at a recent dinner and had realized that while the health chairman, who is also the town's sanitary inspector, supervises restaurants etc., meals prepared by volunteer organizations were not supervised.

The board members voted to renew their contract with the Rushnell Ambulance service and pay the $3,600 annual subsidy for the 1964 funds. Board budget for this year is $13,300 and this includes the subsidy. In normal practice, the town supplies the money for the subsidy but the contract must be approved by the health board and the money paid out by the board.

Mr. Pane said that the Ontario Water Resources Commission was concerned by a state of pollution in the Bay of Quinte just off the Shelley Van Camp canning factory property. The OWRC officials suggested that the town either construct a pollution this year to installing a sewer on Dufferin Ave. South to handle sewage from the area.

Town engineer Eric Aldersey told the board members that a $30,000 necessary for the project had been entered in the 1964 public works budget but that other sewer work was needed in the town. A bad situation exists on Front St. North, the engineer said, and part of the sewer on Bay St. must be replaced this year. There are also bad situations in the newly annexed areas of Sidney Township, he said.

Mr. Aldersey said if the utilities commission institutes a system whereby water users are charged a sewer surcharge, the town might be able to do all the sewer work necessary this year. This surcharge could be as large as 100 per cent of the water bill or as small as 10 per cent of the bill.

Dr. Dow, in his annual report, said that there had been 386 births in Trenton last year, (418 in 1962) and 65 deaths. There were no polio cases in Trenton last year, but several cases of infectious hepatitis and a more than usual outcrop of measles. Tests on the town supply of drinking water had been "satisfactory," he said.

GENEVA (Reuters) — The International Labor Organization will be asked to suspend South Africa from its conference if it continues its apartheid (racial segregation) policy, it was announced here Wednesday. However, the ILO will not be asked to expel South Africa from the United Nations-affiliated body unless the UN does.

George Greer was re-elected last night as president of the Trenton Victorian Order of Nurses.

George Greer Re-elected V.O.N. Head

TRENTON — George Greer, 1963 president of the Trenton Victorian Order of Nurses branch, was last night re-elected as head of the 1964 executive, which includes Clifford Miller, vice-president; G. G. Shore, treasurer, and Mrs. Robert Fraser, secretary. Honorary president of the branch is James Utley and immediate past president is Robert Barlow.

The elections were carried out at the joint annual meeting of the V.O.N. and the Trenton unit of the Canadian Cancer Society.

James Duncan was re-elected president of the cancer unit and the members of his executive include Mrs. George Greer, Mrs. M. Barry, Harry Foster, Mrs. W. A. McDonald, Mrs. A. Fraser and Elmer Bonderr. McDonald is the medical advisor for the group.

Mr. Shore reported that the VON 1964 revenue of $8,735 fell short of expenditures and depreciation of the nurses' car, by $1,156. Money taken in was raised by the membership canvass, a tag day, an Easter tea and the sale of VON dishcloths. The town gives a grant of $3,000 to the Trenton group and the province a grant of $190. Nursing salaries amount to $7,200.

Mr. Foster said that the cancer unit had taken in $5,636.50 through a campaign and in Memoriam donations. The Trenton unit spent $1,332.18 last year.

Cancer Cure Will Be Found Says Doctor

TRENTON — Dr. R. A. Kelly of Kingston, pinch-hitting for Dr. W. J. S. Melvin at the combined annual meeting of the Trenton V.O.N. branch and the Trenton unit of the Canadian Cancer Society said that he considered volunteer health organizations necessary, but that once the volunteer group had recognized a problem and had done something about it, the problem should become the business of government health agencies.

Dr. Kelly forecast that the cause and a cure for cancer would be found in the not-too-distant future. He said that research would discover the causes and cures for many now elusive diseases and that he envisioned a time when men would live to a deeper and broader lives in which there would be less sorrow and pain.

Dr. Kelly "Even old age will be deferred."

Six-Year-Old Falls Through Consecon Ice

TRENTON—A six-year-old Consecon girl narrowly escaped death while on her way to school this morning, when she fell through thin ice while crossing the Consecon Creek.

Nancy Fraser, daughter of Corporal and Mrs. A. D. Fraser, plunged through the ice into about five feet of water. Her older sister Linda, aged seven, ran to the near-by home of Rev. Lyle Mason (retired) and told him his sister had fallen into the creek. Rev Mason is believed to be in his 80's.

Rev. Mason, who has been suffering for the past year with a heart condition, wasted no time in getting to the creek where he too plunged through the ice and waded through the chilly water in an attempt to reach the little girl.

He plucked the child from the water and held her up to the ice, but, it gave way beneath her, and Nancy slipped back into the water. Because of the exertion a second neighbor, Earl Snider, raced to the creek to investigate. Snider and Rev. Mason carried her to the village Store.

Mrs. Fraser was called and Nancy was taken home; frightened and cold, but alive.

Corporal James Taylor was awarded the Canadian Forces Decoration (CD) denoting 12 years' meritorious service in the RCAF, while attending a course at RCAF Station Clinton, Ont.

The Commanding Officer, Group Captain K. R. Greenaway, CD, presented him with the decoration.

Corporal Taylor's wife and family are at present living in Belleville.

Will Ask Govt. For Study of Air Pollution

GUELPH (CP)—The Ontario government will be asked to order an immediate study of air pollution, Mayor Ralph W. Smith said Wednesday after a meeting with other mayors, municipal and sanitary engineers.

He said the government would be asked to assume direct control of enforcement on a province-wide basis.

Mayor Smith said he would take the resolution to a meeting of the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves in Sarnia Saturday.

Canada and Red China

From Ottawa comes a report that "a highly placed informant" says that Canada will likely vote in favor of admitting Communist China to the United Nations.

The report might be a deliberate "leak," designed to prepare the ground for a policy already firmly decided. Or it might be a "balloon," sent aloft to determine which way the wind of public opinion is blowing.

Of the two, the latter appears the more probable, since the word "likely" was used, paving the way for a quick retreat if the balloon indicates stormy weather, of a kind that had not been anticipated.

Obviously, some turbulence is going to be evident. The United States is not going to take kindly to this sudden about-face by a friendly neighbor, just as the very moment when it is endeavoring to minimize the effects of French recognition of the communist regime in China. The fact that Canada is reported not to be planning to copy France's action will do little to diminish U.S. concern and indignation. It is the question of Communist China's membership in the UN which is the main reason why French recognition annoys the U.S. Canada will hardly lighten the sting of its support for China's membership in the UN by withholding the second, and much less painful, blow of recognition.

When this is said, though, what better time will there be for Canada to alter its existing policy than the present? Any prolonged delay might create the necessity for a more embarrassing decision, perhaps at a time when the whole outcome of the question would depend on Canada's attitude. And change her policy Canada should, for it is obviously folly to continue to exclude Communist China from the only organization which offers any chance of the other nations being able to put curbs, other than by war, on her conduct.

The Canadian dilemma is striking proof of the penalty for procrastination. Had Canada followed Britain's example and recognized Red China years ago, the U.S. would have been annoyed momentarily, but would likely have written the decision off as evidence of our long-standing ties with Britain. We would have been spared to be just "tagging along," which some might find humiliating but which is nevertheless often a very comfortable position. From recognition to advocacy of China's admission to the UN would have been a logical step, which could easily have been taken in company with other members of the Commonwealth.

But all this is hindsight. We shall now be cast in the role of siding with de Gaulle against President Johnson and his State Department, still as helplessly wedded to the ridiculous theory that Chaing represents China as it was in the days when John Foster Dulles was trying to make history conform to his theories of what ought to have happened.

Caouette the Separatist

That appears likely after a weekend meeting of riding representatives of Le Raillement des Creditistes, the dissident Social Credit group from Quebec.

The Creditistes voted to throw their support behind the separatist movement unless four conditions were met by 1966. They will not be met by that time, but, in any event, the Creditistes' two alternatives are, for practical purposes, the same. The conditions they demand from refraining from supporting the separatists would, in themselves, break up Confederation and balkanize the nation.

The Creditistes want provinces to have control over the creation of credit, over imports and exports, and over immigration. Even if the control over imports and exports is limited to trade with foreign countries, and is not utilized to set up tariff barriers against interprovincial trade, such conditions would split Canada into regional groupings which could not hope to attain prosperity or to retain the status of a nation.

Unless Caouette's star sinks as swiftly as it rose, he appears the most likely man to lead the separatists after the Creditistes espouse that cause in 1966.

It is just possible that this is what the nation needs most—for it could be that his fanaticism will be a little too much for the majority of French-Canadians to stomach and that, by pushing too hard for separatism, he will bring about its eventual rejection.

Dangerous Implications Behind the Secret Ballot

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative MPs, in a huddle here on Parliament Hill getting their strategy signals straight for the party's annual meeting next week, are worried men.

The majority of them Diefenbaker loyalists, they are convinced that the party's clamorous dissident wing, in its well-publicised efforts to remove and destroy the former prime minister, may end up crippling the party's future leadership.

In the name of "democracy" the rebels are demanding that the vote be called on the traditional modicum of confidence in the leadership, the ballot be taken in secret.

In most circumstances, it would be difficult to argue that a secret ballot is not democratic.

But in this case, believe the Conservative MPs, this supposed "democratic" action is being used, crudely and brutally, to make what the still-detrimentally-active "Get Diefenbaker" plan and hope will be a quiet political assassination.

As they see it, only one angry and bluntly-outspoken MP has put it: "The secret ballot is the cloak for the dagger."

NO RIVALS SHOW

The idea is this.

The rebels are in a minority. Almost everybody seems sure. But for argument's sake, put it at 20 percent.

In any standing vote—the routine and even traditional way any Canadian political party, conservative or liberal, confirms or denies confidence in the leadership—the rebels might hesitate to show their hands.

No minority likes to stand up—and remain seated—as a group suspected of something less than loyalty.

So, sometimes grudgingly, the standing vote of confidence in the leadership is usually unanimous.

It was, last year, just days before the Cabinet's palace revolution brought the Government down to defeat in the Commons.

Just as historically, secret ballots are for leadership conventions when two or more men are in hot competition for the open heart-breaking and heart-breaking job of rallying and heading the party.

But there's no competition this time. No rival to John Diefenbaker has declared himself or even hinted responsibility for the job that doesn't happen to be open.

Even so, the dissidents, invoking what they proclaim is the democratic process, demand the secret ballot, knowing or hoping that Diefenbaker detractors who might lack the guts to stand and be counted in an open vote, could find the courage in anonymity, to turn thumbs down on him.

And Dief has enemies.

No man can be party leader for seven years, prime minister for six years without stepping on some toes.

STRAIGHT SECRET

But the gravely concerned Conservative MPs, loyal as the majority surely are to Dief, contend that the issue of the secret ballot goes much further than the question of his leadership.

A secret ballot would set a party precedent.

For all annual meetings from now on.

Poll on vote this time in secret and the pattern would be set for all the years to come.

And where would that leave the leader? The leader, Dief, or the man who sooner or later must succeed him?

Nowhere except under the continuing threat of a yokey assassination.

For he's a leader worth his salt, he must do unpopular things sometimes. Say "no" to people and give offence to say always being able to say "yes."

A leader, like a prime minister and a Government begins the slow and not infrequently fatal process of politically from the very moment he succeeds to office and power.

Of necessity, within the party, he accumulates enemies faster than he can make friends. For he simply hasn't enough jobs to go around to keep everybody happy.

So the growing list of enemies wants, impatiently, each year, for the secret ballot.

Aware of these hard facts of political life, a leader would be under natural pressure to spend his days being sweet to everybody — and what kind of leadership would that be. A leader has to have guts, be tough, able to make hard and sometimes unpopular decisions — and that is going to be difficult, if not impossible, if annually he has to lay his leadership on the secret ballot line.

Slow Pace Of Reform

Baltimore Sun

In this school year — the tenth since the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision of 1954 — slightly more than 9 percent of Negro public school students in the seventeen Southern and border states and the District of Columbia are attending school with whites. The percentage figure represents a noticeable increase over previous years. However, it drops almost spectacularly when the eleven states which made up the Confederacy are considered alone.

In those states, according to the statistics supplied by the Southern Education Reporting Service, 30,788 Negroes — just 1.06 percent of the Negro public school population — go to desegregated schools. Mississippi still has no desegregated public schools below college level. Only ten Negroes in South Carolina and only eleven in Alabama attend desegregated schools. On the other hand, about 14,000 Negroes in Texas, 4,500 in Tennessee and 3,700 each in Virginia and Florida go to school with white pupils.

Perhaps a truer, and certainly a brighter, measure of the progress of Southern school desegregation is to be found in statistics indicating the number of school districts now desegregated. In the 11 states, 423 of the 2,894 districts have desegregated to some extent 15 per cent of the Negro students in these states are in the desegregated districts. This year, 146 districts in the 11 states were desegregated for the first time. Almost half of them are in Texas, but there also are 23 desegregated districts in Virginia, 22 in North Carolina and 18 in Tennessee.

School desegregation in the South obviously is proceeding slowly, but it is proceeding — and in most instances quietly, despite the outcries of some Mississippi and Alabama. In many areas patterns for future significant school desegregation have been set with the desegregation of one or two schools in a district.

To some extent the concern of Negroes with other areas of national life — demands for unemployment opportunities and the opening of public accommodations facilities — have tended to take the spotlight off the schools, thus allowing scheduled school desegregation to move forward with less show of emotion. The road to compliance with the Supreme Court's demand has been tortuous: progress will continue to come slowly. But the destination is less and less in doubt.

Auto-Trains Are Popular

Italian Trade Topics

Italian and German railway authorities have inaugurated unique new service — the "auto-train."

The train consists of five railroad cars equipped for transport passenger automobiles and three sleeping cars. For the time being the service is confined to the Dusseldorf-Verona run. Passengers can drive up to the station in Dusseldorf on Friday nights, see their cars placed on board and climb into the sleeper for a night's sound sleep. Next morning they awake and drive off for a weekend tour of Italy. In peacetime Italians can plan an easy few days automobile tour of Dusseldorf. If the new "auto-train" is as successful as anticipated, similar trains will begin to operate on other overnight runs between Italian and other European cities.

The regular Tuesday luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club held in the Hotel Quinte was somewhat different to the usual affair of this kind. A demonstration of the skill and art of archery was demonstrated to the members by Mr. H. W. Hamilton, who is an ardent fan of this form of sport, having made it a hobby practically all his life.

Mr. Hamilton is Assistant Superintendent of the Canada Cement Co., was born in Nova Scotia and educated in Owen Sound and in New York. His basement workshop has produced many fine bows and arrows and he pursued an open invitation to any Kiwanian who wished to take up the sport to avail himself of this hobby shop in his spare time. He gave a fine description of the types of archery in medieaval times and historical periods before the western world became populated. Mr. Hamilton gave a demonstration of the sport, firing several shafts into a target placed at one end of the room, an effort which showed considerable skill by knocking a tin can from the head of a dummy.

Fifty copies of the Holy Bible were presented to Queen Victoria Public School at the opening exercise period this morning on behalf of the Gideons. The Rev. Dr. James Semple presided at the interesting ceremony of presentation and the Rev. J. G. Hornby replied during the service. Mr. H. B. Fetterley made the presentation on behalf of the Gideons and Principal A. C. Wilkin accepted the copies of the Scriptures.

Liquor Flows East to West

Manchester Guardian

All other things being equal, liquor flows from west to west. Some Chilean sauternes, it is true, have made their appearance in Manchester, and a commercial trade in Californian burgundies, sold by the demijohn, flourishes on part of the American Atlantic seaboard. But in general, Britain, which is midmost in this alcoholic drift, imports wine from Europe and exports whisky to the United States. Last year the import ran to twenty-two million gallons of wine and the exports to twenty-nine million good gallons of whisky, which shows that in spite of gracious living and expense accounts wine as still a fairly abstentious lot.

This is certainly true by the beer-drinking figures, which are very again fallen slightly. Maybe the new style of publicising beer by concealed lighting, thick carpets and drapes on the walls d'isconcits a man into ordering sherry or scotch when formerly he would have settled for a pint of bitter. Or more likely, since much of the drinking goes on at home these days, and bottled beer is no substitute for draught the change simply reflects the emancipation of women and the exhortations of Mr. Hugh Gaitskell.

Whatever the cause, the phenomenon is worrying. Wine drinking is alcohol absorption at its most civilized, and it was not the Romans but the Greeks who given us civil engineering, and at least shows us central heating, they could not have had a vine thrive here. It is still possible to buy red wines which taste like a solution of iron fillings, and whites which would be taken for sucked in iced lollipops. But the choice of wines is growing and the price of modest enjoyable ones stabilized between 8 shillings and 15 shillings a bottle. Not only Yugoslavia, but Greece, Cyprus, and even Israel say send their vintages westwards towards us. Why should not totally unexpected sources join in, as they would have done if the French had been there first? Kenya and Tanganyika, for example, could grow vines. How long will it be before we offer our guests a full - bodied Ngong?

To Your Good Health

Mumps Infectious Disease Transmitted by a Virus

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is mumps? How long should a child be kept in bed with mumps? — R. M.

Mumps is an acute, infectious disease caused and transmitted by a virus, in much the same way colds are spread.

It particularly attacks one or both of the parotid glands—the parotids being those around the saliva glands located at the angle of the jaw. The swelling of these glands makes that part of the neck uncomfortable. There can also be ear ache, soreness of the jaw, fever.

But other glands may also be affected at times, principally the breasts, pancreas and the reproductive glands, the testes and ovaries.

Thus, although mumps is "one of the children's diseases," and quite common, it warrants respect in case of complications. Proper treatment, however, is usually relatively simple.

This consists for the most part in keeping the child quiet so he or she conserves strength while the body is battling the virus.

This is even more true when an adult, not having had mumps as a child, catches the disease. It can make an adult quite ill.

When the testes are affected, sterility can result.

It is best to keep a child in bed until the fever has subsided and the swelling has gone down. This may be several days, or a week, or perhaps two weeks in some cases, depending on whether there are any signs of complications.

—Dear Dr. Molner: Is it all right for a woman who is thin to use saccharin or other sugar-less substance? She is healthy. — E. S.

There's no reason why she shouldn't. She could probably use sugar and stay thin, but if quibble as long as she is healthy.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: What's wrong with getting a cake now and then for baking soda? One person said it was bad for my blood, and another said it was bad for the liver and kidneys. I don't eat much and the urge is only occasional. — Mrs. M. J.

This is the first time I've run into a taste for baking soda. Some people are queer, get in the habit of taking it with the idea that it settles the stomach and "prevents acidity." Both of these theories are rather feeble because the stomach follicles are supposed to be slightly acid, and too much soda will sometimes upset them upset the proper condition of the stomach.

I don't see why an occasional craving for baking soda would do any harm as long as it is not a daily necessity. Baking soda is sodium bicarbonate and should be avoided by persons with high blood pressure, congestive heart disease and cirrhosis of the liver. However, it will not harm the normal kidneys liver or a normal heart.

Strictly Personal

Flattery Sign Of Emotional Impotence

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Those who make a habit of flattery lack the capacity to love; flattery is always a sign of emotional impotence, whether it is to relieve the effect in words it cannot attain in deed.

The most dramatic evidence that all of us live in air-tight compartments, scarcely communicating from one to the other, is the mind to the other, is the mathematician. I know, an expert in probability theory, who invariably complains that he always holds "poor cards" at bridge.

One of the most shrewd and penetrating of Nietzsche's many anticipations of Freud was his observation that "when we are sick we are attacked by ideas we conquered long ago."

The whole fallacy in an "ideological war" is that the ideologies aren't killed, but the people are; the ideologies simply reshape themselves under another name and banner and go marching on to further destruction; has the death of so many Caesars ever extinguished Caesarism?

The same person who sighs that life is short and the days speed by, at the same time treats his money and his affairs as though he would live forever.

The superficially romantic realism of the American films, and fiction generally, in the recent past is most responsible for the restlessness and discontent in young marriages; for, as Fontenelle said right out a few centuries ago: "Un grand obstacle au bonheur, c'est de s'attendre a un trop grand bonheur." The great obstacle to happiness is the expectation of too great a happiness."

There is a kind of reverse perspective in opportunities; they always look larger when they are receding from us than when we are approaching them.

A cynic is not merely one who reads bitter lessons from the past; he is one who is genuinely disappointed in the future.

Principles are useless unless they are embodied in personalities; there is no such thing as an "abstract right" any more than there can be "abstract love"; and most mischief in the world has been perpetrated by cold and dedicated men of high principles whose burning personalities did not irradiate their beliefs; by men who could make neither their wives nor children nor associates happy, but who somehow thought they would make the world a better place" by imposing their ideas on it.

Anger is never as significant in its cause as in its consequences.

TRADE MINISTER SHARP congratulates incoming Belleville Chamber of Commerce president J. C. Houston, introduced by Robert Temple, M.P., at annual meeting.

Sharp Sees Big Opportunity For U.S.-Owned Firms Here To Sell Goods in U. S. Mart

U.S. subsidiaries in Canada could boost national exports by entering United States markets in competition with parent corporations, Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp said here last night.

The subsidiaries could play "a vital role" in reducing Canada's trade deficit with the U.S., while reaping profit themselves, he stated.

He told the annual meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Quinte that, generally, "I find that most of the American subsidiaries operating in Canada are as interested in export business as those firms owned in Canada.

"And I believe that they understand the problem that we face in bringing about a better balance in our current account in international payments."

Among his audience were Chamber members who also are officers of American-owned enterprises in the Belleville area.

Mr. Sharp said he was constantly reviewing the problem of insuring that U.S. subsidiaries "have not only the freedom but also the incentive to enlarge their sales not only abroad but in the U.S. itself" in competition with parent firms "if need be."

Despite the fact the United States is Canada's largest market, Canada had an adverse trade balance with it of $450,000,000 in 1963.

"That is a tremendous improvement over past performance," said Mr. Sharp. "But . . . there is no room for any of us to be complacent about the problem."

EXPORTS ARE KEY

The balance-of-payments problem had two solutions: restricted imports — or increased exports.

"I have no question in my mind . . . that the way that's going to be most profitable in the best interests of both countries is that we should attempt to bring about a better balance by increasing exports.

"It is here that the U.S. subsidiaries, with the connections they have in the U.S. market, can play a vital role — not only for the national benefit, but for their own benefit as well."

However, he also had some specific pointers for Canadian exporters dealing with overseas customers.

He chided businessmen over complaints his department had received from importers of Canadian goods, problems he said, which could best be "catered to" by personal visits and contacts between suppliers and foreign buyers.

"We've also been receiving complaints about quality-standards, about lack of prompt delivery and continuity of supply and inattention to correspondence.

"If we are going to make a success of export business, it is of the utmost importance that we take that business seriously".

"I believe that if the shippers would make a more conscious attempt and heed the wishes of importers and generally improve their services, these efforts would, in the long run, pay off handsomely in terms of expanded sales".

WELCOMES TARIFF CUTS

The upcoming "Kennedy round" of international tariff negotiations may prove a boon to Canada, the minister intimated.

"In my view they could not come at a better time from Canada's point of view, because our sights must be set on larger-scale production," he said.

In turn this can only be achieved through production for world outlets — particularly American markets.

"In other words, our sights must be set on freer trade which enables us to obtain access to better and freer markets. This is the view of the Canadian government," he emphasized.

However, the nation's trade policy must take account of economic problems peculiar to Canadian industry and trade.

He described Canada's position at the coming negotiations as "one in which Canada's economic interest are fully safeguarded and in which Canada receives full value in terms of new and expanded export opportunities" for any concessions granted.

The conference, which begins in early summer will be the most significant in which Canada has participated in the post-war years.

"If successful, it could be the beginning of a new and dynamic era in world trade," Mr. Sharp forecast.

In the interim the government is canvassing the views of Canadian business.

OTHERS CAN HELP

Export promotion was not the exclusive preserve of the federal government, Mr. Sharp told the meeting.

Provincial governments also had a significant role to play. He said he was uninterested in "who gets the credit" as long as trade successes inspire "those in trade promotion to greater activity."

"I take the view that this is a field for co-operation between governments and governments and industry."

While foreign trade policy is the responsibility of the federal government" . . . we need all the help we can get."

"It is an area where co-operative federalism could be made to mean something."

There was no lasting solution to national unemployment or balance-of-payments problems "except by laundering and filling out of Canada's industrial structure on an internationally competitive basis."

The minister had an optimistic forecast for Canada in 1964, taking current economic trends for his guide.

The past year was one of steady growth and the momentum has been carried over. He proposed significant increases in manufacturing, transport and electrical power enterprises.

"This could be, in fact, one of the great years in the development of Canada."

Mr. Sharp was introduced by Robert Temple, MP, and thanked by Ronald Cass.

Successful Living

Who Says That Entertaining Is Limited to Females

DORIS CLARK

Every girl dreams of the day she will be a hostess in her own home — welcoming friends, serving refreshments, offering hospitality to all visitors. But gracious hostesses don't just happen by magic. It takes years of practice to entertain smoothly and with that enviable everything-is-under-control air.

And who said this dream was limited to the girls? My mail has in it a note from a boy 15:

"I am hosting a party but a few thoughts haunt me. Can a boy host a party? Most of my friends don't dance. What can we do? What could a boy get ready?"

Boys can and do put on good parties; some of the best. Parties that improve with each succeeding effort.

So why not start now? Whichever your sex, your mother will be proud of you and glad to welcome your friends if she sees that you mean to do your own entertaining, your own party planning and cleaning up — not to give her several hours of extra work whenever you have friends in.

St. Valentine's Day calls for a mixed party — say eight or 12 people — half boys and half girls. February fun might take the form of a sleighride or a skating party, a hockey game or hootenanny; or fun and games in your own living room.

The resultant appetite calls for stick-to-the-rib type food, such as: baked beans, buttered toast, celery and carrot strips, apples, cookies, hot chocolate. Or similar hot fare.

Here's your chance to master a favorite cookie recipe or give a girl friend this assignment. Partners-in-fun will enjoy helping with advance preparations like table decoration, game props, bean soaking, flavoring, baking.

Finding partners, Valentine-style, can be done by cutting red hearts across into jagged pieces, sorting into boy and girl piles (all done ahead) and passing out to be matched up. Then games and supper can be enjoyed in couples; different couples, so that guests can socialize with several different partners during the evening.

When the fun is over, put the finger on a Kitchen Detail to restore order out of chaos; the ringleaders will do! A good cleanup can make all the difference when it comes to asking for living room privileges another time.

Confidential to A VERY WORRIED 12-YEAR-OLD — Obviously you are not "fully matured," even though you may think so. Your very worry about the matter you mention can postpone it. Has it occurred to you that other girls may also be putting up a false front? The average age is 14.

• • •

Confidential to E. F. J. — Any situation involving strong human emotions may cause a sympathetic reaction when our feelings are aroused. If the symptom is not disturbing, I would judge it will pass away. If it does cause distress, perhaps a visit to a psychiatrist would be the best way to lay this tragic ghost.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I have a girl friend who comes over to my house and takes anything she wants of mine. She doesn't even ask me, I told her once before I couldn't have her come to my home any more, but she still comes occasionally.

Sometimes she borrows something of mine to wear. She never brings it back. I have to go and ask for it and when I do get it, it is not in perfect condition. I can't make her pay for it because her family's getting poor.

All the family are friends of mine. What can I do? Please tell me something before I go crazy. — GOING CRAZY.

DEAR GOING — Relax. You are the lucky one to have home, family and nice clothes.

People steal when they are unhappy, or to get attention, or because they want the nice things they can't afford themselves. Leave nothing of value around and discourage further visits. If she wants to borrow, say your mother won't let you lend.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I have thin fly-away hair and the more I brush the worse it gets. I would like to let it grow real long, but it just grows to shoulder length and stops. What can I do to make my hair thick and shiny? — BLONDIE.

DEAR BLONDIE — You can improve your hair with proper diet, rest and hair care. Write again, this time enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a leaflet by an expert on hair care.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Most of your write-ups seem to be slanted towards women so that it would appear that the fair sex has a corner on emotional problems.

Believe it or not but the male species also have problems but they usually resort to strange ways of solving them. Probably because they lack ability and courage to seek the guidance and also because society scorns sensitive tendencies in the male.

However, just this once, I'd like to buck society and get your opinion on a long standing personal problem. Will you enter into correspondence with me? — STRANGE TALE.

DEAR STRANGE — Gladly — although I'd guess you need personal counselling; which is waiting for you just as surely as if you were one of the so-called weaker sex.

Women have no corner on emotional stresses; yet I do agree that men try to appear the brave masters of their fate which society makes them out to be. A false and foolish assumption.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I would like information on where you can get the pills which can help a woman regulate herself; from your doctor or at a drug counter? And what do you ask for? — ANXIOUS.

DEAR ANXIOUS — Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a list of excellent books on planned parenthood, including one which has a chapter on the modern drugs which help. The pills are individually prescribed.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I was going to join the curling club and my mother won't let me. She says she wants me to save money. Does it cost that much to join? And she said if it was something else she wouldn't mind. Should I join or shouldn't I? — HEARTBROKEN.

DEAR HEARTBROKEN It costs money to maintain a club, to keep equipment up and make things nice for the members. Find out what other sports there are near you which might not cost as much. How about a 4-H Club? (Your mother is the one who will have to tell you what else she has against curling.)

First in Series Of Art Talks At Library

A delightful talk was given by Mrs. Lewis Andrews at the public library on Monday evening. She showed colorful slides of the paintings of the "Impressionist" painters Manet, Monet, Degas, Renoir, Cezanne and other members of this movement, pointing out the techniques used by the artists and giving glimpses of their lives and of the era in which they lived. These painters were truly "Painters of Sunshine".

In addition to slides large prints of some of the artists were hung on the walls of the library auditorium. These are on loan from the Art Institute of Ontario and will be exhibited until February 10th. This talk by Mrs. Andrews was the first in a series of talks on art appreciation sponsored by the public library. Announcements regarding these programs will appear in this paper.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: When a guest is about to leave a party, isn't it considered polite to say good-night to everyone before departing? I was invited to a party by a young man I've been dating, and met the host and hostess as well as the other guests for the first time, although he has known them very well for years. When it was time to go, I wanted the others to know I was delighted to meet them, so made a circuit of the room before going on my coat. My date said later that it was not necessary, and that only the host and hostess should have been bidden goodnight. I think basically he was annoyed because I kept him waiting a few extra minutes. Would you please let me know if I made any social error in saying good-night to everyone? — C. P., Trenton, N. J.

Answer: When a group is small, a departing guest who wants to may say good-night to everyone in the room, but when a party is large, it's only necessary to say good-bye to those you've been speaking with just prior to leaving and, of course, to the host and hostess. If the guest is leaving a bit early, it's more tactful just to take leave of the host and hostess quietly, so other guests won't get the idea the party is breaking up and leave before they're expected to.

Question: I recently was chairman of a fund-raising project for a social organization I belong to, at the semi-general meeting, I have to get up and give a full report on the project. It will be an afternoon session. I've never done this before and would like to know how I should dress for the occasion. Would a suit be appropriate, and must I wear a hat when my turn comes to speak? Any tips you can give would be welcome. — Mrs. V. M. B., Boston, Mass.

Answer: A suit or a simple afternoon dress would be appropriate, and a hat should be worn. Just beware of any brightly patterned fabrics that might be distracting. If you are to sit on a podium — be front and center, facing the audience — make sure the skirt fits easily and has enough "give" so it doesn't ride up above the knees. A pair of comfortable shoes are another "must" for the speaker who has to face an audience for any length of time. A tasteful pin and other simple jewelry may be worn to accent the costume but, again, anything distracting, such as jangling bracelet or dangling earrings, should be avoided. Gloves, of course, are not worn when one is speaking before an audience.

Study Guild Discusses Public and Mental Health

At the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Study Guild held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Trull, George Street, the subject for study and discussion was Public Health.

A brief business meeting, conducted by the president, Mrs. Ralph Ellis, was followed by the devotional part of the program led by Mrs. E. A. Orr on the subject "Sickness and Health."

Mrs. Erion, former public health nurse in Welland, now of Belleville, was guest speaker, assisted by two Guild members, Mrs. Cochrane, Belleville Public Health nurse, and Mrs. Charles.

The Guild members felt well rewarded with the careful and exact information on this subject thus obtained.

In public health, it was pointed out it is the community which is the patient, not the individual. Concerning individuals the question asked is "Is it education or concrete help which is needed?"

MENTAL HEALTH

In mental health, one of the important branches which overlaps many others, questions can be asked concerning general attitudes: (1) Do the individuals feel comfortable about themselves? (2) Do they feel right toward other people? (3) Are they able to meet the demands of life?"

Eighty-two percent of Ontario is organized into public health units.

The hostesses for the evening, Mrs. Stanley A. Barbour and Mrs. G. E. Mayhew, served refreshments as informal discussion continued.

U.C.W. Meeting

HOLLOWAY U.C.W

Holloway St. U.C.W. held their January meeting in the church parlors on Tuesday evening.

The president, Mrs. R. Taylor, opened the meeting with an inspirational poem and conducted the business of the evening during which the budget for the year was presented and approved. An invitation was extended for members to attend the annual Presbyterial meeting at Napanee on February 26 and 27 and also to the World's Day of Prayer Service to be held at Bridge St. United Church on February 14. Mrs. F. Wilson was appointed as the new V.O.N. representative.

Mrs. E. Kilbank led the devotional, being Paul's instructions to Timothy and followed by a solo by Rosslyn Robertson.

BRIEF OUTLINE

Mrs. G. Coulter gave a brief outline of the study book on Eastern Asia reminding members that their paths have been set in pleasant places without the ravages of war — that faith without works is dead— that it is their duty to live and proclaim this faith — and to instill a desire in the young people to carry on this work.

A film was shown, "India and Opportunity," depicting the beauty and squalor of this land with its teeming population of millions — a land that has a passionate desire for peace with all nations — with high ideals — but a tremendous problems of slums and filth and over-population.

Aiken's U.C.W. List Officers

Mrs. H. Hamilton was hostess to Aiken's United Church Women on January 22nd when the new president, Mrs. K. Jones, took the chair.

The meeting opened with a short memorial service for one of its former members, Mrs. Alan McComb. Mrs. C. Smith conducted the worship service.

Business was conducted. Mrs. Cooper took charge of the installation of new officers and wished all a successful and joyous year. Several members paid dues. The treasurer, Mrs. K. Bush, gave the treasurer's report, showing a balance on hand. The president thanked members that Aiken's ladies were invited to meet with Centenary United Church Women for the World Day of Prayer on February 14th at 2 p.m.

An Easter skit was put on by Mrs. C. Smith, Mrs. G. Wilson, Mrs. P. Hamilton and Mrs. F. Johnston.

Mrs. C. Smith took charge of the chapter from the study book, "The Word and the Way." This chapter "On the Church" was in three parts: "The Church", "The Nature of the Church", "The Ministry of the Church." Mrs. P. Johnston read corresponding Scriptures and an interesting discussion followed.

The hostess and her committee served a light lunch and all enjoyed a social half hour together.

New officers elected were as follows:

President, Mrs. K. Jones; vice-presidents, Mrs. H. Hamilton; recording secretary, Mrs. P. Hamilton; treasurer, Mrs. K. Bush; card and flower committee, Mrs. L. Chard and Mrs. C. Moon; finance committee, Mrs. C. Hamilton and Mrs. S. Macshall; manse committee, Mrs. C. Smith and Mrs. H. Regensburg; stewardship committee, Mrs. M. Jeffrey and Mrs. F. Scrimshaw; supply committee, Mrs. F. Johnston and Mrs. S. Hubble; literature secretary, Mrs. O. Pearson; visiting and friendship committee, Mrs. W. Bailey and Mrs. S. WINTER SEWING FOR SPRING

Something new for spring! How pleasant just to think about it while the snows are heaped beside the walks and grey skies promise more of the same. For many of us in Canada, spring is one season that we would like to have rush in as quickly as possible. One sure way to make spring seem real at this time of year is to start planning all the nice things that go along with the new season. A pretty pastel blouse, thoughts of spring hats or the joy of shedding heavy boots for just-plain shoes.

NEW FABRICS

New and beautifully practical fabrics are being featured this spring in more variety than I have seen for a long time. These include light wool jersies, knitted with small, almost invisible patterns, crisp wool georgettes, fluid flowing crepes, piques with varying surface interest and impressionistic flower prints. The variety is bewildering and to the home sewer, it is tempting. Nothing could be more enticing to the winter-weary than a long sleeved blouse of turquoise with a deep-set "choir boy" collar, worn over a matching straight-line skirt. Skirts, tapered from the hip to the knee, have departed.

Now is the time to evaluate last spring's wardrobe, revamping and changing it.

Many women will find themselves with a whole collection of good shirts and blouses plus skirts that tend to look a bit dated. But who said that a shirt had to go with a skirt? The addition of one sleeveless jumper, either belted or not, depending on taste and figure, will put all of those shirts right in the 1964 picture. The jumper should have a "shifty" look, but it does not have to be just a front and a back. There are many patterns calling for subtle shaping through the bodice and waistline, which release the fabric through the hipline — flattering practical and comfortable. This shift jumper (for want of a better name) worn with shirts, calls for tailored jewelry. Worn alone it should step out with a long rope of pearls or beads and eight-button gloves.

SYNTHETIC LINGERIE

With the advent of synthetic and man-made lingerie fabrics, I had thought handmade "undies" of real silk satin were a thing of the past or the privilege of a few. But now, a most practical half-slip of pure silk satin is being offered in most good lingerie shops. It has a fine zipper and an ingenious hook and eye closing mounted on an elastic at the waistband. It is ideal under knitted dresses and suits even the frothiest chiffons. A brilliantly practical idea, easy to make even by hand.

Quintena Lodge Marks Founders' Night at Meeting

A pleasant fraternal event was held at Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 132 in the I.O.O.F. Hall on Tuesday night, when the Brother Rebekahs presided for the opening and closing ceremonies of the regular Lodge meeting.

Sister Clara Ironside, Noble Grand of Quintena welcomed the Brothers and members attending this annual event, held to commemorate the anniversary of the founding of the order. Sister Mary Plumpton P.D.D.P. gave an interesting talk on the history of the I.O.O.F. order including the life and work of its founders, Thomas Wildey and James Ridgeley and up to the foundation of the Rebekah degree, by Schuyler Colfax in 1868.

PRESENT PAGEANT

The ideals and purposes of the Rebekah order were presented in the form of a pageant with various members of the lodge taking part.

Sister Ironside, N.G., expressed appreciation to Sister Plumpton for this interesting program and to the Brothers who presided in the various offices, which Brother George McDonald replied.

A social hour and lunch followed to close an enjoyable evening.

Congregational Meeting

ROSLIN— The annual congregational meeting of Roslin United Church was held in the church recently with a good attendance. A delicious pot luck supper preceded the meeting.

The secretary, Mrs. Howes read the minutes of the last meeting.

Reports were given from the various organizations of the church, which showed a successful year.

Mr. B. Seale was promoted to honorary elder, he has been an elder since before church union. Mr. Russell Reid was appointed to be an acting elder and all officers were re-elected for the coming year.

Mr. Don Chisholm and Mr. Harold Meeks were appointed to be on the pastoral relations committee.

Several items of business were discussed and Mr. Nicolls thanked all who helped so faithfully during the past year.

Y.P.U. MEETING

The regular meeting of the combined Young People's Unions of Foxboro, Marsh Hill and Halloway United Churches were held at Foxboro, recently. A good attendance indicated the increased interest among the young people.

The worship service, in charge of Ray Finkle and Gwenda Clancy was in keeping, with the theme of the meeting, "Temperance."

Excellent talks were given by Bill Tufts and Ted Arthurs, delegates to the Toc Alpha Conference held in Toronto during Christmas holidays. Both boys felt it had been a worthwhile experience. A movie shown by Rev. Robt. Reid dealt in humorous fashion with problems associated with modern living as encountered by a visitor from outer space. Members were grouped for a brief "buzz" session, the topics dealing with youthful behavior, regarding drinking.

Reports of the discussions were presented by the group leaders, John Marvin, Elizabeth Finkle, Barbara Scott and Diane Andrews.

President Ray Stephens gave the planning committee report. The next two meetings (February) will be held at Halloway. The date of meeting was advanced to 7.30 and it was suggested that members should be at least 14 years of age and have completed their elementary school education. At the next meeting February 2, Cpl. Howting of the Ontario Provincial Investigation Branch will give an illustrated talk which promises to be of interest to all drivers. Young people of the district are invited.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Marmora Chapter Approves Canadian Red Ensign Flag

MARMORA — Mrs. Eugene Brady was hostess for the January meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. Mrs. G. Meldrum presided over a well-attended meeting.

Some time was spent discussing the forthcoming Red Ensign celebration of the Red Ensign as the national flag of Canada. Women throughout the land are urged to write their member of parliament and state they favor the Red Ensign.

Convener of Education, Mrs. D. Marsh, read a letter from the chapter's adopted school at Davis Inlet, Labrador. The lack of facilities and book load for one man aroused deep interest. A parcel of supplies will be sent immediately. Contributions may be left at Marsh's store.

A committee to bring in the 1964 slate of officers was named as follows: Miss Miriam Sawyer, Mrs. Howard Rebecker and Mrs. Kathleen Barnum.

The annual meeting will take the form of a dinner meeting

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Well, it's not MY idea of a rock garden!"

Naturalists View Film Of Partridge

The January meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists was held at the Entomology Laboratory, Dundas Street East, with an excellent attendance. Miss Joy Nichols chaired the meeting. After hearing the usual reports, plans were made for the dinner meeting in February at Holloway Street Church.

Some interesting correspondence was read concerning a request for a praying mantis to go to Alberta, to Mr. Hedley James. Two were sent and instructions for their care and feeding. In spite of the fact they did not live too long, 27 letters from grade Three students were received back and were most interesting.

Mr. Irwin Knight gave a comprehensive account of the directors' meeting recently attended by him.

Miss Nichols introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. James Bayly, of Brockville, who is well known in this district. He showed a film "the Life History of a Hungarian Partridge." Part of this film was taken outside Belleville. The Hungarian partridge was introduced to North America during the period 1910 to 1920. They thrived in the west, also near Brockville. They are generally found in a flat gay belt.

This film took almost four years to take and required patience and might at times have become frustrating.

These birds will sometimes peck away down through several inches of snow to the grass.

It took two years to locate the nest of the Hunz. Almost as many there were five eggs in the nest. In the spring they are very active in contrast to the winter when they are very sedate.

It was interesting to watch flushing the Hunz, with tin cans on a rope and a man on each end holding the rope and going through the field. They do not flush readily, and hunters need a dog for help. They are not keen on flying, as their arm muscles are weak. They are well insulated with feathers and fluff covering the feet. Some of the Lands and Forests men were shown at work, and the method of banding the birds shown.

A fund of information was revealed in this film and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Miss E. Daly. A social hour was spent over a cup of coffee.

Home and School News

DESERONTO — Children make the telephone their favorite object of expression was the observation of Mrs. Evelyn McGreer, kindergarten teacher of the Napanee Public School in her address to the Deseronto Home and School Association.

"My children will talk freely with a toy telephone in their hands," said Mrs. McGreer. "but words fall them once they put the toy down."

The area of children's playthings provided a fascinating section of the schoolteacher's talk. Mrs. McGreer pointed out the growing effect of television on the play-acting of children.

The game of doctor and nurse used in the kindergarten class was primarily designed to teach cleanliness to the children, she said. "But now the doctor is to become Dr. Casey or Dr. Kildare."

The area of rockets and space travel has also effected the play world. Where the kindergarten teacher once used counting songs to teach numbers now she finds the children using the count-down in their own-make believe space craft.

"It is because of this," she said, "that many old games, toys and books are meaningless to the five year old today. Rocket and space travel are part of their life so they accept them. And although environment has changed children have basic

BASIC NEED

In outlining her task as teacher Mrs. McGreer indicated that teaching children to think was basic to their needs. This enables them to control their environment and adjust naturally.

She said her specific work was to introduce the readiness program. She described this program as the conditioning of the child for Grade One through the training, visual skills, speech, literacy, and other experiences. High on her list was the development of the reading skill through the arousing of interest in books and a desire to read.

Mrs. McGreer stressed the latter as being basic to the continuing needs of the child through the whole schooling program.

President William Kells conducted the business meeting held in the Deseronto Public School. St. Valentine's Day tea was announced for Wednesday, February 12, to be held at the home of Mrs. M. Lush on Green Street.

Congregational Meetings

ST. MARK'S CHURCH

DESERONTO — The annual meeting of the vestry of St. Mark's Church was held on Monday night with Mr. Arthur Brim acting as vestry clerk and the Rev. James M.O. Soutter presiding. Major item of business was the problem of heating the church building.

It was indicated by the Rector that for some time the furnace had been operating less than efficiently. This made it difficult to heat the parish hall. As a result the vestry was being held in the church.

During the course of the meeting it became evident that the heating problem had extended its influence to the activities of the Sunday and week day schools. The Rector stated that the nursery school had been inoperative for some time and the Wednesday noon Crusaders' Hour cancelled until sufficient heat could be extended to the hall. In addition the lack of heat had caused a break in the water-pipe in the kitchen.

On motion of the vestry the Rector was instructed to arrange for needed repairs.

NEW WARDEN

Under elections and appointments the vestry voted to have Mr. Tom Jackson act as a warden for the coming year. Mr. Soutter appointed Alec Adams to be the other warden. The appointment of a secretary-treasurer was left, under the canon to the wardens. Mr. Clarence Thompson had filled the post for 1963 but was unable to continue in the job for personal reasons.

It was decided that the vestry should leave the appointment of canon secretary to the wardens. Mr. Robert Whatsam of Ideal Vanders was appointed auditor for 1964.

In the election for lay delegate to fill the three year term Don vestry voted to re-appoint Mr. Arthur Brim.

In the reports of organizations the Rector stated the absence of the Afternoon Guild which had voluntarily ceased functioning during 1963. He pointed out that the Guild had recognized that its members were becoming too old to serve as an organization and had therefore voted to disband. Mr. Soutter expressed the thanks of the vestry for their past service to the work of the church.

Highlight of the annual vestry of the congregation of St. Mark's Church held on Monday night was the indication by the Rector that the previous year had shown marked improvement in spite of some popular expression to the contrary.

RECTOR'S ADDRESS

Utilizing his report to the congregation for this purpose Mr. Soutter pointed out that in spite of a "mid-year drought of membership" a slow "fall" Deseronto had fared better financially than expected. He pointed out that receipts for 1963 were only $300 short of 1962.

The real tale to be told, he added, was in the expenditures for the year where figures would show a large amount of money being used to meet debts from the previous year of 1962.

In addressing the congregation Father Soutter indicated his reluctance to dwell on those events of the past year that had done little good for the church. He stated that the local issues concerning the school and town government had caused some to cut off their support of the local congregation.

"In spite of this the response of the people had been encouraging," he said, and further indicated that he felt there was a new spirit alive in the church.

He praised those who had rallied to do their church's work in the latter part of the year and expressed his delight in seeing this work continued. He specially mentioned Mrs. Fletcher Vick of Fourth Street who had opened her home regularly for the use of the congregation as a place for their sunday parties.

Mr. Soutter went on to show how the resignation of the officers of the Evening Guild had opened the opportunity for the re-organization of the church Guild that had been formed first in the year 1888. That Guild, he said, composed itself of men and women. Since the fall's activities he had counted 38 members of the congregation, husbands and wives, who had offered themselves as members of the new Guild.

Although Mr. Soutter praised the congregation for their increasing support he pointed out that they had done nothing to support the outside church.

"I consider it a shameful thing," he said, "that we have not paid a cent toward the Diocesan Budget Assessment of $1795. We have centred our work upon ourselves. And though there may be some argument in favor of this the fact remains that we have done nothing to support the work of the church in the Diocese, in Canada, or overseas."

The rector concluded his remarks with an appeal to his congregation to exercise their ministries as individuals. "This is an age of transition," he stated. "The church is coming to a new age and its understanding of itself, an understanding that is breaking down some of our most cherished ideas of what the church and its ministry should be.

"We must be ready to change with the church. We need to reassess our role as ministers and the role of the layman as well. It is not easy to change. But our age is calling for it more than any other age has.

"We need to rediscover old friendships, heal old wounds, set our own needs aside in order to meet the challenge being presented us. Only then we will become the church working out its life in the community."

VARIOUS REPORTS

The reports of the Little Helpers and Women's Auxiliary were tendered by Mrs. W. Crabbe. There are now over thirty members in the Little Helpers, an organization that comes under the wing of the Auxiliary. Membership in the Women's Auxiliary totalled 18.

The rector said that the membership of the congregation was a little less than last year but that this year's figures would be more accurate still.

It was pointed out that the Easter offering of 1963 was the highest in the life of the church at $225.25. Two adults and four children had been baptized in 1963 while 19 candidates received the laying-on-of-hands from the Bishop at Confirmation.

Debenture payments had amounted to one in December of 1963 with two in January of this year another four to come.

At a meeting of the wardens and rector after the vestry it was decided that the insurance covering the church and its buildings would be collected under one policy as had been suggested by the company.

Homemade Cracked Wheat Bread

by Mary Moore

Gladys S. asks "Would you have a recipe for Cracked Wheat Bread? We do not care for the whole wheat flavour. Do I use the cracked wheat which is used for cereal?"

This question brought me up short for I discovered I did not have a recipe for Cracked Wheat Bread to send to Gladys. I promptly got a bag of the cracked wheat which is used for cereal and started making bread again. A slice lies in front of me on my desk as I write. I think there are hundreds of you who will welcome it.

CRACKED WHEAT BREAD
(2 loaves)

1 (or 2) package granular yeast, ¼ cup lukewarm water,
1 teaspoon sugar,
1½ cups scalded milk (or warm water (or warm potato water),
3 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons honey,
1 teaspoon salt,
3 tablespoons shortening,
5½-6 cups sifted white flour,
1½ cups cracked wheat.

Scald milk. In large mixing bowl add the 1 teaspoon sugar to the ¼ cup lukewarm water, sprinkle yeast on top, give it one stir and let stand 10 minutes. As soon as milk reaches scalding point, remove from heat and add sugar, honey, salt and shortening. Let cool to lukewarm and add to risen yeast liquid. Add the cracked wheat and 5 cups of the sifted white flour and knead until smooth and elastic. (I kneaded my dough with the dough hook in the Kenwood Chef.)

Let rise at room temperature for 4 hours. (Note: If 2 packages of yeast are used rising time is shorter.)

Sprinkle bread board with remaining ½ cup white flour and punch down dough and knead at least 100 times. Cut dough in half, shape into 2 loaves, put into 2 greased loaf pans, grease tops and let rise, covered, until at least 1" above rims of pans. (Note: My dough was ready for shaping at about 10 p.m. so I covered it and shoved it into the refrigerator overnight. In morning it took 6 hours at room temperature to rise sufficiently after being so thoroughly chilled.)

Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes or until when tapped with fingertips loaf sounds hollow. Turn out of pans and cool on racks.

Two lovely loaves with little nutty nuggets of cracked wheat which give it a delicious flavor and chewiness.

The Experts Say
Can Learn to Skate, Ski As Soon as Able to Walk

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Children can learn to skate and ski soon after they learn to walk. In fact, the younger the better, provided they learn under expert tuition, says a federal health department fitness director.

Mothers watching their five-year-olds take the falls and knocks of learning to skate, or awkward spills in the early stages of skiing, needn't worry about accidents as long as the children are properly clothed and equipped, says C. S. Glew, acting assistant director of the health department's fitness and amateur sports directorate.

It is important also that young children learning to skate or ski be supervised at all times by adults.

Although many children start at a much younger age, girls learn to skate most easily when they are between five and seven, and boys between nine and 11. The latter find it more difficult to concentrate at an early age than girls, particularly when they are learning the sport of figure skating.

MUST CONCENTRATE

But in general, says Mr. Glew, boys skate at an earlier age than girls because of their interest in hockey.

Before the ages recommended, the average child has not developed enough natural will-power to concentrate seriously on instruction and practice.

Mr. Glew says many Canadian children are learning to ski and skate at three or four years of age and in many European countries children learn the sport as soon as they can walk.

"The earlier in life that youngsters master the basic skills associated with these sports the more enjoyment and satisfaction they will derive in adult life."

Proper equipment for either skating or skiing is very important for a beginner. Parents are urged to make sure their children are fitted by an experienced outfitter with skates of the proper type and size, or with properly fitted skis and boots.

If you are teaching your children either of these winter sports, it is wise to remember that youngsters are usually completely fearless and unaware of the various dangers that might be present.

They should be closely supervised until they are old enough to realize that pond ice is sometimes too thin for skating, and that certain slopes are too steep for a novice skier.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

No man is one man, but many. We change our moods and move from the ridiculous to the sublime, from the depths to the heights, from sadness to joy. Because we are growing all the time, whether we know it or not, we are different people at different times.

Tradition has it that Solomon wrote three books, each very different from the other. When he was young, he authored, it is claimed, "The Song of Songs." Here is a book aflame with the joy and the love of life, a sentimental, passionate fire glows through all of its pages.

But Solomon, too, was more than one man. When he reached his middle years, he wrote another book — "Proverbs". Here he speaks with the mellowness of ripening maturity. Love is the wild flower of unabashed joy; now he listens in the evening, measured accents of sobriety and balanced judgment. Solomon no longer sings — he advises and counsels. He is busy weighing the sorrows of life, its disappointments and frustrations. Now an older and wiser observer and not an impulsive participant, he can tell others the rules of the game he no longer plays.

But then, Solomon, like us, became still another person. He grew older still — and unwisely succumbed to cynical withdrawal. He looks backward, not forward, and declaring all of life to be vain, sadly tells those who would leap ahead that there is really nothing new under the sun. His third book — Ecclesiastes — demonstrates his growing detachment from life and is soaked up with the unhappy prejudices of old age. Now his thoughts are shot through with a sense of impending doom and a reek with the heavy scents of despair and morbidity. He must have had so much to say at this eager time of his life — so much more than ever before — but time has cooled his ardour and the bloom is off. The very thing he once counselled against, he now plumps for.

Solomon has lessons to teach. We, too, are many, not one. As we grow older, let us remember that there was a time when we were able to write our own song of songs. We, too, were filled with the joy and the surprise of life and the sweetness of love. Let us not grow so old, so jaded and faded, that we forget the sweet songs we once sang.

Once, too, we wrote our Book of Proverbs. As we matured, we understood more clearly than before, the need for balanced judgment, for deeper insight, for sober analysis.

As we grow older, let us remember not to grow old, not to lose our balance; not to become over-run with the cobwebs of time that we cannot see life before us. Let us remember to use our wisdom wisely, not to scoff but to continue to marvel. Older age can also be a time for sweetness, not for doom, gloomy harshness which stabs at the world and then runs into a corner to watch it die.

Youth is a time for love, but so is all other time. The real wisdom would lead us to grow in depth as we grow in years. We need to have and to know old things in new ways — ways we never understood or appreciated fully, before.

Man at 94 Lives Alone In House He Built Himself

TRINITY, Nfld. (CP)—James Kelly is 94 and he lives alone, cooking for himself in the house he built with his own hands 45 years ago.

Many here wonder why he prefers to live by himself. But those who know him well say it is the same independence that in his youth drove him to carve a living from the Newfoundland forest with axe and pitsaw.

Mr. Kelly's son, Israel, who lived in a separate section of the house until recently, has since moved his family to the airport town of Gander, 200 miles from here, where there is steady work.

Mr. Kelly wouldn't go. His sharp figure, leaning occasionally on a cane, can be seen as he makes his way slowly along the narrow paths of this sleepy community of 600 on his visits to friends.

His wintry face, only slightly lined by decades of hard work on land and at sea in vessels he built himself, readily breaks into a smile for friends. Brash attempts by others to engage him in local gossip are met by a granite silence.

WINTERED IN WOODS

The modern world leaves him slightly confused. He watches some television but describes cartoons as "the devil's work." There is no telling from his expression whether he is serious or not.

One of his greatest joys is perhaps sitting before a fire with a hot cup of tea or a glass of heady blueberry wine and yarning with people he knows are interested.

He recounts incidents of a half-forgotten time when this now lethargic village was the centre of a thriving fishing industry and foreign trade.

It was a time when the skills of a master carpenter from nearby Pope's Harbor were in great demand.

It was a time when a spirited lad could parlay a season's wages of $30 into an independent way of life, if he had the stamina to spend the winter in a smoky lean-to in the forest, choosing and cutting timber.

The timber, sawed by hand into planks, could be fashioned into a schooner. The lad, if he had been observant enough while growing up in an atmosphere that reeked of ships and the sea, could rig the schooner and make the sails.

This Mr. Kelly did, and with provisions enough to last the summer he sailed and navigated the schooner 500 miles north to the rich fishing on the Labrador coast.

At the age of 20 Mr. Kelly was a shipowner, a shipmaster and his own boss. Fortunately the fishing was good that year and the market price was high.

From then on Mr. Kelly was independent. He still is.

He built one last boat when he was 75 and continued to work at house-building, cabinet-making and other carpentry for several years afterward.

When he was 80 he fell sick and was expected to die. He recovered completely.

"I'm ready whenever the Lord is," he says, but wishes he could work till that time comes. "My mind is clear, I still know how to build a boat but my arms are too trembly and my legs too weak."

Will Study Hockey Players' Grant Transfers

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Education Minister Davis has appointed a committee to study the problem of grant transfers for tuition of hockey players attending high schools other than their home-town schools, Mayor W. A. Barrie said Wednesday.

Mayor Barrie said he was in Toronto Tuesday, accompanied by Ron K. McNeil, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Elgin, and outlined the problem as it relates to the St. Thomas Barons hockey team and the central Elgin district high school board.

Mayor Barrie said: "Mr. Davis told us that he was well aware of the situation in St. Thomas and had received representations from other Ontario areas.

"We asked him to consider altering the regulations to allow the transfer of grants, or allow the players to be considered residents during their 10-month stay in the city."

The problem between the St. Thomas hockey club and the school board is a fee of $35 a month for hockey playing students attending the Arthur Vaden secondary school and $58 a month for those attending the Elgin Collegiate Institute.

A $3,028 bill for Barons' hockey players, accumulated over the last two seasons, is outstanding and the school board has given notice that the players will not be allowed to attend classes after Jan. 31if the account is not paid.

Says Seaway Is Behind $65,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says in an Ottawa dispatch that the St. Lawrence Seaway authority is about $65,000,000 behind scheduled repayment of interest on its government loans and it is going deeper into debt.

The story says authority officials are evaluating their repayment program in an effort to come up with a refinancing suggestion.

The authority and its United States counterpart, the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, have both suffered similar financial setbacks and must negotiate an answer for their respective governments by July 1, the Globe says.

The story quotes informed sources in Ottawa as saying the authority's financing of its $345,000,000 in 1954 was through borrowing from the federal treasury at the going rate of 4% per cent.

The seaway authority is said to have repaid some $17,500,000, but this amount is far below the scheduled repayment program.

Gift Gesture Wrong But Intentions Good

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband died 13 years ago. Yesterday would have been our 30th wedding anniversary, had he lived.

I tried to keep myself occupied all day so I wouldn't think about it. Eventually went well until about 4:00 p.m. when a department store delivery truck pulled up in the driveway. A close friend of mine had the nerve to send me a full set of china as a golden anniversary gift. I was shocked at first, then just plain hurt. I cried all night.

This morning I re-packed the dishes, called the store and asked them to come and get the box. I just this minute finished talking to my son on the telephone. He said I was wrong to return the gift. Was I? How can people be so cruel? I'd like your opinion. — RESENTFUL.

DEAR RESENTFUL — A woman who would send a full set of china as a gift may be mistaken but she was not trying to be cruel. Fault her judgment, but remember the gift was intended as a token of friendship.

I hope you will phone her soon or drop a note and apologize for returning the dishes. Tell her you were not thinking clearly that day and now you realize she was trying to be kind.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are two high school seniors who are writing about another girl in our class. We will call her Miss X, although Mrs. X would be more appropriate because she is married.

Very few people know about her marriage. We happened to find out as the result of a strange coincidence which I won't take time to go into here.

The question is this: Mrs. X's husband went into the Army shortly after the marriage. Since he was shipped overseas three months ago she has had more dates than any three girls in our class. Mrs. X is living at home with her parents and they don't have the slightest idea that she is married.

We think her husband is getting a raw deal and that he ought to know his wife is running around town like a single girl. A cousin of mine is in his outfit. Should I get the word to him? — POSSIBLE PIPELINE.

DEAR POSSIBLE — Keep the word to yourself. The poor guy will learn the glad tidings one of these days all by himself. When the cry does hit the fan you'll be glad you had nothing to do with it. This is not the sort of news you send to a man overseas, via a cousin or anyone else.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 22-year-old daughter plans to be engaged when her fiance graduates from college in June. Something has been bothering her and she has asked me to help her decide.

The girl is attractive and has the world's sunniest disposition. She has a host of friends and no one thinks of her as handicapped. Nevertheless she had polio when she was a youngster and the disease left her with a slight limp and a shrivelled arm.

Her fiance wants to buy her an engagement ring. She doesn't know whether or not she wants a ring because it is her left arm that is crippled. Although she has never been self-conscious she would not like to call attention to her deformity by wearing an engagement ring. May we have your opinion? — Q. T.

DEAR Q. T. — Your daughter should not hesitate to accept an engagement ring. If she would be more comfortable about wearing the ring on her right hand by all means suggest that she do so.

betrayed the November revolution and had shown neutralist tendencies.

Saigon's civilian population took the upheaval in stride. People went about their business as usual.

Khanh in a broadcast said that three days after the revolution against Diem, "the political, economic, and social situation, especially in the countryside, still offers no promising prospect for the country. . . .

"The armed forces are determined to continue the (November) revolution and to fulfil the aspirations of the nation . . . to restore security and order . . . to place the country on a free democratic basis with the assistance of the population."

RADIO TELLS PEOPLE

Saigon radio said the coup was staged to eliminate "certain elements who support the colonialist and communist policy to neutralize South Viet Nam."

"The new revolutionary government will work to reform the country, wipe out conspirators and establish the nation on a basis of democracy," the radio said.

"The standing committee of the revolutionary military committee formed on Nov. 1 last year lacked the ability to deal with the nation's internal and external problems and therefore has been dissolved. The new chairman of the standing committee is Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander of the 1st Corps. This decision is effective today, Jan. 30."

Khanh also promoted himself, apparently so he would outrank the other generals in the army. He and the rest had been major-generals.

Yukon Company That Thrives on Dust Worried

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — A two-year-old Yukon company that thrives on dust is worried.

Northern Vision Packers sells "genuine Alaska Highway dust," a product that could become extinct if the 1,500-mile gravel highway from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, is paved, an increasingly strong possibility.

Northern Vision was formed in 1962 by Bob Eriam, now publisher of the Whitehorse Star, Flo Wayard, housewife - writer, and John Scott, mining engineer.

Setting up a 300 home canning machine in Mr. Scott's backyard, the firm began turning out tins of "Yukon Choice Brand Genuine Highway Dust" for tourists to take home as reminders of their Alaska Highway journey.

"Relive that exhilarating thrill of driving the Alaska Highway," reads the orange label on each can. "Stand in front of your electric fan on a hot day and pour the contents of this can slowly into the whirling blades. This mixture is recommended for obscuring licence plates and dimming headlights."

The company guaranteed its product: "Absolutely unadulterated. If after eating a tin of this genuine Alaska Highway Dust you are not satisfied it is similar to the dust you ate on Alaska Highway, we will supply you with another tin at cost."

INSTANT MUD

The can also carries a recipe for "genuine instant mud";

"To the contents of this can add an equal volume of rain water. Mix thoroughly. For special deluxe mixture, add 3 or 4 drops of used crankcase oil. Mix it in your drinks for that dramatic toast, 'Here's mud in your eye.'"

Each tin costs Northern Vision about 30 cents. Selling price is 99 cents—"22 off regular high price," says the label.

To date the company had sold 1,200 tins through stores along the highway. Another 300 are in storage for this year's tourist season.

The business has been profitable. After its first year of operation NVP declared a $10 dividend.

Mr. Eriam says that if Northern Vision is denied dust by virtue of Alaska Highway paving it should receive compensation from the government.

"We feel that we have built up a good product. The government should compensate us for doing us out of business. We're about the only manufacturing company in the Yukon."

The company also is preparing a new product: "Genuine 60-below weather. Refrigerate before use."

Australia's D - Day, the changeover from pounds, shillings and pence to decimal currency, is expected to fall in February, 1966.

'Ma, There's Elephants In Our Sugar Patch'

COLOMBO (Reuters) — Elephants in Ceylon have developed a sweet tooth and are eating up sugar cane crops.

At Ampara and Kantalai, in the eastern province, where many acres have been opened up for sugar, farmers are finding great difficulty in keeping herds of marauding elephants away.

Every day, a herd of about 50 or more is seen crossing the road at the Ampara Causeway, in the Gal Oya Valley, to get to the sugar plantations.

Farmers have tried every trick they know. But so far the beasts have outwitted them.

Even electrified fences have proved of no avail as the elephants just pull huge branches over the wires and walk over them, unscathed, to reach the sugar.

In the struggle, the gun has been used with disastrous effects on the dwindling elephant population. Not only in Ampara and Kantalai but also in other plantation districts where herds have left their jungle habitats to ruin plantations, the gun is being used freely.

Now, in an effort to save the Ampara herd from being wiped out, a new drive is being planned.

The elephants are to be pushed back a few miles north to the national reserve.

Experts say the elephant in Ceylon is in danger of extinction.

Wildlife experts say the elephant population now is about 900 and that at the present rate of destruction by farmers, sportsmen and ivory hunters, the elephant will be extinct by the turn of the century.

Gordon

tween French and English Canada, Mr. Gordon said English-speaking Canadians "must make an effort of the imagination" to appreciate the position of French-speaking Canadians.

"We need to make this effort because as individuals and as members of a community we have never found it necessary to assert our language and cultural distinctiveness against others."

In addition to the "immense difficulties" of 6,000,000 French-speaking Canadians in preserving their identity in North America, they had only recently achieved the political and social progress in Quebec that other provinces had taken for granted for a long time.

All other Canadians should welcome the decision of Quebec to modernize its social and economic institutions.

Mr. Gordon said national unity has been threatened many times in the past by clashes of racial, regional or economic interests.

Youth Is King in a Cuba Beset by Many Problems

HAVANA (Reuters)—Youth is king today in a Cuba beset by austerity and isolation.

The young leaders of the five-year-old revolution — Premier Fidel Castro himself is only 36 — are placing great emphasis on training "hombres nuevos," the "leaders of tomorrow."

The elite of these will be able to join the United Party of Revolutionary Socialist Cuba, the only political party in Cuba.

The party now has an estimated 25,000 members out of Cuba's population of between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000. Party leaders say they expect to increase membership to about 23,000 in the next two years.

Membership in the party is the prized goal, but being a young student is today almost its own reward in Cuba.

Special privileges include extra rations of eggs and dairy products—which are extremely scarce—food, cheap accommodation and virtually free vacations.

Older students teach younger ones part-time, and teachers and professors themselves are often in their early twenties.

A 28-year-old lawyer serving in the foreign ministry said the emphasis on youth is so strong that when he visits Havana University, where he studied only a few years ago, he feels like a member of a past generation.

Havana is crowded with tens of thousands of students from other parts of the island. Almost all the luxury apartment buildings have been turned into dormitories to help house them. Large private houses in residential suburbs such as Miramar have been taken over as dormitories, or converted into schools, as the former owners leave them.

"Guasnos"—the term literally means worms—as opponents of the regime are called, are allowed, almost encouraged, to leave the country but must forfeit all their possessions in Cuba, including houses.

Latest estimates place more than 150,000 Cuban exiles in Florida alone, mostly from the professional and middle classes.

Three-year conscription was recently ordered for men aged 17 to 45. Women aged 17 to 25 must also register for the draft in the event of an emergency.

Until conscription, most young men and women voluntarily joined the militia. Under this system, they were given 15 days basic training and then served as guards and drivers for a three-hour duty once every 11 days.

Sports are strongly encouraged in Castro's Cuba. Soccer, baseball and track and field are the favorites.

Cuban youths are very chess-minded, and almost every large office or government department has a chess tournament going. J. R. Capablanca, Cuban former world champion, is a national hero.

Computers Will Replace Women He Says

VANCOUVER (CP)—Women will lose their jobs to computers, says Max Pierotti, business agent for the Vancouver City Hall Employees Association.

He told the office administrators association of B.C. Monday:

"The machines are much more efficient.

"The entire office structure will feel the machine takeover. Routine jobs will become more routine and the middle class of clerical work will no longer exist."

Mr. Pierotti, who has taken courses at several universities on the problems of automation, asked: "And why hire women when machines will work an economical 20 hours a day with no errors and little cost?"

Moscow to Make Next Move In Training Plane Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — State department authorities said today it is up to Moscow to make the next move in the U.S.-Soviet dispute over an American training plane downed by the Russians in East Germany.

Without some Soviet help—which has not yet been forthcoming—the U.S. government says it cannot provide details about the incident Tuesday which cost the lives of three U.S. Air Force officers, they said.

Washington and Moscow traded protests Wednesday. The Kremlin sent a note saying a Soviet fighter downed the T-39 jet trainer over 60 miles inside Communist East Germany after it failed to heed warning signals. The note accused the U.S.- military of "gross provocation" by intruding into Communist air space.

U.S. RETALIATES

The state department charged the Soviets with "a callous and unprovoked brutal act of violence against an unarmed aircraft that accidentally strayed over the territory of the border between West and East Germany."

It demanded U.S. access to the plane wreckage, recovery of the flyers' bodies and punishment of those responsible for the shooting down of the aircraft and the killing of these men."

Meanwhile, U.S. Air Force officers here suggested the Russians probably suspected the plane had been having navigation and radio troubles.

They said warnings to the plane to stay away from Communist air space were radioed when the authorities the Russians are known to monitor.

In Pittsburgh where he was on his campaign trail Wednesday night, Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep., Ariz.) told a press conference his first question that comes to my mind is what was a training plane doing over Communist East Germany country when you're not supposed to be then you can expect things like this."

MAKES PROTEST

Assistant Secretary of State William Tyler called in the ranking Soviet diplomat here, Georgi M. Kornienko, and delivered the U.S. rejoinder orally.

Kornienko told reporters afterward: "I did not accept the protest." He termed the U.S. flight deliberate, saying: "We have all grounds to believe that this was not an error or a mistake."

State department authorities took the line that Kornienko had in fact received the protest because he listened to it.

They said representatives from the U.S. military mission in Potsdam, East Germany, had been prevented from going closer than 200 yards to the crashed plane.

DIDN'T REPLY

Because of inability to induce the trainer or to get details from the Soviets from the Standpoint of East-West relations, the Soviet shooting of a U.S. RB-47 reconnaissance plane over the Barents Sea in July, The United States said that plane was attacked over international waters.

When queried on the attack on the jet trainer Tuesday was not known here. There was some speculation that the decision may have been made by a local commander.

Says Report On Vessel Exaggerated

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Dr. W. M. English, director of the Bedford Institute of Oceanography, has described as "exaggerated" an Ottawa report that the 400-foot Canadian Soviet Hudson has broken down and is being towed to port here.

Dr. English said the Hudson had experienced some trouble "with one of her propulsion motors" but was proceeding to Halifax under her own power "at seven or eight knots."

The research vessel, built in Saint John, N.B., and launched in December, is scheduled to be commissioned in mid-February, pointed to London in 1967.

Shulman Says Letters Prove Interference

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton P. Shulman, chief coroner of Metropolitan Toronto, Wednesday sent letters to Premier Robarts which the coroner says will prove there has been "political interference" in the operation of the metro coroners system and attempts to suppress evidence.

He said he included letters sent to himself by Attorney-General Cass, Benny H. Bull, Crown attorney for Metropolitan Toronto and York County, and M. Beatty Cotnam, supervising coroner for Ontario.

The letters deal with Dr. Shulman's decision to subpoena federal civil servants to testify at an inquest last May into the drowning of Louis Pisecny, 30, of Toronto.

Dr. Shulman last Monday called for a public inquiry into the alleged interference by Deputy Attorney-General William Common told reporters he had recommended Monday that Shulman's post be abolished.

Dr. Shulman also said Wednesday he has requested an appointment with Premier Robarts and has written a letter to Attorney-General Cass explaining his position.

House of Lords Will Hear Thomson Speak

BY ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Publisher Roy Thomson will probably take his seat in the House of Lords in about a month—and he should make the rafters ring.

He plans to speak often on a wide range of subjects.

"I make no claim to speak on behalf of Canada but I think I can modestly say that I know more about Canada than many other people here and am able to interpret the country to Britain if a way that has not previously been done," Thomson told a reporter.

It was announced in the New Year's honors list that a barony has been conferred on the 70-year-old publisher.

For the moment, he is still plain Roy Thomson. The name he will be known by as a member of the peerage is still under discussion with Sir Anthony Wagner, garter king of arms and chief officer at the College of Heralds.

MAY BE HYPHENED

In two or three weeks, if all goes well, the patient making the title effective will be issued. This is a large red document with a red seal. His new name will then be known.

"The date of the patent is the date you officially become a peer," he said.

Soon after that he will make first appearance in the Lords. Accompanied by two sponsors, not yet chosen, he will present his credentials, take part in a brief ceremony and then be escorted to his seat.

Apart from speaking in the Lords on Canadian subjects, Thomson expects to make speeches about the United States and the developing countries of the Commonwealth, particularly Africa. He has a newspaper and television interests in both the U.S. and Africa.

JOHNSON RETALIATES

President Johnson has met this accusation with a declaration that U.S. troops, faced by sniper fire and mob action, repelled aggression rather than committed it.

Riots in the Canal Zone led to a rupture in U.S.-Panama relations. The Inter - American Peace Committee, an arm of the OAS, has been trying to mediate the dispute. This effort ended in failure Wednesday.

Shortly before the breakdown, President John son conferred with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders. Morse held up on delivering the note while this session was under way.

Panama has remained firm on its demand that the United States pledge it will sign a new treaty to replace the 1903 agreement which gave it rights to the canal in perpetuity.

At first, the United States refused to mention the canal in any agreement to the talks. Later it agreed to seek with Panama a mutually acceptable solution of all problems dividing both countries, including those deriving from the existence of the Panama Canal."

Adults Should Enjoy Books For Children

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Adults should be able to enjoy good children's books, says Mrs. Margaret Beckman, controversial member of the Waterloo library board.

Mrs. Beckman stirred up a library debate last week when she criticized books such as Nancy Drew, the Bobbsey Twins and the Hardy Boy series.

She called them literary garbage and said they were poorly written and that she would not be recommended to children.

Instead, she added in an interview Wednesday, her list of recommended children's books would include Sheila Burnford's The Incredible Journey, Kenneth Grahame's The Wind in the Willows and Richard and Florence Atwater's Mr. Popper's Penguins.

"These books are of enduring worth and well written, well planned."

Asks No Tax, Or Highway Costs Increase

TORONTO (CP)—The Automotive Transport Association of Ontario today asked for no increase in motor vehicle taxes and no increase in the motorists' share of highway costs.

The association, which represents about 70,000 drivers, suggested in a brief to the Ontario government on taxation, that individual consumers bear the cost of Ontario's 77,000 miles of highways.

The brief said motor vehicle owners derive little or no benefit from the roads whose predominant purpose is to develop the province's economical potential.

The association also asked that there be no "diversion" of motor vehicle tax receipts to non-highway purposes—such as subways and rail commuter services.

It's Hard to Grow Old -- If You Can Afford It

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is hard to tell the age of men and women today.

There is a conspiracy to stop time.

Grey hair is tinted another color, cosmetics give a youthful complexion, diet keeps figures trim, and—for those who can afford it—plastic surgeons remove telltale wrinkles.

But you're no longer a spring chicken if you can remember when:

There were two things you could be sure of: (1) Nobody would ever climb Mount Everest, and (2) No man would ever run a four-minute mile—as both feats were beyond human endurance.

Girls wore dresses so short you could see their rolled stockings or a breezy day.

A pet dog ate the scraps from the family table, and didn't require a special menu of its own.

Most watchmen wore white shirts only on Saturday nights and Sundays.

The biggest goal of a small boy was to learn to whistle shrilly through his teeth with two fingers stuck in his mouth.

Young ladies used to sit in the backseat with a lap robe wrapped around their necks and let the hot sun dry their long hair—which, naturally, they washed themselves.

ASK FOR CENTRAL

When you wanted to get someone on the phone, you first crooned, or asked for "central," and then gave the number you wanted.

When you made a long-distance call, you kept an eggtimer in front of you to be sure you wouldn't talk more than three minutes and run up the bill.

Everybody broke out cryin' the blues, the telegraph boy knocked on the door. You knew for sure the message was probably news of a death or illness of some loved one far away.

Mothers always wore aprons to work on a cold day.

When anyone was sick in the house, neighbor ladies always baked fresh bread and sent it over.

A lad's knowledge that his grandparents are old and might die at any time was compensated for by the hope that he might get the old man's watch.

Children studied reading, writing and arithmetic in school—instead of social adjustment and group adaptability.

Ruffians hesitated about tripping you in the purses of little old ladies, because little old ladies also had long, nerve-tingling hatpins.

It was the height of romantic ecstasy to let your girl's foot as you both pumped the player piano in the living room.

Half the young sports in town were growing sideburns and sticking them down their hair so they'd look more like Rudolph Valentino.

Remember? If you do, don't admit it.

Farmers' Union Holds Meeting

ROSLIN — The January meeting of the Ontario Farmers' Union, Local 163, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Farrell with a good attendance.

The president, Mr. Carman Gibson, was in charge. The meeting opened with a singsong, after which the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Wes Farrell.

Several items of business were discussed. Mr. Clifford McKenzie reported on the board meeting at Springbrook Mr. Wes Farrell and Mrs. Carman Gibson were appointed to canvass for new members.

An interesting program followed with readings by Mrs. Meeks, Mrs. William Bates and Mrs. Fred Wannamaker, solos by Mrs. Douglas Farrell, and a questionnaire on safety conducted by Mr. Wesley Farrell. F. Howes gave a talk on her recent trip to Prince George, B.C.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Gibson. A delicious lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

Seek to Sell Engineering Service Abroad

OTTAWA (CP) — The trade department, which has used Canada House, to promote sales of sports of goods, now is using the technique to promote exports of Canadian engineering services.

It announced Wednesday it is sending three groups of consulting engineers next month on missions to southeast Asia, Africa and Central America.

It's hoped, however, that new export sales of consulting engineering equipment may also result from the employment of Canadian engineers in other countries.

Trade Minister Sharp said in a statement that this is the first time the department has sponsored missions to study potential overseas sales opportunities for consulting engineering services.

The announcement noted that long-term export financing from the federal government is available for engineering services as well as for capital equipment.

mean that the high-cost groups would necessarily be charged the maximum premium, although insurers in the pools would be required to pay in the maximum.

CHIA said all insurers should be required to join the over-65s pool but could get out of the under-65 group if the insured could show it was carrying a fair share of these high - cost subscribers.

OMA argued for insuring the fully subsidized needy under the present Ontario medical welfare plan, which the OMA runs with government funds because it has worked well and is administratively simple.

"It is quite important for these people that there be simple machinery that they can understand," said Dr. Patrick Bruce - Lockhart of Sudbury, past president of the OMA.

The partially subsidized should have "some mark or code" on their insurance contracts so doctors would know enough not to charge them more for a service than their insurance would pay, the OMA said.

'Conscience' Nets Police Six Dollars

WINNIPEG (CP) — City police Wednesday received in the mail an envelope containing $6 cash and the following unsigned letter:

"I am enclosing $6 as a fine which I feel should be paid. A few months ago an associate and myself crossed a street on a red light in order to catch a bus. I now realize that the fine for this is now $2 per offence. Since there were two of us, that makes $4.

"In addition I did the same thing last summer while walking my bicycle across a road on a white light for our kind attention to this matter. Yours sincerely."

Says Funerals Should Stop For Lights

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's traffic safety committee decided Wednesday that funeral processions should not be allowed to go through traffic lights because it causes confusion.

Deputy Police Chief John Murray said the processions, which usually are considered an emergency, were getting to be a problem.

He said he intends to advise funeral directors of the traffic situation, particularly where some motorists may attempt to cheat traffic lights by joining the funeral procession as it moves across an intersection.

Vernon Lane, president of the Ontario Funeral Directors' Association, said in an interview Wednesday the meeting he appreciated the problems but added the committee should work together "or someone will be hurt."

Pro Athletes Should Set Good Example

TORONTO (CP) — Syl Apps, former gentleman's hockey player turned legislator, reminded professional athletes Wednesday of their responsibility to the youth of the country.

The Progressive Conservative member of Stormont, in his maiden speech in the Ontario legislature, said their attention is focused on hockey players and other athletes by the mass media of radio, TV and newspapers.

Youngsters look at them as heroes, he said, and try to copy their actions. For this reason athletic figures must present a good example for youth to follow.

The former all-star centre for Toronto Maple Leafs opened his address by alluding to the Speaker of the legislature as its referee, successor to Speaker Donald H. Morrow on his handling of the house.

But the new member expressed disappointment with accommodating for provincial legislators, saying there was a lack of office space at Queen's Park that was particularly hard on those from outside the Toronto area.

In a reference to his home riding, he mentioned the need for a bridge between Kingston and Wolfe Island. Mr. Apps suggested it would be cheaper and safer to build such a bridge as a centennial project, possibly calling it the Centennial Bridge.

Re-open Probe Of Boy's Murder And 'Confession'

VICTORIA (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner Wednesday ordered a new investigation into the death of a 10-year-old Vernon, B.C., paper boy, Donald Ottley.

Mr. Bonner said police will interview Allan J. Mitchell, Montreal Heathman in Escondale Mental Hospital to determine "what weight, if any, can be given" statement by Heathman that he knows who killed the boy.

Heathman says he knows who murdered somebody we take note of it," the attorney-general added.

Heathman was twice found guilty of the slaying but won a subsequent appeal. He was committed to Essondale after he told a Vancouver newspaper in 1962 that he killed Ottley, though he later repudiated the confession.

Now during his involvement again, Heathman has been cleared by a medical board and is to be released shortly after being held for 20 months.

WAS EXAMINED

Mr. Bonner also disclosed that Dr. Jonathan Rose, department's consulting psychiatrist, examined Heathman last week. Dr. Rose had talked with the Essondale medical board of two medical doctors had Heathman fit for release on probation.

He deplored criticism of Heathman's impending release and attacks by opposition parties in the legislature on B.C.'s mental health services.

Asked for comment on statement by former judge Ian D. Mackenzie, Heathman attacking the release plans, Mr. Bonner said the outspoke "is a man of many talents."

Mr. Bonner said Heathman has been cleared under an appeal system allowed by the Mental Health Act of 1961. The act is based on the best thinking of the day."

Mr. Manson, who sat on the first of the two appeal boards at which Heathman was convicted, blamed the attorney-general's department.

He said he knows of no other case like it in legal history.

SAW NEWER KNOW

In his first interview since his confinement, Heathman, now 40, said he knows who did the killing and so do the people of Vernon.

Of his confession to the newspaper, he said at the time:

"I was drunk most of the time; I was hungry and I was broke.

"I'd have told The Sun anything for $300 or less. Looking back on it now, the worst is the deep hurt I caused the boy's mother."

Mr. Manson said Heathman's release was inevitable.

"It had not come through the decision of a medical board of review, it would have come through habeas corpus or other legal proceedings.

He blamed the attorney-general for failure to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against the decision of the B.C. Court of Appeal to acquit the twice-convicted man.

The other victim, identified as Mrs. Annie Fay Chandler, 35, had been dead about 48 hours, detectives reported. Her throat had been cut.

College of Air Training Turning Out Crack Pilots

By ROD CURRIE

HAMBLE, England (CP)—The second busiest airport in Britain is the back pasture of a grand old family estate near this Hampshire village a few miles from the port city of Southampton.

The College of Air Training, turning out crack young pilots for the country's two major airlines, was opened in 1960. But entrance qualifications are so tough the school has been operating below its capacity 220 cadets.

Because of this the principal, Air Vice-Marshal E. C. Bates, a leathery Australian who retired from the RAF three years ago, is trying to interest Commonwealth countries, particularly Canada and Australia, in sending cadets.

The Australian government has expressed interest and Trans - Canada Air Lines is studying the proposal, says Bates, who interrupted a wartime flying career to supervise the establishment of flying training schools at Calgary and Swift Current, Sask.

COST IS HIGH

But many details would have to be ironed out. For a start, the cost of training a pilot is high — between £5,000 and £6,000 for the two-year course, mainly due to the £35-an-hour cost of flying each of the school's fleets of 24 single-engined Chipmunks and twin-engined Piper Apaches. Last year the school had 105,000 landings and takeoffs—second only to the 112,000 total at London Airport.

Until recent years, British Overseas Airways Corporation and British European Airways relied on the RAF and the Fleet Air Arm for its pilots but this supply virtually disappeared when the services discontinued short-term commissions.

Under the arrangement for British cadets, the government and the two airlines—joint sponsors of the college—pay most of the students' fees. A balance of £750 is left but about 82 per cent of the cadets get government education grants covering most of this.

The high standards are demonstrated by the fact that of about 600 applicants each term, only 100 or fewer are accepted. And between 15 and 20 per cent of these fail, for medical reasons or lack of flying ability, before the course ends.

KEPT UNDER PRESSURE

"We keep them so busy they don't have time for much relaxation," Bates says. "In fact, we keep piling on the work, building up the pressure to just about the breaking point. A pilot is no good if he can't take it—can't keep his head under pressure or in an emergency."

Aside from air studies, there is great emphasis on physical fitness and sports, and additional courses in current affairs or languages.

Along with 223 hours flying time, cadets get 80 hours each in the Link trainer and on instruments and navigation procedures in an electronic trainer that simulates the cockpit of a large airliner—complete with mid-made crises such as sudden icing conditions, engine fires and loss of altitude.

After graduation, the young pilots take a "conversion" course with their airline before taking up appointments as £1,200-a-year second officers. And most of them make the switch from the small college planes to the giants of the sky after about 11 hours flying time.

WORK TOGETHER

Prospect of Lower Tariffs Viewed With Less Concern

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The growing competitive strength of Canadian manufacturers in world markets is easing some of their apprehensions about the prospects of reduced tariff protection.

It is also seen here as reducing the problems that will face Canada's negotiators in the international tariff-cutting talks starting next May at Geneva.

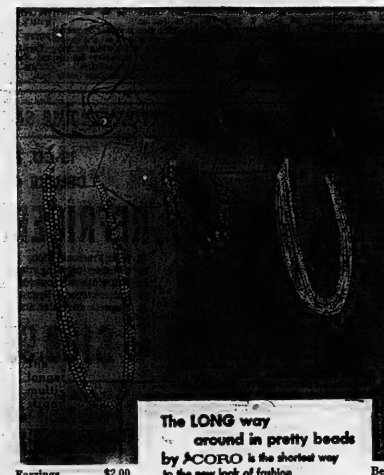
Recent export figures show the strong performance of Canadian secondary manufactured products in expanding their foreign markets.

In the first 11 months of 1963, exports of finished goods were nearly 23 per cent higher than two years earlier. That compared with a growth of 17.4 per cent in all Canadian exports over the same period.

The country's export trade still relies heavily on agricultural products and industrial raw materials, whose output traditionally has been geared to world markets.

PROPORTION RISES

But secondary manufactures are steadily becoming a larger proportion of total exports—8.2 per cent in 1961 and 11.5 per cent last year.



This year Canada will be entering the "Kennedy round" of tariff negotiations under GATT —the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade — at Geneva opening May 4.

Canada is committed to framing concessions in its tariff of equivalent value to the reductions in tariff barriers made by other countries.

Federal trade negotiators soon will be hearing detailed submissions from Canadian industries on the extent to which Canadian tariffs could be cut without causing them serious harm.

The president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, H. Roy Crabtree, has already indicated a general preparedness to see some reduction of this country's trade barriers.

English Northeast Classed Depressed Area But Little Being Done to Right Wrong

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE, England (CP)—Listen to them talk of the English Northeast and you seem to hear echoes from Canada's Maritime provinces.

The Northeast is classed a depressed area—but the visitor shouldn't say that any louder here than he would in Nova Scotia.

The Northeast has suffered for years from the ups and downs of heavy industry—coal, steel and shipbuilding. And the Maritimes?

Northeast people complain bitterly that London and other "southerners"—are almost totally ignorant of this region's problems and hopes. Ever listen to Maritimers discuss Ontario?

Just as Maritimers migrated westward or southward, so the unemployed from the English Northeast—often the young and talented, it is sadly noted—moved to London and abroad.

Small in size compared with the Maritimes, the Northeast, cradle of the Industrial Revolution, is a vast production complex, boasting a proud, inventive and hard-working people with an active cultural life.

It is sometimes compared with the German Ruhr but lacks sufficient diversification, and many coal-mining areas particularly are experiencing unemployment. The people now hope they are at last going to get effective help from the politician—the "shepherairies" in local lingo—for a long - term remedy.

BIG EXPERIMENT

For the Northeast—through which flow the Rivers Tyne, Tees and Wear—has become the scene of a big experiment, a long - heralded government program of regional modernization and development.

The government has decided after a specialized study that the Northeast is not in "decline" but an "transformation" and thus merits special aid—starting diversification and while advanced technologies are applied to production.

A plan for large-scale public investment—touching on everything from roads to housing to the arts—was presented to Par-Edward Heath, head of British's new super - ministry of trade, industry and regional development.

The formula is broader and more extreme than anything yet seen in Britain but some authorities are not convinced that it goes far enough.

George Chetwynd, director of the non - political Northeast Development Council, reflected gloom in the area about the plan's limited provisions for retraining workers displaced in a changing economy. The region has suffered a net loss of 10,000 to 12,000 workers annually for some 10 years.

IMAGE ERRONEOUS

A group of Commonwealth correspondents who toured the Northeast just before the white paper came down found Chetwynd and other spokesmen reasonably confident about long-term prospects but worried about the short term.

They complained that through the years a depressingly erroneous image has been created of this ancient countryside as a giant industrial plants figuratively straddle Hadrian's Wall, erected by the Romans against northern attack.

One of our jobs is to create a better image," said the dynamic Chetwynd, a former Labor member of Parliament who, incidentally, was personally defeated Harold Macmillan, later prime minister, in an election.

"I don't know how people came to think of this as a dismal, dark, unpleasant place where we still wear skins and beat our wives on Saturday nights," Chetwynd added.

But it is a melancholy truth that large-scale layoffs are occurring in railways shops in this birthplace of railways, where George Stephenson's first locomotive frightened horses in 1815. Britain is shortening its railway lines.

HIGH UNEMPLOYMENT

Colliery employment — coal has been mined here for 900 years—presents a bleaker picture, partly because of the closing of inland pits in favor of highly mechanized coastal mines. Coal miners now total 109,000, compared with 143,000 in 1951, and Chetwynd predicts 15,000 more jobs will vanish in the next four years. Youths are denied jobs so that veterans can m[illegible] livelihood.

[illegible]s are better but un[illegible]ed in the huge metal-work[illegible]ing and shipbuilding plants and [illegible]ome other giant in the area, which has a population of 2,875,000.

With the approach of winter, Northeast unemployment was 53,200, or 4.5 of the total registered work force, compared with the national average of 2.1 per cent. This was worse than a year previously. In isolated black spots the figure was 17 per cent. Seven thousand youths had been idle since they finished school last spring. Another 3,000 had moved.

These conditions have long nagged the national conscience, or at least political sensibilities, and it was thus that the Northeast—comprising the counties of Northumberland, Durham and part of Yorkshire—became the scene of the government's modernization scheme.

PLAN FOR SCOTLAND

Heath has announced a similar plan for central Scotland and it is generally said that conditions in Scottish areas are just as depressed as, or worse than, in the English Northeast, although they have not received as much publicity.

The need for economic diversification and stabilization of the Northeast is twofold, officials said. It was necessary to improve the prospects of the region not only for the benefit of the people but also to lessen migration to southern England, especially London, where conditions are already crowded.

At the close the ladies served refreshments.

MESSENGER GROUP

On January 18th, over 30 children gathered at Mount Pleasant Church Hall for the Initiation Service of the Messenger Group for 1964. The leaders, Mrs. Raymond McConnell and her assistants, Mrs. Gordon Scott and Mrs. Frank Spencer were in charge.

Linda Potts played quiet music and the new officers were installed as follows: past president, Carolyn Merrick; president, Janet Scott; vice-president, Judy McAdam; secretary, Gordon Hoard; assistant secretary, Jim Scott, treasurer, Gordon Spencer; pianist, Linda Potts; flag leaders, Carolyn Merrick, Brenda Campbell and Nancy [illegible].

In the business period it was announced that the ten-cent membership fee is now due. The programs for the year are all planned and copies will be placed at the Allan Public School and the Williams Public School conference. The magazine, "World Friends" will be purchased from the current funds, one copy for each family with children. The group plans to sell various greeting cards with the proceeds for the Sunday School.

The new study books on India were introduced and Mrs. McConnell pyroplized the primary story from the book entitled "The Buffalo and the Bell." Mrs. Frank Spencer outlined "The Golden Coin" for the junior group. Janet Scott gave the theme "Giving Thanks to God by being friendly and happy."

Brenda Campbell read the prayer, Carolyn Merrick read the Bible and Mrs. Clarence Scott gave the meditation on the theme, "Something to think about." Kenneth Sharp and David McJeffs gathered the offering, which was dedicated by Nancy Johnson.

The program consisted of readings by Keith McConnell and Gordon Hoard and piano selections were rendered by Linda Potts and Jeannetta Hoard.

The recreation included a hymn guessing contest.

BUSINESS LEARNS FRENCH — English-speaking employees of major Montreal firms are learning French, as big business tries to answer French-Canadian nationalists' criticism that French is kept in an inferior position. Here a group of employees attends a language laboratory at the University of Montreal's extension department. (CP Photo)

"Montreal--Second Only to Paris"

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

MONTREAL (CP)—There is an old saying in Quebec that a person who speaks three languages is trilingual, a person who speaks two is bilingual and a person who speaks only one is English.

It may become an antiquated saying in a province where strong is the sudden urge among Quebec's anglico-speaking minority to learn French.

Much of the impetus behind the "bilingualism boom" has come from big business. Responding to French - Canada's resurgent nationalism, many corporations are not only hiring more French-speaking employees but are also investing time and money in French courses for English - speaking employees.

The language of business in the predominantly French-speaking province of about 5,500,000 people is still generally English.

In Montreal, less than one-third of whose 2,200,000 people have English as their first language, the French-speaking citizen sometimes finds he cannot even be a customer unless he speaks English. There are many clerks, tellers, waiters and even taxi drivers who cannot speak French.

This has inspired the city's St. Jean Baptiste Society to launch a campaign aimed at making Montreal "the second French city in the world (after Paris) in spirit as well as in its imagination."

LOOKS ENGLISH

"Montreal is 70 per cent French but looks 70 per cent English," says Society President Paul-Emile Robert.

The aim of the campaign, launched late in 1963, is to make sure all business firms dealing directly with the public offer their services in both languages.

"The response has been good," Mr. Robert says. "Many English - speaking firms have even come to us to ask for suggestions and advice."

The St. Jean Baptiste campaign reflects increasing determination of French-Canadians to prod Quebec's English-speaking minority into making more effort to learn their language.

"One guy used to kid me about not learning French," says an investment dealer. "Now it's no joke. He insists that I learn French."

A survey by The Canadian Press of 90 companies with head offices in Montreal found that 55 now publish their annual reports in both languages. Of the 35 using English only, a majority said they are considering using French as well.

Among the companies, the Canadian Pacific Railway has issued annual reports in both languages for 50 years and the Bell Telephone Company 41 years, but most others have just started doing it within the last few years.

TREND TO FRENCH

Quebec's youth minister, Paul Gerin-Lajoie, discussed the situation in his 1963 convocation address at Montreal's Sir George William University, an English-speaking institution.

"During the present century Quebec's French population has faced the necessity of using English in order to earn a living. It was not necessary for English - speaking residents to have a knowledge of French, especially in early years.

"However, with the future trend, it will soon become a necessity to speak French in order to hold a position of responsibility in Quebec.

"English will remain a necessity in positions of national or continental scope in large enterprises. However, the fluent use of English will become less of a general necessity than at present."

Whether or not the business community entirely agrees, it is certainly showing enthusiasm for learning French.

The University of Montreal's extension department has 1,000 people enrolled in French courses, three times the number a year ago, and had to turn away at least another 1,000.

Private language schools, giving individual instruction at $3 to $7 an hour, have begun to flourish in the last 18 months. Some companies have organized group courses for employees on their own premises.

Free evening courses given by the Quebec government and offered since 1888 for those who wanted them are suddenly filled to overflowing. There are 5,000 attending them in Montreal and another 1,000 in the Eastern Townships, in both cases twice the number registered a year ago.

Some 400 of the students taking French in the University of Montreal's extension department are in courses organized for particular firms. Steinberg's grocery chain requested the first company courses on the campus, set up in the fall of 1962, and several other companies in diverse fields have followed during the current academic year.

Off the campus, the university helped the Canadian National Railways set up French courses for 1,000 employees at a time on company premises.

Not infrequently, the students in these various French courses, particularly in the private schools, are senior executives. Why, at the peaks of their careers, are they spending the time and effort necessary to master French?

BANKER EXPLAINS

One such student, C. B. Neapole, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, gave this answer, in French, during an interview:

"The French often speak our language. We seldom speak theirs. That's not a good situation, either from a social or business standpoint. We must get acquainted with French - Canada.

"I have lived in other parts of this country during my banking career but I am settled in Montreal now. It's a French city, and I like it. I speak it to a large degree, and I enjoy living here much more. I get more out of it, if I can converse in French.

"I don't think my attitude is unique. Many people in business are learning French for similar reasons. We have found it hard to get opportunities to practice French, I suppose because our French acquaintances were so used to speaking English to us. But this is beginning to change.

"The more people who try to learn French, the faster it will change. If we are serious about it, we have to persevere. I think the harder we try, the more patient our French-speaking friends will be."

Tragedy Points up Anew Pitfalls of the Novice

By IAN McFARLING
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP) — Dead Man's Creek runs off the notorious Birdsville track in the middle of Australia. It has few visitors and it tends to cling to many of those who come.

It is a water hole sometimes used by cattle and occasionally by a wandering stock man, or cowboy. The coolibah tree shades it here and there.

There isn't often water in Dead Man's Creek. Rain hardly ever falls in that area and in summer temperatures of 120 degrees or higher blister the sand day after day. Frequently a sand storm obliterates the few tracks on the ground.

It was in this region, among the most cruel areas in the world, that an English migrant family of five died a horrible death without water a few weeks ago.

UNDERLINED PITFALLS

The tragedy underlined again the savagery of the merciless desert sun in the centre of this continent and pointed up about the pitfalls of the novice.

The bodies of the English family—Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Page and their sons Robert, 19, Douglas, 12, and Gordon, 10—lie now in a desert cemetery near the coolibah tree where four of them died together.

They had panicked, probably delirious, exhausted and then died of thirst—with water only 1½ miles away.

Author Ion Idriess, who has written extensively of the outback and knows the terrain of the Birdsville track several times, says the body quickly becomes dehydrated in the desert region.

"But in this loneliness there is no sound except the buzzing of insects—nothing to see," he said.

THE BRAIN TURNS

"The human being feels so alone in this formidable vastness that the brain turns. That is the explanation in this tragedy. There can be no other explanation.

This view is shared by nearly everyone with experience on the Birdsville track, which to Australians is legendary for its hazards and romanticism.

The panic of the Page family writes in the aimless circles their tracks made around that final coolibah tree, in the untouched food in their car by their plastic water bag tossed away with water in them.

The Birdsville track is a shimmering flat plain littered with tufts of hardy saltbush and a few trees. It is used to drive cattle from the lush pastures of the state of Queensland into South Australia where the railhead at Marree takes them to markets in Adelaide.

The Birdsville track is 300 miles long—Marree at its southern end, the little sunbaked town of Birdsville at the north.

RAN OUT OF GAS

The Page family set out from Marree, pulling a tarpaulin-covered trailer behind their car. They were bound for Queensland where Page, a retired model motor mechanic, hoped to get a new job. He had been in Australia for four years.

Their car ran out of gas 45 miles short of Birdsville. Police believe they stayed in their car for several days in the searing heat, then walked straight from their car to a windmill in sight of the camp to refill their water bags.

Their tracks back to the car showed they wandered a roundabout route, an obvious sign the sisters.

Heat was taking its toll. Later, they left the car again, discarded the water bags, roamed aimlessly, and died.

Today there is no marker on their grave, no road sign along the Birdsville track, which has no signposts.

Later, both may be marked, however, as a result of the Pages' deaths. Government and road experts are demanding urgent action to instal adequate signposting along the entire track to prevent further disasters.

No signpost, however, will offset entirely the foolhardiness of the careless traveller in Australia's outback.

Rows of Conference Rooms At United Nations Building Mystifying to Many Tourists

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The crowds of people who tour the United Nations building every day may be forgiven if they go away mystified by the rows of conference rooms off the long basement corridors.

The guides explain that the seven main committees of the General Assembly meet here; but no hour-long tour could possibly explain the intricacies of committee work.

Take the legal committee, usually known simply as the sixth committee.

During the UN session that ended before Christmas this committee of 111 legal experts met week after week on an item entitled "friendly relations."

No one seemed to know precisely what it was all about, but the corridor wags said it was probably the most unfriendly item on the agenda. The cynics said it was just a propaganda exercise.

BRINGS CHUCKLES

Even some delegates on the committee were inclined to chuckle at the monumental convolutions of the debate.

"Take any two lawyers—or any two diplomats — and see how they can split hairs," said one observer.

"But take 111 lawyer-diplomats all thrown together in one room and speaking five different languages, and the result can be incredible."

After weeks of laboring, the committee appeared to have brought forth a mouse.

It decided, unanimously, to appoint a special subcommittee to study the development and codification of international law concerning friendly relations among states.

But after it was over the Canadian delegate, James E. Bigwood, offered a cautiously hopeful comment:

"There have been significant developments this year towards clearer definition and ultimate codification of international law.

"At the moment, we can't say we're standing on the threshold of international law. But we could be standing on that threshold next year."

CLARIFY LAW

He explained that if the subcommittee brings in recommendations which are passed by the legal committee next fall, "we will then be on the threshold of an international law that the average man or woman will recognize."

With a grin, Brown admitted that the whole subject is complex. He mentioned one committeeman who taught international law for 35 years and then conceded that international law did not exist. Other experts claimed there already was international law embodied in the UN charter.

"International law now is in the position where English common law was centuries ago," said Brown, a 50-year-old Brantford, Ont., lawyer whose conversation constantly reflects his love of history.

"Now it's coming into sharper focus. A world-wide effort is being made to clarify it—so people will know it is there and will understand it."

Brown, Liberal member of Parliament for Brantford, was born in St. Mary's, Ont., and trained at Osgoode Hall in Toronto, the London School of Economics and the University of Grenoble, France.

HARD TO SET CODE

He explained that the whole issue of codifying international law has been complicated by differing East-West approaches.

The Soviet bloc has pressed for codification relating to "peaceful coexistence among states."

The "peaceful coexistence" phrase disturbed the Western powers, who said they didn't want codification that would embody the concept of two separate socio-economic systems in the world.

Britain, which has never codified its own laws, led resistance to international codification.

Canada's position was somewhat different, said Brown.

Canada already has a "pattern of codification" in the civil law of Quebec and in the recently passed Bill of Rights, he noted.

"Codification itself is nothing we should particularly object to —the principle of codification is not necessarily hostile."

FOUR PRINCIPLES

He said that the four principles the subcommittee is to study before next year are these:

1. Non-use of force between states;
2. Peaceful settlement of disputes;
3. Non-intervention in the affairs of any state;
4. Sovereign equality for all states.

At first glance, these might seem to be simple principles to which any country could subscribe. In fact, they have been the takeoff point for all kinds of disputes.

For example, the non-use of force: Does it include use of force in self-defence? And if so, is it self-defence when a country sends volunteers to help a nationalist uprising in a neighboring state?

And what about non-intervention—does it include economic intervention? Ideological intervention?

The possibilities for debate are almost limitless—even before discussion starts on the crucial question of how such law is to be enforced.

Push Revolutionary World Communications System Toward Next Year Opening

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—A revolutionary world communications system is being pushed toward an opening on a limited commercial basis next year. It will bring closer the day when you may dial Asia by man-made satellite and have the call charged to your telephone bill.

Or you may see sharply-focussed action photographs in your newspapers of events half-way round the world, flashed to Canada through the skies with unprecedented speed.

In time, your television screen may bring you African tribal dances, Japanese geisha girls or Australian football matches telecast live.

All these may be possible with the creation of a global satellite communications network, the first segment of which the fledgling Communications Satellite Corporation plans to launch on a commercial experimental basis in 1965.

CANADIANS EAGER

The Canadian government is reported seeking an active role in establishment of the global "star shooting" network. Canadians have been working with U.S. officials to prepare the broad groundwork, but the extent to which Canada's government and industry will supply money, technology and equipment and share in the administration may not be decided for months.

Scanning the skies now dotted with an assortment of experimental moons, the U.S. corporation headed by Canadian-born Leo Cherne—a native of Canmore, Alta.—has decided its first operational satellite will be a synchronous high-altitude Syncom type, synchronized to rotate with the speed of earth.

Boosted over the equator to a height of 22,300 miles, this electronic relay, lifting a 340 voice channel, will operate first on an experimental basis and then with commercial traffic charges. It will be strictly a transatlantic operation between Europe and North America, but if successful will point the way to the first global network.

TRANSMISSION DELAY

The experts believe three such satellites can provide the rudiments of a line-of-sight world communications system. There are difficulties involved, making it certain the corporation also will try a medium-altitude system. The Syncom is known to carry an echo in voice transmissions and because of the great height involved, there's a split-second transmission delay so that a normal two-way conversation can become garbled if not allowed down.

Before the corporation moves ahead with its own launching, the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration will send aloft this spring its own third Syncom satellite. The first Syncom was launched successfully Feb. 14, 1963, but failed to operate. The second was boosted into orbit last July 26. It worked, but because of weakness of rocket booster thrust this Syncom was not positioned accurately over the equator. It remains in a figure-eight movement high over the Atlantic.

MORE PUSH

The third NASA Syncom will have a new kind of thrust-augmented rocket that will give it more push and thus strengthen hopes of a perfect orbit. Syncom III will operate over the Pacific Ocean, linking wide stretches of North America with Asia.

The space agency leans heavily in favor of the Syncom as the high-altitude satellite for the commercial global network. So far, NASA has put more than $150,000,000 into satellite communications experiments.

It started with the world-looking inflatable sphere launched in 1960. This was Echo I still visible in many parts of Canada and other parts of the world. Echo II is an aluminum-coated sphere about 100 feet in diameter, equipped with 70 solar cells and five storage batteries.

Compared to the more sophisticated models of today, this was a crude product, designed to bounce voice, radio and television signals. Its skin has become a bit wrinkled, but it still is used occasionally for signal-bouncing experiments.

EXPERTS INTERESTED

Private industry became intrigued with the possibilities and on July 10, 1962, NASA lofted Telstar I, the 170-pound sphere built by American Telephone and Telegraph Company. It contained instruments for two-way communications by voice and picture. For the first time man achieved a transatlantic television transmission by satellite.

Though designed to function for two years, Telstar I went dead in less than a year. The company launched another May 7, 1963. It transmitted not only black-and-white but color television across the Atlantic. While launching these medium-altitude satellite cost A.T. and T. about $11,000,000, commercial intelligence reports indicate the company put about $51,000,000 into its over-all Telstar program.

Most of the work on these satellites was done in the U.S. but occasionally a contract floated to Canada. For Relay I and Relay II—two NASA satellites similar to Telstar—the main contractor is Radio Corporation of America, and its Canadian subsidiary, RCA Victor Company, Limited, produced the receiver equipment.

POWER FAILED

Relay I was NASA's follow-up to Echo I. Relay I was launched Dec. 13, 1962. After repeated power failures, it finally completed its tests, demonstrating ability to transmit voice and digital data over long distances. It linked the U.S. with Europe, Japan and Brazil.

Relay I, which also surpassed nearly after one year's performance. But the inside "kill" mechanism, to fix its weight and the satellite still lives, it has spanned continents and oceans, sending almost 300 experiments. Relay II was launched by Japan Jan. 21. It has no automatic cutoff.

Jan. 23, NASA launched Echo II, a 135-foot successor to Echo I, but slightly larger, about 135 feet in diameter. This new balloon is to show that a satellite can stay spherical as long as it is in orbit, providing a large and accurately reflecting surface for reliable signal bouncing.

Then since 1960 eight communications satellites have been launched—six by government and four by industry—with six of the eight still functioning. Those are Echo I and II, Telstar I and II, Relay I and II and Syncom I and II.

That decision still to be made is what kind of global communications system will take shape. At the moment, the Syncom type seems the best bet for a satellite network. With fewer satellites involved, costs should be lower.

The medium-altitude system is the alternative. An experimental "generation" these medium-altitude types, orbiting between 5,000 and 6,000 miles above earth, may be ordered by the corporation after the launch of the Syncom in operation.

By 1966 or 1967, the corporation hopes to have the capability of a global system in full commercial operation.

Following Wednesday night's National Ballet performance at the B.C.I. auditorium, a reception for the ballet stars was held in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte. Yorkshire Sow Has Two Litters Within 23 Days

CEDAR SPRINGS (CP)—Twenty-three piglets farrowed in 23 days two separate litters by a purebred Canadian Yorkshire sow have a local farmer and veterinarians all excited.

They all the rules of swine reproduction it should never have happened, they say.

Belmont Champion Lady, a healthy 500 pounds, owned by Carl and Bob Cleveland of Cedar Springs, about 15 miles south of Chatham, farrowed nine piglets New Year's Day—by average size porker family. But Jan. 23 she came through with 14 more. Of the 23, only 12 have survived.

Prof. Robert Forshaw, head of the swine husbandry department at the Ontario Agricultural College, says he thinks it is a case of double conception and so do veterinarians Dr. George Green and Dr. James Emerson.

When the second litter arrived the four survivors from the first litter were separated and put on feed starter. The eight survivors of the second litter are nursing the sow by partially propping her up and couldn't provide enough milk.

Dr. Green said "it's something that might happen once in a million times."

Sows can normally have a litter twice in a year and the general rule is that the best probability of a good litter is regarded as three months, three weeks and three days.

National Ballet Is Greeted By Nearly Full House Here, Diversified Program Given

By EUGENE LANG

With the anticipated arrival each year of the National Ballet Company it seems that more and more people from Belleville and district join the ranks of balletphiles, as witnessed last evening in the Collegiate Auditorium by the fact that only three rows of seats were available seats were vacant.

This Company almost it's inception about a dozen years ago has grown in leaps and bounds, in both stature and repertoire, and is definitely making its impression on the world stage of the ballet. This is about the tenth or eleventh time that the Company has appeared here and with the continual audience increase it would appear that "Sold Out" notices will have to be posted in future years.

Six diversified offerings were given last evening, with five of them using a conventional pale blue backdrop, the other using a minimum of setting to convey the mysterious atmosphere of its locale.

Practically full contingents of dancers were used in the first and last selections, as opposed to smaller numerical groupings in the other four items. "Les Rendez-vous," a ballet divertissement based upon music by Daniel Francois Auber" was given a unified performance of traditional excellence on the part of the entire corps de ballet. In the "Allegresse" that followed exhilarating realizations although hampered at times by the confining floor space of the Collegiate stage.

CLASSICAL SELECTIONS

The classical Russian style of ballet was exhibited in two selections from "Swan Lake" with music by Tschaikowsky. Rebecca Bryan, Sarah Thomas and Colin North turned in fine performances in the "Pas de Trois" from Act I with remarkable co-ordination in their triple moldings of their respective parts. Jocelyn Terelle and Lawrence Adams were entwined in a graceful suave envisagement of the "Pas de Deux" from Act II, in which both melted the audience not by sound but by poetic motion.

The new outstanding ballerina from Kiev, Russia, twenty-six-year-old Galina Samtsova, who is now a member of the National Ballet, covered herself with laurels in her exceptional creativity, as shown in her dancing in the "Pas de Deux" from "Le Corsaire" with music by Riccardo Drigo. With Earl Kraul as partner, Miss Samtsova was a model of fluency, balanced poise and technical mastery over her execution of her difficult role. Mr. Kraul distinguished himself with a finely honed characterization of sharp incisiveness. A wonderful job by both these male artists of the dance.

MODERN VEIN TOO

In the modern vein Kurt Weill's music was used (from "The Three-Penny Opera) as accompanist to the humoristic "Judgment of Paris," featuring Lorna Geddes, Jacqueline Inings, Elaine Crawford, Howard Meadows and Stanley Warmbrodt. Only in this production was any added scenery used and then only the basic amount to conjure to the minds of the audience a Parisian cafe with attendant additives. The three young ballerinas came through with highly individual renditions of their respective parts, that brought forth laughs galore from the nearly one thousand witnesses without front—no laugh at them, but laugh with their capricious cavortings.

The orchestra of eighteen pieces under the direction of musical director and conductor George Crum was an accompanying asset, but now and then the brass did get a little raspy and tried to drown the strings.

PIANO A DISGRACE

The piano that was handed to soloist Mary McDonald to play upon in the final selection was a disgrace, even though the local sponsoring National Ballet Guild did go to great pains to obtain a suitable instrument. It's high time that those in charge of the grand at the Collegiate would let it be used for affairs such as the National Ballet, instead of forcing a pianist to be subjected to one such as the one provided last night. Donald must be given "E" for effort anyway.

All in all, it was an evening of sustained pleasure for everyone in attendance and we look forward with eagerness to the next time The National Ballet comes to Belleville.

A reception for the members of the Ballet and the general public was held in the Pinnacle Room at the Hotel Quinte after the performance.

GROWING FASTER

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Government figures show South Africa's African population has grown 30 per cent to a total of 11,000,000 in the last decade. The white population up 15 per cent to 3,000,000. The remainder is made up of 1,500,000 coloreds (mixed blood) and 500,000 Indians.

Alan Ladd Found Dead In Bedroom

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) Alan Ladd, who realized a dream of driving in a limousine through the same studio gate where once he had to punch a time clock, is dead at 50.

The short, fine-featured star, a movie hero for 22 years, was found dead in the master bedroom of his home here Wednesday.

A doctor and Police Chief Gus Kettmann both said that Ladd died of natural causes, presumably a heart attack. An autopsy has been ordered.

Ladd, except for a butler, had been alone in his desert home for the last 10 days. His wife and discoverer, the former actress Sue Carol, was at the couple's west Los Angeles home when he died.

"I talked with Alan three times Tuesday," she said. "He seemed in fine spirits in his ways. It's a terrible shock."

WIFE WAS AGENT

It was Miss Carol, who later turned agent, who heard Ladd on a 15-minute radio show. She interviewed him and signed him and later married him.

After some bit parts in movies, Miss Carol got Alan the role of the hired gunman in This Gun For Hire.

The picture starred Robert Preston, later to become famous as The Music Man, but it was Ladd the fans remembered.

At the height of his Paramount career, Ladd received 20,000 fan letters a month. He employed a corps of eight secretaries to answer them personally.

Ladd, in his career of some 25 years, appeared in 57 movies. His last, still unreleased, is The Carpetbaggers, in which he played the sympathetic role of the movie cowboy, Nevada Smith.

In 1952, Ladd left Paramount for Warner Brothers, where, during the depression, he worked as a studio laborer for $42.50 a week. He returned to Warners at $25,000 a week.

Both Ladd and his wife had been married before. Ladd had a son by his first wife, Alan, Jr., 26. Sue has a daughter, Mrs. Carol Lee Veitch, 31, from her first marriage to actor Nick Stuart.

DEVELOP NEW ROPE

BRAMLEY, England (CP)—A new type of synthetic rope has been developed by the Airedale Rope Company here in Yorkshire. Made basically from polyethylene monofilament fibres, it has been developed for sea-to-jet airplanes and it's believed it will cut the rope bill of shippers by more than 10 per cent.

French Govt. Hopes to Find Thousand Farms in Canada For Algerian Repatriates

By CAL HALLOWAY

HALIFAX (CP)—The French government is hoping to find farms in Canada for 1,000 families, repatriates from Algeria. Two officials of the French government meet with officials of the Nova Scotia agriculture department today to discuss the availability of farm lands in the province.

Robert Baudouy, of the ministry of foreign affairs, and Jacques Toutain, inspector of the ministry of repatriation, complete a whirl-wind visit of nine provincial capitals—missing Newfoundland — after today's meeting here.

The representatives outlined the purpose of their visit at a press conference here Wednesday.

After Algeria gained independence in July nearly 800,000 French citizens left the country, most of them settling in France.

COULDN'T FIND FARMS

Farms could not be found in France for about 100,000 persons, representing 1,000 families, and Mr. Baudouy and Mr. Toutain were appointed to begin a general survey of Canada in three weeks.

Mr. Baudouy said Canada was chosen because French is spoken by many Canadians and the language is taught in most schools. This would make life easier for the new farmers.

He said the farmers would not be cheap. They would be assisted by the French government in purchasing farms. A grant of $6,500 would be made to each family and a $1,300 subsistence allowance would also be given for the first year. The farmers would range in age from 25 to 50 years.

The men visited Prince Edward Island Wednesday and said there was a possibility of some of the repatriates settling there. Farms were within financial reach.

Mr. Baudouy said it would be left to the farmers to make up their own minds as to where they wished to settle.

WILL BE SCREENED

J. D. Berzile, head of the agricultural section of the immigration department here, explained the officials, said the prospective farmers would be screened as are other immigrants.

Mr. MacKenzie, settlement supervisor in the Atlantic provinces for the immigration department, said the Canadian government would encourage the French farmers to work for Canadian farmers for a year before settling on their own farms. This would enable them to become familiar with Canadian methods.

The first delegation would probably be a small one to look about Easter to examine the proposed farms and the settlers would begin arriving in the country about July.

Mennonite Missionaries Reach Safety

HILLSBORO, Kan. (AP) — Safe evacuation of 38 adults and 33 children, members of United States and Canadian missionary families, from field posts in the troubled Congo was announced Wednesday by the headquarters of the American Mennonite Brethren Mission.

H. R. Wiens, general secretary of the board of missions of the religious group, said the evacuation was complete except for two doctors and two mission officials who remained at their posts but who probably would have to be evacuated.

The doctors remained to battle an epidemic of sleeping sickness in the remote province of Kajili, Wiens said. The sickness has already hit some of the missionaries who were stationed there and many of the natives are ill.

The two doctors at Kajili are Dr. Ferdinand Pauls of Winnipeg, Man., and Dr. Ernest Schmidt of Saskatoon.

ARE AMERICANS

The two officials still at their posts are Irwin Friesen and J. B. Kilewer, both Americans.

Eight missionary associates and children, Wiens said, were uninjured in the disturbances which have broken out in the wake of political troubles in The Congo. They were brought to Leopoldville from their field stations by planes and helicopters. Wiens said he instructed the missionaries to remain at Leopoldville unless the situation worsened in which case they were to seek asylum in the nearest safe country.

Wiens said those brought to Leopoldville included Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Esau and five children of Yarrow, B.C., from Kitwit.

Says Fall Fairs Not Just Fun

RIDGETOWN (CP) — Fall fairs should be regarded as more than simply a form of entertainment Edward Woodley, principal of the Ontario Agricultural School here, said Wednesday.

Addressing the annual district meeting of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies and Fair Boards, Mr. Woodley said too many boards cater to the public rather than providing a place for people to learn something.

Ken Armstrong of Merlin was elected president of the district 9, comprising fair boards from Comber, Dresden, Harrow, Kingsville, Leamington, Merlin and Ridgetown.

Charge Smith Falls Woman In Death of Kemptville Man

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Jean Lois McArthur, 32, of Smiths Falls was arraigned Wednesday on a charge of murder in connection with the stabbing last month of John Ing, Burton Hall, 25, of nearby Kemptville.

Chief Reg Weide of Smiths Falls town police said the mother of four children is being held in county jail here on an open charge of murder.

He said the charge will be specified later to capital murder, non - capital murder or manslaughter, depending on the evidence that turns up.

The woman is scheduled to appear in court Monday.

Ing, a construction worker dying was brought to the Smiths Falls public hospital about 11 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 21, and told police two men, who drove off without giving hospital authorities any information.

Police said they questioned one other woman and two men, but released them. They believed the stabbing took place in a private home in the south end of Smiths Falls.

Mrs. Noble Gorman, the hospital night supervisor, said nurses at first thought Hall was a heart-attack victim. He was taken to the emergency operating room and Dr. T. O. Ashwell spotted two stab wounds in his left chest.

Hall, a former resident of Smiths Falls, had been estranged from his wife. He was telegraph operator at the Bell CPR station near Kemptville and lived at the Kemptville hotel.

W. J. Wyatt of Brockville, who performed the post-mortem, said Hall's death was caused by a knife wound in the heart.

DISCOURAGES SAWDUST

HENDON, England (CP)—The medical health officer in this Middlesex town is trying to stop butchers using sawdust on the floor of their shops. He claims sawdust inhibits hygienic risks and should be avoided.

60 Federal Civil Servants Will Take French Courses

OTTAWA (CP) — About 60 high-ranking civil servants will go back to school next month in study programs designed to promote bilingualism and administrative ability in the federal government.

The Civil Service Commission announced Wednesday that 32 persons in classifications paying $13,800 a year or more will leave their Ottawa desks February 10 to attend an unprecedented public administration course in Carleton Place, a town 30 miles southwest of the capital.

The commission had announced earlier that it will open a bilingual administration school in February in nearby Hull, Que., for up to 30 key civil servants, half of whom have a speaking and half French-speaking.

The public administration course will last 17 weeks while the bilingual course will run 12 weeks.

The "schools" in Carleton Place and Hull may become permanent ones with much larger enrolments in the future if the two pilot courses work satisfactorily, government sources said.

The public administration "students" will attend lectures and discussions 7½ hours a day, five days a week.

The students have not all been chosen yet. A list will be issued later by the commission. They will all be under 56 years of age and come from headquarters of various departments and agencies in Ottawa.

The teachers will include several cabinet ministers, university professors and journalists.

Commissioners Maxwell Ayre Defence Minister Hellyer, Inquiry Minister Drury, Dr. Eugene Forsey, research director of the Canadian Labor Congress; Charles Lynch, chief of Southam News Services; John Gellner of the Canadian Commentator, a Toronto monthly; professor J. M. Hodgetts of Queen's University, Emile Gosselin of Laval University and Dr. R. A. MacKinnon of Carleton University.

The whole school will move to Montreal in mid-April, City April 20-25 for a week of study in a French atmosphere. Another week has been set aside for a study of bilingualism and biculturalism.

Other general topics will be national and international issues affecting government administration; improving personnel processes, and the resources, environment and moving forces of public administration.

FEET GET TREAT — These students doff their shoes and luxuriate during lessons in the wall-to-wall broadloom that covers the floors of the Ukrainian Catholic Immaculate Heart of Mary School in Winnipeg. The broadloom, together with such other noise-reducers as acoustical tile ceilings and gentle signal chimes, rather than the normal bells and buzzers, are aimed at maintaining classroom quiet. (CP Photo)

Wall-to-Wall Carpets Help Cut Winnipeg School Noise

WINNIPEG (CP) — There may be a trend to pussyfooting in one Winnipeg School. Reason: Wall-to-wall carpeting.

And to add further to its classroom quiet, the Ukrainian Catholic Immaculate Heart of Mary school also has acoustical ceiling tile and chimes instead of the traditional bells and buzzer.

Sister Marion, the principal, says the carpeting contributes to relaxation among students, and teachers don't go home at night with the usual frayed nerves from classroom noise.

Built by former students of the old Ukrainian Catholic school, the new $400,000, two-storey building in north Winnipeg also has its inside walls and lockers in pre-finished walnut panelling.

Walter Paschuk, school committee chairman, says the interior is designed to cut maintenance costs and reduce noise.

The 260 students move around quietly on the carpeted floors. Most walk around in stocking feet or change into soft shoes or slippers on arrival at school. There's no sound when a student moves his chair or drops a ruler or pencil.

The school lunchroom is not carpeted, however, and Mr. Paschuk says "it's amazing the change that comes over the students when they step from the carpeted corridors into the tiled lunchroom."

"They are transformed into noisy, boisterous and normal school children who like to hear the sound their feet make on a hard floor."

Mr. Paschuk says that while carpets cost more to install they cost less than any other floor covering to maintain, requiring less cleaning than tile or wood. It will save $40,000 over the next 10 years in maintenance costs.

And the pre-finished walnut panelling will never require painting; when they get dirty they just need wiping down.

"When we decided to build a new school we looked around new schools in Canada for ideas. We didn't find what we were looking for in Canada and went to the United States.

"Because we've looked around Canadian schools, we are sure this is the most modern school in Canada."

Indonesian Army Claiming Role of Area's Defender

By KARSTEN PRAGER

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Southeast Asia's biggest military machine — the Indonesian Army—is claiming the role of the area's defender. The claim undoubtedly will cause more uneasiness among neighboring nations.

Lt.-Gen. Ahmad Yani, young U.S.-trained chief of staff of the Indonesian Army, told students at the army staff command school recently that Indonesia's soldiers must be prepared to widen their responsibility for the security of Southeast Asia.

In line with government policy, Yani said, a wider perspective is needed. Our political concept is to eliminate the direct confrontation of the two blocs (East and West) in Southeast Asia and relinquish the responsibility of security and stability in the region of Southeast Asian countries themselves."

Indonesia, he said, has all the necessary potential for this task — the region's biggest manpower reserve, the most strategic location and the richest resources.

Indonesian political leaders have made no bones about their conviction that their nation of more than 100,000,000 people, fifth most populous in the world, is entitled to a sphere of influence in Southeast Asia.

Indonesia has about a third of a million men under arms, widely scattered among the 3,000 islands of the republic and equipped with a mixture of modern and outdated equipment. Most of its modern weapons, including jet fighters, medium-range jet bombers and missiles, come from the Soviet Union.

Logistics, maintenance and communications are major problems. And aside from fighting rebel guerrilla at home the army has had no battle experience.

The Malaysia crisis provides a measure of how much Indonesian leaders oppose foreign military influences remaining in Southeast Asia.

Judging by official statements over the last year, Indonesia presents nothing more than the defence treaty between Malaysia, the new nation it has pledged to destroy, and Britain.

Under the pact, British troops and ships are still stationed in Malaysia, on the doorstep of the Indonesian archipelago. President Sukarno denounces this as "imperialist encirclement."

Yani said that under a "more sophisticated" defence policy, the Indonesian government is planning the following moves in the next five years:

1. Creation of an army strategic reserve command.

2. Completion of a retraining program for thousands of soldiers who served during the 1945 - 50 period of rebellion against the Dutch.

3. Improvement in organization.

4. Plans for the army to manufacture all of its light weapons and ammunition for them.

5. Preparations to put the army on a conscription rather than a volunteer basis.

Things One Might Never Know If He Didn't Open His Mail

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Many fish, but especially goldfish, turn grey with age—just like people.

A government study found that there are 3,000,000 U.S. widows over 65. . . . Less than half of all women over 25 in the U.S. are high school graduates . . . and more than 50 per cent between the ages of 45 and 54 have paid jobs.

Don't worry too much about insomnia cutting down your efficiency. . . . A British scientist says that some people work even better after a "sleepless" night than if they had spent eight hours snoring.

Nothing upsets a wife more surely than seeing a cockroach in her kitchen. . . . But, on the other hand, most roaches — if they had their choice—wouldn't be caught dead in a kitchen. . . . A majority of the 3,500 varieties of this insect prefer to dwell outdoors.

Quotable notables: "Years wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul." —Samuel Ullman.

Barnyard bulletin: Prof. Lodwig Krawatik of Austria reports that cows have sufficient emotions to burst into tears. (But we never know one to cry over spilled milk.)

Quips from contemporaries: "A duck is a bird that looks as if it has been riding a horse all day." . . . "A smile is something that adds to your face value." . . . "If you think you're lonely and neglected, just think of Whistler's father" —The Farmers' Almanac.

Household hints: To keep candles from dripping, put them in a refrigerator for a few hours before using. . . . Youll get more juice from lemons if you soak them in warm water first.

The vanishing hens: The compliant secretaries voice most often about executives is that they leave the office without leaving word where they can be reached.

Odd records: Giantesses are rarer than giants. . . . The tallest known woman, Marianne Wehde of Germany, reached eight feet 4½ inches and died at 17. . . . The tallest man, Robert Wadlow of Alton, Ill., was eight feet, 10.3 inches—and died at 22.

It was Oscar Wilde who observed, "When the gods wish to punish us, they answer our prayers."

Cubans Believe Johnson Intends to Harden U. S. Attitude Toward Country

By JULIAN BATES

HAVANA (Reuters)—Premier Fidel Castro's officials make no secret of their interest in discovering if President Johnson intends to harden even further the United States attitude to Cuba.

"We think President Johnson must be more right-wing than president Kennedy, and will try to hurt us even more," one senior foreign ministry official told this reporter.

The first question to a visitor living in the United States is: "What will Johnson do?"

The premier himself, immediately on learning of president Kennedy's assassination, asked French reporter Jean Daniel of the Paris weekly L'Express: "Who is Lyndon Johnson? What kind of reputation has he? What was his position at the time of the Cuban invasion? What authority has he over the Central Intelligence Agency?"

He told Daniel the assassination of president Kennedy was "very bad news—everything is changed."

TRADE EMBARGO

President Kennedy enforced a trade embargo against Cuba in all goods except for medicines. But he also made the pledge at the end of the 1962 Cuban missile crisis that if offensive weapons were kept out and if Cuba was not used to export "aggressive Communist purposes," there would be peace in the Caribbean.

Until Kennedy's death, Cuban officials said, they were confident the island, with massive Soviet aid, had weathered the economic crisis created by the blockade.

Apart from Kennedy's qualified pledge, they feel the Russian commitment to the Cuban revolution protects them against the possibility of direct United States military action.

One foreign ministry official said, however: "We do have concern that the United States will try to act against us through one or a combination of other Latin American states—especially Venezuela."

He said this explained the vehemence of the Cuban reaction to the Organization of American States decision to investigate Caracas' charges that Cuba smuggled arms into Venezuela.

Cuba counter - charged the arms were planted by the CIA.

A foreign ministry official told this correspondent Cuba has no intention of interfering in the internal affairs of other Latin American states, but added:

"No one can prevent us feeling friendly to and praising the efforts of domestic political parties in other states which are trying to achieve revolutions like ours and throw off the American yoke. But this is far from direct intervention."

Non-Cuban observers in Havana agree that after five years of power Castro commands overwhelming support among young Cubans, despite shortages and austerity.

The effects of the U.S. trade embargo were compounded by severe losses of food and production from October's hurricane Flora. But Western diplomats believe additional Soviet aid has helped Cuba tide over this emergency.

There are no confirmed figures, but Western sources estimate Soviet aid in the last year to have run to about $1,000,000 daily, mainly in oil and food.

Four Perfect Bridge Hands But Nobody Bid

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Four perfect bridge hands — and not a point was scored. The players were too excited to bid.

The other players exposed their cards too. Mrs. Shenk's partner, Mrs. Peter Stallard, had 13 clubs. Mrs. Kenneth Wade was all hearts. Mrs. Foster Collin could have made a grand slam with her 13 spades.

Calypsoland Lament

"Where Have All the Tourists Gone?"

By RUSSELL ELMAN

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (CP) — A government poster prominently displayed on a factory bulletin board asks: "What would happen if tourists stopped coming to Jamaica?"

The answer, the poster says, is that thousands of Jamaicans would lose their jobs.

Fortunately, it's unlikely that tourists will stop coming. But the flow has been slowing down. And Jamaica, along with such other West Indies islands as Barbados, Trinidad and Tobago, is seeking to lure them back.

Recently this has meant a radical review of tourist policy, including making it an integral part of long-range government planning. It has also meant selling to average man and woman on the idea that tourism is not synonymous with liveblood and should be treated accordingly.

"We had it too easy in the beginning here," says Jamaica's trade minister, Robert Lightbourne, who is responsible for tourism. "When competition began, we didn't immediately face up to it and gear ourselves to meet the new situation."

AIMED TOO HIGH

Root of Jamaica's trouble appears to be that in the post-war period its tourism was mainly aimed at the luxury trade, centring on Montego Bay, then the fashionable place to go among the international smart set.

Little attention was paid to catering to the tourist of modest budget or toward selling Jamaica as a distinctive country instead of merely "a sunny beach with picturesque natives."

As a result, the Jamaican tourist trade has slumped in recent years while some other Caribbean islands such as Puerto Rico have reaped a rich harvest.

The Jamaican government now has recognized its tourist source, and has pepped up overseas promotion and advertising.

Similar steps are being taken by Barbados and Trinidad tourist boards.

Emphasis in future will be on making the islands appeal to every taste and pocket as well as to wealthy visitors, and on building a year-round tourist business.

Pressure has been put on airlines to reduce fares, on hotel owners to drop rates during the winter as well as in the off-season.

MUST BENEFIT PEOPLE

There also appears a growing concern in West Indies hotel circles that there should be more direct, visible benefits for the local population. One critic am in past has been that only a fraction of tourist revenue goes into the pockets of local people, the major beneficiaries being foreign - owned airlines, hotels and importers of foodstuffs.

One approach to this problem is for the government to go into partnership with foreign hotel interests in building and operating first-class hotels.

There are already major hotels in Port of Spain, Trinidad, and Kingston, Jamaica, owned by the government and leased to outside concerns, and there will soon be one in Bridgetown, Barbados.

More is being done, too, to stimulate production of local crafts and to set up marketing outlets in which both the craftsmen and the tourist can get a fair deal.

While the various islands are competing for tourist business, they recognize that the benefits are not limited to a single place.

"We'll all get more business if the Caribbean area as a whole is better advertised," says Noel Smith, Barbados tourist officer, and to get tourists from one island to another, efforts are being made to improve transportation. Better inter - island air services is looked for when the principal carrier, British West Indies Airways, now controlled by the British government, gets new equipment.

Imports Climb During October

OTTAWA (CP) — Strong increase in imports of auto parts, raw sugar and tractors and parts during October helped increase total imports to $620,-082,000 in the month, up nine per cent from $568,708,000 in October, 1962.

The bureau of statistics reported today that imports during January - October were $5,384,243,000, up 23 per cent from the corresponding 1962 period.

October imports of auto parts rose to $31,426,000 from $25,-186,000 a year earlier. Imports of tractors and parts increased to $18,451,000 from $11,880,000 and imports of raw sugar more than doubled to $13,782,000 from $6,986,000.

There were also increases in electrical apparatus, farm machinery, iron ore and cars and trucks. But imports of non-farm machinery — largest import item — declined to $59,784,000 from $60,585,000.

OPP Loses Traffic Case To Cupid

MILTON, Ont. (CP)—Cupid won a court case for Harold Brown.

Brown, 23, of nearby Oakville, was charged with careless driving after his car jumped into the path of a provincial police cruiser.

He admitted driving with one hand while his other arm was cuddled his fiancee after he had drunk a half bottle of gin.

Said Magistrate K. M. Langdon: "Possibly you are guilty of crowding the front seat, or of making an improper left turn, or failing to signal or making an improper exit from a sideroad, or even of being impaired. But as you later married the girl, the charge of careless driving is dismissed."

DEATH RATE

The world's estimated annual death rate today is 18 per cent —just half what it was around 1750-1800.

Canadian Mother Is Fighting To Get Leukemia Medicine

AJACCIO, Corsica (AP) — A Canadian mother said Tuesday she could not get any of the acclaimed leukemia medicine Anablast for her leukemia-stricken daughter.

Mrs. John Oschanney, 27, flew her four - year - old daughter Yvonne here from Regina on a borrowed $1,225 to get Anablast —which French government scientists say is worthless despite the claims of its maker, self-styled biologist Gaston Naessens.

Naessens, who makes the preparation from "hyper - immunized" horses, faces possible legal action for supplying the substance for injection into leukemia-stricken children.

Mrs. Oschanney said Naessens was out of Anablast and may not make more because "someone up in Paris is putting pressure on him." She said the one doctor in Corsica who had consented to give Anablast injections now refuses.

The woman said she has joined forces with other mothers, including some from Britain, who are trying to get Anablast for their children.

"If he can't make it, there's no use staying and I would go home," said Mrs. Oschanney. "But if we can get it, we'll stay for however long it takes.

Horticultural Society Lists 1964 Officers

STIRLING — Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, president, was hostess at her home on Frankford Road for the January meeting of Stirling Horticultural Society with an attendance of 23 members. The hostess also provided mocha cream pie for the refreshment period.

Mrs. Ray Rose presented her report and read the correspondence. A message of thanks will be forwarded to the Stirling village council for their grant of $100 to carry on the beautification of the village. Approximately 75 boxes of geraniums and petunias were planted in the various flower beds at Coronation Park, the Cenotaph, Masonic Hall flower pot, Victoria Park, window boxes at the Public Library, boxes on the new bridge, the old Elm tree Garden, and the floral arrangements at the public and high school, also a large central bed at Stirling Cemetery. All of these were exceptional beauty spots during the summer.

Mr. J. R. Belshaw was in charge of watering the bridge boxes and the cemetery evergreens around the new chapel vault. During the dry season with no rainfall, Messrs. James Chambers and Harold Juby provided extra drums of water for Mr. Belshaw and this was appreciated. It is hoped to replace the two maple trees at the public school which were destroyed on Hallowe'en. Mr. Belshaw was tendered a motion of appreciation for all his care of both the flowers on the bridge and the evergreens at the vault as this service had been gratis. He built the bridge boxes and planted the flowers and when culprits destroyed part of the plants they were reset, all a labor of love to provide beauty for others.

LEAVE WINTER BEHIND — Thirty federal government scientists have started four months of hydrographic and oceanographic studies in the Caribbean. Map shows their route from Halifax aboard the government survey ship Baffin. Boxed areas near the Virgin Islands and at Aruba off the northern coast of Venezuela indicate main work areas. Hydrographers will chart waters where seamen now rely on charts produced by the British Navy in 1850. Oceanographers will study air and sea actions as an aid to weather forecasting. The Baffin left Halifax Jan. 8 and is expected to return about mid-May. (CP Newsmap)

20 to 30 Buffalo Will Be Placed in Newfoundland

By ED WALTERS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Newfoundland, which has become a home away from home for several varieties of wildlife, is undertaking an experiment that, if successful, might somewhat offset the only place in North America where buffalo could be hunted on a regular seasonal basis.

Twenty to 30 buffalo are to be shipped to Newfoundland in May from Elk Island National Park in Alberta. The animals will be placed on uninhabited Brunette Island off the southwest coast where they will be turned for up to three years to see how they adapt to local conditions.

The plan was announced last fall by W. J. Keough, provincial resources minister. Arthur T. Bergerud, chief Newfoundland biologist, who is to be in charge of the operation, says a lot of questions have to be answered before the program can be declared a success.

One of the main questions is whether the buffalo will eat the heavy, yellow lichen that grows on all Newfoundland's muskeg and boglands. It's the only wild grass growing in any substantial quantity in the province.

WILL JOIN CARIBOU

Mr. Bergerud says that if sedge grass were sent to Alberta and offered to the animals they probably wouldn't touch it because the sedge grass they usually eat is also readily available. But since there is no plains grass here he hopes the buffalo will take to the sedge grass when they get hungry enough.

The buffalo will have all summer to get used to the new diet. Then they'll have to learn to find the grass under ice and snow in winter.

Another question is whether the buffalo will be able to walk over boglands without sinking.

"We wanted an animal that wouldn't compete for food with moose and caribou," Mr. Bergerud says. Moose eat tender shoots, bark and underwater plants. Caribou feed on moss.

The buffalo will join 26 caribou already on Brunette Island. This will provide an opportunity to learn whether the two animals can get along together, whether they will deprive each other of food and whether they will catch each other's diseases.

CHECK FOR DISEASE

"Buffalo are about the most disease-ridden animals in North America," the biologist says, adding that the herd earmarked for Newfoundland will be medically examined before leaving Alberta.

If the herd thrives on Brunette Island, consideration will be given to setting some free in Newfoundland. Mr. Bergerud isn't prepared to predict that buffalo hunting will ever be allowed in the province but says cautiously that if the experiment is successful the answer will "provide a good source of beef."

Guides and hunting camp owners are hopeful that the buffalo will do as well in their new environment as did moose. Six moose were brought from New Brunswick in 1878 and turned loose. Although their numbers now are reported declining wildlife officials in 1961 estimated there were 40,000 to 50,000 moose on the island.

Mr. Bergerud says another big-game animal is needed in Newfoundland because of the apparent decline of moose and the fact that native caribou—about 5,500 — show little increase.

The federal government is giving the buffalo to Newfoundland free. The province will pay the shipping cost of about $1,500.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PICTON—I have always had a fondness for this lovely town nestling in a tendril offshoot of the Bay of Quinte.

I always get a nostalgic thrill when in periodic visits I run across guys like "The Colonel" Ron Church, "That's Gold in Them That Hills" Pete Bailey; the modest, soft-spoken "Pete" Cole; the ebullient former pride of the Royal Canadian Navy, Lieut. Walt Fraser and many others I knew in the Roaring Thirties.

Going into this hub gem of the Prince Edward County crown on the afore-mentioned periodic safaris, I have always been more or less warmly welcomed.

I have covered many news stories in this historic community. One I recall was the near "perfect-crime" bank robbery in Wellington circa. That there was thrill and a touch of heartache when a local "poose" of which I was a member finished the robbers out of a thicket on the village outskirts and I looked into the eyes of a former schoolmate.

"Doing" the famous Harnsworth Trophy races, I with other newsmen from the fairway places received a certified invitation. One year the glad hand contained a tasty "McFarland" cheese.

The gentlemen of the Yacht Club extended a merry and moist welcome. The comrades of the Royal Canadian Legion were equally effusive in their "Hail Fellow Well Met."

Hizoner the Mayor? I have been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McFarland with my good lady on not a few occasions. If I lacked copy on that 1950 Belleville Centennial I lacked all I had to do was haunt Room 200 in that posh Pregme hotel.

So keeping all this in mind what had I done to deserve the reception I received last Tuesday when I invaded Deddeville via a bustine.

Main Street had a sort of sleepy look. Town burghers and countryside visitors strolled nonchalantly along the pavements. Business seemed as usual for a quiet Tuesday afternoon.

I stepped off the bus. Then it happened. The tall, handsome guy with the trimmed hairline moustache greeted me.

"Are you George Carver from Belleville?" he asked.

He was nice about it. His right hand wasn't in the vicinity of the gun he had in a belted holster.

I apologized and admitted I was the man in question.

I looked up at his six-foot plus of young manhood. He wore a sphinx-like expression. I could see he wasn't "kidding."

"You," he sifted through his super-high forage, "are wanted for questioning. Come with me."

Then I realized this tall, not-so-dark handsome blake was a police officer. He gently nudged me to where a police cruiser was parked.

My mind worked swiftly. The last "crime" I had committed was the purloining of a nickle from my late mother's cookie jar. That was in the Roaring Thirties.

I squeezed myself into the tonneau of the cruiser. I recalled the "Untouchables" series and the Al Capone story. I decided not to talk until I had contacted my favorite lawyer.

Then I heard what sounded like a snicker coming from the front seat.

This newspaper's Picton resident correspondent, one Jack Faykes, couldn't hold it any longer.

He had fashioned the "pig apprehension" and as I afterwards discovered the "questioning" was what could I do publicity-wise about a forthcoming Kiwanis Club-Kingston benefit hockey game. More about that later.

But I'm tempted to come back to this lovely town on November Fifth this year and give this Guy Fawkes the treatment his historical namesake got after he tried to blow up the British parliament buildings.

He did take me on a tour of the town's arena and new curling rink. There was a ladies' bonspiel in progress and I noted several of Belleville's finest and fairest in competition.

Reports say they didn't bring home any trophy bacon but for sheer style, attractiveness and hair-do's, our city gals had 'em all beat.

Habs Nip Leafs 2-1, Take Over Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Punch Imlach said they'd finish out of the pizzofta.

Frank Selke said he'd be surprised if they finished first.

Guess where Montreal Canadiens are now? That's right, they are out in front of the National Hockey League and they defeated Imlach's Toronto Maple Leafs to get there.

The Montrealers parlayed a 2-1 win over Toronto in Montreal Wednesday night with a 2-2 tie between Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings to gain a one-point lead over Chicago.

Selke wasn't overcome by surprise. The Montreal managing director prepared himself two weeks ago when he beamed: "We're not in first place yet but we will accept the nomination."

That was just after Montreal blanked Chicago 1-0 to put within a point of Chicago. Canadiens still have a game in hand over Black Hawks.

The way to first place for Canadiens was through Bobby Rousseau's stomach.

SCORED WINNER

The 165-pound right winger, who sat out Sunday's game with a hip injury, scored the winning goal when his own rebound trickled off his stomach past Toronto goalie Johnny Bower. The goal broke a 1-1 tie with just less than five minutes left in the game and Canadiens withstood a Leaf rally in the final minute when defenceman Terry Harper took a penalty and Toronto pulled Bower in favor of another forward.

Toronto took a 1-0 lead early in the second period when rookie winger Jim Pappin scored his ninth goal of the season after picking the puck off the boards and banking it into the net from a difficult angle.

His shot glanced off goalie Charlie Hodge's arm.

Dave Balon pulled Habs into a tie at 18:40 of the second period, before two penalized Leafs could get back into play effectively.

Pappin and defenceman Carl Brewer were banished together at 16:34—Brewer for holding and Pappin for roughing.

BOWER TESTED

Taking advantage of the big edge in manpower, Canadiens were making Bower chase them after shot. The Leafs penalties expired, but before they could get back into the play Balon batted in Jacques Laperriere's rebound from 15 feet.

Pappin received half of the six penalties assigned to Leafs, one in each period. Referee Frank Udvari called a total of 11.

Both Bower and Hodge handled 31 shots, Hodge making 30 saves and Bower 28. Attendance was 13,950.

In Chicago, rookie Paul Henderson gave the battling Red Wings the 2-2 tie. It was his first NHL goal, and came late in the third period when he, Pit Martin and Parker MacDonald broke in together on Chicago goalie Glenn Hall.

The shot just cleared Hall's outstretched pads.

Bobby Hull, the league's top goal scorer, put Chicago ahead 1-0 at the half-way mark of the first period. It was Hull's 33rd of the season and he popped it in while Detroit defenceman Doug Barkley was in the penalty box.

Eddie Joyal made it 1-1 early in the final period and exactly seven minutes later—at 10:41—Stan Mikita scored in front again with his 25th goal of the season.

Detroit had two defence rookies in the lineup—Jim Watson and Wayne Muloin, both called up from Cincinnati of the Central Professional League.

Bauer Boys Tackle Tough Swedes

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Canada's young national hockey team, its first Olympic test safely tucked away with an 8-0 triumph over Switzerland, faces a much bigger task today when it tackles Sweden in the second round of championship play at the ninth Winter Olympic Games.

The Swedes, who crushed Italy 12-2 in the preliminary round here Tuesday, will be a much more difficult foe than the less-experienced Swiss, who kept the score down Wednesday only with a spectacular performance from their netminder.

The Canadians, having split a pair of exhibition games with the tough Swedish squad in Canada earlier this year, know what they're up against today and their coach, Rev. David Bauer, says they're determined to do their best.

Switzerland also plays its second game of the championship round today, tackling Finland, which was idle along with Sweden Wednesday when Canada, Russia and Czechoslovakia overwhelmed their opponents in opening games.

The Canada-Sweden game is scheduled at 3 p.m. EST. The Switzerland - Finland game starts at noon EST.

HAVE DAY OFF

Russia and Czechoslovakia, the other giants of the eight-nation round-robin hockey competition, have the day off today while the eight teams in the consolation group B section begin their action with four games.

The Soviet Union, favored to regain the Olympic hockey title after losing to the United States in 1960, whipped the defending champion U.S. squad 5-1 Wednesday in the first competition here since the games were declared officially open Wednesday morning.

The powerful Czechs then trounced to an 11-1 triumph over Germany.

The Canadian squad, picked from across Canada and welded together at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver by Father Bauer, was held to a single goal in the first period against Switzerland as Swiss goalie Gerald Riglet played magnificently.

But with centre Gary Dineen of Montreal and Roger Bourbonnais of Riviere qui Barre, Alta., setting the pace, they rammed in five goals in the second period and two more in the third.

Canadian Pair Wins Bronze

Russians Win

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—With the Soviet Union off and running toward another first-place finish in the unofficial team standings, the competition at the ninth Winter Olympic Games moves outdoors today for three finals in which competitors from other European countries are favored.

Skiers from the host nation of Austria are the choice in the day's glamor event—the men's downhill, scheduled on the treacherous, hard-packed run on Patscherkofel Mountain where an Austrian skier died in a training accident and where several others were hurt. Any one of the first two dozen skiers down the course might win the gold medal, but the favorites are Austria's world champions, Egon Zimmermann and Karl Schranz.

On the 30-kilometre cross-country ski trail, Finland's world champion Eero Mantyranta is considered far and away the best.

And Germany's Helge Haase is the choice in the women's 500-metre speedskating final.

ENTERS ALL 2

Canada has entries in all three events, but none of them is rated a chance to add to the bronze medal Canada picked up Wednesday as the 1964 Games got under way with three hockey games and the finals in the figure-skating pairs after a ceremonious official opening before 60,000 people.

The bronze medal was won for Canada by Debbie Wilkes of Unionville, Ont., and Guy Revell of Newmarket, Ont., who finished third in the pairs figure skating.

The championship was won by Russia's brilliant pair, Ludmilla Belousova and Oleg Protopopov, whose five - minute skating exhibition left judges with them past the world champion German couple, Marika Kilius and Hans-Juergen Baeumler, to give the Soviet Union its first Olympic gold medal in figure skating.

The Germans took the silver medal, just as they did in the 1960 Games when Canada's Bob Paul and Barbara Wagner of Toronto won the gold medal.

The Soviet-victory in the ice arena came after Canada, Russia and Czechoslovakia had each handily in their opening games in the eight-nation round-robin hockey championships.

HAS 12 POINTS

Coupled with a fifth - place finish by another Soviet pairing, Tatyana Zhuk and Alexandr Gavrilov — the victory gave Russia 12 points in the unofficial team standings.

Expected victories in other events during the 12-day meet should propel the Soviet Union to another commanding total in these standings, calculated on a 10-4-3-2-1 basis for the first five placings in each and not recognized by the International Olympic Committee.

In 1960, Russia ran up 1534 points, 94 more than second-place Sweden and the Soviets dominated the first of the one-time first Winter Games they'd entered—in similar fashion.

Germany got five points for its pairs silver medal Wednesday, Canada got four, the U.S. three and Switzerland two.

In the hockey action, Canada whipped the Swiss team 8-0 as expected, Russia downed the defending - champion United States team 6-3 and Czechoslovakia overwhelmed the Germans 11-1.

SKATE WELL

The young Canadian team, with only two of its players experienced in international competition, skated well against the Swiss, but they'll have a much tougher task today when they clash with the tough Swedish squad.

Switzerland plays its second game of the championship round today, too, meeting Finland, but the other four have the day off.

Meanwhile, the eight teams in the consolation round all see their first action.

Figure skating competition continues today, too, the women's singles getting under way with the first three of six compulsory figures to be run off.

And the Winter Olympic's newest event—the men's and women's luge (toboggan) competition—opens with first runs down the Igls course in men's and women's singles.

HAS ONE ENTRY

Canada had only one entry in the luge, Doug Anakin of Montreal.

Doreen Ryan of Edmonton and Doreen McConnell of Winnipeg entered the women's speedskating event while Garry Battistella of Kimberley, B.C., Jean-Guy Brunet of Ste. Agathe, Que., Peter Duncan of Montreal-Tremblant, Que., and Rod Hebron of Vancouver were in the men's downhill.

Eric Lems and Franz Portmann of Calgary, Don McLeod of Ottawa and Martti Sautio of Long Lac, Ont., were in the cross-country skiing.

Petra Burka and Wendy Griner of Toronto and Shirra Kenworthy of Vancouver are the Canadian singles figure skaters.

Miss Wilkes, 17, and Revell, 22, making their first Olympic bid, brought joy to the Canadian figure skating camp Wednesday night, although they missed the championship.

Team manager George Sheerwood of Vancouver said he was "highly delighted" by the Canadian showing.

PREDICTED MEDAL

"I told them before we left Olympic village for the stadium that we'd bring home a medal —and that's just what they did."

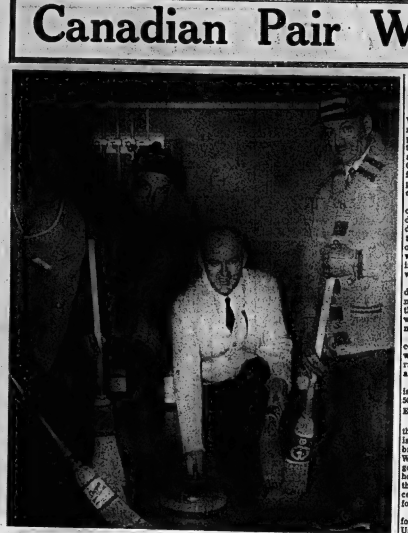
Two other Canadian pairs finished 14th and 16th in the field of 17, with Faye Strutt and Jim Watters of Vancouver placing ahead of Linda Ann Ward and Neil Carpenter of Galt.

The Soviet pair, runnerup to the German couple and to Canada's Otto and Maria Jelinek of Oakville in the last two world championships, capped their long struggle for the top with a remarkable - smooth exhibition of precision skating, in which they displayed their characteristic ballet movements.

Protopopov, 31, and his 26 year-old wife who skates under her maiden name, were ninth in the 1960 Olympics.

The victory Wednesday night prompted Protopopov to shed his fur-lined parka and a Russian team official, but he was hit fine form when he and his wife circled the rink after blowing kisses to the crowd.

BREAK LOOSE



In the hockey arena, only 900 fans watched as the Canadians broke loose with five goals in the second period after being held to a 1-0 lead by the outstanding play of Swiss goalie Gerald Rigolet who kicked out 61 shots.

Centre Gary Dineen of Montreal, who scored twice and assisted once, and forward Roger Bourbonnais of Riviere qui Barre, Alta., who scored once and got two assists, were the Canadian standouts.

Coach Rev. David Bauer said his club had skated better than in their previous games since he put the team together at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver to make the drive toward recovering the hockey gold medal that Canada has missed since 1956.

"They've got to keep after their shooting," Bauer added, however.

The Soviet victory over the United States included the Russians will be every bit as strong as the pre-games predictions indicated and they were six more heavily favored than ever to repeat their gold-medal triumph of 1956.

Acting Mayor, Alderman Don Whalen, gets a bit of moral support as he gets set to heave the first rock and officially open the 3rd annual Quinte District Bonspiel. Others in picture are Bud Powell, general bonspiel chairman, Bob Lanning, vice-president of Quinte Club and Everett Black, club president.

Record Opening Attendance

Quinte 'Spiel' Gets Under Way

By CLAUDE TICE

Before the largest crowd to ever witness an opening, the Bay of Quinte Bonspiel got under way on Wednesday night at the Quinte Club and will continue until some time Sunday evening. The clubhouse of the local club was packed with friends of the competing rinks in the opening draw along with many enthusiastic fans.

Robert Lanning was the master of ceremonies for the opening ceremonies and the bonspiel was officially opened by Ald. Don Whalen, representing mayor Jack Ellis throwing the first stone with curlers lining each side of the sheet of ice. Before throwing the first rock, Ald. Whalen welcomed the visiting curlers and hoped their stay in the district would be profitable and also one of enjoyment and good fellowship.

Mr. Lanning in getting the proceedings under way by introducing Wing Commander "Bud" Powell, general chairman of the spiel, Ken Bailey, the vice-chairman, Bill Carss and Bill Lewis, who arranged the intricate draw for the 64 rinks in competition. Bruce Cardy, general manager, was praised for the detailed work that has been put in the spiel. There are 20 rinks from outside the district competing and from as far away as Edmonton. Other towns represented are Ottawa, Unionville, Kingston and Welland.

Everett Black, president of the Quinte Curling Club added his words of welcome and thanks for the co-operation of the Trenton Curling Club and RCAF Station Trenton in making the spiel, one of the best in this section of the province.

Pipe Major A. R. Howie and piper D. Wyatt then led the competing curlers down one sheet of ice and up the other. Ald. Whalen and the general chairman then marched through raised brooms and after the first rock was thrown, the curlers took over to start the long grind for the beautiful trophies and accompanying prizes that will be awarded the winners.

To say the ice was excellent would be putting it mildly. The surfaces of the four sheets were true and lightning fast due to the hard work of the ice chairman, Ron Benn, and the icemaker, Jack Clearwater. Expressions were heard on all sides of the fine condition of the ice and the hospitality extended.

There were some fine games played and one of them was the thrilled out of the fire on the last end. Bob Lanning was two down coming home and third and this helped to take the pressure off and the rink went on to win.

Glen Jerome of Napanee and George Peters of RCAF had a ding-dong battle, which was in doubt till the last end. Peters was two down coming home and Jerome put the game beyond doubt with a three-ender. Howard Aziz of Trenton had an easy win over D. McLaughlin of Colborne. He was ahead 16 points at the end of six and the losing rink called it a day after the ninth was played.

This evening the annual banquet will be held for the curlers at the RCAF Station and will be followed by a variety show. There will be only four draws so that all can get prepared for the fine evening to be provided. The women will join with the curlers on Sunday evening for a banquet before the finals in four competitions will be played. There will be final games at the RCAF and Belleville rinks on Saturday evening.

The public is cordially invited to any of the three rinks to watch the play. Curling is a scientific and interesting game and the best of good fellowship prevails at all times. The results of Wednesday night's draw are as follows:

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

One of the big reasons for the success of Stan Mikita of the Chicago Black Hawks is the fact he doesn't get excited. He keeps a cool head at all times.

He handles the puck so well. He's a fine passer and he has a good shot. He also has a good shift. These, plus his ability to keep cool, make an ideal combination.

Another point that I think is overlooked is his willingness to take as hard a check as they are throwing out in order to set up a play for a wingman going in.

He'll take all the time in the world to make that pass perfect, delay it until the last split second, because he's not afraid to absorb a body check, to sacrifice himself to complete a play.

I know there are a lot of games he's spending a lot of time on the ice — I mean in a prone position — you, when he's down, there's always a shot going on your net by one of the wingmen.

Chicago's Bobby Hull is another unusual player. He telegraphs certain moves but he can tell you where he's going and still beat you because he has such tremendous strength and power.

Hull comes down the ice and when he gets within about ten feet of the blue line, you'll see him cross his legs. He's committing himself to go in one direction and most of the time he makes it.

It takes a real strong defenceman, who has studied Hull thoroughly, to get in his way and stop him. If the defenceman is at all off balance, because he's in the process of trying to line him up in a hurry then Hull's going to beat him. He's going to go around him.

When Hull crosses his leg over he does it with power. It's not a fancy step. Nor does he make an abrupt right angle turn. He crosses a leg over and varies his forward progress to just a certain degree with tremendous power in his stride and consequently little break in his speed.

What a fabulous player a combination of the talents of Mikita and Hull would make.

Underdog Theme Hero

Celebrities Draw 1,150

TORONTO (CP) — Warren Spahn, winningest left - hander in baseball history, put in a bid for the underdog. His pitch was for the second-division clubs, the ones that don't share in the World Series loot:

"Someone should send them a telegram saying 'thanks for participating,' the 43-year-old southpaw told the 12th annual Sports Celebrities Dinner sponsored by the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

Receiving a cheque organized to benefit the Civic Society for Crippled Children, the underdog frequently was their hero in the addresses, both humorous and inspirational, by the head-table guests.

Spahn, Milwaukee Braves' perennial ace, brought up the plight of the pitcher who had just thrown a home-run ball. He urged a rule-change giving the pitcher the hurler "a few of things to play with" while his tormentor circles the bases.

Willie Ross, one of three of his four brawls with Sandy Saddler for the world featherweight title during the 1950s, proudly described himself and former heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano as "very colorful fighters—we used to bleed a lot."

HERE BLANCHFLOWER

Danny Blanchflower, who led Tottenham Hotspur to the heights in British soccer but played 50 times for less successful Irish international teams, lectured on gamesmanship in support of the argument that "you can make a success of failure if you're clever enough.

Bill Crothers, Toronto middle-distance runner who was honored as Ontario's athlete of 1963, spoke in praise of supposedly amateur athletes, "who compete because they enjoy it" and with no hope of special privileges or publicity.

"I have no complaints," said Lou Fontinato, whose National Hockey League career as a defenceman with Montreal Canadiens was ended by a serious injury last season. He urged parents not to let his accident deter them from encouraging their youngsters to play hockey.

Other celebrities honored at the dinner included Willi Weller of Camp Borden, Ont., winner of eight medals in gymnastics at last summer's Pan-American Games; pitchers Whitey Ford of New York Yankees and Ron Taylor of St. Louis Cardinals, and Rafer Johnson, 1960 Olympic decathlon champion who was hailed by toastmaster Johnny Wayne as "probably the most talented athlete of all time."

VETS ARE GUESTS

Veteran hockey stars Johnny Mowers, Doug Bentley, Jack Stewart and Jerome Carr, footballers Jim Taylor of Green Bay Packers and Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders, curler Tom Ramsay and skeet-shooter Barney Hartman were other head-table guests.

"Timmy," representing Ontario's crippled children, was 10-year-old Charlie McMullen of Windsor.

Jack Getscliff, president of the association and sports editor of the St. Catharines Standard, said the attendance of 1,150 was a record for the function, which has raised a total of $280,000 since its inception.

Morrisburg Whips Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — Morrisburg Combines defeated Kingston Lions 8-3 in Ottawa-St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League action here Wednesday night.

D. F. Casselman, D. L. Casselman, Obie O'Brien and Rudy Gillard scored two each for the Combine. Arnold Lawlor got the other.

Jim Gebhardt and Roy Partridge replied for the Aces.

Handgun Shooting

At the Quinte marksmen club weekly shoot at the Belleville Armories the highest single target of the evening was shot by Harold Howting who recorded a score of 98.

H. Howting also registered the highest total score of the evening, 299.

Other scores were J. Bradley 296, H. Dyck 290, F. Allis 288, E. Hoffart and M. Biggars 288, D. Parks 190.

Minor Hockey

The losers in last night's Tyke division games did not have much luck in the goal-scoring department.

Losing teams scored a total of two goals in five of the six games played while the other tilt ended in a draw.

Hawks and Wings played to a 1-1 stalemate. Dave Cochrane scored for the Wings and Bill Kirkman potted the Hawk goal.

Royals whitewashed the Flyers 7-0. Dale Jones and Chris Huff spanked the winners with three goals apiece. Kent Hammel fired the other marker.

Browns nipped the Barons 2-0. John Olaveson and Dave Flesch looked after the goal-scoring duties.

Bruins shutout the Rangers 7-0. John Sprackett and Robby Howes collected two goals each with singletons for Paul Moorman, John Ross and Allan Tobworth.

Macs defeated the Frontenacs 4-1, Martin Thistle and Dave Irvine firing two goals apiece for the Macs. John Masterson was the lone Frontenac scorer.

Leafs copped a 5-1 decision over the Canadiens. Paul Ackerman netted two goals and Dave Hubbard one for Leafs. Dave Lapina was the Canadien marksmen.

Finley Gets Two Weeks Extension

BOSTON (AP) — American League president Joseph E. Cronin said Wednesday Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, has been granted a two-week extension to negotiate a lease for Municipal Stadium.

Cronin said the league granted Finley an extension of the deadline date of Feb. 1 to Feb. 15 in which to negotiate with Kansas City municipal officials for use of the city's stadium.

The American League president said the extension was granted at the request of Louis Niser of New York, attorney for Finley.

Cronin's statement was issued by his office in Boston. He is confined to his home in suburban Newton by a respiratory infection.

The illness forced cancellation of a scheduled appearance before a Senate subcommittee in Washington Thursday in connection with a sports bill.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A negotiating session between city officials and Charles O. Finley toward a new lease on Municipal Stadium for the Kansas City Athletics broke up in a deadlock late Wednesday.

The city rejected Finley's proposal for a two-year lease and Finley turned down the city's request for a four-year lease.

International Bonspiel

Quebec Rinks, PEI Lead Field

QUEBEC (CP) — Two Quebec rinks and a crew from Prince Edward Island remained undefeated as they entered today's second round of the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy event but the fate of the draw guaranteed that at least one of them would suffer a defeat.

G. C. Snowcroft of Summerside, P.E.I., Robert Lahaie of Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Que., and Leo Belisle of Shawinigan, Que., all owned records of five wins and no losses going into the third day of the 14-event Quebec International Bonspiel.

But today's draw sent Lahaie, Quebec's representative in the 1958 Brier, against Belisle, Snowcroft meets U. Bloc-Andersen of Toronto, who has already lost once.

The big upset of Wednesday's play was the 9-2 walloping handed favored Frank Butorac of Kirkland Lake, in the opening round, by Quebec's Robert Monast. Butorac, who won all three major prizes here last year, suffered his first defeat after winning 23 consecutive games over three years here.

"We were terrible," Butorac admitted. "They took one on the first end, we got two on the second and from there on in we did everything wrong—off the boom, no weight."

HAD 7 MISSES

"I had last rock on the last seven ends and missed each time," he said.

Although beaten once in earlier competition, five other rinks advanced to the second round with victories Wednesday and eight crews reached the same plateau with byes. The winners were Bloc-Andersen, B. Bolthuser of Burlington, Ont., Monast, Don Schaeffer of Montreal, and John Kilburn of Fredericton.

Those reaching the second round via the bye were Bob Ash, Kirkland Lake, Robert Chalmers, Fredericton, Ford Loucks, Port Alfred, Que., Bill Graham, Toronto and four Quebec city skips, Francois Pouliot, V. E. Lyon, Robert Verdicours and Cary Chenail.

Widest margin of victory was turned in by H. Y. Rice of Hamilton, who defeated Jean Robert of Quebec with a 14-0 thrashing.

Confusion Marks Stabbing

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)— Jim Owens, big right handed pitcher of Houston Colts, was recovering from a cut in his right leg Wednesday but circumstances leading to the injury were cloaked in confusion.

There were four different versions.

1. Police reporters of two newspapers said Owens was stabbed by an unidentified knife wielder in a Valencia barroom argument and stitched up in a hospital. Valencia is a suburb of southwest Caracas.

2. Venezuela police said Owens intervened in a fight on behalf of a friend and was stabbed while attempting to act as peace-maker.

3. The president of the Valencia club, with whom Owens has been playing winter ball in the Venezuelan League, said the pitcher was cut as a result of a swimming pool accident.

4. Owens said he slipped in a bowling alley and fell on top of a glass tumbler.

Red Speedskaters Win

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Russia's speedskaters swept to an impressive one-two-three finish today in the women's 500-metre event to boost the Soviet lead in unofficial team standings in the ninth Winter Olympic Games.

But Austria and Finland scored expected victories in two closing events to keep the Russian runaway in check.

Lidia Skoblikova, a double winner at the 1960 Olympics in Squaw Valley, Calif., covered the 500 metres in the record time of 45 seconds, chopping 9-10ths of a second off the mark set four years ago by Helga Haase of East Germany, who was a well-beaten eighth today.

Irina Yegorova and Tatyana Sidorova also bettered the old record, finishing second and third respectively in 45.4 and 45.5.

Mrs. Doreen Ryan of Edmonton finished 10th in the field of 29, equalling her best time of 47.7 seconds. Doreen McCaskill of Winnipeg tied for 13th place in 48.0.

Eero Mantyranta of Finland, the defending world champion, easily won the 30 - kilometre cross-country race, first event on the Nordic skiing program, covering the 18.6-mile course in one hour, 30 minutes and 50.7 seconds. Paal Tyldum of Norway was second, a full minute behind, and Igor Voronchikhin of Russia was third.

Together with a Russian victory in Wednesday's figure skating pairs, that gave the Soviet Union two gold medals, one second, a place silver and two third-place bronze.

Both Canadian entries in the cross-country were well back. Don McLeod of Ottawa was 38th in the field of 66 with a time of 1:46:17.2. Martti Rautio of Long Lac, Ont., was 52nd in 1:46:18.6.

Another defending world champion, Austria's Egon Zimmermann, smashed the course record in winning the men's downhill in two minutes, 18.16 seconds. Leo Lacroix of France was second and Wolfgang Bartels of West Germany third.

Canada, which had started the 1964 Games with a bronze medal Wednesday, again failed to place among the leaders.

Jean - Guy Brunet of Ste-Agathe, Que., finished 24th, Garry Battistella of Kimberley, B.C., was 26th and Rod Hebron of Vancouver 28th.

Hawks Put Young On Waivers

CHICAGO (AP) — Defenceman Howie Young of Chicago Black Hawks was placed on waivers by the National Hockey League club Wednesday.

General manager Tommy Ivan of the Hawks said if no other NHL team picks up the 25-year-old Young for the $20,000 waiver price by midnight Saturday, the Hawks could do what they want with him.

In this case, Young could be shipped to a Hawk farm club. Or he could be made eligible to be bought by any minor league team.

"The decision to place him on waivers was made strictly on his playing ability," said Ivan. "At present we have a better defenceman in Autry Erickson."

Erickson was brought up from the Hawks' Buffalo farm club of the American Hockey League recently when Young was served a five-game suspension. The suspension was meted out by Clarence Campbell, league president, for Young's miscounduct in a game at Toronto.

Young, a Cohalt native, joined the Hawks from Detroit Red Wings early this season for goalie Roger Crozier, missed practice Tuesday. He attended Wednesday's noon team meeting of the Hawks and later was notified he was placed on waivers.

The Big Seven

Fiery Stan Mikita increased his margin as National Hockey League scoring leader to four points Wednesday night.

He scored one Chicago goal and assisted on the other as the Hawks held the visiting Detroit Red Wings to a 2-2 tie. That brought his points total to 63—38 goals and a league-leading 38 assists.

Mikita's teammate Bobby Hull got the other Chicago goal and remained in second place with 59 points, including a pace-setting 33 goals.

Montreal's Jean Beliveau and Chicago's Kenny Wharram picked up an assist each. Beliveau now has 55 points and Wharram 48.

The leaders:

POACHERS HIT HARD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The retiring secretary - treasurer of the Association of Newfoundland Outfitters, a group of hunting trip planners, says about 10,000 moose and caribou were taken by poachers in Newfoundland last year. Reginald W. Coombs, of St. John's, said in an interview Wednesday the blame falls indirectly on the provincial government because "it has failed to provide enough funds for the efficient operation of the wildlife branch of the resources department."

Komets Dull Blades 3-1, Zephyrs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Front running Fort Wayne Komets humbled their nearest rivals in International Hockey League action on home grounds Wednesday night while Chatham Maroons were being pushed to within a point of the cellar.

Komets evened a home and home set with Toledo at 2-2 by defeating the Blades 3-1 and Muskegon Zephyrs snapped a fifth-place tie with Chatham by edging the Maroons 3-2 at Chatham.

The win for Komets gave them an 11-point lead over Toledo and evened the loss column at 15 for both clubs. Komets have played five games more than Toledo.

Chatham, now in sixth-place, travels to Windsor for a game with fourth-place Bulldogs tonight. Third-place Port Huron Flags and cellar-dwelling Des Moines Oak Leafs are idle.

Norm Waslawski, John Goodwin and Len Thornson shared the honors in Fort Wayne's victory.

Terry Slater was the only Toledo marksman.

Ken Hayden paced the Zephyrs with a pair and Bryan McLay counted once as Muskegon came within a point of Windsor, last year's Allan Cup champions.

Harvey Nash and Dave Lesiuk replied for Chatham.

DAVID BERESFORD (Holden S.S.)

BILL GREGORY (O.S.D.)

Bill came to O.S.D. as a hard-of-hearing boy but with gradual loss is now severely deaf. He was born in Thessalon and contacted meningitis at four years of age. He attended four years of public school before coming to O.S.D.

Bill is a natural athlete. He does what he attempts in any sport with ease and little practice.

In football he is an excellent passer and handles himself well. At 15 with another year of junior competition left, we look for Bill to have a very good season.

Basketball was something new to Bill when he first came to O.S.D. a few years ago but he is now a first string forward on the junior squad.

Bill is a natural for weight events in track and field. He has swept aside all competition in his school-age group and often outdistances the next one or two divisions. He has placed in district meets the last couple of years and with some concentrated training could develop into a top weight man.

Bill is in a special class which is preparing students for possible entrance to the deaf college.

Ontario Racing Commission

Chairman Airs Opinions

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate S. Turner Bigelow, chairman of the Ontario Racing Commission has stirred up the controversial issue of off-track horse betting and, in the process, offered some opinions on the doping of race horses and "crooked" jockeys.

Betting houses away from race tracks would be legal if the proceeds were funnelled into pari-mutuel machines at the track, he told the Ontario legislature's standing committee of commissions Wednesday.

He said this was his interpretation of certain sections of the criminal code and the time may be ripe now for such off-track betting.

Mr. Bigelow also volunteered these observations:

1. While the large majority of race-horse owners are honorable, there are possibly a few who might dope a rival's horse and some "disgruntled" employees who may use various doses.

2. The dishonest jockey is extinct in Ontario since the racing commission suspended 10 jockeys and a trainer in 1950.

The situation might be different now, the magistrate suggested, explaining that there was some supporting opinion in interpretations of section 178 of the Criminal Code.

Mr. Bigelow also felt the pari-mutuel tax on race track bets should be reduced rather than increased. His statement came in answer to a question whether the province could enlarge its budget with more race - track revenue.

The present tax should be cut three per cent to 10½ per cent, he said. Experience in the United States showed that taxes over that amount brought diminishing returns.

Pair Leads Golf Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Tommy Jacobs and Charlie Sifford led the way through the first round of the 90-hole $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic Wednesday with six-under pars while co-favorites Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer fell far down the line.

Palmer shot a 40-38—78, worst round that anyone could recall as far back as 1961.

Nicklaus, who won the 1963 Palm Springs, had a 36-37—73, which left him one over par for the day.

Toronto's George Knudson had the best score among Canadians in the event—36-35—71. Toronto's Al Balding was two strokes back of that with 33-40—73 and Vancouver's Stan Leonard had a 38-36—74.

Jean-Guy Periard of Montreal failed to qualify.

As 38 professionals bettered par on the four par 36-36—72 courses employed for this massive operation, British Open champion Bob Charles of New Zealand with 39-34—73, and Bob Goalby, with 34-33, tied at 67.

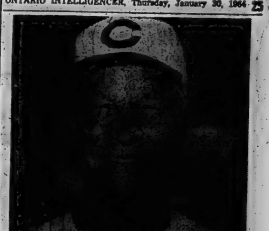
Bob Rosburg had a 34-34—68, and tied at 69 were eight players.

They were Art Wall Jr., Don Januzy, Doug Sanders, Jerry Pittman, Johnny Pott, Ted Kroll, Tom Nieporte and Bob Harrison.

National Open champion Julius Boros settled for a 71, Chi Chi Rodriguez, who won the recent San Francisco Lucky International in a playoff with Januzy, had a 70.

Trenton Juves. Defeat Picton Jrs. 7-1

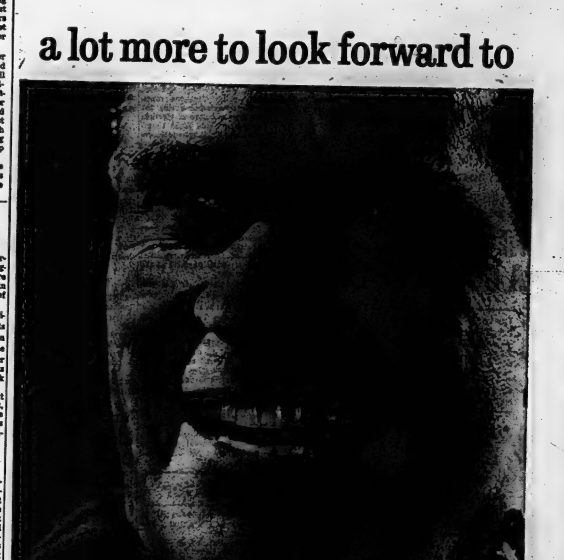
PICTON (Staff) — Trenton Legion Juveniles kept their perfect record intact in OHA Eastern Junior Hockey League play last night by whipping the league-leading Picton Merchants 7-1.



Trenton's powerful Juvenile squad has replaced the town's junior "C" entry on three occasions recently and chalked up as many victories—for their "big brothers'" behalf.

Picton leads the loop by one point, just in front of Gananoque and Napanee, but last night's upset did not help matters any.

Trenton led 3-0 after one period and 4-0 going into the third heat, when they outscored the Merchants 3-1. Rory MacDonald saved Merchants from a shutout, before a good-sized Trenton crowd.



Picton plays host to the Gananoque Islanders at 8:30 tonight in a battle for top spot.

It is thought that last night's game will be the Juvenile club's final appearances in Junior company this season, since minor players are allowed just three games in a higher bracket after January 1st. The club is expected to move up as a whole next winter.

AFL Signs With NBC

$36 Million For TV Rights

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Football League, barrelling into a stronger competitive position with the rival National League, grabbed a $36,000,000 television package with both hands Wednesday and said it will start exploring expansion possibilities immediately.

The five-year contract with the National Broadcasting Company becomes effective with the 1965 season, after the present AFL pact with the American Broadcasting Company expires.

The AFL contract is comparable to the $28,200,000 two-year agreement signed by the National Football League with the Columbia Broadcasting System last Friday.

The NFL pact breaks down to slightly more than $1,000,000 a year for each of its 14 teams. Each of the eight AFL clubs will receive approximately $900,000 a year from NBC.

U. N. Appears Heading Toward Showdown With Russia Over Finances

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Despite talk about East-West harmony, the United Nations appears to be heading toward a showdown in 1964 on the Soviet Union's role in the UN financial crisis.

This likely would involve a U.S.-supported move to suspend Soviet voting rights in the General Assembly because of unpaid UN assessments. Diplomats wonder whether the cold war thaw can survive if the U.S. takes the lead—or even joins—in such an effort.

The situation in brief is this: The UN charter provides that member nations lose their vote in the assembly if they owe the equivalent of two years' total assessments.

On Jan. 1 Russia and other members of the Soviet bloc reached the figure that makes them subject to the penalty laid down in article 19 of the UN charter.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson has said that the United States is determined to see that the charter is adhered to. Rigid adherence to the charter, Stevenson says, is essential to its preservation.

SETS STAGE

This seems to set the stage for action when the 113-nation assembly next meets. This will be in September unless world developments require a special session before then.

One way the test could be averted, of course, would be for the Kremlin to reverse itself and pay up some or all of the $42,000,000 assessed against it for UN peace-keeping operations in The Congo and the Middle East.

Many diplomats consider this unlikely, but Stevenson has expressed hope it will happen. He pointed out that in the past the Russians had unexpectedly changed their positions on other issues.

There is another possibility—the U.S. might decide it was not an appropriate time for a showdown.

While there is no evidence that this will take place, diplomats note that 1964 is a presidential election year and that major policy decisions sometimes are deferred during the final months before an election. The U.S. position could be affected also by international developments such as an important breakthrough on a major East-West problem.

No one is willing to predict that the United States will be able to muster a majority in the assembly to suspend Soviet voting rights.

NEVER INVOKED

The penalty has never been invoked against a member nation. Only Haiti has faced this possibility, last summer. Haiti made a partial payment at the last minute.

Only the Soviet-bloc countries are far enough in arrears now to be subject to the charter provision, but a majority of the member nations are behind in payments in varying amounts.

Most of them, including France, will not become liable to sanctions before 1965. Many would hesitate to back the two-year delinquency rule against the Soviet bloc because of their own potential vulnerability.

Others would hesitate if they believed such a move might aggravate the cold war or precipitate the withdrawal of the Soviet bloc from the United Nations.

George Maharis Makes Jump From Television to Movies

By BOB THOMAS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) George Maharis has hit one road again, but this time it's California Highway 111, not Route 66.

The actor has made the jump from television to movies and is starring in an adventure yarn called The Satan Bug. It is being filmed in the canyons and on the highways of this desert resort by John Sturges, the Great Escape man.

"This script in the hands of some other director might not have appealed to me," Maharis said. "But this script, directed by Sturges, seemed like the right thing to get me started in pictures."

The Greek-American is calculating about the caress as evidence by his dispute with the producers of Route 66. Maharis went that route for 2½ years, attracting a large and devoted, gratifying following.

But contract disputes caused Maharis to leave the television series.

"Within a month after leaving the hospital where I had been treated for hepatitis, they had me working in St. Louis 70 hours a week," he said. "This, despite their claims that they would make it easy for me if I came back to the series.

LOST FAITH

"That seemed to me like a strange way to recover—on the road. I lost complete faith in them (the producers). And I'm the kind of guy who can't work for someone I've lost faith in."

He said that the best medical advice, including that of a company doctor, indicated he should take a year to recover.

"And I did just that," he said, "and it's being dropped."

AT THE BELLE — Jack Lemmon shares a close moment on screen with Shirley MacLaine in "Irma La Douce" which he stars in with Lemmon with Shirley MacLaine the leads in the hilarious comedy now playing an indefinite engagement at the Belle Theatre. The great comedy is in Technicolor.

"I took off a whole year. The only work I did was some personals in connection with my records, a television version of Edward Albee's The American Dream for David Susskind, and a Judy Garland Show."

But the dispute didn't end, and the Route 66 company still claimed rights to the services. Opposing lawyers finally reached an agreement.

"I didn't get them a cent to get out of the contract," Maharis said. "And I didn't give them any call on my services. The only concession I made was that I wouldn't star in any other television series as long as Route 66 was on the air." He added with a grin: "And now it's being dropped."

Professional Organizations Will Handle Trip to N.Z.

AUCKLAND (CP)—New Zealand is widely known as a sportsman's paradise, but until lately sport on a do-it-yourself basis has made the going tough for many. New professional organizations are springing up to offer at least saving of time and temper for those unfamiliar with local conditions.

For years visiting anglers and hunters have been goggle-eyed at New Zealand's fish and game resources. But the pot-shillities have been only partly exploited because the difficulties met by visitors, overawed thousands from following in their footsteps.

Hunters overseas can scarcely believe that in New Zealand no shooting licence is needed, no season is enforced, no limit bag applies, and hunters even get free ammunition to help in reducing deer herds which have become a national pest.

MUST KNOW ROPES

But the best shooting is in remote areas and in rough country. Living can be hard for those who do not know the ropes.

Likewise, anglers seeking New Zealand's fabulous trout, or big game fish off the coasts, can waste a great deal of time organizing licences and equipment, hiring launches and the like.

Travel organizations have been prepared to arrange these services with guides acting on a part-time basis, but only now are comprehensive, full-time specialist organizations becoming available to handle all arrangements.

By the use of amphibian and other planes, great amounts of time can be saved. It is even claimed that adroit use of air services makes it possible to bag a deer, a trout and a big game fish in different parts of New Zealand all in one day.

BEST DEER HERDS

Examples of the kind of trip now offered are: Two hunters arriving by air in Auckland can be flown to Christchurch, in the south island, and from there to Queenstown, and Te Anau, in the remote southwest. Then by float plane they go to a base camp for hunting among the best deer herds around the shores of little-visited lakes of Fiordland. The cost, including the hire of, rental of equipment and hotel and hut accommodation, runs to about $300 each.

Other trips are offered to salmon rivers of the south island, trout lakes in the north island and big game fishing waters off the northern coasts.

One full-time safari guide is prepared to take his clients out after deer, wild pig, chamois, thar, swordfish, trout and salmon as desired. And he guarantees results for anyone of reasonable competence.

This guide charges an all-in rate of $3,000 for a 30-day safari of this kind. But clients have to book a good six months in advance—the word has got about from satisfied Canadians and American sportsmen and his services are heavily booked in advance.

New Zealand Has One Of the Most Powerful Parliaments in Existence

WELLINGTON (CP) — New Zealand's National party government, re-elected for a further three-year term, is turning on the question of whether Parliament has too much power for its own good.
New Zealand is one of the few countries with a one-chamber Parliament. It is also one of the few with no written constitution. In this it is like Britain, which relies on acts, legal decisions, custom and tradition. But, unlike Britain, it has no House of Lords.
The upper house of New Zealand's Parliament, the legislative council, was abolished in 1950 because it was judged to be of little value in its existing form. It had become little more than a rubber stamp for the lower house, the House of Representatives.
As a result, New Zealand has one of the most powerful parliaments in existence. It can do virtually as it likes, with almost no checks or restraints on its legislative power.
When the upper house was abolished, the idea was that a reformed second chamber would be formed later, after a full study of a better system. But action has been postponed by successive governments.
Some groups have continued to show concern at the delay particularly the Constitutional Society, a private organization seeking to preserve liberties. Last year the society petitioned Parliament for a written constitution and the formation of an upper house.
The petition was referred to a select committee of the House of Representatives, which is due to begin hearings shortly.
BILL OF RIGHTS
At the same time, the committee will consider a bill introduced last year by the government proposing a bill of rights defining fundamental liberties and roughly on the model of the Canadian measure.
Advocates of reform have recently been reinforced by a speech by Chief Justice Sir Harold Barrowclough, who pointed out that under present conditions the cabinet could and did bring about alterations in the law by acts of Parliament "pretty well just as it pleases."
Sir Harold told the New Zealand section of the International Commission of Jurists he could not imagine any more dangerous—"I think I might call them the inherent dangers—attention and safeguards sufficient in a horse and buggy age might not be adequate today.

Kim Loan Rapidly Becomes Renowned Viet Cong Figure

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—She wears her black hair long and flowing in the traditional Vietnamese style. She is known to be flamboyant, assertive and brave.
Her name is Kim Loan. Some say she is 23 and beautiful. Others say she is 38 and ugly.
All agree that Kim Loan is an authentic pistol-packing mama who is rapidly becoming a legend in the countryside south of Saigon.
Kim Loan actually has two pistols strapped to her tiny waistline, and is credited by the Communist Viet Cong cause.
COMMUNIST SYMBOL
"She is just the sort of symbol you could expect the Communists to come up with in Viet Nam," an American observer noted. "She is clever, brash and adventurous. Communists talk of her exploits with humor and awe."
Kim Loan's rise to prominence has taken about one year. Her husband, a Viet Cong district chief, was killed by government forces. A few days later she left her two young children, packed up her husband's relatives in a strategic hamlet south of the Long An province capital of Tan An, and headed into the swamps to join the Viet Cong. She soon emerged as a leader of guerrilla in Long An's normally all-male territorial units, winning the right to carry a pistol and then the other. In recent months she has risen to be the Communists' only female commander for the Tan An subsector—roughly the equivalent of a regimental commander.
Province authorities are well aware of Kim Loan's operations. They know she is armed with a bodyguard of two men with sub-machine-guns.
CAN BE TOUGH
One of her duties is collecting taxes for the Viet Cong. And she can be tough. A villager told province authorities that Kim Loan visited him, demanding tax.
When he pleaded he could not afford to pay, she shouted "speak to my pistol," and slammed one of her weapons on the table. The man rushed out to get the money. When he returned, she said, "you were too slow—speak to this one," and again slammed the other pistol down.
He quickly brought more money.
She is responsible for exploiting a and subversive work against the government in her region, entailing considerable movement. In recent months she has recruited 33 men from her old village to join the Viet Cong.
VILLAGERS IMPRESSED
As villagers tell it, Kim Loan climbed a tree to escape pursuing government troops one day and emerged as a monkey. On another occasion she jumped into a river and turned herself into a fish to escape.
"The villagers don't really believe these things," said an American who works in the area. Her enemies have been caught their imagination. And for all they know, maybe she is psychic.
Province authorities are anxious to apprehend her. The province chief believes he can talk her into joining the government, and has offered her 5,000 piasters (about $70) and safe conduct, to have lunch with him.
Despite the wild life she leads in the paddies and swamps of the Mekong Delta, Kim Loan apparently still finds time to be a woman. Three weeks ago she slipped into Tan An to have her hair waved.
The province authorities heard about it, but by the time they swooped on the beauty parlor-tonton: Northern Affairs Department, newly set, had gone back to her hideout.

Messiah Not Meant for Church Music

VANCOUVER (CP)—Handel's Messiah was not meant to be performed in churches, says Karel ten Hoope, conductor of Vancouver's Bach Choir.
Mr. ten Hoope's remark confirmed his view that the Messiah was written as a secular piece for public entertainment.
Mr. ten Hoope began to inquire into the nature of the Messiah when he noticed the difference in style between presentations in Canada and Europe when he was a guest conductor performed in a concert atmosphere.
He feels church tradition draws an unnecessarily solemn aura around the work and believes the use of arrangements of Italian operatic style on Handel's music has not been fully appreciated.
He concedes the music's inspirational quality and the religious message of Jesus Christ's texts but says there is good reason to believe the basis that Handel considered himself a dramatic rather than religious composer when he wrote for the masses rather than the church.
Handel's oratorios were generally performed in public halls, theatres and hospitals, even though churches were available to him, the conductor says.
For a mid-December performance at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, ten Hoope chose the Cooperamith edition of the Messiah and rejected 50 per cent of Handel's music for soloists. And the choir was encouraged to sing out more brilliantly than is customary in church performances.

Separate Schools Face Dilemma

TORONTO (CP) — Separate schools are facing a dilemma in providing a high standard of education with the revenue available to them, the Ontario committee on taxation was told Wednesday.

In a brief, the Ontario Separate School Trustees' Association and L'Association des Commissions des Ecoles Bilingues d'Ontario contended new sources of revenue must be found to support the "unrealistic" tax on personal and corporate real estate.

It suggested that federal funds may have to be requested for distribution through the provinces to school boards.

Yule Beak Count Reveals Many Birds Behind Schedule

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Christmas beak count by bird watchers across Canada found more birds than ever before and also a large number that should be somewhere else at this time of year.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that, aside from the many birds that decided not to go south, there were few rare birds sighted.

A bohemian waxwing appeared in the annual count in the Toronto area for the first time, but a Nova Scotia enthusiast upstaged the Toronto watcher by spotting a flock of 16.

Victoria watchers saw mourning doves that should have left long ago for Southern California. A lone sabine gull, a refugee from the Arctic, was also seen on Vancouver Island.

Victoria watchers counted 128 species and more than 4 birds — four more species than the record set in 1951. Among them were a saw-whet owl, a tufted puffin, a bluejay and a rare western kingbird.

Vancouver watchers reported 116 species, four more than the previous year, and 203,525 birds. The starling count was up to 110,321 but few cedar waxwings, usually abundant, were noted.

ROBIN REMAINED

A December robin was one of the oddities in Alberta. It was one of 3,000 birds and 49 species sighted by the Edmonton Bird Club. Two rarities in the Calgary area were a golden eagle and snowy owl.

Two species reported for the first time in the annual count by the Saskatoon Natural History Society were red crossbill and a raven. Watchers saw 6,217 birds and 28 species.

The Moose Jaw Natural History Society's 25th count of 56 species. Regina watchers counted 29 species, fourth highest count in 10 years, including a robin.

Unusually mild weather and a good season were reasons given by Manitoba watchers for an increase in sightings, especially the bluejay count, 64 compared with nine the previous years. The count in Winnipeg was 3,517 birds of 32 species, including 2,400 English sparrows. A red-bellied woodpecker, robin, cardinal, rust-blackbird, white-throated sparrow and slate-colored junco were among birds that ordinarily would be farther south.

RECORD COUNT

The 78 species and 24,065 birds seen by 29 members of the Peninsula Field Naturalists' Club of St. Catharines, Ont., was a record. Rarest birds were purple sandpipers, towhees and yellow-bellied sapsuckers. A dozen robins were seen in the Niagara area.

Toronto watchers counted 34,306 birds of 86 species including an unusual fox-colored sparrow. Guelph watchers saw 15 species the census has been taken in the area.

Three species spotted for the first time in Quebec's count were the saw-whet owl, black-backed woodpecker and white-winged crossbill. Waterfowl were scarce because most rivers were frozen over.

Herring gulls were the most common species sighted in the Saint John area of New Brunswick. Unusual were two brown thrashers and a redwing blackbird. Counted were 42 species, second highest ever. A harlequin duck was among the 54 species seen at Lepreau, N.B.

A hard winter was blamed for a decrease in the number of birds seen in the Halifax area. Spotters in Halifax east reported 52 species—second with the 10-year average of 57. The sighting of the bohemian waxwings, usually inhabitants of the northwestern part of the continent was only the seventh ever in the district.

There was no bird count in Prince Edward Island.

Newfoundland watchers observed 21 species. Most abundant were sea gulls. A single flicker was seen.

FISH EXCHANGE

Ontario plans to send 150,000 brook trout and 50,000 Atlantic salmon eggs to Manitoba in exchange for lake trout eggs for angling.

Prague Now Being Called 'Paris of the Eastern Bloc'

PRAGUE (Reuters)—The citizens of Prague are proud of the growing reputation of their city for after-dark gaiety.

Surprised visiting businessmen are calling Prague "the Paris of the Eastern bloc."

Natives are quick to recall their city, as capital of the former kings of Bohemia, has a history of gaiety and brilliance.

Prague's reputation among an increasing number of tourists is due mainly to the variety and sophistication of its bars, cabarets and night-clubs, to its girls who are pretty, charming and flirtatious, and to the quietly but steadily increasing liberalism of cultural life.

Along the shelves of the bars which dot the streets leading up from Wenceel Square, bottles from every land in East and West rub label with peaceful, if alcoholic, coexistence.

From the West comes Scotch whisky, French brandy, Italian vermouth, Dutch curacao, West German schnapps and English gin. From the eastern bloc comes gin and whisky, Russian brandy, Polish vodka and Yugoslav slivovitz. Cuban rum adds a touch of the Caribbean sun.

NO STRIP-TEASE

Night clubs range from the smart Alhambra with its blinking clad fan dancers to smoky cellars in the picturesque Lesser Mala quarter where bearded students meet to strum guitars and drink black coffee.

"We have no strip-tease yet," said one smartly-dressed man about Prague recently, "but we are working on it."

Visitors mixing with Prague's younger set find them not only fluent but keen to make contact with Westerners.

In fact, the impression gained by visitors is the drive comes from below, mainly from the young. This does not prevent them from remaining convinced Communists.

The explanation seems to be that those under 33, raised under the stern dictates of Stalin and his followers, have decided they want to "live a little."

"We, the people, are on the move," an intelligent young Czech, a professional man and a Communist, declared. "The old dogmatist days are gone along if they wish. Soon, they will be all gone anyway, and, a good thing too."

CONVICT SPIES

TOKYO (AP)—A Communist North Viet Nam military court has convicted six men of spying for the United States and given them sentences ranging from four to 15 years in prison, the New China news agency reported Wednesday. The men were not identified.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wasman of Wellington were guests of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Holland and boys.

Treasurer of Imperial Oil Talks to Campbellford C. C.

CAMPBELLFORD — More than 100 members of the Chamber of Commerce and their guests turned out to the annual dinner meeting of the Chamber here on Tuesday night to hear Donald W. McGibbon, treasurer of Imperial Oil Limited and a director and vice-president of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. McGibbon said he was pleased to see that the Campbellford Chamber had sent delegates to both the provincial and Dominion annual meetings.

He said the local chamber could do much to improve the conditions in a community, but it also played an important role at the provincial and national levels.

"We are living today in an economy much more complex than that which our forefathers knew more than a century ago, when most men were left to their own resources," said Mr. McGibbon. "They looked to the government merely to defend them from invasion, to preserve law and order, to administer justice and to provide some basic facilities such as transportation. Each man provided most of the necessities of life from what he had at hand and the industries that developed, mostly grist and saw mills, were chiefly confined to local communities. Now, however, this is completely changed.

"Today we sell a great deal of what we produce to others, and in turn, depend on others to produce most of the goods and services we need. Relatively fewer people are self-employed and the management of large segments of business has become separated from the ownership of it. Government services have multiplied many times and experience many activities unheard of a century ago.

GOVT. RULE GROWS

Consequently, the responsibility of government has increased, at the same time increasing costs of government. At present in Canada, all levels of government spend an amount equal to one-third of the nation's production.

"The chamber of commerce recognizes the role and responsibility of government, but is concerned that government should function in a democratic manner without becoming a bureaucratic and dictatorial as to endanger the basic freedom of the individual," he said.

"The public interest is best served by an economic system based on free competition and individual initiative in which business decisions are made by business men, within a framework of social responsibility."

Mr. McGibbon said the Ontario chamber, along with other provincial chambers, form one of the more important voices of business making these views known to government.

The Trent-Severn waterway committee of the Ontario Chamber was the group responsible for bringing together all communities on the system, and induced the government decision in January of 1962 to spend $12 million dollars on a program to modernize the facilities on the Trent Canal system.

INTEREST IN EDUCATION

The chamber's interest in education has always been great, it holding to the view that the education system should be reviewed constantly to ensure its efficiency and that it meets the needs of our changing society.

The chamber is now advocating, through advisory committees, such things as on-the-job training, re-training of the unemployed and the provision of career incentives. In addition it urges the teaching of basic economics in secondary schools.

Of particular interest is the question of teaching the French language in our schools. No one has yet quite defined "biculturalism" but everyone is talking about it, Mr. McGibbon said. The ferment of ideas that is going on in Quebec today and the increasing pressures for recognition of its culture, is quite apparent, and a greater degree of mutual understanding is not only desirable, but essential, he said.

At the annual meeting of the Canadian chamber in Quebec city, Maurice LaBelle, president of the Quebec chamber, proposed an exchange of visits with Ontario chamber executives and last Thursday, the first of such joint meetings was held in Toronto. The Ontario board will next go to Montreal in March for another meeting, and although progress is expected to be slow, a greater understanding between business people of the two provinces should result.

"It is to be hoped this is one step in bridging the gulf that seems to be developing between our two provinces," the speaker said.

ASSISTS INDUSTRY

Mr. McGibbon listed a number of fields in which the Ontario chamber is assisting industry and business in the province and said that tourist industry is one of these, because it is a great source of foreign exchange.

The Ontario chamber is also concerned with provincial and municipal affairs, he said. The municipal government is the most important to the people, but our expanding economy has added new worries and new costs to municipal administration, through the rapid growth of population, industrialization and urban needs. The entire concept of municipalities must be re-appraised, and the powers of the municipality, and the basis of municipal taxation and provincial subsidies, must be studied. The chamber has asked that a royal commission investigate this field and make recommendations. The chamber also advocates the council - manager type of government.

Mr. McGibbon spoke briefly of the chamber's activities in the field of portable pensions, consumer credit and taxation.

Last week, the board reviewed and approved a brief which will be presented to the Ontario Committee on taxation. The brief has not yet been presented and is not yet a public document, but it will emphasize the urgent necessity for a greater degree of co-operation between the federal and provincial governments in planning fiscal policies and the development of a system of taxation that will encourage rather than hinder the economic growth.

Mr. McGibbon was introduced at the meeting by W. A. Kingston, editor of the Campbellford Herald, who was a colleague of the speaker. He was thanked by William W. Reid, who on behalf of the chamber, presented Mr. McGibbon with a five-pound chocolate bar made in Campbellford and a pair of cuff links made by Gemstones of Canada, a Campbellford firm.

Rotary Club Told of New Govt. Depts.

CAMPBELLFORD — Speaking to members of the Rotary Club here Monday, Russell Rowe, M.L.A. for Northumberland riding, told his audience the Ontario government plans the creation of two new departments and amendments to some acts.

Mr. Rowe said that representing the riding was a satisfying experience, and that once the excitement of the election was over, he was able to settle down to representing all the people of the riding regardless of their party ties, and that party is forgotten in his everyday duties.

He said he believed the provincial level of government was the most interesting, in that it is a little closer to the people than the federal government, yet far enough removed to escape petty local issues.

Describing what he termed the impressive ceremony of the opening of the second session of the legislature, Mr. Rowe said it was the first time in history the event was televised.

Among the salient features of the speech from the throne were the plans to amend the Municipal Act, the enacting of a new Industrial Safety Act and the creation of two new departments — one dealing with universities and the other with energy and resources.

The government of Ontario is quite concerned, he said, with the decline in water supply in some areas, and is encouraging the building of dams, farm ponds and reforestation projects. The ceiling on loans to timber farmers will be increased to $40,000 from the present $20,000, he said.

A plan to eliminate mastitis as a disease among cattle is now under way in the province.

Mr. Rowe said that government support of new bills is almost assured because of the careful thought the bill is given before being introduced. The bill is carefully scrutinized in caucus, and if it fails to pass this group, it is sent back for further review and revision before being presented again.

The speaker said he has been appointed to five committees among them the committees on agriculture, education, highways, health and welfare, information and tourism, government commissions, and legislation.

Mr. Rowe was introduced by Rotarian George Free, and was thanked by Past District Governor Ralph J. Locke.

Donald W. McGibbon (centre), treasurer of Imperial Oil Limited and vice-president and a director of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, was speaker at the annual meeting of the Campbellford chamber Tuesday night. Three Men Committed For Trial

PICTON (Staff) — Rodney Ponder, Cherrytree; Victor Ponder, Cherry Valley; Picton and Toronto, were jointly charged with unlawfully being in a dwelling with intent to commit an indictable offense in Magistrate T. Y. Wills' Court here Wednesday. Police were unable to serve Hineman with a summons and he was not in court.

The three accused, elected trial by judge without a jury and after conducting a preliminary investigation, the magistrate committed them for trial before a county judge of Criminal Court.

The accused were charged after investigation of an incident at the Royal St. (Athol Township) home of John K. Kelly, (now living in Montreal) on December 21, 1963.

Three statements read in court showed that two of the men, Richards and Hineman, had punched and kicked Kelly while he was lying in bed. Mrs. Kelly also testified to this effect.

The three accused seemed to base their offense on whether they had broken the bolt holding the door or not and were reminded by the Magistrate that they were not charged with breaking and entering.

On the stand, Mrs. Kelly told the court that it was not unusual to have company, and 4 o'clock in the morning. "Some while back, I gave Ponder permission to come out at any time. The door was never locked," she added. Mrs. Kelly also testified that when she drove her husband home, about 2 a.m. that he was not too sick.

The three accused were released on their own recognizance.

Douglas Maybee Named to Head Commerce Body

CAMPBELLFORD — Members of the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce accepted a suggested list of officers for 1964 as returned by a nominating committee of Donald Meyers and William Dawson.

New president is Douglas R. Maybee who is also the chamber's representative to the Lake Ontario Development Association. He succeeds Robert B. Bennett, who retires after a two-year term. Honorary president is J. F. Ross Douglas, Q.C., who presided for the election of officers.

Vice-presidents are John R. Connor and Bruce Wallace, and secretary is Mrs. Alf Laurence. Treasurer is William Pope.

Four directors were named: Gordon Oder, Morley W. Tanner, Robert B. Bennett and Donald Meyers.

Committee chairmen remain the same as 1963. They are: tourist, David Wilson; retail merchants, Harry Burgis; industrial, William Dawson; membership, George Free; insurance, Colin Collins; publicity, William Reid and Barry Peshall. All were elected by acclamation.

Retiring president Robert B. Bennett thanked the meeting over to the new president, D. R. Maybee, after thanking the members for the co-operation which had been accorded him during his term of office.

WELCOMES GUESTS

Mayor Morley W. Tanner welcomed the guests to the meeting and thanked those who had helped him and Bruce Wallace in organizing the Santa Claus parade.

Mr. Bennett, in welcoming the out-of-town guests, said the meeting drew perhaps the largest attendance in the chamber's history.

Representing the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce were president Joseph Richardson and secretary - manager David MacMillan. Leslie Reichart and Jack Haldimand represented the Peterborough chamber. H. A. MacArthur, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, was its representative.

Mayor Morley W. Tanner thanked the spirit of co-operation which existed between the chamber and the town council, particularly in industrial and tourist work.

Retiring president Robert B. Bennett praised the efforts of membership chairman George Free, under whose leadership the membership had increased to an all-time high. He said that when there were many fields in which the local chamber could be active, he believed the main efforts should be directed at industrial development, tourist promotion and assistance to the retail merchants.

President Douglas R. Maybee said he would devote his efforts to the work of the chamber in 1964, and asked for the co-operation of the members.

Guardsmen Plead Not Guilty

PICTON — Capt. G. S. Wharton and Guardsmen R. W. Cooney, W. A. Green, J. A. Colinson were charged with illegally parking at Camp Picton, and all entered a plea of not guilty in Magistrate T. Y. Wills' court here Wednesday.

The charges were laid by Provost Corp. Sgt. W. A. Graham, who told the court that the parking of the cars was against an order issued by Lieut. Col. William Malherin, Commanding Officer of the Camp.

"I don't try breaches of the order of the commanding officer. I try only cases under the regulations under the Defence Dept", the magistrate said.

According to Sgt. Graham, who is in reality a policeman of the Army, the commanding officer of the camp has the authority to order no parking signs to be erected to implement orders prohibiting the parking. These signs were not up on the day these cars were parked", the Sergeant advised the court.

"I think you should get some legal advice on this before you proceed any further", said Magistrate T. Y. Wills as he adjourned all the cases for two weeks.

Ottawa High School Band Had Good European Trip

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—An Ottawa high school band, 83 strong, toured Europe for six weeks last summer and managed to return with a fat profit.

But before other musical groups afflicted with wanderlust get the idea it's easy, they should hear what bandleader John Murdie has to say.

Members of the Ottawa Technical High School Band and their music were enthusiastically received wherever they went in England and The Netherlands.

Travel arrangements went off without a hitch and the boys had a ball. When it was all over the band had a kitty of $2,400 to split in securities.

But Mr. Murdie, Tech's nonsense musical instructor, and the project could easily have failed without musical excellence, strong community support, expert advice and nine months of hard work by the students and their parents.

Another thing that helped was that there were no girls along. "I would never try it with a mixed band," Mr. Murdie says, explaining that the presence of girl musicians complicates travel arrangements, requires a flock of chaperones and generally increases costs.

YOUNGSTER IS 14

Most of Tech's bandsmen study music at school only, and some are as young as 14. The band has donated recent music festivals in Ottawa and fared well at the Ontario-wide Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto last year.

The band started planning the overseas trip in October, 1962, launching a fund-raising drive for $25,000. A businessman-father was drafted as business manager and a booking agent was engaged in London.

The Ottawa Kiwanis Club kicked off the drive with a $2,500 donation. The boys bashed cars Saturdays, gave public concerts and started beating the publicity drums.

The student council collected $2,000 through dances and other school activities. A mothers' committee pitched in with bridge parties, fudge sales and a spaghetti dinner.

The RCMP and Canadian Guards, among the best bands in Canada, gave a joint benefit concert.

MADE RECORD

The Tech band cut a long-playing record and sold 2,000 copies at the airport.

After public interest had been whipped up, the Ottawa Collegiate Board and the Ontario department of publicity came through with grants of $5,000 and $2,500 respectively.

A high school band from Guy Mills, Pa., gave a benefit concert while visiting Ottawa. The West Ottawa Lions Club raised half the receipts of its annual Victoria Day fireworks display. Newspapers carried pictures and pictures about the band and its project.

Eventually a total of $32,000 was collected.

Friendly townspeople in England and Holland eased the financial problem by providing free accommodation in their homes at many stops.

The band appeared at fairs, parades and theatre concerts in many Dutch villages. It gave concerts in Amsterdam, London, Margate and Hull.

Things have returned to normal at Tech. Twelve recruits have replaced graduates and while no plans have been made for another major trip, Mr. Murdie is looking around for equipment the band's $2,400 kitty.

Now rehearsals are under way for a February trip to the Toronto music festival, even though Mr. Murdie admits "it's hard to get enthusiastic about a trip to Toronto."

We Know Thief --Chief

"We know who it is."

The words were spoken with quiet firmness in Montreal last night by Belleville police chief J. B. McLaughlan.

He was referring to the man who unwittingly gave his detectives their first break in a baffling mystery involving theft of $85,000 in securities from the brother of the boss of Ontario's police forces.

With Inspector Harry M. Sayen of the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch, the chief has been in Montreal since Wednesday when $30,000 worth of the securities were turned up.

The securities, in stocks and bonds were stolen from the Belleville office of Donald Cass, Q.C., brother of Attorney-General Fred Cass, between December 10-14.

The man being sought is "an agent for a brokerage firm dealing with mutual funds," said the chief.

Beyond that he refused to identify his quarry.

In all a total of six Canada Savings Bonds have been recovered from a branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale in Montreal.

One bond, says the chief, was cashed in for $3,000. The other five were sold for $25,000 on which the bank issued two cheques.

POSED AS AGENT

The man who cashed them "posed as an agent for Mr. Cass," said Chief McLaughlan.

The bank apparently discovered a mistake in the cheques and recalled them — unwittingly breaking the case.

The Montreal tip-off on the whereabouts of the bonds came after both cheques were recalled, say police. They did not elaborate.

"However, we have recovered the cheques and all the bonds," said Chief McLaughlan.

It was not known when the bonds were cashed — nor when bank officials first discovered they were part of the haul from the Cass law chambers at 224 Front Street.

This makes the known net profit so far in the robbery only some $5,000 — on the single bond traded for cash. The majority of the securities stolen from the Cass law office were government bonds, all personally registered to Mr. Cass — as were the rest of the securities.

"We have recovered the bonds and the persons involved in the rest of the deal," said Chief McLaughlan.

He refused the name of the man who conducted the transactions in Montreal and we are now attempting to locate him," he added. If "located" the man will be asked the answer to the question of how he came to one which wasn't discovered for days.

With Inspector Sayen, the chief now is advising Montreal police as the search today fanned out over the city for the suspect in the most baffling theft on record record, for Belleville police.

Montreal Armory Raided By 15 Teenage Beatniks

SEARCH FOR CLUES — Three policemen in plain clothes photograph footprints left by 15 armed men who robbed the armory of les Fusiliers Mont Royal of guns and ammunition yesterday. (CP Wirephoto)

Load Truck With Arms

MONTREAL (CP — Enough firepower to outfit a small army has been stolen from a Montreal armory and authorities fear a new break of terrorism by young extremists seeking to shear Quebec confederation.

In an 80-minute raid Thursday a gang of some 15 teen-agers of beatnik appearance, led by a man of about 30, struck at Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal armory and escaped in a red truck with the weapons and ammunition.

They left behind nine employees and military personnel, bound and gagged in the cellar. No shots were fired and no one was hurt.

The army said the gang stole 30 new-issue machine-guns, six older-model machine guns, four four-inch field mortars and mortar bombs, about 60 Belgian F-N semi-automatic rifles, sidearms, some 10,000 rounds of ammunition and walkie - talkie radio equipment.

Some of the machine - guns had no firing pins.

A police official said a number of bazooka anti-tank projectors were also stolen but no bazooka ammunition, normally issued only on the firing ranges.

WORK UNIFORM

One of the men overpowered by the raiders said the leader of the gang wore an army uniform carrying the shoulder patches of Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, a French-speaking militia infantry regiment.

The armory is a turreted brick building of castle - type architecture at the midtown intersection of Pine Avenue and Mont Julien Street.

J. Adrien Robert, Montreal's police director, said the force's preliminary investigation showed "the theft was not carried out by members of the underworld."

Word of the aid came when various news media were telephoned by a person claiming man who identified himself as a member of a movement called Le Comite Revolutionaire du Quebec (The Quebec Revolutionary Committee).

At about the same time as the raid, provincial police found French language slogans painted on the outside wall of a downtown courthouse, denouncing "traitors" and "imperialist sympathizers."

The words, in French, were in black paint.

WILL INVESTIGATE

In Ottawa, Defence Minister Hellyer announced a full investigation of the theft, instructed the army to co-operate with the RCMP and Montreal police.

In Quebec City, Attorney-General Hamel said Quebec provincial police would also co-operate.

The Montreal police department meanwhile threw its FLQ squad into the investigation. The squad was established last year to combat Le Front de Liberation Quebecois.

STRIKE SWIFTLY

Thursday the raiders struck at 7:30 a.m. EST. Police, tipped after the telephone calls, sped to the armory after the gang had fled and found eight men trying to free themselves.

Conrad Boulianne, 60, the night watchman said police he let in the raiders without a struggle because they tricked him into opening the armory.

He said a man rang and told him he was "an army man on important business." The man knew Boulianne's name. The night watchman said he opened the door and the gang ran in, carrying rifles, sawed-off shotguns and pistols.

In the minutes that followed, the raiders grabbed eight other men who showed up in various capacities. Some thought the af-

Stamps Worth $12,000 Stolen, Some Burned; Hold Local Boy

Belleville detectives yesterday pounced on a 16-year-old suspect in the theft of a $12,000 stamp collection.

Police today fear some of the stamps may have been burned — among them a St. Lawrence Seaway misprint, valued at $1,800.

In custody is James Meens of 216 Stanley Street. He is charged with possession of stolen goods.

The stamps were in an album stolen from the residence of Mrs. Florence Greenleaf, 278 Dufferin Avenue, on December 23. Full value of the stamps was not immediately known at the time and the burglary received little publicity.

In recent weeks, however, police checked out the catalogue price of the missing collection and finally valued it at approximately $12,000.

The stamps were recovered yesterday after officers went to Toronto and repossessed an album from a man who had bought them Tuesday.

"We don't know the value of the stamps we've recovered so

Seek to Get NATO Aid Accepted

LONDON (AP)—Britain and the United States met today with the feuding factions of Cyprus in an effort to win Cyprus President Makarios's approval for a NATO peace-keeping force on his east Mediterranean island.

Makarios gave every indication of vetoing the plan unless the force is answerable to the United Nations, something the Western allies are not likely to approve because it would involve the Russians.

British Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler, Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys and U.S. Ambassador David Bruce met at Marlborough House with the Turkish, Greek and Cypriot foreign ministers and representatives of the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot communities.

Archbishop Makarios said Thursday the stationing of NATO or any other troops in Cyprus to prevent a renewal of inter - communal fighting between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots is "in no way necessary."

"If there is a need for the presence of troops on the island, these must be troops of the United Nations whose main objective should be repulsion of outside intervention," he said in a statement. "The presence of a force other than the United Nations in Cyprus would complicate the situation and eventually lead to many adventures."

OPPOSE PARTITION

Greek - Cypriot delegates at the London conference contended that the Turkish - Cypriots would use the NATO force as a cover for their campaign to partition the island between the two communities, a solution

Space Scientists Re-aim Rocket Now Expect It Will Hit Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Space scientists re-aimed the off - course camera - carrying Ranger VI spacecraft by remote control early today and later said "we probably will hit the moon."

Dr. William Pickering, director of jet propulsion laboratory, which is controlling the flight, said "the mid-course correction seemed normal."

"Everything continues to look very good," said Pickering. "On the basis of information radioed back by the spacecraft, I can say that we probably will hit the moon."

If all goes well, experts hope to be able to announce later what part of the lunar surface the 804-pound spacecraft will strike.

Signals pointing the spacecraft dead center at the moon and igniting its small booster rocket were flashed 191,000 miles across space at 12:30 a.m. almost 17 hours after the launching at Cape Kennedy.

At 1 a.m. PST, officials announced that the signals had been received by the spacecraft and that the 50-pound thrust booster rocket had ignited.

Plans called for this to increase the spacecraft's 4,343-mile-an-hour speed by 82 m.p.h. and thus pull the trajectory toward the centre of the moon, 230,187 miles from earth.

Prior to the manoeuvre, Ranger VI was on a course that would have missed the moon by 600 miles.

Ranger VI carried six television cameras designed to snap up to 3,000 closeup pictures of the moon in the final 10 minutes of its flight.

These would be the closest pictures yet taken of the moon's surface. The Russian Lunik III photographed the back side of the moon in 1959, but from an altitude of 4,000 miles.

Up to now, earthbound telescopes have been unable to see even objects as large as aircraft carriers on the moon. Pictures by Ranger's cameras in the last few seconds before impact should distinguish objects as small as a card table.

Such fine detail would give scientists a better idea of the lunar surface where U.S. astronauts may land by the end of this decade.

Laboratory officials said Ranger VI now would coast through space until early Sunday morning.

About 65 hours after launch, the spacecraft will be ordered to train its television cameras on the moon's surface.

How to Divvy up $100 Million - - Be a GM Executive

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — Cash bonuses, stock options and other special incentives to executives play a role in generating record profits such as those now being reported by a number of U.S. corporations.

Practically every big company offers incentive compensation to lure and hold able managers.

Rewards under most plans are geared to profits. For top executives, the incentive often is tailored to overcome the income tax rates on high-bracket salaries.

General Motors Corporation awarded more than $100,000,000 in bonuses alone at the start of 1963, based on employee performance in 1962. Last Monday, GM reported 1963 earnings of $1,382,000,000, more money than any business has ever made in a year.

Stock options granted to Lynn Townsend, president, and six other officers of Chrysler Corporation, a GM rival, stirred a demand by Senator Albert Gore, Tennessee Democrat, to outlaw such privileges.

The Chrysler group, which converted an ailing firm into a big moneymaker, benefited by more than $3,000,000 recently through a preferential stock purchase-sale arrangement.

U.S. corporations are reporting earnings higher than ever before. Various reasons are given, including cost - cutting, automation, new products, increased defence spending. Incentives, however, management gives chief credit to executive incentives, such as bonuses and stock options. Here is a report on the General Motors bonus system, which probably will pay an additional $100,000,000 or more to GM executives this year.

"This stock-option privilege is a tax abuse which is growing," Gore said. He called it destructive of stockholders and unfair to taxpayers.

Some companies have profit-sharing plans. Others have savings-investment funds in which the company matches the individual's contributions.

U.S. Steel Corporation has seven kinds of incentives, some available to blue collar as well as white collar employees—such as reward for suggestions to improve efficiency.

Analysts credit the GM bonus plan, established in 1918, with an important part in the development and retention of GM's excellent management corps.

In all likelihood, bonuses will exceed $100,000,000 again this year. They could amount to half again as much.

Awards granted last February — the so-called 1962-related bonus—were distributed to about 14,000 employees, most of them salaried men and women earning more than $9,000 a year.

The size of the bonus—or whether an employee will get one—is determined anew each year, based in the first instance on a recommendation of his immediate superior.

Except for small awards made in a lump sum, they are paid on an instalment basis over five years. They provide a strong deterrent against switching to another company. When an employee quits, the payments stop.

Of 600,000 accruing to Chairman Frederick G. Donner last year, his salary was $101,275 and bonus payable in cash was $442,500. The remainder was in contingent credits under the GM stock-option plan.

Fifty-six directors and GM officers divided $9,036,053 in bonuses—payable over the next five years.

Billy-Armed Police Turn Back Whites In Cleveland's Worst Racial Turmoil

CLEVELAND (AP) Police swing billy clubs and assisted by officers on horseback turned back an unruly crowd of more than 400 white persons Thursday in Cleveland's worst racial disorder in recent years.

At least 10 priests and civic leaders in the Little Italy district on the city's east side were jeered when they attempted to calm the demonstrators.

Two Negro men and four photographers were beaten before relative quiet was restored in the area.

The violence occurred in an area near a grade school picketed by integrationists for several days.

The civil rights groups sought more complete integration of 800 Negro pupils transported by bus from overcrowded Hazeldell school to three schools in the east side area. Parents of whites while children objected.

PROTEST CUTS

At Chicago, meanwhile, about 200 women and children on relief picketed in protest of recent relief cuts. The pickets said they do not have enough to eat.

Two women hinted during the demonstrations and Rev. Henry Mitchell, organizer of the march, said they were hungry. Most of the demonstrators were Negro.

Fifty of the women and children sat in at the State of Illinois building while the rest formed a block to the city hall chanting:

"We want food. We want jobs."

In New York, final plans were made for a one-day boycott of the largest public school system in the U.S. on Monday to protest de facto segregation in some classes.

Scoff at Claim Queen's Visit Will Cost Canada Million

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials here are scoffing at a suggestion that the Queen's visit to Charlottetown and Quebec City next October might cost $1,000,000.

"Grossly exaggerated," said one. "Completely full of hoots," said another.

But the officials aren't willing to make an estimate now of the cost. So far as the federal treasury is concerned, it may only be one per cent of the $1,000,000 figure on which Laval University students are basing their protest against the Queen's visit.

Moreover, officials say on the basis of past experiences the tour probably will involve more dollar gain than dollar expenditure.

In 1959, when the Queen and Prince Philip toured Canada for six weeks, the out-of-pocket cost to the federal treasury was $350,276. This, of course, did not include the expenses of the armed forces and civilian branches of government which could be traced to the tour, but which would be spent on pay and services in any case.

As a memento of the royal tour, and in place of a gift, the former Conservative government established a $1,000,000 fund for medical research into children's diseases. Many of the provinces set up scholarship and similar funds, far exceeding the $1,000,000 federal fund.

The Queen and Prince Philip will fly to Charlottetown about Oct. 6 and leave Quebec City about Oct. 12, limiting their visits to those two cities which this year will mark the centenaries of the 1864 conferences of the Fathers of Confederation.

The Laval Students, led by Brian Mulroney, 23, president of the law class and a former conservative Club executive, say the money to be spent on the Queen's six or seven day tour might better be spent on scholarships.

While officials here say it is wholly impossible at this stage to estimate the cost, three visits by members of the royal family in various parts of Canada in one year cost an aggregate of less than $20,000.

In addition to many of the expenses being covered by normal government spending on military and civilian services, royal tours of Canada are to some extent 'paid for by the United Kingdom government Canada makes no contribution to the cost of the Queen's household.

Curlers Cap 'House' Action With Banquet, Variety Show

By CLAUDE D. TICE

A wonderful day of curling was capped off by a delicious dinner followed by an excellent variety program as the second day of the Bay of Quinte Spiel came to an end. Many good rinks fell by the wayside in the main event and others thought not likely to be in are going strong.

The rinks are down to the sixteen in the North American Van Lines and to the thirty-two in the O'Keefe competition. The real hefty curling starts today and most rinks will have to play at least three games and by nightfall most of all the competitions will be in full play. Each rink is guaranteed four games, but a rink is out, if it loses the fourth game.

The rinks, Trenton, RCAF and Quinte were again packed with spectators as the curlers entertained with fine curling. There were plenty of skips behind the glass calling the shots. The women's sections of all three clubs were busy serving hamburgs and sandwiches of all kinds, while at each club was the cheese table, the product being kindly donated by The Ontario Intelligencer. It was one of the busiest places in the club. There was no curling in the evening at any of the clubs as the dance in the Airmens' Mess was the main event.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Farr, caterers at the station, put on a dinner "fit for a king" and to use a hackneyed phrase, apple justice was done by the hungry curlers.

General Chairman "Bud" Powell presided at the dinner and Wing Commander J. O. Maitland, acting O.C. of the station, welcomed the guests in a brief but witty address. The program chairman was delightful and varied and a fine reception was given the artist.

Mac White's rink of Al McCollam, Dave Brown and Dr. McCormick and Bob Alexander's rink of Zen Monson, Jack Preston and Dawson Boyd are still left in the main events and wins today would put them into the eights. There are a number of local rinks at the O'Keef's but in the main the most have been defeated from the boys and now the real curling begins. There were a number of six-enders scored during the day, Hasen Dialy with his rink getting one of them.

Results of the draws on Thursday:

Death Guard Admits He Killed 250-300

FRANKFURT, West Germany (Reuters)—Josef Kiehr, 59-year-old former Nazi concentration camp guard, admitted in court today that he had killed 250 to 300 Polish prisoners and exhausted prisoners by injecting them with phenol.

Kiehr, chief sick bay orderly in the Nazi camp, said that within three months he administered phenol injections at least twice a week at the order of Dr. Entress, a camp doctor.

But he denied he had injected prisoners who had survived experiments in which they were artificially infected with spotted fever.

A lawyer representing the families of camp prisoners told the court today up to 300 persons a day had been killed at Auschwitz by "shunting"—camp jargon for phenol injections.

Twenty-two former members of the camp staff are being tried here for their part in mass executions at Auschwitz, where some 4,000,000 people died.

Ontario Farmers Asked to Boost Acreage Worked

TORONTO (CP)—Everett M. Biggs, Ontario's deputy minister of agriculture, said Thursday Ontario farmers will be asked to increase acreage under cultivation.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association that cultivated acreage declined to 7,490,000 acres last year. The province had 10,000,000 acres under cultivation in 1923.

He said farmers will have to reverse the trend of declining acreage to meet food demands in Canada and the world.

Mr. Biggs said that while underdeveloped countries have improved their agricultural industries, he doubted they would ever meet the needs of their populations.

Canadian farmers would be faced with a 70-per-cent increase in food consumption and 90 per cent rise in world demands within the next 20 years.

His View on UN Misrepresented, Canadian Quits

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Stewart Bates, president of Canada's Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, told a United Nations committee meeting Thursday that the island, on a UN housing and planning centre had been misrepresented in a committee press statement. He said he must leave the UN housing and planning committee because of it.

An apology by Ernest Weissman, UN assistant secretary-general responsible for the committee, for an error he said was made in reporting Bates' stand failed to change the Canadian representative's decision. He said he would return to Canada today.

"I have been embarrassed by the report," Bates told an open meeting of the 31-member committee.

Bates is former chairman of the committee, considered by programs to step up international aid for housing and planning and with especially in developing countries.

In answer to the plea of the Soviet Union and Poland to reconsider, Bates said: "I cannot. I must return to Canada."

The Canadian spoke briefly over whether a new specialized agency should be established to deal with world housing problems or whether a department or centre inside the United Nations, offering technical assistance, would suffice.

The United States, Canada, the Soviet Union and Poland are among those that have opposed establishing a new agency.

The centre idea was proposed by Charles Davidson, a Canadian, who conducted a survey of needs for UN Secretary-General U Thant.

In opening the discussion Tuesday, Bates spoke of the value of the functional structure to deal with housing problems. A UN press department release of the meeting made it appear that Bates differed with the U.S. approach.

Later in the day, Bates and Masahiko Honjo of Japan cosponsored a resolution that called for establishing only a centre to be financed by the UN regular budget and clearly limited to the specialized agency idea.

South Viet Nam Strongman Promises Natl. Union Govt.

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's new military strongman today promised a government of national union made up of representatives of all walks of life.

But Maj-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who seized power Thursday from the junta which overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem, warned he must "apply a large number of exceptional measures aimed at effectively safeguarding public order."

Observers took this to mean Khanh and his 35-man military junta would be in no hurry to give up power to civilian authorities.

Khanh also announced at his first press conference that the leader of the junta he overthrew, Maj. - Gen. Duong Van Minh, has accepted the position of "an adviser" to the new military council.

The tanks and troops that helped overthrow the old junta disappeared from Saigon today.

Most people had paid scant attention to developments.

BECOMING BORED

At the new regime slapped posters on walls and broadcast slogans over the radio, one Vietnamese official commented:

"This kind of thing has been going on so long and so often we Saigonese are a little bored."

A young lieutenant who was promoted after the first coup said grimly:

"If I get promoted each time I have a coup, I figure I should be chief of state by the time I'm 35."

Khanh made his first public appearance since the coup. He went to Saigon airport to say goodbye to Gen. Le an Ty, who is reported going to the United States for medical treatment.

Khanh appointed 17 generals and 18 colonels to a new revolutionary council, replacing the three-month-old junta of Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, provisional chief of state.

Minh, popular leader of the generals' revolt against the late president Ngo Dinh Diem Nov. 1-2, was ousted after he refused to continue as figurehead chairman of the new junta. Minh was not arrested, however.

Khanh also dismissed Premier Nguyen Ngoc Tho, the government's civilian leader who has held public office continuously since 1945. He was vice-president under Diem.

While the political manoeuvring continued, U.S. military advisers feared the Communists would capitolize on the confusion to make major military gains, as they did after Diem's ouster.

At daybreak, a bomb exploded inside a U.S. military compound. Although such bombings are not unusual in Saigon it could have been the first Communist action in the coup. Two Vietnamese girls were slightly injured and an official U.S. source was damaged.

Besides the Communists Khanh faces grave dangers from the South Viet Nam's restive army.

He has arrested several key leaders of the old junta, accusing them of conspiring with France to bring about the neutralization of South Viet Nam and reunification with North Viet Nam.

In a statement, Khanh said the overthrow was aimed at purging supporters of French president de Gaulle's neutralization policy. But most Americans in Saigon believe the coup was the result of a military power struggle.

Khanh, once a trusted associate of Diem's, waited until the outcome of the battle before joining the revolt against him.

In Washington, the state department withheld recognition of the new government until further developments, although it appeared the United States eventually would recognize the junta. A qualified U.S. source in Saigon said there would be no interruption in American aid to the government.

Canadians Got Cold Shoulder Says Minister

OSHAWA (CP) — Washington politicians turned a cold shoulder on a visiting Canadian parliamentary group recently when the question of the Great Lakes labor dispute was raised, Michael Starr, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Ontario constituency, said Thursday.

Mr. Starr, former federal labor minister, made the statement in a speech to the riding Conservative Association's annual dinner.

He would not elaborate on his statement during the meeting, but later in an interview said: "Well, they weren't interested. It was quite obvious they were shying away."

He said that during the two-day joint Canadian-U.S. interparliamentary conference earlier this month, the U.S. group "made it obvious they were reluctant to discuss the matter."

Grade 13 Papers Fewer Next Year

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) — Grade 13 students this month will write fewer examination papers, starting next year, Education Minister Davis announced today.

The number of papers will further reduce to three in 1966 and 1967 as the department moves to rectify what it calls the "problem of Grade 13."

Mr. Davis said in the legislature he is naming a committee of education officials "to recommend the precise combination any changes which appear to be necessary and advisable in the Grade 13 years."

One of the major problems has been the marking of Grade 13 examination papers in Toronto early enough to allow students to make their university entrance plans.

While the number of students writing papers was increasing greatly, the number of teachers available to mark the papers was not necessarily going up.

LANGUAGES FIRST

As a first step, in 1965 only one three-hour paper — instead of two 2½-hour papers—will be written in each of the languages except English and French, Mr. Davis said.

The principal effect of this in most schools would be to cut down to one the number of final papers written.

Mr. Davis said starting in 1966 students will write one three-hour paper in biology instead of two separate papers on botany and zoology. The single paper would be based on a revised, combined course.

By 1967 only two papers will be written on mathematics instead of three, at present. The problems paper would be retained as a separate paper.

Mr. Davis said the department had discarded, for the present, a plan to have some marking at Grade 13 papers done in the cities where they were written.

He indicated, however, that this plan could be instituted later.

Major Radio, TV Networks Face Strike

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Negotiators worked against a midnight (EST) deadline today to avert a country-wide strike against two major U.S. radio and television networks.

Members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians have authorized their representatives to call a strike at midnight. The networks involved are the American Broadcasting Company and the National Broadcasting Company.

Spokesmen for ABC and NBC say there are enough trained supervisory employees to keep programs on the air as scheduled if there is a strike.

Finn Skier Noses Out World Champ

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)— In the last jump of the day, Veikko Kankkonen of Finland won the special 70-metre men's ski jump at the ninth Winter Olympic Games today, noudging out world champion Toralf Engan of Norway on the basis of unofficial computations that are subject to review.

Showings are based on the best two of three jumps with points combined on distance and form.

Kankkonen has 229.90 points compared with 226.30 for Engan, who took off at the end of the second round and appeared to be winner after a beautiful leap of 78½ metres (259 feet, two inches).

However, this effort was matched by Kankkonen. His jump with a previous better effort gave him victory.

Other placings and points were: Torgeir Brandtzaeg Norway, 222.90, third; Josef Matous, Czechoslovakia, 219.00, fourth; and Pieter Neuendorf, Germany, 214.70.

Charges Girl Given Police Third Degree

OAKVILLE (CP)—A defence lawyer said Thursday a 16-year-old girl was given incommunicado and given the third degree by police until she made a statement satisfactory to them.

John G. White of Hamilton was speaking at the preliminary hearing of three youths who were committed to stand trial on a charge of robbing a service station.

The girl, Shirley Sinclair, 16, of Oakville, was freed of a charge of possession of stolen money.

She said she had been held at the Oakville police station Nov. 12 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. when she made a second statement more detailed than an earlier one.

The youths are Robert Page, 20, Wayne Buckingham, 19, and Robert Gibbons, 20, all of Burlington, charged with taking more than $200 from an Oakville service station.

Miss Sinclair said she and another girl went to a motel Nov. 15 where the three youths divided a pile of money on a table. Buckingham, her boyfriend, placed some change in her purse.

Recommends Referral System For Hospital

TRENTON — In her annual report to the Victorian Order of Nurses' executive, Miss Anne Stewart recommended that some thought be given to a hospital referral system, now that Trenton has taken in certain sections of Murray and Sidney townships by annexation. The report was read by Miss Stewart at a Wednesday night combined annual meeting, of the VON Trenton branch and the Trenton unit of the Canadian Cancer Society. Miss Stewart remarked at the beginning of the report that this was the 46th, such report to be given to a Trenton executive.

Miss Stewart defined a "referral" program as one by which a patient would be sent home from the hospital while still convalescing and would take advantage of the many services offered by the VON. Relatives of the patient would be given special instruction by the VON nurse and the patient might be expected to make a faster and more lasting recovery in familiar surroundings. With such a system at work, there would be no danger of the hospital becoming overcrowded.

Miss Stewart cited cases in other towns and cities where service clubs had worked with the VON throughout the year. In one instance, the Kinsmen Club had paid for an operation on a small boy in a Toronto hospital. VON nurses on the other hand, assist with medical examinations of the children sent to summer camp by the Kiwanis Club.

Trenton Lions, said Miss Stewart, work with VON nurses in providing care for the blind citizens, and the Rotary Club provides transportation for crippled children, under VON care, to the Toronto children's hospital.

VON nurses provide a service to the Domtar Products plant in east Trenton and this year, said Miss Stewart, the plant executive had provided a special First Aid room for the nurse.

Miss Stewart reminded her listeners that the old CNR station, in which the VON office is located, will soon be torn down to make way for a supermarket. The VON is looking for new quarters and members of the branch were asked to be on the lookout.

Following her report, Miss Stewart showed slides of VON operations in Trenton and the surrounding areas, which include Middleings Park, Bayside and Frankford.

Lawyers Will Appeal to Supreme Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyers for convicted murderer Georges Marcotte announced Thursday they are prepared to appeal his conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Marcotte, a 32-year-old carpenter, was found guilty in March of capital murder in the so - called Santa Claus bank holdup in suburban St. Eustache in December, 1962. Two policemen were killed in a gunfire exchange with the gunmen, one of them dressed in a Santa suit.

Marcotte was sentenced to be hanged last May 31. But he appealed to the Quebec Appeal Court, which only recently brought in a ruling upholding the conviction.

Wants Week Proclaimed for Cancer Society

TRENTON — A suggestion that Mayor MacDonald and town council proclaim the week of April 5, "Cancer Society Week" in Trenton was made by Mr. C. Wenzel at a meeting of the society's Trenton unit Wednesday night.

Mr. Wenzel said April 5 was "Daffodil Day" across Canada, at the start of local drives for funds, and he said if the week following were set aside, other groups would be discouraged from sponsoring drives at that time. This year, Elmer Boulter and the local unit's 1964 president, James Duncan, will head up the Trenton drive for funds. The Ontario objective this year is two million dollars and 80 per cent of this is used for cancer research, Mr. Wenzel said.

Mr. Wenzel also urged those present to support the Red Cross blood donor clinics held in this area. The Ontario society was concerned about the lack of response in the province to appeals for blood donations. Blood transfusions are necessary in the treatment of leukemia.

Mr. Wenzel said that the Cancer Society had more or less decided to concentrate on stopping children from smoking rather than try to induce adult smokers to quit. He said that more than 100,000 Canadian children now in school would die of lung cancer if the present trend continues.

Health Board To Query Nurse Payment

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Health voted Wednesday to ask town solicitor Roderick Campbell's opinion on whether or not the board should be expected to pay the salary of a VON nurse for services at the town's two separate schools. In 1963, the board paid $450 towards the services. The VON budget submitted to the board this year is for $650.

Board member Miss Marjorie Gothard pointed out that the Trenton school board pays the salary of the public school nurse and wondered if the separate school board might not be expected to pay the VON salary for services at St. Mary's and St. Peter's schools.

Town engineer Eric Aldersey told members of the planning public works' committee of town council had allowed for the purchase of a weed spraying machine in the 1964 budget. This was good news for the board members as it had been thought the board might invest in such equipment this year. In answer to a query from board member M. Gothard, Mr. Aldersey said, he thought it possible the works' committee might consider renting the machines to individuals.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Pot-Luck Supper

TRENTON — Mrs. Celia Rosenplot, vice-president of the Trenton Senior Citizens' Club, took charge of this week's meeting of the club in the absence of the president, Mrs. E. Panter, who is holidaying in California.

A letter from Mrs. Alec MacDonald, thanking the club for flowers sent to her at the Trenton hospital, was read and it was decided to send flowers to Mrs. Lulu Genereaux who is also a hospital patient.

Mrs. J. Bauerline was the winner of the brush which was raffled off and which had been donated by Mr. E. Barker.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Coutts showed colored films of points in and around Germany, taken when Mr. Coutts was stationed in that country and Mrs. Rosenplot voiced the thanks of the club for their kindness.

Mrs. Rosenplot announced that the club would be losing a member as Mrs. Brett is moving to Halifax.

Grace was said by Jack Johnson and the members sat down to an enjoyable lunch. The meeting ended with the singing of "Till We Meet Again."

Fly Air Cadets Over Niagara

TRENTON — Fifty Air Cadets from 732 RCAC Squadron, Batawa, along with 75 Kingston Air Cadets, flew over Niagara Falls during a visit to RCAF Station Trenton recently. The Yukon aircraft, piloted by Flight Lieutenant A. P. R. Hutchinson, made several circuits so that all the cadets could see the frozen winter splendor of the falls. The cadets were accompanied by the commanding officers of their squadrons, Squadron Leader L. W. Haunts, Kingston, and Flying Officer Mglarkey, Batawa, and the RCAF Liaison Officer, Flight Lieutenant C. D. Yates, RCAF Station Trenton.

Split Personality

Dr. Harold B. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, has issued orders for increased vigilance in the investigation of the deaths of children.

Since his appointment 13 months ago, says Dr. Cotnam, 13 children have been beaten to death. For every child who dies of neglect, malnutrition or cruelty, there are a hundred others who are mistreated without the authorities becoming aware of it, he estimates.

"People rush to the phone when they see a horse being whipped or a cat up a tree, but they look the other way when a child is literally beaten to death," he declares.

This is a slight exaggeration, but almost everyone has watched a child receive punishment which seemed unduly harsh—and knows from experience the almost overwhelming reluctance to interfere. There are several reasons for this, not the least of which is that many children have a histrionic talent which is truly amazing and can yell blue murder at the slightest smack.

Dr. Cotnam is right, though, in urging citizens to assist the authorities in preventing these revolting cases of cruelty to children.

Yet, on the very same day that Dr. Cotnam was calling for the formation of societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, his chief, William Common, Ontario's deputy attorney general, was calling for the abolition of the office of chief coroner of Metropolitan Toronto. This post is now held by Dr. Morton Shulman, who differs with Dr. Cotnam on how a coroner's office should be run.

Dr. Shulman says it will be "a great pity if they succeed in turning this office into what it was before—an instrument for concealing the truth from the public."

Within limits—and we have read nothing to indicate that Dr. Shulman has overstepped them —there ought to be no restriction on the type of question a coroner can ask. Dr. Shulman appears to specialize in the kind of questions which are apt to embarrass authority. For instance he called Federal Department of Transport witnesses to testify about the adequacy, or otherwise, of lifesaving regulations, and he says Mr. Common and Dr. Cotnam endeavored to prevent him from doing so. He has also been inquisitive as to the manner in which doctors and hospitals have treated patients. Queries like this may not win him friends in some circles, but they ought to earn him the esteem of Mr. Common and Dr. Cotnam. Dr. Shulman is displaying precisely the frame of mind which Dr. Cotnam is trying to promote amongst the general public in preventing cruelty to children—a readiness to stick his neck out in the effort to ascertain the truth.

Pasted by Our Own Pastry

Like the Mad Hatter's tea party, the mixture of politics and economics in the modern world becomes more and more confusing. Consider, for example, Canada's trade relations with the communist world.

It all started with a shortage of rice in China and a surplus of wheat in Canada. Simple solution—sell Canadian wheat to China. The idea caught on and during the past year Russia herself bought Canadian wheat to almost eliminate the surplus. Joy and happiness among Canada's wheat farmers. Political types hope that well fed Russians and Chinese will be less anxious to do battle, verbal or otherwise.

Then, disaster strikes. Scientists at the federal government's Agriculture Research Station in Lethbridge discover wheat may hold the secret of eternal youth. The pith of the stems of solid-stem-wheat, fed to cutworms, prevents them from growing old. Theories abound that the same effect may be achieved with humans. Politicians, thinking of Mr. K's promise to bury capitalism, shudder at the thought of hale and hearty Russian gravediggers, each one 251 years old. Economists, thinking of the price U.S. and Canadian women pay cosmetic firms for imitation youth, look at the price for which wheat was sold and age ten years on the spot. Wheat farmers say nothing, but are observed wandering in their fields, chewing straws. Solid-stem straws.

Now, salvation. Researchers in the U.S. reveal direct links between cancer and cigarettes. The western hemisphere is convinced that smokers are just corpses too dead to lie down. Hurried deal is consummated through secret agents, whereby Canada sells tobacco to Bulgaria. Bulgaria passes the poison on to Russia. And life-expectancy in Mr. K's land is back to normal.

Fish and chips form Britain's sole contribution to the world of gastronomics—Lord Champion.

Strictly Personal
Important Books Grow Like Trees

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

At a recent literary luncheon, more distinguished for its cuisine than for conversation, I overheard one book publisher's representative saying to another "It's an important book — the most important one we're publishing out this spring."

What he meant, as he soon explained, was that this novel was by a widely-known and best-selling author, and that the publishing house was preparing to spend a huge sum for advertisements and publicity. This is what an "important" book consists of, in the publisher sense.

In this age of fabricated sensations, we are too often beguiled and misled by this kind of "importance." And it is worth keeping in mind that scarcely any of the really important books since the invention of movable type have been a quick and easy popularity, or has sold enough to sustain the author during his lifetime.

As an example, consider a book published just a few years ago, called "Understanding Media" by Norman Brown. It was not an important book, by ordinary standards. It received little publicity, very few readers, not even many reviews, except in some learned journals.

Moreover, it is difficult book to read. I have re-read it three times, and am not sure that I understand more than two-thirds of its implications, even though it deals with the fields of psychiatry and philosophy, both which I have perhaps more than average acquaintance.

Nevertheless, this book is already standing the test time. It may well be the most important general book of the decade. Knowledgeable people are slowly getting around to it, discussing it, recommending it to their friends. Its influence will filter down to thousands in the next year or two, and then to tens of thousands.

A truly important book grows like a plant or a tree; it does not shoot up overnight. It has some gigantic scenery erected for a movie spectacular. It takes root slowly, and spreads it beneath the ground. It is tended carefully for a few persons, who keep it alive, and then it will put more thrilling things I know is to "discover" a book of this sort and become one of its early disciples.

It is not even necessary that one agree with everything in the book. I am not sure I do, even on the parts I agree with. But I am sure that "Life Against Death" will turn out to be a seminal book of the 20th century. And there is not enough advertising or publicity in the world to buy this kind, the only real kind, of "importance."

Prejudice In Reverse

New York Times

Article VI of the (U.S.) Constitution says "no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States." This means, in the first place, of course, that a Catholic or a Jew or an agnostic or an atheist has just as much right to be President (or Vice President) as a Protestant.

But it also means, and equally, that a man should not be disqualified or elected to public office because he is a Protestant, a Catholic or a Jew. To apply such a test, overtly or covertly, as a prior qualification, making religious affiliation as such a requirement for office, when it is really irrelevant and immaterial.

This basic truth so seldom honored by the political parties, we welcome its strong reaffirmation by Governor Rockefeller of New York. In a policy statement the party says it is "deeply concerned" over the emphasis is being placed on the selection of a Roman Catholic as running mate for President should this year. If, as is generally hoped and believed, the election of John F. Kennedy in 1960 removed specific religious affiliation as a qualification or disqualification for the Presidency, then — says the Liberal party — to confine the choice of a Vice-Presidential nominee in 1964 to a Catholic would "nullify that historic achievement" of 1960.

Any ticket "balanced" with a fancy that President Kennedy's memory would be honored now, or the Democratic party served, by exclusive insistence on a Catholic Vice President as bait for the "Catholic vote" have shockingly small comprehension of what the 1960 election meant as a victory for the principle of Article VI.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 31st, 1944.

According to information supplied by local hunters, wild life living in the woodland of this area has greatly increased within the past year.

The increase in red foxes is most noticeable, and many of the cunning animals have been bagged by hunters already this winter but a much larger catch would have been made if snow covered the ground. Rabbits are not as plentiful as of previous years but have multiplied considerably since last winter. Jack rabbits, which are rare in the township of South Marysburgh, are said to be disporting about in the bushland. Trappers report muskrats being plentiful, as is evidenced by the many muskrat houses constructed in the marshes last fall.

Hunters of this township and Athol township are awaiting for a snowfall that a hunt may be staged over the district in an effort to kill some of the wolves which have done considerable damage to flocks of sheep in this vicinity.

Recent improvement in the quality of Canadian cheese may have far reaching effects beneficial to the whole dairy industry, T. W. C. Cameron of Ottawa, acting chief of the Agriculture Department Dairy Products Grading and Inspection Services, said today.

Of all cheese manufactured in Canada in 1943, ninety-five per cent was found to be first grade, an increase of 1.34 per cent over 1942. "Of greater importance is the fact that 70.94 per cent of all cheese graded scored 93 points or higher which is an increase of 4.91 per cent," Mr. Cameron said.

A Time for Rest

Montreal Gazette

"I grew in those seasons like corn in the night. . ."

So did Henry David Thoreau describe the seasons of rest that he gave his mind and soul. In the hut he had built by shore of Walden Pond he would sit in his doorway, "rapt in a reverie amidst the pines and hickories and sumachs and in undisturbed solitude and stillness, while the birds sang around or flitted noiseless through the house. . . I grew in those seasons like corn in the night, and they were far better than work of the hands could have been."

Such a mood of rest William Wordsworth would have called a "wise passiveness." It is far from mere idleness, a waste of time. It is an invitation to truer understanding. Not much activity may often result in little action; the very effort of living may wear the itself away. For the soul, rest may mean growth.

Not far away from Walden Pond the Boston preacher, William Ellery Channing, was finding, in his own words, that the soul may grow mysteriously, "as corn in the night grows."

"There is often a mysterious growth of the mind," he was to write in his diary. "We can trace to no particular effort our studies, which we can hardly define, though we are conscious of it. We understand ourselves and the past, and our friends and the world better. I have sometimes been tempted to think the most profitable portions of my life were those when I seemed to do the least."

Someone who happened to stray by the bank of an English stream on a certain rainy summer day might have seen a curious figure, hunched under a great umbrella, apparently fishing. Yet he seemed to take little heed for the craft of the angler, as he sat on a chair, with some boards on the ground before his feet. His eyes were fixed on the changing effects of the rain over the pearly-gray water, and how the crystal drops ran down the stems of the trees and the blades of grass.

It was the artist Turner, not taking the day off in idleness but letting the mood of nature sink into his soul, as the rain was being absorbed by earth and stream. No one knew what growth of understanding appeared in later paintings as the result of that afternoon of wise passiveness, when all was silence, save for the murmurs of the rain and the small voice of the stream as it hurried by.

There may come a time in life when rest is not something sought in vacation, but compelled by necessity. Those who find that peace, as it comes slowly to distressed spirits, may rejoice, almost as at a miracle.

Capt. Frederick Marryat, the novelist relates that a score of sea battles and the author's resource of tales of sea adventures, found himself, in the early summer of 1835, too worn out to go on.

He went to a spa in Germany to rest. He had never rested before in his life; but now he took to resting with a vengeance. Time so completely as not even a wind his watch.

To a friend he wrote: "I have never thought that I should find a pleasure in idleness; but I do find that I can do too much, and that a required resource. And I hope I shall come out again as fresh as a young giant."

"I walk about and pick early flowers with the children, sit on the benches, see beautiful 'ailes vertes' which we have in here, smoke my cigar, and meditate long after the sun is in the zenith. Then I lie on the sofa and read French novels, or gossip, and dream, and I wear out all my old clothes; and there is great pleasure in having a coat that will not be spoiled, and I expect that by October I shall be all right again."

Thomas Carlyle in 1835 felt so discouraged by weariness that he had no heart for thought of work aside and seek peace for healing. He had completed his history of the French Revolution. The manuscript had gone to his friend John Stuart Mill for comment. Then came news that in Carlyle's house in Chelsea, his maid, thinking the manuscript had been destroyed, had lighted the fire with it.

Carlyle tried to set to work at once to write the whole manuscript over again from memory. But the tired mind sickened at the task. There was only one hope to do nothing.

He describes himself sitting on the stump of an oak in Hyde Park, watching the sun over the water of the Serpentine. As the days passed, the sense of the eternal slowly returned, to ease, sole and renew. Once more he felt the "sun shining overhead silently million miles off, and eternity all round, and life, a vision, dream, and yet fact. . ."

Perhaps this seeking of rest for the sake of growth lies at the heart of the ancient wisdom of the writer of Ecclesiastes: "To every thing there is a season and a time to every purpose under heaven. . ."

Wild West Subsidized

Milwaukee Journal

There is a current political tenet that the American west is a bothed of conservatism because it is filled with rugged individualists who, like Senator Barry Goldwater, see no need for Washington's "handouts" and want Uncle Sam to leave them alone.

Prof. Joe B. Frantz, head of the University of Texas history department, has been taking a close look and concludes that the Wild West of the 19th century is totally in his mind. Actually, says the professor, the "truth is that from start to finish he was subsidized from his brogans to his sombrero." Of all of the nation's historic regions that of the west "was the one which received—and still receives—the most federal assistance." Most of those portions of the west which from with cities and settlement are constantly being replenished with federal funds."

First the west was helped with federal land grants — and then, as now, with grazing rights and mineral leases. The government subsidized stage routes and built roads. It put in irrigation, bridges and many other public works. Today it provides the oil depletion allowance which enables so many rugged individualists to become millionaires quickly. It builds huge reclamation dams, provides irrigation, subsidizes reclamation. All over the west, it makes grants and loans beyond number. And of courses the federal agricultural subsidies are a major factor.

The probability is, then, that Uncle Sam stayed in Washington as he usually does when cers suggest, the west would blow away.

Prof. Frantz doesn't think that the westerners really want Uncle Sam to pull out. They call the Tennessee Valley authority socialism, but want all that kind of help they can get in their own area, as the professor puts it, "what's socialism in Tennessee is called necessity in Arizona."

Germany announced the start of unrestricted submarine warfare against the Allied powers 47 years ago today—in 1917. During February and March, in the age of 23 British ships were sunk each week. In April, 196 vessels of more than 900,000 tons were sunk. With the submarine campaign at its height the U.S. entered the war April 6.

1945—Canadian and British troops eliminated the last German troops from Meas Island, bridgehead north of Tilburg, Holland, in the late stages of the Second World War.

1952 — Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh left London by air for Australia, on their world tour.

To Your Good Health
Virus Infections Present With or Without Fever

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a person have a virus infection without running a temperature? What are the symptoms? Are there different kinds of viruses? — X

Yes, you can have a virus infection without a fever. You also can have one with a fever.

For the simplest example, you can have a cold and no fever, or have flu with fever. Both are virus diseases, but caused by different viruses.

Perhaps we may have made too much use of the phrase, "it's a virus," when people have some sort of transient illness which doesn't fit into the pattern of well-established diseases.

Just the same, that's usually the right answer. We may not know which virus is to blame. There are a great number of them.

Many diseases are caused by germs. Others are not. A heart attack for example is not the result of a sudden assault by germs, although some other heart ailments are.

The word "germs" includes several kinds: Bacteria; viruses; protozoans; yeasts; fungi; rickettsiae, which are similar to viruses.

For some years now we have had antibiotics, which are very effective against bacteria but do not, for the most part, have much effect on the other types of "germs." We are now a few drugs which attack some of the other forms, but not very many.

From bacteria, we might have boils, scarlet fever, tuberculosis, strep throat, syphilis, diphteria, dysentery, lockjaw, bubonic plague and some others.

From viruses you might have smallpox, measles, mumps, rubella, warts, cold sores, chickenpox, shingles, sore, chickenpox or hydropobia.

If you have pneumonia, it might be from a virus or from bacteria. Either can cause it.

There are probably a hundred or more varieties of viruses which cause colds and several that cause flu. For all I know, there may be more viruses than bacteria. They are still all germs.

We have a partial answer to bacteria, and a fractional answer to viruses, and may never have a complete answer to either. But let's not lose track of the basic fact that germs are one of several factors which attack our health. We are not bacteria. They are still all germs.

We have a partial answer to bacteria, and a fractional answer to viruses, and may never have a complete answer to either. But let's not lose track of the basic fact that germs are one of several factors which attack our health. We are not bacteria. They are still all germs.

Pasted by Our Own Pastry

Like the Mad Hatter's tea party, the mixture of politics and economics in the modern world becomes more and more confusing. Consider, for example, Canada's trade relations with the communist world.

It all started with a shortage of rice in China and a surplus of wheat in Canada. Simple solution—sell Canadian wheat to China. The idea caught on and during the past year Russia herself bought Canadian wheat to almost eliminate the surplus. Joy and happiness among Canada's wheat farmers. Political types hope that well fed Russians and Chinese will be less anxious to do battle, verbal or otherwise.

Then, disaster strikes. Scientists at the federal government's Agriculture Research Station in Lethbridge discover wheat may hold the secret of eternal youth. The pith of the stems of solid-stem-wheat, fed to cutworms, prevents them from growing old. Theories abound that the same effect may be achieved with humans. Politicians, thinking of Mr. K's promise to bury capitalism, shudder at the thought of hale and hearty Russian gravediggers, each one 251 years old. Economists, thinking of the price U.S. and Canadian women pay cosmetic firms for imitation youth, look at the price for which wheat was sold and age ten years on the spot. Wheat farmers say nothing, but are observed wandering in their fields, chewing straws. Solid-stem straws.

Now, salvation. Researchers in the U.S. reveal direct links between cancer and cigarettes. The western hemisphere is convinced that smokers are just corpses too dead to lie down. Hurried deal is consummated through secret agents, whereby Canada sells tobacco to Bulgaria. Bulgaria passes the poison on to Russia. And life-expectancy in Mr. K's land is back to normal.

Fish and chips form Britain's sole contribution to the world of gastronomics—Lord Champion.

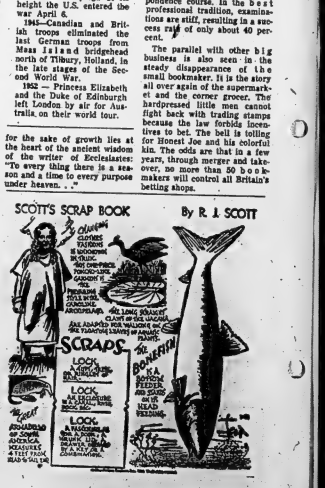
Now Bookie Has Computer

Brantford Expositor

When an Ontarian thinks of organized gambling, he is likely to imagine a private club run by sharp characters who close the doors padlocked against an OPP raid when they hear the first siren. Since betting is a game legalized, an already countrywide and booming mushroomed into an industry employing upwards of half a million people.

Like many another industry, it has its annual fair or trade show displaying the latest equipment, in which the ranking the punter's money, swiftly calculating the odds and reckoning the gains and losses.

A description of this exhibition suggests that the image of the typical clothes-pegged bookmaking the odds from a soapbox on Queen Down on Derby day is as outdated as that of lawyer's clerks scratching away in a dim litigious light with quill pens.



For time bookmakers' offices have used adding machines, but now the more prosperous can run to a computer, that works out the most complicated bets in seconds. From this stage it was only a step to making bookmaking a profession complete with charter of incorporation. For a small fee bookmakers have founded their own training school.

At the London School of Turf Accountancy evening classes are held for managers, counter clerks and assistants. The people who settle bets behind the scenes. If attending classes is inconvenient, a postal tuition will supply instructors to give after hours group tuition in betting shops. There is even a correspondence course. In the best professional tradition, examinations are held, and there is a success rate of only about 40 percent.

The parallel with other big business is also seen in the steady disappearance of the small bookmaker, a trend many all over again of the supermarket and the corner grocer. The unfortunate little man cannot fight back with trading stamps because the law forbids incentives to bet. The hell is toiling for Honest Joe and his colorful kin. The odds are that in a few years, through merger and takeover, no more than 50 bookmakers will control all Britain's betting shops.

Shulman Wants Probe of Unusual Hospital Death

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Morton Shulman, Metropolitan Toronto coroner, Thursday asked the attorney-general's department for permission to investigate an unusual death in East General Hospital.

He said in an interview today he learned Thursday night about the death which occurred last Nov. 4.

He said he learned that a Toronto woman, Patricia Morgan, died after an operation in which there was a switch of surgeons half way through.

A post-mortem revealed that an operative instrument had been left inside the abdominal cavity.

The death was not reported to the coroner's office at the time, Dr. Shulman said today.

Dr. Shulman has been deeply involved with the province's senior coroner and officials of the attorney-general's department over his insistence on conducting inquests into hospital deaths whenever there is any question about cause of death.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Many taxpayers each year cause themselves much trouble by filing a second return when they have found out there were errors, or omissions, in their first one. Never file an amended or second return until specifically requested to do so by the tax department.

Once a return is filed, any number of adjustments to that return can be made. If you discover you have made an error, wait until you receive your assessment notice before you write in about it. Correspondence received from the assessing department in Ottawa cannot be matched to the return until the return has been processed.

Ottawa will not enter into correspondence with taxpayers regarding any claim made on the returns. If you have made a claim that is not acceptable to them, they will send the return to your local district office and you will be contacted by them. Always direct your inquiries to your local office.

If you have forgotten to attach a receipt or T4 slip, hold it until the assessment notice is received. Then send the omitted item to your local tax office and request that an adjustment be made.

All of the above relates to the federal income tax. Taxpayers residing in Quebec always file two returns; one federal and one provincial. In all other provinces the provincial tax is calculated on the federal return.

The provincial tax is paid to the province in which you reside on Dec. 31 of the taxation year; notwithstanding the fact you lived in other provinces during the year.

A future article will cover in more detail the application and credits for provincial income taxes as well.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25c in coin for each question you wish answered.

Question: I made an error in my exemptions. Should I file another return, or just write to Ottawa about it?

Answer: Do not file a second return. Ottawa will not enter into correspondence with you in this connection. Wait until you receive your assessment notice, then write your local office, give them all details and request an adjustment.

Question: When I filed, I only claimed the $100 deduction, but I had paid for medical and charitable receipts would be more advantageous. What should I do?

Answer: When you receive your assessment send your receipts with full details to your local tax office and ask that they adjust your return.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

It is a common failing to take for granted that which has become familiar and, thereby, to discount its importance. We are all acquainted with the story-hero of an earlier generation who traveled the world over in search of true beauty and, in the end, discovered it in his own back yard. One of our readers was spared a similar fate, thanks to a persuasive real estate ad.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'll bet you never heard one like this before. For years my wife has been complaining about our old house and constantly after me to get a new one. I got so tired of hearing about it I finally agreed.

We listed our old house with a broker and set about looking for a new one. We read an ad for one that sounded terrific. It was just what we wanted and called my wife to see it. The agent for the house was the same broker we had and we went. We liked the house since he knew we were looking for a house like that, he hadn't shown it to us.

He laughed — and no wonder. We were reading the ad for our own house. To tell you the truth, it was so persuasive my wife decided we shouldn't let go of such a gem.

Now my problem is how to explain it to the broker. After we stop laughing, we would appreciate your suggestions. Chagrined.

Answer: You are not alone. my wife recently bought back the living room lamp she donated to a charity auction. As the saying goes: "It's a woman's prerogative to change her mind."

Seriously, I'm sure that if you offer to reimburse your broker for his advertising costs and other expenses he will probably be satisfied. He is probably also a married man and I'm certain he will sympathize with your position.

• •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Sir: I am an exchange student from India. The small village of my family is a poor one and I have seen much of poverty. It was, however, my pleasure and honor recently to be invited, with a number of other foreign students to a party in a New York Park Avenue penthouse.

Even though I have seen, since I have been in this country, many beautiful things I was impressed by the luxury this penthouse showed to me. There were eleven large rooms, a terrace and a small garden. Indeed, it was in considerable contrast to the small houses of my village.

In the days since, I have wondered how long a family of my village, where the average yearly income is only 72 American dollars, could afford to dwell in such Park Avenue luxury. Perhaps, sir, you would provide for me the answer. — Mr. R. A. S.

Answer: Even if a family from your village spent the $72 yearly income on rent — and none on food or other necessities — they would hardly need boiler to unpack. The $212 would pay approximately two days' rent on that Park Avenue Penthouse.

The rent on such an apartment would run about $3,000 per month. Penthouse apartments in New York rent for about $250 per month per room and up. Luxury apartments rent for about $150 to $250 per month per room.

Even in our bountiful country where the average family income is over $7,000 per year, very few can afford such luxurious accommodations.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I thought real estate was a good investment, but after three years an uncle has been buying two-family types houses and have acquired nine of them. I got them at a good price, have an excellent broker to manage them and my rentals have been decent.

Nonetheless, after I pay all operating expenses I find I am getting only a little more than 3 percent return on my investment. Am I doing something wrong or isn't real estate such a good investment after all? — Mr. R. L. J.

Answer: Prudent real estate investment provides excellent returns. You have been buying properties that are not well suited to absentee-owner investment. Two family houses are designed primarily for the owner to occupy one of the apartments and to perform the functions of management, cleaning, collecting the laws, minor maintenance. Under the circumstances they will show a good investment return since you are paying for all these services, your return on investment is actually diminished.

There are other types of real estate investment opportunities that are much better suited to your needs. Incidentally, have you consult a real estate investment counselor and with his experience your real estate investment program.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: About four years ago I bought a house for $14,000, and was not only assured that it was a terrific buy, but that I would fall in love with it. Unfortunately, I have not. The schools, etc. The broker who sold us was very enthusiastic and reassur-

"Just a Second"

"He's always saying 'Just say the word and I'll give you a hand' but so far I haven't guessed what the word is."

ing and said, and I quote: "I am willing to bet that in a few years you won't part with this house for $20,000."

Well, we didn't fall in love with the neighborhood, or the schools — or the neighbors for that matter — and we are planning, finally, on moving. The best offer we have had for the house, however, is only $18,000. I don't suppose I can collect the $2,000 difference from the broker, but could you tell me to whom I can report such a gross omission? — R. D. A.

Answer: In all fairness, I must observe that your broker was correct — you apparently won't part with your house for $20,000. The rather large price increase, from $14,000 to $18,000 is evidence that, over the general average for the four year period. As far as reporting this broker is concerned, I would suggest that you "report" him to your friends who may appreciate dealing with such an obviously competent real estate man.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Canadians Top Talkers Over Telephone

EAST OAKLAND, Calif. (CP) Canadian - born Joseph Charyk says Canadian telephone users are the most talkative in the world.

The president of the U.S. Communications Satellite Corporation said Thursday that this statistic may come as a surprise to Americans, most of whom appear to believe they out-talk Canadians.

"In this category, we must give first place to Canadians, who in 1963 averaged over 610 telephone conversations per person as compared to our (U.S.) 350," he said in a speech at Saint Mary's College. "Iceland was third with about 530."

Dr. Charyk, a native of Canmore, Alta., who became an American citizen in 1948, touched on the telephone function in outlining plans for a global satellite communications system.

The corporation will launch its first experimental - operational satellite next year, he said, and this may mean that "regular service could be established in 1965 in the North Atlantic region."

The satellite will be a high-altitude Sycom type, orbiting at a height of 22,300 miles and timed to rotate with the speed of earth.

"The satellite we have in mind would have a capability of up to 240 two-way voice circuits and it could also be utilized for facsimile, data or television broadcasts, traffic or for black-and-white television transmission."

Congregational Meeting

TABERNACLE UNITED CHURCH

The annual meeting of Tabernacle United Church congregation was held Tuesday evening following a potluck supper arranged by the U.C.W. of the church.

Following a devotional period Dr. A. C. and Mrs. Locke showed pictures of their visit to Thailand a few months ago. On their way to Thailand they visited Egypt, and showed slides pictures of the Sphinx and the Pyramids, the great courts and tombs of that ancient land. In India the picture and story of Bombay, Delhi and other great centres of this ancient land showed the extremes of lavish expenditure and greatness of poverty, beauty, architecture and simplicity of existence. The pictures of the Thai village built along the river banks and the people dependent on the waterways for food and travel were so real that one could almost imagine one's self conversing with the children and entering into their laughter and happy play. Many street markets were shown and "klongs" (canals) filled with small gondola-like boats. Bang Pa-In, the king's summer palace, is lavishly adorned with mosaics and gold-leaf lacquer. Nagas, rippling snakes, curve up from the roof ends of many buildings.

Near the border of Malaya were pictured the home of Dr. and Mrs. Locke's daughter Lois and son-in-law, and the community in which they live. Dr. and Mrs. Grey are missionaries being associated with the mission hospital and clinic in this area of Thailand.

The picture of this family brought delightful interest to the congregation as Mrs. Grey (Nee Mary Locke) is very well known in the city, having attended school here.

Back home in picture to the Belleville area one was moved to realize the loveliness and beauty of our surroundings, a contrasting beauty to the loveliness of Thailand. So concluded a delightful trip with Dr. and Mrs. Locke by plane, car and story to Thailand and back again.

Following the pictorial program the business of the annual meeting was conducted by Rev. Morgan G. McFarlane. A time of remembrance was observed for the many members and friends who have passed on during the year.

The various organizations' reports of their year's work and finances were reviewed and accepted by the meeting. It was noted that increases had been gained and the spiritual glow throughout the congregation is encouraging.

Appreciation of the leadership of the laity who have given a great deal of time and talent to the mid-week organizations was expressed by Mr. McFarlane. He also commended the W.C., members and their presidents, Mrs. Jack Aitchison, for efficient and willing service. The Week of Decision' services was a new venture; the ministry of Rev. Gordon Fowler enriched the whole life of the church and has been a blessing to a large surrounding area of this city.

The services of the two choirs have been very much appreciated. Mrs. Douglas Shaw leads the junior choir with Mrs. Garnet May as their pianist. Mr. Clifford Templer, organist, and choir director spoke briefly as to the loyalty of the senior choir members. He also invited new members to both the choirs.

Messrs. Garnet May and Wilman Hutchinson voiced thanks for the splendid efforts of the minister, Rev. M. G. McFarlane. Mr. McFarlane has led Tabernacle United Church through a highly successful year.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mr. Harry Jeffs read the report of the nominating committee of the official board. The following elders were elected: Messrs. Norris Cunningham, Harry Davis, Guy Kerr, Elders John Babish, Ed. Christopher, Martin LaKey, Dale Martin, Fred Mitchell, Randy Nelson, Owen Riddell, Richard Sargent, Rupert Seafelt, Leon Smith, William Smith, and Earl Stansfield, were reelected for a three year term.

New stewards elected were Lewis Andrews, Ronald Love, Douglas Shaw, Robert Young for a three year term; Miss Dorothy Moorman, representing the U.C.W. elected for two years, Mr. Ross Irwin for one year and the following reelected for a three year term: Messrs. K. M. Day, Morley Graham, Glenn Jacques, H. R. Mouland, Douglas Simpson and George Stanton.

Chi Rho Group Presents Gifts

On Wednesday, January 22, the Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship partook of their closing banquet. This event is tendered annually by the retiring executive as they hand over the reins of government to the incoming administration.

The fare this year consisted of fried chicken, which the members attacked with great gusto. When the noble birds had been sacrificed to the starving hordes, chairman Al Gardiner presided over the after-dinner activities. His first task was to present a past-president's pin to retiring president Rich Rowbotham, thanking him on behalf of the members for his efforts during the past year. Mr. Rowbotham, in reply, expressed his gratitude for the co-operation he had received during his term of office.

The incoming president, Joanne Cavalier, was introduced and made a few remarks, asking support of her endeavours in the coming year. She pointed out that while Chi Rho had accomplished much since its inception we must strive toward those things which, under Christ, might be led to further our purpose in the future.

The Chi Rho spiritual advisor, Rev. James Ashton, addressed the organization, stressing in his remarks the need of regular attendance to support the new executive's program.

The rector, Rev. R. Fleming, extended a welcome to the new Chi Rho, stating the purpose of church organizations should be to broaden the fellowship of parishioners and to do this should present a program of broad scope.

Past president Rich Rowbotham presented a farewell gift of a pole towel bar and towels to the special guests Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Smith, on the occasion of their transfer to Shannonville-Point Anne parish.

In expressing appreciation for the gift, Mr. Smith spoke briefly on the happy memories which he and his wife would take with them to their new parish. He stated he was looking forward to his new work and requested prayers for his success.

After the tables had been cleared the group enjoyed dancing for the remainder of the evening.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

When you're in a group, do you make a good conversational impression? Here are some points to check, to see if you have mastered this fine art:

1. Do you avoid getting embroiled in arguments and controversy?
2. Do you shy away from gossip?
3. Are you careful to include everyone in the conversation, instead of concentrating on one or two others?
4. Do you avoid asking pointed questions about another's personal life and business?
5. Can you listen attentively when someone else is giving his side of the discussion?
6. Do you resist talking endlessly about your own likes, dislikes, family, friends, etc.?
7. Are you prepared to introduce other people when the conversation threatens to bog down or peter out?
8. Do you modulate your voice so it's neither too low, nor too shrill or booming?
9. Can you gracefully fend off questions you feel are too personal, without obviously putting the other person in his place?
10. Do you make others feel at ease by being genuinely interested in what they have to say?

DINAN — TRUDEAU

A lovely wedding in Christmas setting, was solemnized in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, recently by Right Rev. Monsignor John A. Carley of Ottawa, when Mary Joanne Trudeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Trudeau, of Belleville, became the bride of David Edmond Dinan, of Toronto, son of Mrs. Francis Dinan of Newcastle, New Brunswick, and the late Mr. Dinan. Tall white candles, gleaming red poinsettias and glittering Christmas trees adorned the altar and sanctuary for the ceremony.

The wedding music was rendered by Miss Dorothy Ferris of Belleville, organist, who accompanied the soloist, Mr. James McGovern, of Belleville as he rendered appropriate selections.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. John Joseph Trudeau, the bride was radiant in a princess line gown. The slender column of white satin peau de soie was sleeveless and featured a pearl neckline. Over the gown, the bride wore a tiffi jacket with long lily point sleeves, appliqued with Alencon lace. Her full Camelot train fell softly from the shoulders and gave a lovely back interest to the gown. Her bouffant veil of silk tulle illusion was held by a crown of matching lace and pearls and she carried a bouquet of white Cleis.

She was attended by Miss Cletus Trudeau of Belleville, sister of the bride, as maid of honor and by Miss Jane Powell of Toronto; and by Miss Gail Parr, Belleville, as bridesmaids and by Miss Louise O'Connor of Montreal, niece of the bride, as flower girl.

The bridesmaids' attendants were full length peau de soie gowns of poinsettia red featuring princess lines with attached back panel flowing from the shoulders to form a slight train, and matching headdresses. They carried red poinsettias and English holly.

Mr. Don Gill supported wore a long white peau de soie dress similar to those worn by senior attendants with matching headdress and carried a poinsettia.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. William Dinan, of Newcastle, New Brunswick, and the guests were ushered by Mr. Jamie Trudeau, of Belleville, brother of the bride, and by Mr. Donald Cull of Sturgeon Falls. The ring-bearer was Master Marc Loubert of Ottawa, nephew of the bride.

The wedding reception was held at the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who was attired in an original gown of pure talk taffeta, with matching hat and white orchid corsage. Assisting in the receiving line was Mrs. Francis Dinan, of Newcastle, New Brunswick, who was dressed in navy blue wool, accented by blue lame, with mink hat and white orchid corsage.

For their wedding trip to a Chateau in the Laurentians, the bride wore a wool two piece ensemble in cranberry shade trimmed with black Persian lamb, a matching hat and black kid accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Guests attended from Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal, New Brunswick, Kingston and Welland.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored with showers at the homes of Miss Jane Powell and Mrs. David Bruyea; a tea by Mrs. Albert Bunton, sister of the bride, and a dinner by the members of St. Aidsem's School (Leaside), Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Dinan are residing at 340 Marland Avenue, Oshawa, Ontario.

Parents Dress Daughter In Clothes Not Her Choice

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — My parents are a big problem to me. They won't let me wear high heels. All the other girls my age (15) wear them.

My parents buy all my clothes because I don't have any spending money. When I tell them I don't like them they tell me to be quiet and wear them. Doris, please tell me what to do. Do you think I'm too young to wear heels?

My parents also think I'm too young to carry a purse. What do you think? — BRUNETTE.

• • •

DEAR BRUNETTE — Sounds pretty arbitrary, the way you put it. Girls need practice in choosing clothes and in handling money. And they need a purse to put it in.

Since your problem parents still hold the purse strings and the purse, be glad they care enough to dress you and to provide even low heels. (Privately, if there's the money, it seems to me one pair of high heels, for special occasions, wouldn't be unreasonable.)

• • •

DEAR DORIS — What can I do to lose weight? I can't eat everything, and I have to take my lunch so that means bread for lunches. I can't do exercises because it takes my breath away. — WORRIED SICK.

• • •

DEAR WORRIED — You don't have to pack your lunch with carbohydrates. With imagination and some recipes you can carry salads, whole wheat biscuits, finger foods, fruit. And some good health-saving proteins like cheese, hard boiled eggs, meat.

If you want a step, you exercise. With excess poundage, bending is harder — so do just a little at first. Stouter folk than you have fought their way to better wind, better muscles and leaner frames.

If you really mean to try again, write again, this time enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for a private reply detailing lunch-diet and stretch-routines.

• • •

To SKINNY — You sound underweight to me, but the tables start at 18. Probably this is because we tend to grow unevenly; sometimes tall sooner than broad. Right now your cue is to eat nutritious meals containing generous amounts of bone-growing proteins and health-giving vitamins. Canada's Food Guide would help here, and you could get a copy through your local health department.

• • •

To D. MacD. — In this case the habit is less damaging than the guilt feeling you have about it. Write again, this time enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope and I will give you a fuller private reply along with some suggested reading.

• • •

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

BALLET HER LIFE — Gail Donaldson, 23, currently touring Ireland with the Western Ballet Theatre, has been home to Vancouver for two weeks in the last seven years. She says she would "love to go home," but ballet career chances are in Europe and "ballet is my whole life." (CP Photo)

Congregational Meeting

ALLIANCE TABERNACLE

On Tuesday evening of this week a fine representation of members and adherents attended the annual business meeting of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church held in the auditorium. The pastor, the Rev. Sackville Palmer, presided, opening with a brief devotional service which consisted of a hymn, the reading of Psalm 65 and prayer.

REPORTS

The highlight of the evening was the reading of the reports given by the heads of the various departments of the church, each department showing a most successful year, due to faithfulness and close fellowship with the Divine Leader.

Among the reports given were: the church treasurer's, by Mrs. M. Sarager; the missionary report, by Mr. A. Rodgers. The pledge for foreign missions for, 1963 had been $870.00, which was over paid by $316.92. The pledge for the year 1964 is $1,130. The receipts for both foreign and home missions totalled $7,719.41.

The Sunday School report, by Mr. Vardy, due to illness of the superintendent, Mr. Lawrence Dent, was one for much thanksgiving, showing a steady increase for the years from 1956 to 1963. The Women's Missionary Fellowship, and the report of the Daily Vacation Bible School, which had an average attendance of 106, with 19 decisions recorded for Christ and 88 children received certificates for perfect attendance were given by Mrs. Palmer. Mr. Frank Allan, leader of the Christian Boys' Brigade gave a full and pleasing report on the progress made during the past year with three decisions made for Christ; while chief Ranger C. Ackerman, reported for the Stockaders; Miss Dorothea Atyeo, Chief Guide, reported for the Pioneer Girls, and Mrs. MacKay for the Pilgrims. Miss Maureen Thompson and Miss Heather Hawley for the Alliance Youth Fellowship; Mrs. J. Weese for the Benevolent Fund; and Mrs. C. Fenton for the Young Adult Group.

PASTOR'S REPORT

The pastor, in his report, which touched on every phase of the work, stated that "prayer is the vital breath of the church. Other things are important — prayer more so — let us covenant with God to be more faithful."

Statistics show 17 new members had been received into fellowship; 21 had been baptized during the year and six children dedicated to God; three marriages solemnized; and five burials.

In closing, Mr. Palmer exhorted his hearers to "press on" as multitudes are still in the Valley of Decision. God has done great things for the church, but our Captain beckons to greater exploits. He will not fail us and let us, by His grace, not fail Him. May His benediction and blessing continue to be with you in an ever increasing measure in these troubled and challenging times.

"Look back and thank Him for His grace;

Look up with trust into His face;

Look on with hope to future days;

Look unto Him and give Him praise."

EXECUTIVE MEMBERS

Executive members include: W. Rodbera, recording secretary; treasurer, Paul Masse; financial secretary, Mrs. M. Saraga; missionary treasurer, W. Rodgers.

Other members: W. Sills, D. Benn, F. Allan, M. Seeley and C. Fenton.

Refreshments were served in the lower auditorium by the ladies of the church.

Canadian-Born Ballet Dancer Finds Life Abroad Interesting

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (CP)—Hazel-eyed brunette Gail Donaldson from Vancouver is dancing through Ireland with the Western Ballet Theatre and loving the country and the people.

"They are just as friendly here as they are back home," says the 23 - year - old dancer. "And that's as friendly as anyone could be."

Gail was born in Ottawa but moved when she was five to Vancouver where her parents still live.

The move, she thinks, shaped her career because it was under the ballet school partnership of Lockhart and Svethanoff that she received her invaluable early training.

Later she came to Britain and joined London's Festival Ballet. Since then she has toured Europe and the United States with the Western Ballet Company.

In seven years Gail has been back to Vancouver only once—a fleeting two-week visit last August when the U.S. tour ended in New York.

"I'd love to go home again," she said. "But the career chances are in Europe and ballet is my whole life."

PARK DALE H. and S.

The Park Dale Home and School Association met on Monday, January 20th with Miss Makar, who has worked with the Bellefville Children's Aid Society for the past four years, as guest speaker.

The speaker described how children express their emotions, learning from infancy increasingly complex ways of expression. Love and affection are encouraged by a baby experiencing comfort and enjoyment, then delight in the person who causes these things, and thus love. In the same way distress can lead to anger. Over a long period negative emotions can become useful with encouragement; fear can become intelligent caution; sorrow and pain reach compassion.

EMOTIONAL PROBLEMS

Those associating with children need to know the normal levels and types of physical and emotional behaviour for different age groups, in order to recognize the abnormal, which is often similar to the normal, but more persistent and prolonged. Emotional problems in infancy present problems of feeding, elimination, and sleep, with bedwetting and restless sleep in the pre-schooler. The same symptoms are present into the school years with the addition perhaps of others, such as thumb sucking, rhythmic movements, nail biting, temper tantrums, and speech disorders. Miss Makar noted that these antrums may be caused by too few demands being made on a child, as much as by too many.

TEEN-AGE PROBLEMS

Emotional problems in teenagers have more social effects: the children lacking self-discipline, failing school grades unexpectedly, behaving unsocially, and at times exhibiting obviously disturbed, bizarre behavior. The child who is never naughty, rude or rebellious may have concealed problems.

Miss Makar finished by saying that early recognition of problems is essential, and that there are a few pointers for parents generally. She said a child needs love, plus consistent guidance, yes and no being used; security including being able to depend on a parent's point of view; parents who are emotionally grown-up to cope with their children, who can curb their own irritability and loss of temper, and who may cause children to react poorly.

The meeting was adjourned with an expression of appreciation to Miss Makar.

HILLCREST SCHOOL

The January meeting of the Hillcrest Home and School Association was held in the auditorium recently.

The vice-president, Mrs. M. McMeekin, opened the meeting with Mr. W. Lott presiding at the piano.

The attendance banner was again won by Mr. Lott's class.

Mr. Diane Godbout introduced the guest speaker, Mr. William James who spoke on poisons in the home. These poisons are used every day in homes and are most harmful to children if left within easy reach.

Mr. James showed slides on these poisons, how they attract children and what to do if they are taken.

A question and answer period followed which proved most enlightening to all.

Mr. James was thanked by Mrs. Dryden for his thorough explanation of first aid with poisons.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. James Stoliker and Mrs. Gilbert Cowan.

"I got a call from the U.S. Space Agency—they've asked me to be the first woman astronaut."

Readers' Friday Column

Question—Would you have a recipe in your files for Beef Stew to serve 100 people? Our church unit is planning on a beef stew supper.—Mrs. Pat J.

Answer: BEEF AND VEGETABLE STEW (serves 100—7 to 8-oz. servings)

25 lbs. lean, boneless stewing beef; 1½ pts. renderings from pan (see below); 1 lb. 14 oz. flour, 5 oz. salt, 2 teaspoons pepper, 3 Imperial gals. boiling water, 15 lbs. onions, diced (½"), 3 lbs. carrots, diced (½"), 3 lbs. celery, diced (½"), 3 lbs. potatoes, diced (½"), 3 No. 2 (20-oz.) cans peas, drained.

Dinner Menu

FRIDAY

Tuna Casserole; Mixed Carrot Rings and Green Beans; Celery and Green Onions and Olives; Apple Pie with Cheese; Coffee.

Dice beef in 1" cubes. Dredge with the flour mixed with the salt and pepper. Reserve remaining flour mixture. Grease bottoms of institution-ovensize roasting pans and place dredged beef in them and brush the tops with additional melted fat. Braise to brown for one hour at 250 deg. Fahr., stirring twice (or brown on top of stove stirring constantly). Lift and transfer meat to institution-size stock pots. Measure rendered-out fat in pans. You should have 1½ pints. Add the boiling water to meat in stock pots and simmer 1½ hours. Add all remaining flour mixture to rendered out fat from pans and stir over low heat until well blended. Slowly stir this into hot stew until thickened. Add peas and heat through. Note: Inexperienced cooks should not attempt this large quantity cooking. Give yourself ample preparation time. Remember that in lumbering camps and service kitchens the chefs are usually men and strong arms are necessary.

Question—About a year ago you gave a soufflé-like preparation using frozen broccoli, one can of cream of celery soup, eggs separated and Parmesan cheese. You also suggested that asparagus could be used in place of broccoli.—F. C.

Answer: BROCCOLI SOUFFLE (or spinach or asparagus)

1 can undiluted cream of celery (or mushroom) soup, 3 eggs, separated, 1 cup finely chopped drained cooked fresh or fresh frozen broccoli (or spinach or asparagus), ¼ cup grated onion, pinch of rosemary (optional), ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ cup grated Parmesan or old Cheddar cheese.

Heat the undiluted soup to just below boiling. Remove from heat and stir in the beaten egg yolks and finely chopped broccoli and green onion, and seasonings. Beat the egg whites until very stiff. Fold into soup mixture evenly. Turn into buttered casserole. Sprinkle top with cheese. Set dish in pan of warm water and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes or until set and golden crusted.

Ann Landers

Many Mothers Protest Defaming of Name 'Shirley'

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I did not care for your smart aleck remarks about boys who are named Shirley. A dear friend of mine had a son named Shirley. I admired the boy a great deal. He was the type of young man every mother wants her son to be. So, when the Lord blessed us with a boy I named him Shirley. That was 40 years ago.

Our son Shirley never had to fight his way through school or anywhere else. In fact I can't recall that he was ever in a fight.

For your information, Ann Landers, there were very few girls named Shirley until Shirley Temple came along, about 35 year ago. Before that time there were more male Shirleys than female. I think you owe all male Shirleys an apology — PLAIN JANE.

* * *

DEAR PLAIN — I didn't realize there were so many male Shirleys around until that letter appeared in print. The Shirleys didn't write to me — their mothers did. Thanks to all of you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — May I be you for just a moment and respond to "Firm Believer" — the couple who has never served liquor in their home because it is against their religious teaching? They feared since they were moving to a new city and would be travelling with a faster set this practice might hurt them in business.

My husband and I have been married over 30 years. We have entertained nationally-known figures in politics, education, medicine, law, religion and business. We have never served liquor in our home and our parties are fabulously successful.

Why? Because what makes a really great evening is stimulating conversation, good food and warm friendship. When these three ingredients are present no one misses alcohol. Only when the hostess has failed must she turn to the liquor cabinet for help. — FIRM BELIEVER NUMBER TWO.

* * *

DEAR FIRM — Welcome to my corner, friend. I've never bought the idea that liquor is a must at a party. I've seen too many evenings ruined because nice people got drunk and became unruly, maudlin, belligerent, foolish, sloppy, amorous, sick, insulting and just plain stupified. It's bad enough when this happens to ordinary folks but when it happens to brilliant, lovely people, it is truly pathetic.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — When our eldest daughter became engaged she informed us that she wanted to be married in the home of her fiance's parents. My husband and I wanted Marge to be married in her own home, but we were unable to persuade her to change her mind. When she said, "Their home is nicer than ours and I want as beautiful a setting as I can have," we had nothing more to say.

Now, our second daughter is planning to do the same thing. She will be engaged in February and already she's talking about coming down the spiral staircase in the Smith home.

We are not paupers, Ann. Our home is lovely, and we can afford to have a beautiful wedding. We paid for the first wedding and we plan to pay for the second one as well. We just don't want to be asked to go to someone else's home again. Are we wrong? — MOM AND DAD.

DEAR MOM AND DAD — Your daughter should respect your wishes — even if you lived in a pup-tent.

It's too bad you let Number One get away with it. Now I hope you have better luck with Number Two.

Prejudices and Religion

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A woman ran excitedly from house to house. She knocked on the doors of her neighbors. "Come," she invited them, "See a man who told me everything I ever did. Can this be the Christ?"

What is so remarkable about this event? Everything. Leave out the theological implications and it is still remarkable. For one thing, the chances are very real that this woman and her neighbors had been shunning each other. This was a Samaritan woman inviting her Samaritan neighbors to come and listen to a Jewish man. This involved their prejudices because Jews and Samaritans did not speak to each other. It involved their religious bigotries, for Jews claimed one place as the centre of true worship, and Samaritans claimed another. Everything was against her neighbors responding, and yet some of them were curious enough to go centre of true worship, and Samaritans of that city, we are told, believed on Jesus because of the saying of the woman who admitted that Jesus had talked to her frankly about her sinful life.

Let's go back to the beginning. It was a hot day in Samaria. Jesus and the disciples had reached the edge of the city of Syehar where they stopped by a famous well. Being tired, Jesus sat there to rest while the disciples went into the village to buy food.

OFFERS WATER OF LIFE

While they were gone, a Samaritan woman came to draw water. The time of day was unusual. We did she come in the heat of the day instead of morning and wondering when she came? Was she trying to avoid the accusing stares of her neighbors?

She would have paid no attention to Jesus, and would have expected Him to pay no attention to her since He was a Jew, but to her amazement Jesus asked her for a drink. She then up to Him the problem of Jewish prejudice against Samaritans for "the Jews," he said, "have no dealings with the Samaritans." Jesus by-passed her objection by saying He could give her the water of life. Misunderstanding Him, she countered, "But you have nothing to draw with," and Jesus went on to indicate that His knowledge of the wellspring of God's love that is forever flowing free.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 2: "The Woman of Samaria," John 4:1-42.

The conversation continued And what a conversation it was. It covered the woman's moral life that left much to be desired, her religious concepts that needed to be broadened, and brought her face to face with the truth that God's presence is not limited to any church or nation, but can be experienced by all where ever and wherever they seek him earnestly.

BLINDNESS OF PREJUDICE

If Jesus had let it, her prejudice might have denied her the joy of hearing Jesus' truth. How much men deny themselves because they draw barriers excluding each other. All races and nations have so much to teach each other, but often men stay themselves the joys of sharing because they let their fears and pride get in the way. Imagine not listening to Marian Anderson's golden voice because her skin is black. Imagine not listening to Tchaikovsky's glorious music because he happened to be Russian. Any true musician would scoff at the idea. And yet we do things just as foolish. Indeed, our prejudices are more than foolish, they are

SPIRITUAL SIGHT

It is there that a true understanding of religion can help us. "But you have nothing to draw with," protested the woman to Jesus, and people still make the same accusation of religion. "The trouble with your religion," wrote a young girl to Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell, "is that it is so intangible where as the things in my life are real." They may have been real, but they evidently did not satisfy, for that girl had tried to take her own life.

Some would turn to science for all the answers to life's problems. It can measure its facts. It has something to draw with. Science is a superb instrument in the hands of men, but it cannot do everything. One cannot prove love in a test-tube, and yet a mother's love for her child is very real. The Russian astronaut came back from outer space and declared that he had not seen God. How could he, unless he saw Him by faith, for God is spirit. He does not see God, or love, or forgiveness with the eyes, but with the heart.

The ultimate reality is spiritual. Our deepest needs are spiritual. Dr. Liston Pope returned from the Middle East, and is reported as saying, "I thought the problem was primarily economic, but it is religious. The various groups hate each other."

fair was a joke.

But the gravity of the situation struck when the quartermaster opened up with bandages from the armory's medical inspection room and placed with Bouline in the cellar.

The raiders used a pick-axe to get at the quartermaster stores containing the arms and ammunition.

Said a detective:

"It was evident some members of the group—few of them were Canadians—were familiar with the surroundings inside the armory."

POLICE BAFFLED

Police blocked off all bridges linking Montreal Island to the Quebec mainland, searching for the red truck. They found nothing. Roger Perreault, 42, a reserve member of the regiment, was among those grabbed by the raiders. He said he had stopped off to see Bouline.

The watchman and Henry Sheard, 63, a carpenter, were already bound when he arrived.

"These guys grabbed me and started pushing me into the basement," said Perreault. "I thought they were kidding. They tied me up with bandages.

"They looked like real beatnik types. All of them except one, who was about 30, were 17 or 18 years old.

"The boys were quite insistent that we co-operate by not causing any trouble. But other than that, they were extremely polite and careful not to hurt us."

Lionel Gariepy, 51, a laborer, said:

"All of the boys spoke good French and all of them—except one—were very polite.

"Those boys sure didn't look like bums. They were just kids. But they were well-armed."

R-E-A-C-H: Although several parents today complain about their baby-sitters, our 17-year-old model seems to be the captive of her young charges.

Parents Feel Baby-Sitters Know Little About the Job

By JACK HUTTON

Some Canadian parents worry about leaving their children with baby-sitters. The reason: they feel most baby-sitters know little about their jobs.

Even worse, they claim, is the fact that some baby-sitters "sit" their services on a take-it or leave-it basis.

I recently scanned our recent column presenting the baby-sitter's side would produce such a response. So many adults in all parts of the country have demanded equal space for their complaints.

This all started when I printed the letter of a Halifax baby-sitter who said too many adults stay out after the promised hour treat baby-sitters like servants, and embarrass them by coming home in an alcoholic state.

That did it.

SLAVES

An Edmonton mother of three children (4,3 and 1-year-old) stated flatly: "I have yet to find a good baby-sitter." A Toronto mother declared: "We're the slaves of the baby-sitters, not the other way around."

Frankly, I'm on the side of the baby-sitting set. But some adults presented strong arguments. Here, for example, is a portion of the letter from Edmonton mother:

"The young girls (12 to 14-year-olds) know nothing about baby-sitting. They can't change tiny baby's diapers and they have not been taught to stay out of people's personal drawers, cupboards, etc.

"Then when you have a certain sitter for six to 12 months, they feel it's 'home', and they look out. I have had this problem many times.

"Over Christmas we had a sitter who went through my kitchen and other rooms snooping. Then she lit all my Christmas candles, which should be lit only on special occasions.

HAZARD

"This concerned me. With three small ones sleeping, a fire could destroy them and our belongings.

"The 15-year-old and older sitters often have parties and feel they are privileged. Surely this is not true.

"We usually come home when stated. If we are unable to, we do use A. G. Bell's invention. I also made a list or tell the sitter what I wish but this is a waste of time as they never listen.

"Mainly with parents would train their daughters how to babysit properly and to respect people's private belongings. In other words, just babysit and don't snoop."

Other letters were too strong to print. But a Calgary mother clipped out the column and sent me one word, "HAH." A mother from Sherbrooke, Que., declared: "If you only knew the times baby-sitters have made me weep."

"That poor girl. Obviously she's a superior baby-sitter, because I used baby-sitters for years until my oldest girl could look after her brothers and sisters. But I never was lucky enough to find a good sitter."

Whew.

I felt obligated to print the other side because so many people felt so strongly about it. Now that we know there are two sides to baby-sitting, let's all settle back to the TV set and the refrigerator.

MOP HEADS

How many poor fellows are wasting time having their heads shaped in the Beatles style, based on those poor chaps who twist their guitars and make lots of money in Great Britain?

As everyone knows, the Beatles gather crowds of screaming fans wherever they go. And part of this is because these poor apostles of rock'n roll have to warp their heads to get the screams.

I asked a hairdresser this week how any interested fellow could get the same hair-do. The hairdresser almost dropped his scissors in anxiety.

"Don't tell anyone," he said. "But you can get the same effect by putting a bowl over your head and using a dull butter knife. As a matter of fact, leave the bowl on. It looks better."

"Is that all there is to it?" I whispered. "That's all" he whispered back. Now you have the secret. Go to it.

If you try it, may you sell one million records.

fan," said detective sergeant Harold Reid. "We've got to get a local expert to appraise them."

Neither are police certain what stamps are missing from the album. But they are positive some of them have been burned.

They include the valuable St. Lawrence misprint among them. Purchased for the Greenleaf collection for $1,200 its value has increased every year. Only about 40 of the varieties are known in private collections, said police.

However, they are still counting lucky stars over the recovery. Had things gone right they might have been spread across Canada by now.

This is how it happened:

An attempt was made to sell the stamps in Montreal last Saturday. A dealer purchased several for $250 from a youth who showed him a small quantity of the Greenleaf collection.

Shortly after, the youth returned with more stamps and the dealer became suspicious. He demanded his cheque back and returned the stamps he earlier purchased.

A second—and successful—sales attempt occurred Tuesday in Toronto. Another youth, a youth who showed him a small quantity of the Greenleaf collection.

He evaluated them, then took the album to an auction sale in Sunnyvale. He arrived too late to put his stamps on the block. When he returned home officers from Belleville were waiting for him.

"Fortunately, he never made that auction. Otherwise the stamps might be scattered across the country by now," said Det.-Sergeant Reid.

Betancourt's Regime Not Expected to Alter Venezuela Administration

CARACAS (Reuters) — A change of administration in Venezuela is not expected to alter the oil policy of President Romulo Betancourt's outgoing regime.

President-elect Raul Leoni, who will take office in March, has promised to maintain the Betancourt policy of not granting to private companies any further territorial concessions for oil exploration and exploitation.

Administration of the oil policy currently is in the hands of Manuel Perez Guerrero, who became minister shortly before Christmas. He replaced Juan Pable Perez Alfonzo, architect of Venezuela's present oil program.

Venezuela has granted no oil exploration concessions to private firms since 1956-57.

The "no concessions" policy is an administrative matter. The governing law limit of concessions remains on the books and any president could action without further legislation.

GAS MONOPOLY

Leoni said during the election campaign he would work to expand the part played in the industry by the autonomous government agency, the Venezuelan Petroleum Corporation.

Specifically, he said that by 1963 he wanted the corporation to be handling at least one-third of all petroleum distribution within Venezuela, and to have a monopoly of gas distribution.

A concomitant of the "no concessions" policy is the certainty of a price control system. The plan is that the corporation, which has been kept down to a small, economic unit, will sign contracts with the oil companies or private service firms for the construction and development of corporation reserves.

The corporation at present produces only a tiny 2,600 barrels of Venezuela's average 3,300,000 barrels of crude oil daily.

With a world oil surplus softening prices, the private firms have slowed down exploration of their own existing concessions, and have shown no hurry to negotiate corporation service contracts.

Picket Hotel Where Liz, Dick Share Suite

TORONTO (CP) — Three pickets Sunday carrying students Thursday picketed the downtown hotel where Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton share an eighth floor suite, but the celebrated couple didn't see them.

The teenagers picketed the hotel for about 30 minutes, protesting what they said was the 1963 Torontonians were making of the couple.

Jeffrey Stutz, 17, of Toronto said the group felt it had made its point.

He said he, Daniel Schaefer, 17, and Alan Robin, 16, also of Toronto, believed too much publicity was being given to persons getting a bad example to youth. The pickets are not students at University of Toronto schools.

The pickets were ordered to move by Mrs. May Gillman of Toronto, mother of four, who said she is among a handful of spectators. She said she has come hoping to see the couple.

"These people have hurt no one," she said. "They are trying very hard to get married."

Earlier, Burton was seen sipping a vodka martini in a tavern opposite the hotel. His visit to the tavern ended as his car and the wagon announced earlier in the day. He drank coffee then and reminded visitors of his promise to swear off liquor while playing Hamlet in the modern-dress version of Shakespeare's play.

French Canadians in Commerce

'An Inferiority Complex About Their Tongue in Business Life'

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

MONTREAL (CP) — The French - Canadian employee wants his promotions to depend on personal merit, not on his ability or desire to speak English, says psychologist Gilles Auclair of the University of Montreal.

This will only be possible, Prof. Auclair said in an interview, if business practices are changed in Quebec so as to make French an indispensable language.

Up to now, he said, French has seemed so superfluous in business that French-Canadians have an inherited inferiority complex about the practical value of their language.

He mentioned "a fellow from Chicoutimi" who had to learn English to become general manager of a branch store in his hometown, in the heart of the solidly French - speaking Saguenay valley north of Quebec City.

Why did he have to learn English to get that job? Because the people who rated him didn't speak French. His future depended on his ability to impress his bosses in an acquired language, even though the public he was to serve spoke his own language.

"It's little wonder that few French - Canadians have gone after the Ph.D. training that would fit them for business careers. The structures that would give them a chance to advance, without losing their identity, scarcely exist."

AIDS SEPARATISM

Prof. Auclair said this lack of a key to opportunity, as much as anything else, has fed the recent upsurge of French-Canadian nationalism, including the extreme variety known as separatism.

Separatism, although it has failed thus far to convert Quebec to the goal of political independence, "has helped to make French - Canadians more concerned about their inferior position in business, right in their own province."

French-Canadians would turn to separatism en masse only if they no longer saw any other way of getting the changes that would enable them to advance in the business world.

It is "not impossible" that big corporations in Quebec would help to create such conditions, if they came to realize that what was good for French Canada would be good for them too.

"Business firms want to make money and want to be good citizens. If they could only consider it more practical, more economical, to set up the structures that would enable them to do this even in a thoroughly French Quebec than to go to the expense and trouble of moving out."

DON'T WANT TO MOVE

This view of business policy was implicitly but explosively expressed in interviews by some of these English-speaking businessmen themselves in Montreal. Their attitude was that Quebec will probably always be a bath with coaling, whether she speaks your language or insists on speaking her own.

One businessman said some

HATS FRENCH IN HOUSE-FOR POSITION? — Professor Gilles Auclair, psychologist at the University of Montreal, says French - Canadian nationalism draws much of its strength from the inferior status of French in business. He says a French - Canadian chances of getting ahead in business, even in Quebec, depend too much on his ability to master English.

(CP Photo)

big corporations might reconsider their position if Quebec were to become a separate state "but they'll stay until the last minute, if there ever is a last minute, and maybe some of them would stay even after the last minute; they'll stay as long as it is possible to make a profit and get along with the community."

A Quebec government official said separatism has been more of a problem in the search for new business than in relations with firms already established here. He noted that major firms in Quebec are giving young French-Canadians more career opportunities "and they seem to be quite determined to change and grow with Quebec."

"Some other provinces are using separatism as a weapon to try to get new industry that might otherwise come to Quebec. I won't say which provinces. I don't know how successful this tactic has been but it's questionable that it has had very much success. . . .

"We hear of few cases from time to time of business firms that had planned to come to Quebec and then changed their minds. This would happen even if separatism didn't exist."

SOME SUSPICIOUS

Prof. Auclair, who has been a consultant to business firms on problems connected with bilingualism, said it would be difficult for a truly French enterprise to survive in Quebec's business world. Individual French-Canadians were often still reluctant to use French in business because it had long been second nature to use English.

There was, in addition, some suspicion among the French-speaking population of the sudden English enthusiasm for their language.

"The French-Canadian says to himself the English have certainly valued nothing French before, why are they changing all of a sudden? It has been the practice up to now to promote people who are proficient in English so, if the French-Canadian employee is told to take his accounting course or whatever in French, maybe he cannot help thinking that the company has no big plans for him.

English will obviously remain indispensable at the top levels of national and international business but this is no reason why French could not become as vital to a big corporation in Quebec as Spanish is in Mexico, Prof. Auclair said.

WANT FAIR TREATMENT

"This doesn't mean the board chairman has to conduct his meetings in French but it does mean his company should be able to establish its French employees without resort to English."

The "whole fuss" in Quebec might seem incomprehensible to many English-speaking Canadians but it is down to the fact that French-Canadians are trying to be themselves.

"It shouldn't be hard for an English - Canadian to understand. English-Canadians are less different from American than they are from French-Canadians . . . yet they tell you they don't want to be Americans. So they should be able to understand how much French-Canadians want to be French-Canadians."

Prof. Auclair said he sees no real solution "short of Quebec becoming, for all practical purposes, an exclusively French speaking province."

"I think it can come about in the years to come. Maybe it doesn't make much sense in a continent that is overwhelmingly English-speaking. I admit I understand this drive, this na-

'Atom' Teams Thrill Junior Hockey Fans

PICTON (Staff) — To about 250 fans, the Junior Hockey game at the arena last night was anti-climatic to the one played by teams from the Atom League, representative of Minor Hockey for Minor Hockey Week in Canada.

The Rotary Comets, coached by Prince Edward County Sheriff Herbert Colliver defeated the Kiwanis Bruins, coached by Dr. Lionel Dockrill, by a close 3-1 score in a game that had the crowd in an uproar for the entire 42 minutes they played.

Mark Woodward fired the three goal hat trick for the Comets with Johnny Mulridge fixing the single tally for the Bruins.

These boys, who range in age from 8 to 10 years, showed that they have learned the fundamentals of hockey. They played their collective hearts out, and the crowd cheered their every move.

Apart from Woodward, who scored the three goals, and must be given a star, every member of both teams earned the right to a star on their individual and team play. They were all terrific.

Kiwanis Bruins — Bob Hayley; Johnny Muiridge; Don Sharpe; Wayne Bunting; David Bafferstock; David Bond; Paul Foster; Milton Dulmage; Johnny Colden; Graham Graham; Mark Hepburn; Paul Cole; Terry Fewer; and Kevan Dockrill.

Two London Kayak Girls Seek Olympic Team Posts

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Kayaking down the river through ice floes is you might think strictly for Eskimos. But it's also for the Corson sisters.

Connie, 16, and Marilyn, 13, add a twist the Eskimos—who invented the capricious little paddle boat — hadn't heard about. They kayak barefoot.

The sisters, ace swimmers and canoeists, got a belated introduction to the kayak last summer and decided to gun for a spot on Canada's 1964 Olympic team. With time pressing they were practising up to freeze-up time on the Thames River.

At times their technique called for bopping barefoot through snowclad riverbank to the kayak. The girls explained this makes the craft easier to handle. Besides it saves on shoes if the Kayak capsizes.

They are adopted children of Buck Dawson and his wife. London swimming coaches who operate a summer camp near Parry Sound, Ont. With other girls from the camp, they plan to enter a 12-girl crew in the all-Canada canoe competitions in Ottawa next summer.

But the immediate project is kayaking. Connie hopes to work herself into condition as a singles contender for the Olympics, and the girls may team up for tandem competition.

Coach Don May of the Toronto Canoe Club, who met the girls at the Dawson camp last summer and introduced them to the mysteries of keeping a kayak right side up, has been working with them here.

"They are strong and disciplined," he says. "They may be new to the kayak but they are athletes who know the meaning of condition."

He doesn't expect they'll win the national finals, "but we'll have a go at it and find out what's required another year."

Commercial Fishermen Bros. Successful Boat Builders

PICTON (Staff) — Mel and Earl McIntosh are bringing fame to Picton these days with their artistry with welding torches.

Five years ago, these enterprising brothers, commercial fishermen by trade, decided they would build the proper type of boat for using in their commercial fishing enterprise.

They built such a good boat promptly bought it, and the brothers had to build another for themselves. To make a long story shorter, they decided that they might as well go right into building boats as a business.

Starting out on their farm they soon found out that the winters were too cold to do much welding outside, so they moved into Picton and obtained the use of an old shed, where they have been building boats now for over a year, and are rapidly approaching the time when they will have to seek larger premises.

They build a boat, primarily for safety, then they look at the characteristics will it place without too large a motor, will it what the people want.

That they have been successful is proven by the repeat that another fisherman orders they are receiving. Bill Webster, prominent Kingston insurance executive, had the boys build him a boat and he came right back with orders to build a larger one. They delivered Mr. Webster's boat last July — 43½ feet long with a 14 foot beam.

They are currently putting the finishing touches to a brand new design — a 32 footer with a 12 foot beam with double chines, which gives it the stability of a round bottom boat with the semi-planing qualities so often looked for in a boat.

Last year they turned out 20 boats of all sizes, and are at present lagging behind in production, but they will not be hurried into doing anything slip-shod or careless, when they put their name on a boat, it's a safe bet that this boat is designed to be operated where the quality of a vessel is geared to the number of times it will bounce off a rocky reef and stay afloat. As they say, "you can bend them, but you can't break them."

In the accompanying photo, the boat is being made ready to be turned over so that the interior can be finished. For the "do it yourselfers," this hull is ready to start with the finishing, i.e. the cabin, with sleeping for six, or just a short cabin for weather protection for the fisherman. At $2,500 for a 32 foot hull, it's pretty hard to beat. It will about three tons, but Earl McIntosh assured the Intelligencer that a regular inboard engine will plant it quite easily. He should know, he has been building them for years.

The man doing the grinding is McIntosh, and is dwarfed by the size of the hull.

'Lights Out' Didn't Bother Lady Curlers

PICTON (Staff) — The ladies' division of the Prince Edward Curling Club were having their regular Thursday afternoon draw, when the Public Utilities found it necessary to do some work on a nearby transformer.

Right in the middle of about the 3rd end, the lights went out all over the curling rink, and as there are no windows in the rink, it was as dark as the inside of a cow, but the gals quit, not them. They kept right on going as if the lights were on full, and when the lights came on in a few minutes, they were agreeably surprised to learn that they had placed some nice rocks.

All of which goes to prove that light or no lights, when the gals want to curl, a little thing like having no lights will not stop them.

Some of the men members should try curling in the dark, for some of their scores could not possibly be any worse. On that theme, it might be interesting, January 27th with the installation of officers a Ladies' night for the men's team — only to see if the ladies would play them — they would be afraid of being clobbered as there are some terrific curlers amongst the ladies.

U.S. Admires Viet Nam Boss, Hard to Ignore Red Claim It Had Hand in New Coup

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The war in South Viet Nam seems to have turned into a never-ending cancer, rooted in policies of world powers remote from the local culture and feeding on the exhaustion and torture of a population that has seen no surcease from battle for almost two decades.

Once more the Saigon regime has been toppled, this time by a young field commander much admired by American officials. While the United States professes to have been surprised by this latest coup, the initial mild reaction in Washington appears to indicate there is more to it than meets the eye.

Now the U.S. feels the war against the Viet Cong may soon be pursued with greater diligence, though how this can be done in view of the internal disarray resulting from the coup is not made clear. It would take no clairvoyant to suggest that if the U.S. is determined to hold South Viet Nam for the West, it may have to increase U.S. intervention — and that may bring greater intervention from the other side.

Three days before the latest coup, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara reported that the Vietnamese situation was "grave. A day later, he suggested the gravity was less aggravated and that he had been misled by military operations. On the third day, the Pentagon reported the Viet Cong had stepped up their operations sharply and that casualties were heavy.

ILLUSTRATES CONFUSION

The confusion that has followed U.S. policy in South Viet Nam is illustrated by the Washington cartoon showing men watching tape coming out of a Pentagon computer. The tape reads: "Progress made in Viet Nam has deteriorated— but we are encouraged today— if it can get much worse."

"Maybe it's in code," suggests one of the men watching it.

This may be an accurate reflection of what the public thinks about the future of the war. But McNamara's optimism, or at least the myth inevitably lead to Communist control."

ALLEGE PLOT

The present American argument is that the generals who overthrew the Diem family have not pursued the war against the Viet Cong with great diligence and zeal, instead, it is costly plotted with representatives of Premier Khrushchev in Geneva to end the war through acceptance of neutrality for both South and North Viet Nam.

It was to this allegedly criminal need of appointing neutralists that the new dictator, Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh, immediately addressed himself as he seized control over the main leaders of the previous junta.

Johnson would use what in agriculture is commonly called compensatory payments out of the treasury to augment the market income of cotton, wheat, milk and potato producers.

Such payments were a feature of a controversial farm plan advanced in 1949 by Charles F. Brannan, agriculture secretary under President Truman. This plan was never accepted by Congress.

Many Republicans and some farm groups want the government to make a gradual withdrawal from government price, production and marketing control programs for agriculture.

Johnson proposed extension of mandatory government controls to only one commodity not now covered by them—potatoes.

This coming Tuesday is the annual open house for the School for Retarded Children on John Street in Belleville. The public is once again invited to view the progress of the pupils. This year the senior class will be in attendance, doing their exercises. Pictured above is a section of the kindergarten group with the teacher and helper.

Asks Broader Payments to U. S. Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson today called for broader federal payments to U.S. farmers and urged efforts for reducing rural poverty.

The president sent his views to Congress in a special farm message.

In taking a firm stand in support of federal intervention in agriculture, he may well have laid down the line for his party's election-year battle on the farm issue. He asked for repeal of one of the controversial "Brannan plan."

Hopeful Electronic Device Will Aid Spot Forest Fires

OTTAWA (CP) — An electronic device designed to detect from the air variations in ground temperature will be tested this spring as a weapon against forest fires.

Experts expect the device will be able to pinpoint small fires before they become visible from the air—and before they become uncontrollable infernos.

An encouraging report on the development was presented at the annual conference of the National Research Council's forest protection committee which ended Thursday. It was one of the chief topics at the three-day meeting of forest protection chiefs from across Canada.

The device has been developed from a basic U.S. spaceprogram discovery by Ontario firm, Computing Devices of Canada, and will be given a trial field test in April.

The test will take place in bushland near Pembroke, with the Ontario department of lands and forests supplying the aircraft and a crew from the federal forestry department doing the ground work.

Small fires will be set in the bush at locations known only to the ground party. It will be up to the airborne equipment to report the location and intensity of each fire.

Its designers claim the equipment will detect variations of one degree in temperature.

A. W. Braine, Manitoba's director of forest protection work who is chairman of the NRC committee, said the device could be of great assistance in early fire detection.

He said haze or smoke can make it impossible for small fires to be spotted from towers or air patrols. Often lightning caused fires smoulder for days undetected.

French Police Arrest Members Secret Army

TOULON, France (Reuters) Police sources today reported the arrest of French naval officer Jacques Woringer, 42, leader of the terrorist Secret Army Organization's press and propaganda section in metropolitan France.

They said his arrest 10 days ago was kept secret to avoid alerting his associates.

In Paris, informed sources also said that Capt. Jean Demain, 39, another secret army member, had been arrested in a Brussels suburb.

Capital Murder Charge Laid in Second Killing

HULL, Que. (CP) — Jean-Guy Tessier, 25, serving a life sentence in Kingston penitentiary on capital murder, was charged Thursday with capital murder in connection with a second killing.

Tessier was brought by police from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary and charged in Hull county court with the capital murder of his step - brother, Armand Gagnon, 22, in July, 1961.

Capital murder is punishable by hanging unless the sentence is commuted to life imprisonment by the federal cabinet. Non-capital murder is punishable by a life sentence and the prisoner is eligible for parole after 10 years, depending on his behavior and attitude.

Tessier was remanded to Feb. 5 for preliminary hearing by Judge Arthur Labbe. He is a former Ottawa resident.

Gagnon's body was found last September, buried in a shallow grave in the bush near St. Pierre de Wakefield, Que.

Tessier was charged with non-capital murder in April, 1962, in the death of garage operator Adrien Desjardins, 65, June 27, 1962, to life imprisonment.

Banks and 13 Other Men Facing Conspiracy Charges For Organizing SIU March

MONTREAL (CP) — Crown Prosecutor Francois Mercier said Thursday warrants have been issued charging Hal C. Banks and 13 other members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) with conspiracy in organizing the union's march on Ottawa last fall.

Mr. Mercier said the warrants were signed by Chief Judge Edouard Archambault "and are in the hands of the RCMP." He did not identify the others named in the warrants along with the Canadian head of the SIU.

But he said the warrants charge the 14 with conspiracy under the Criminal Code to violate a provision of the Canada Shipping Act dealing with inducing seamen "to desert themselves or their ships."

RCMP Insp. Alexander Carr said the warrants "are in our hands and are being executed."

The SIU organized a march on the House of Commons in Ottawa last Oct. 21 to protest the federal government's move to appoint a board of trustees to oversee the affairs of Canada's five maritime unions.

Banks faces trial March 24, charged with conspiracy to commit assault to wound, maim or disfigure in the beating of Capt. Henry Francis Walsh in Owen Sound Aug. 18, 1957, when Walsh was an organizer for the rival Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Charged with him are Paul Carsh, 38, and Eldon (Jack) Richardson, 37, of Montreal.

Banks also faces preliminary hearing Feb. 19 on a charge of conspiring with two SIU officials to cause injury to Richard George Greaves in Vancouver in 1960. Greaves was then an officer of the rival National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC).

Family of 8 Escapes From Burning Home

BRANTFORD (CP)—A family of eight fled from a blazing home in Paris Thursday night on the Six Nations Indian Reserve 10 miles southeast of here.

George Henhawk, his pregnant wife, five children and one grandchild escaped in the only their night clothes when flames destroyed their home and family possessions.

Hydro Will Buy All N. S. Coal Of Needed Grade

TORONTO (CP) — The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario said Thursday it will have to spend $40,000,000 on soft coal this year to produce enough generated power because of failing water levels on the Great Lakes.

A spokesman for the commission said in an interview that the water levels are now at the lowest in 104 years and the problem is compounded by increasing demand for electric power.

About $4,000,000 worth of the coal will come from Nova Scotia and the rest will be purchased from the United States.

He said although the cost per ton for fuel from the two areas is about the same, Cape Breton coal fields could only produce about 450,000 tons of the specific grade required. The U.S. orders are expected to reach about 4,000,000 tons.

160 Walk Off Jobs at Du Pont Plant

KINGSTON (CP) — Approximately 160 men walked off their jobs Thursday at the construction site of an $11,000,000 addition to the Du Pont of Canada limited plant here.

The workers, members of International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Labourers Union of America (CLC) and United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (CLC), claimed an unidentified foreman was "too rough" with them.

Erhard Armbruster, superintendent of the project for contractor Frontenac Engineering Company Limited, said:

"The unions allege our labor foreman on the job is too rough with the men. They gave me this reason after they walked out."

The walkout followed the discharge of a laborer by the foreman last Tuesday.

Work on the six-storey textile fibre plant started in December and is scheduled for completion in April.

Quebec Minister Declares Few Folk Have Gold Mine In School Textbook Sales

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cultural Affairs Minister Lapalme told the Quebec legislature Thursday a royal commission report on book publishing indicated a few people in the province had a "gold mine" going for them in textbook sales.

He said: "Education is certainly expensive for most people in the province, but it is a gold mine for a few.

"That's what we learned from the report."

He was defending the royal commission report against opposition charges that some of those mentioned in the report were not given a chance to defend themselves.

He was also defending the acceptance of one recommendation for release of the report which would, from the start of debate on a bill creating Quebec's first education department.

The report, written by Montreal University economist Maurice Bouchard, found that 19 persons were in conflict of interest because of commissions in the publication of books and their positions on boards which approved textbooks.

It also found that millions of dollars had been paid in royalties and that publishing of textbooks was controlled by a small group of companies.

In other legislatures — Ontario announced its budget date as Feb. 12; British Columbia announced plans for a multi-million dollar glass factory; Premier Robichaud announced the New Brunswick House would be called into session Feb. 18.

Kenneth Bryden (NDP—Toronto Dovercourt) said he intended introducing a bill to make meetings of the Canadian National Exhibition board of directors open to the press.

He said the board was one of the few public "or quasi-public agencies in Toronto that continues to be a private domain of the privileged few."

Plans for a $3,000,000 glass factory, to be built on the north arm of the Fraser River in Vancouver, were announced during the throne speech debate in Victoria by Lands Minister Hubin (SC—North Peace River).

Premier Bennett said later that "we will fill a long-felt need, since up to this time considerable glass has been imported from the United States and eastern Canada."

Some Say 'Concrete Jungle' But Airport People Happy With $42 Million Terminal

TORONTO (CP) — Some employees call it a concrete jungle but officials are happy over Toronto International Airport's new $42,000,000 air terminal with its doughnut - shaped aerodrome.

It has everything from a nursery, to post office, to $150,000 worth of art that inspires fighting words.

It won't be opened formally by Prime Minister Pearson until Feb. 28 but after two weeks of actual operation, D. P. Giles, regional director of air services for the transport department, says it's the most functional in the world."

"There's been practically no trouble and it has been operating extremely well," he says of the strange-looking complex. It has been in the works five years to replace a haphazard collection of facilities that had been struggling to handle 3,000,000 passengers-a-year traffic at the Malton field 15 miles from here.

The terminal is aimed at being able to handle the airport's traffic up to about 10 years from now, when it is expected to have doubled.

DOCKS ENCLOSED

Centrepiece of the job is the revolutionary $36,000,000 aerodrome with six enclosed loading docks sticking out from it like so many toothpicks from the doughnut. Passengers on a dock directly aboard planes from these docks.

In the middle of the aeroquay circle—like a square peg in a round hole, says architect John B. Parkin—is an eight-storey, 2,500-car parking garage to relieve problems that bedevilled drivers at the old site.

Among amenities apart from the bassinet-equipped nurseries and the padded cells for lusty-lungs—are boarding rooms for commuting executives, shops, car-rental agencies, a bar and liquor-serving restaurant. The beverage situation was surrounded by cliff-hanging uncertainty for a long time but the licence came through in December.

There are six observation decks on the aeroquay for sightseers and it has a department store rooms for passengers. Another dozen hotel-type rooms have been provided in the government-built building for rental by International Airports but their use has been held up on the ground they do not conform to the government's own national building code.

Douglas Reddington, Toronto building chief building inspector, banned them because they have no windows, not enough ventilation and are undersized.

FUEL FROM FARM

The familiar little red fuel truck is missing, except for the minority of planes using gasoline. The fuel is piped in by big ones from an $80,000-gallon tank farm a half-mile away.

Decorating is also popping over the aeroquay's interior decor and modern murals and sculpture.

Armand Vaillancourt of Montreal has provided a craggy sculpture which Edward McCready, Toronto abstract painter, said "looks like something you might pick up with your feet crossing a muddy field."

Kenneth Forbes, 71-year-old Toronto painter and enemy of abstract art, calls the whole display "a load of junk."

Harold Town, Toronto artist who did a screen involving mural painting and sculpture, replies:

"It's good to hear from Mr. Forbes again. I thought he was dead. Of course, I only had his painting it to hedge by. Mr. Forbes' direct opposite should be used to be a boxing champ. I can only assume he took too many punches in the head."

FINED $25

AJAX, Ont. (CP) — David Blake Godson, 22, of Ajax was fined $25 here Thursday when Magistrate Harry Jermyn convicted him on a charge of "driving a horse unsoundly." The charge was laid Dec. 4 after Oshawa police a galloping horse down the middle of the main street of this town near Toronto.

Mentally Retarded Children Blamed on Smoking Mothers

SIMCOE (CP)—A pediatrician from London, Ont., said Thursday that women smoking is a cause of mental retardation and other defects in newborn children.

Dr. S. J. Koegler of London's Psychiatric Research Institute also said mothers who smoke have twice as many premature babies as those who don't.

He told the Norfolk Association for Retarded Children here that four or five times as many retarded children among premature babies as among normal babies.

"Cigarette smoking, he said, is the distillation of many of the abnormalities, diseases and injuries which often result in mental retardation in newborn children.

"There is a lot of talk about lung cancer but by the time we get to it, many babies will be old enough to go anyway," he said.

"It's high time someone started talking about mental retardation as a product of smoking."

Police Probe Shifts to Wallaceburg

LONDON (CP)—A police investigation into the death of 20-month-old Mrs. Fred Sheeler has shifted to Wallaceburg, 65 miles southwest of here, where for two days detectives have been questioning persons acquainted with the young housewife.

Mrs. Sheeler's half-nude body was found in a field about two blocks from her home a week ago. She had been missing since Dec. 27.

Insp. Leonard Hamilton said there have been no new developments.

Police are awaiting reports of an autopsy.

Windsor Has Racing Dates But No Track

WINDSOR (CP)—Windsor has the official dates for a fall racing meet and now all it needs is a track, some horses, mutuel machines — and a race track.

The legislature and the Ontario Racing Commission have endorsed the establishment.

The opening race will be run Aug. 4, says William Rowe, one of the backers of the new track.

The OJHC set Aug. 4 to Dec. 26 as Windsor's race dates.

The track is to be built in the Ojibway area.

Hydro Will Buy All N. S. Coal Of Needed Grade

TORONTO (CP) — The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario said Thursday it will have to spend $40,000,000 on soft coal this year to produce enough generated power because of failing water levels on the Great Lakes.

A spokesman for the commission said in an interview that the water levels are now at the lowest in 104 years and the problem is compounded by increasing demand for electric power.

About $4,000,000 worth of the coal will come from Nova Scotia and the rest will be purchased from the United States.

He said although the cost per ton for fuel from the two areas is about the same, Cape Breton coal fields could only produce about 450,000 tons of the specific grade required. The U.S. orders are expected to reach about 4,000,000 tons.

160 Walk Off Jobs at Du Pont Plant

KINGSTON (CP) — Approximately 160 men walked off their jobs Thursday at the construction site of an $11,000,000 addition to the Du Pont of Canada limited plant here.

The workers, members of International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Labourers Union of America (CLC) and United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (CLC), claimed an unidentified foreman was "too rough" with them.

Erhard Armbruster, superintendent of the project for contractor Frontenac Engineering Company Limited, said:

"The unions allege our labor foreman on the job is too rough with the men. They gave me this reason after they walked out."

Work on the six-storey textile fibre plant started in December and is scheduled for completion in April.

Canada Offers New Garage As Washington Bomb Shelter

WASHINGTON (CP) — Assistant U.S. Defence Secretary Vance Pittman said Thursday buildings with garages offer greater shield against nuclear radiation than is generally realized.

In the event of a nuclear attack, "this would be the cheapest kind of shelter to build for saving lives," he said during discussions dedicating the underground garage as a combination joint military staff building and Pentagon public fallout shelter offered by any foreign mission in this capital.

Ceremonies began in the fourth-floor conference room of this five-storey structure and moved to the garage just below where the local U.S. civil defence office had stacked enough food biscuits, water drums and sanitation kits to cover the potential needs of 1,450 persons for two weeks.

As the dignitaries, including Canadian Ambassador Charles Ritchie and Pittman, U.S. protocol chief, Angier Biddle Duke, examined the supplies, an official said the storage of this supply is good for five years.

Pittman announced developed among the officials as they examined the sanitation kit which separates sleeping bag from a small oil drum with a doughnut-shaped rubber-seat cover.

WOOD TOWER

Ritchie said he hoped the shelter never would have to be used. "But we can offer up the garage as a public emergency facility demonstrates that Canada and the U.S. work together "for bad times as well as good."

Pittman said he appreciates the Canadian offer not only because of cross-border co-operation shown in the construction of several lifts nearby and would

Banks and 13 Other Men Facing Conspiracy Charges For Organizing SIU March

MONTREAL (CP) — Crown Prosecutor Francois Mercier said Thursday warrants have been issued charging Hal C. Banks and 13 other members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) with conspiracy in organizing the union's march on Ottawa last fall.

Mr. Mercier said the warrants were signed by Chief Judge Edouard Archambault "and are in the hands of the RCMP." He did not identify the others named in the warrants along with the Canadian head of the SIU.

But he said the warrants charge the 14 with conspiracy under the Criminal Code to violate a provision of the Canada Shipping Act dealing with inducing seamen "to desert themselves or their ships."

RCMP Insp. Alexander Carr said the warrants "are in our hands and are being executed."

The SIU organized a march on the House of Commons in Ottawa last Oct. 21 to protest the federal government's move to appoint a board of trustees to oversee the affairs of Canada's five maritime unions.

Banks faces trial March 24, charged with conspiracy to commit assault to wound, maim or disfigure in the beating of Capt. Henry Francis Walsh in Owen Sound Aug. 18, 1957, when Walsh was an organizer for the rival Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Charged with him are Paul Carsh, 38, and Eldon (Jack) Richardson, 37, of Montreal.

Banks also faces preliminary hearing Feb. 19 on a charge of conspiring with two SIU officials to cause injury to Richard George Greaves in Vancouver in 1960. Greaves was then an officer of the rival National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC).

Ban Shooting of 'Bitter Ash' B. C. Film, to Ottawa Students

OTTAWA (CP) — The controversial Vancouver film Bitter Ash was ash . canned Thursday in the middle of a second private showing at Carleton University.

University student director Norman Fruchter stopped the showing after Ontario Publicity Minister James Auld said he'd pull any Ontario showing of the film is illegal.

The university said Mr. Auld tele phoned Carleton President Davidson Dunton at lunch time to request that the film be banned.

Mr. Auld was quoted as saying that the provincial film censors have not yet passed Bitter Ash for any kind of showing.

The university said it had received information earlier to the effect that private showings were permitted.

The film was first shown Wednesday to a group of students. Four more showings had been scheduled for Thursday and 1,000 tickets had been sold at $1 apiece. The showings were organized by a student, John Branch.

"Garbage," commented one. Several students walked out before the end saying they were bored.

"It really all mixed up," said one co-ed. "And badly acted. A lot of swear words don't help any."

The film is billed as a frank study of university students who become promiscuous because they feel rejected and futile.

Hopeful Electronic Device Will Aid Spot Forest Fires

OTTAWA (CP) — An electronic device designed to detect from the air variations in ground temperature will be tested this spring as a weapon against forest fires.

Experts expect the device will be able to pinpoint small fires before they become visible from the air—and before they become uncontrollable infernos.

An encouraging report on the development was presented at the annual conference of the National Research Council's forest protection committee which ended Thursday. It was one of the chief topics at the three-day meeting of forest protection chiefs from across Canada.

The device has been developed from a basic U.S. space-program discovery by Ontario firm, Computing Devices of Canada, and will be given a trial field test in April.

The test will take place in bushland near Pembroke, with the Ontario department of lands and forests supplying the aircraft and a crew from the federal forestry department doing the ground work.

Small fires will be set in the bush at locations known only to the ground party. It will be up to the airborne equipment to report the location and intensity of each fire.

Its designers claim the equipment will detect variations of one degree in temperature.

A. W. Braine, Manitoba's director of forest protection work who is chairman of the NRC committee, said the device could be of great assistance in early fire detection.

He said haze or smoke can make it impossible for small fires to be spotted from towers or air patrols. Often lightning caused fires smoulder for days undetected.

Injured Boy Given Award Of $21,000

LONDON (CP) — Leslie Ste. Marie, 13, who suffered pelvic and internal injuries as a reserve when run over by a London Transit Commission bus in the yard of Westminster Township Thursday, was awarded $21,000 in an out-of-court settlement of an Ontario Supreme Court civil action Thursday.

The boy's father, Albert Ste. Marie, was awarded $4,000 special damages.

The settlement, endorsed by Mr. Justice Gregory T. Evans, came after a six-man jury had heard nearly a day and a half of evidence.

Leslie was run over when he fell under the wheel of a bus that other boys were running to catch.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The winter sports honor of the Old Lady of the Moira, reels, it seems, upon the sturdy steel of a set of antiquated bobsleds and a bevy of hardy adventurers.

The challenge of a number of visitor carriers-here in Kingston, a half-mile, three-cornered town of Fort Henry, to a bobsled duel has been taken up by four or five loyal peasants of this bay-washed village.

Matthews Rangers, headed by one "Swipe" of the name, borne, have buried back the tossed gauntlet and hope to parry a snowy rooster tail in the face of the doughty Limestoners.

The acceptance of the challenge came directly following the offer of Mr. Frank McGrath of Boswell Street, to loan the use of a set of bobs that saw service in the 1910 Zwicks Island Olympics.

"The sleds are at least fifty years old," Mr. McGrath informed this agent. "But they don't make them like those in modern times. They are strong and sturdy, exceptionally well made, are well-braced and have a carrying capacity of an entire city council."

An overhaul will likely be necessary, together with a good shoe-shine. The heavy steel runners are tarnished with decades of inactivity in the McGrath garage.

"But," says Mr. McGrath, "with a good crew and a hardy skipper at the helm, I think the sled will beat anything Kingston can produce."

Mr. Matthews accepted the offer and the entry was forwarded to Kingston. Jim also has an offer of a set of sleds from a Stirling resident.

At this writing Captain Matthews had'nt assigned any crew to his snow-going Argonaut. Prayer has volunteered for the "ballast position." Gerry Mahoney, as co-pilot, and Pat O'Hearn as navigator.

Test runs and racing trials may be out of the question unless the weather man comes across with a snowfall. I don't know what Kingston will do unless they course the town down the Fort Henry hedge in a general direction of Cape Vincent, or upholster a special runway with manmade snow.

PEES PROPS ON THE SPOT

Suppressed hilarity has fashioned a strong undercurrent among students of the Prince Edward High School down Picton way.

Next Thursday will be their night to howl and student loyalty to the faculty could be on the spot. For on that night the school "profs" shed mantle and gown for the harness and trappings of a hockey player.

The puck-chasing pedagogues take on a team from Kingston in a charity show which will benefit the Limestoners' project "Operation Pennies" under the crippled kiddies' exchequer of the town's Kiwanis Club.

The Kingston team dubs itself the "No-Stars!" and consists, I am told, of a bevy of bearded and balding members of the city's news media.

The game will go the full sixty minutes, my "pinch buddy," OPP constable Arnold Restemeyer, told me the other day, providing participants haven't been taken out for repairs to wind and underpinnings.

The tab is fifty cents and I'm told the undergrads of dear old PEHS are planning an all-out reception for the victory-seeking profs.

Operation "Brains-on-Ice and Fourth Estaters" is worthy of an all-out attendance. You folks down Picton way shouldn't miss this ice extravaganza.. You will have a lot of fun and will be helping a lot of kiddies less fortunate than your own.

Angry German Fans

Protest Canadian Judge

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Angry German fans Thursday called protests to Olympic officials against the scoring of a Canadian figure skating judge, Dr. Susanne Morrow Francis.

She picked Germany's world champions for third place in the pairs skating competition.

One cable demanded "throw the Canadian out" of the international judges panel, the Austrian news agency APA reported.

Another asked for a pistol "so that I can shoot the Canadian."

The competition in the new Olympic stadium here was held up for several minutes by fans booing Mrs. Francis. The former Canadian skating champion, a Thornhill, Ont., veterinarian, was in tears.

Mrs. Francis rated the favored German couple of Marika Kilius and Hans - Juergen Baeumler third, the lowest of any of the nine judges. Four judges picked the Germans for first place and four for second.

Mrs. Francis picked the gold medal [illegible] Russia's Lud[illegible] and Oleg Protopopov, for first place as did four other judges. Four judges voted the Russians second place.

The Russians won the title with the Germans getting the second-place silver medal.

Mrs. Francis, who won a bronze medal in the pairs at the 1951 games, picked Debbie Wilkes of Unionville, Ont., and Guy Revell of Newmarket, Ont., for second place, the highest of any of the judges.

11,000 See Canadians Whip Swedes

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP) — Canada's Olympic hockey team, young and inexperienced in international play but brimming with desire, is getting a second look in the gold-medal betting at the Winter Olympics today.

The Canadian squad defeated tough Sweden 3-1 Thursday night before a whooping, screaming crowd of 11,000 packed into the new Olympic ice stadium.

When the shooting had died down, Coach Arne Stromberg commented:

"Canada could well beat the Russians and the Czechs on tonight's performance."

The Canadians must do that if they are to be sure of recovering the hockey gold medal Canada last won in 1952 but the victory over Sweden was a big step.

DAY OFF

Today, coach Rev. David Bauer nursed over his right eye as a souvenir of a stick-throwing incident that might have erupted into mayhem on his part for his coolness Thursday night —and his charges can watch their two chief opponents in action.

Russia and Czechoslovakia clash head-on in one of two games scheduled in the eight-nation championship round-robin.

In the other one, the defending champion United States squad, which lost its first game 5-1 to Russia, meets Germany, an 11-1 loser to the Czech team in the opening round.

The Canadians, who whipped Switzerland 8-0 in their first game Wednesday, don't play again until Sunday when they take on the Germans. They meet the U.S. Monday and Finland Wednesday before their biggest games against Czechoslovakia Friday and Russia Saturday.

The Finns, in their first championship - round appearance, handed Switzerland a second-straight loss, 4-0 in Thursday's only other medal - bracket game.

GAME TOUGH

Canada scored once in each period in the rough-tough game against Sweden and gave up a second-period goal only while playing with a man in the penalty box. The team made off with sheer tenacity and will to win what it lacked in experience.

In spite of the rough—by international standards — play, tempers flared only once and the cool reaction of Father Bauer, blood oozing down his nose from a cut above his eye, prevented the situation from getting out of hand.

He was injured in the third period when Sweden's Karl-Goran Oberg flung his broken stick into the Canadian players' bench and struck the Canadian coach on the forehead.

As the crowd booed and the Canadian players stood up prepared to jump the boards and chase the culprit, Father Bauer ordered them to "sit down," adding: "I'm okay." There was no further incident.

Father Bauer was obviously pleased with the victory but he was modest in claiming credit.

GOT BREAKS

"We got the breaks and they didn't," he said in the dressing room after defenceman Rod Seiling had scored twice and forward Bob Forhan once to give Canada the victory.

"The Swedes are a good team and they fought us all the way," The Canadian coach praised his players.

"We know we have a long way to go but we proved we had the desire to win. They are a young team and they've had lots of criticism all over. I'm proud of them."

Stroemberg, whose team made a December tour of Canada and split a pair of games with Father Bauer's club, was less reserved.

"They are much better than other Canadian Olympic teams," he said, "and a great improvement on the team we met in Canada last year."

SCORES SLAP SHOT

Forhan, the 27-year-old veteran from Newmarket, Ont., who played in last year's world championships and in the 1960 Olympics, gave his younger teammates the confidence they needed Thursday night when he slapped in a three-foot shot unassisted at 9:06 of the first period.

Seiling, a 19-year-old Kitchener native from Elmira, Ont., gave Canada 2-0 lead in the second period before captain Sven (Tumba) Johansson got Sweden's goal while Canada was shorthanded. Seiling had scored the insurance goal in the third period before Father Bauer was struck by the Swedish player's broken stick.

Only seven penalties were called, four against Canada and only six Canadian players, Garry Begg of Moosomin, Sask., in the second period figured in the scoring.

The Canadians played well as a unit Thursday night and got outstanding performances not only from the goal scorers but from goalie Seth Martin, who blocked 23 shots in the first two periods and robbed the Swedish forwards frequently despite suffering from a bad cold.

PERFECT FILL-IN

Ken Broderick of Toronto, who took over from Martin in the third period, stopped all 13 Swedish shots fired at him.

Brian Conacher of Toronto, 23-year-old son of the late Lionel Conacher, played on after being cut on the forehead in the first period. He and Dineen of Montreal and Roger Bourbonnais of Riviere Qui Barre, Alta., led wonderful threats against the Swedish defenders.

Dineen broke loose from deep in the Canadian end, skated down the left side and fired a blistering shot at Swedish goalie Kjell Svensson to set up the third-period goal.

Svensson, who blocked 21 shots in the game, couldn't control the rebound on this one and Seiling was right there to bang it in. Seiling drove in a rebound on a shot by George Swarbrick of Moose Jaw, Sask., in the second period for what proved the winning goal.

Blues Nudge Wings With 3-1 Win

Bruins' Playoffs Hopes Jolted

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

They used to say anybody would look good behind the defence Montreal Canadiens threw up for Jacques Plante in seasons gone by.

Now, as New York's goal-tender, he's inclined to get considerably more exposure and the Rangers have given up many goals than anyone else around the National Hockey League.

But Jacques still looks mighty good.

The Rangers, overpowered in the shooting department by substantial margins in a number of games, have tied together a big string of wins in a bid to overhaul Detroit Red Wings for the No. 4 spot in the standings.

In Boston Thursday night they cooled the resurgent Bruins, before a crowd of 13,113 to pull to within a point of Detroit's 42-point mark. It was the nightly only game.

MAKES 33 SAVES

Plante made 33 saves compared with 36 for Eddie Johnston of the Bruins, a fellow who has turned in a number of standout performances in relief roles.

Boston defenceman Ted Green was in the penalty box when two New York goals were scored.

In their last 13 starts, the Rangers have been beaten only three times.

The line of centre Phil Goyette, right-winger Rod Gilbert and left-winger Camille Henry accounted for New York's scoring.

Henry potted his 22nd and 23rd goals of the campaign while Goyette clicked for his 16. Gilbert drew assists on all three and Henry helped out on Goyette's effort.

For the Bruins, the goaltender was Murray Oliver, with Andy Hebenton and Johnny Bucyk assisting.

HOPES JOLTED

The setback was a jolt to Boston's playoff hopes. The club fell eight points behind New York. Into the game, the Bruins carried an eight-game tab marred by only two losses.

Oliver's 17th goal of the season opened the scoring at 12:32. Green was off when Henry got his first at 18:08 of the same period, deflecting Andy Bathgate's 40-footer into the nets to break a scoreless string by Johnston that had reached 144 minutes, 30 seconds.

At 8:08 of the middle period, Henry got his second, converting Gilbert's goalmouth pass. Green was serving a minor once again when Goyette rounded out the scoring at 17:14 before the period ended.

The Bruins have been pointless for Goyette this season. Of his 47 points, he has collected 31 against Boston—nine goals and 22 assists.

No games are scheduled tonight. All teams are in action during the weekend.

Chicago Black Hawks go against the Rangers in New York Saturday afternoon and that night the Red Wings are at Montreal and the Bruins in Toronto. It's Montreal at New York, Toronto at Detroit and Chicago at Boston Sunday night.

HOLD SAILING MEETS

FREDERICTON (CP) — Canada will be host to the world junior sailing championships in 1967 and two North American finals this year, it was announced Thursday by R. C. Stevenson of Montreal, honorary president of the Canadian Yachting Association. Montreal will be the site of the North American junior championships in 1964, with the Dragon Class championships scheduled for Toronto. Mr. Stevenson did not name the dates for the North American finals nor give any further details of the world championships in 1967.

Russians Grab Big Olympics Lead

Ahead Of 1960 Pace

CANADA DRIVES IN ON SWEDEN'S GOAL — Sweden's goalie Kjell Svenson, right, totters on one skate as he blocks puck with his stick as Canada's Ray Cadieux (18) and an unidentified Canada player drive in on mouth of net. Canada won the Olympic hockey game at Innsbruck, 3-1, and took the lead in the championship round-robin competition. INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—The Soviet Union is clearly on the way to dominating the ninth Winter Olympic Games even more decisively than it did the last time around.

With a clear sweep of the medals in the women's 500-metre speed skating and a third place in the men's 30-kilometre cross-country ski race Thursday and a gold medal in Wednesday's figure-skating pairs, the Soviets now have two gold medals, one silver and two bronze.

That's well ahead of the pace they had set at the Squaw Valley in 1960, when they won seven of the 28 gold medals, five second-place silvers and nine third-place bronzes as they rolled up a total of 1595½ points in the unofficial team standings, 96 more than the runner-up.

Their piecing Thursday boosted their unofficial team points here to 35, based on the traditional 10-4-3-2-1 unofficial scoring system for the first six placings in each final, 24 more than anyone else.

Besides Russia, only Germany—with a silver and a bronze—has won more than one medal so far.

GOING FOR TRIPLE

World champion Igon Zimmermann of Austria, the homemaston hero shooting for a triple-win in men's skiing, won the men's downhill gold medal Thursday in the course - record time of 2 minutes 0.3 seconds on treacherous Mount Patscherkofel.

And favorite Eero Mzentyranta of Finland was the gold in the 30-kilometre (18.6-mile) cross-country romping home in 1:30:50.7, the fastest ever recorded for the event in major competition.

Zimmermann's victory in the glamorous downhill even set off mob scenes among his countrymen, who swarmed around him in spite of a heavy police guard.

He may go on to win the giant slalom and slalom before the games end next week and the sensational feat of his countryman, Toni Sailer, in 1956.

But it will still be the Soviet team that dominates here.

SURPRISE WINNER

Lidia Skoblikova, a 24-year-old blonde teacher from the Urals, flashed to an unexpected victory in the 500-metre speed skating, knocking 9-10ths of a second off the Olympic record as she finished in 45 seconds flat.

She stands as good a chance as Zimmermann of becoming a triple champion since her strongest events are the 1,500- and 3,000-metre events which she won in the 1960 Olympics.

Her Russian teammates, Irina Yegorova and Tatyana Sidorova, finished second and third, respectively, and their sweep of the medals points up the increasing strength of Russia's athletes.

In 1960, Russia got only second place in the 500 - metre skate.

Igor Voronchikhin of Russia finished third behind Mzentyranta and Harald Groemingen of Norway in the cross-country.

FIRST TIME

The gold medal in the figure skating pairs was the first for the Soviets, who could do no better than sixth in the event in 1960.

Canada, with four points in the team standings as a result of the third-place finish by Debbie Wilkes of Unionville, Ont., and Guy Revell of Newmarket, Ont., in the pairs Wednesday, had a dismal day Thursday with the exception of the 3-1 victory Canada's hockey team scored over the strong Swedish squad in championship play.

Mrs. Doreen Ryan, 29-year-old Edmonton housewife, had the highest placing of the Canadians in the three outdoor finals, finishing 10th in the 500-metre speed skating with a time of 47.7 seconds. Doreen McConnell of Winnipeg tied for 13th place in 48 seconds flat.

In the men's downhill, where France's Leo Lacroix finished second in 2:18.90 and Wolfgang Bartels of Germany placed third in 2:19.48, Canada's best showing was made by Jean-Guy Brunet of Ste. Agathe, Que., who placed 25th in 2:26.59.

Garry Battistella of Kimberley, B.C., was 28th in 2:27.74, Rod Hebron of Vancouver 30th in 2:27.90 and Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., 34th in 2:30.06.

FAR BACK

In the cross-country, Don McLeod of Ottawa finished 38th with a time of 1:42:18.6.

Canada's hope for a medal were raised in the women's figure skating, which began Thursday with two of the five compulsory figures, as Petra Burka of Toronto stood third in total points. Leading were favored Sjouke Dijkstra of The Netherlands, the world champion, and Regine Heitzer of Austria was in second place. Shirra Kenworthy of Vancouver was 11th and Wendy Griner of Toronto 19th.

FOUND IN WELL

CLAREMONT, Ont. (CP) — The body of Douglas Lionel Gordon, 19, was discovered in an abandoned well Thursday nearly five hours after he was reported missing in this community near Oshawa. The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Gordon, had drowned after the well covering caved in, police said.

Injured Priest Controlled Players

Father Bauer Saved Situation

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Rev. David Bauer, coach of Canada's young Olympic hockey team, was a casualty of the Canada-Sweden championship game won 3-1 by Canada Thursday night.

He was struck on the forehead by a stick thrown by Sweden's Karl-Goran Oberg.

The incident occurred in the third period, with Canada leading 3-1 at the time, when Oberg broke his stick near the Canadian zone.

He skated by the Canadian bench and threw the remnant of his stick into Father Bauer's face.

Oberg, who had a tryout with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League last autumn, received a two-minute penalty for the offence.

As play halted, Sweden's captain Sven (Tumba) Johansson went to the Canadian bench and apologized to Father Bauer who told him: "That's okay."

Father Bauer, blood oozing down his nose from the cut, prevented what could have become a mayhem on the ice.

The crowd booed lustily and outraged Canadian players on the bench jumped up, apparently ready to clamber over the boards after Oberg.

The coach, probably the coolest person in the arena, shouted: "Sit down." He ordered the players to stop and said: "I'm okay."

FORGET IT

Immediately after the game, Oberg also apologized to the Canadian coach and was told to "forget it".

Another Canadian official was not so charitable, however.

Art Potter, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said after the game:

"That was one hell of a thing to do. That guy had no business pulling that kind of stuff. He should have been thrown out of the game or at least given a 10-minute penalty.

"But this is the kind of thing we get from the Swedes."

MINIMIZES IT

Father Bauer minimized the incident to reporters after the game.

"I guess he didn't mean to throw the stick at me," he said. "I guess he just wanted to get rid of it and I happened to be in the way."

About the game, the Canadian coach, who welded the team together at the University of British Columbia after selecting players from across the country, said:

"We got the breaks and they didn't. The Swedes are a good team and they fought us all the way."

Sweden's coach Arne Stroemberg said:

"Canada could well beat the Russians and the Czech's on tonight's form."

DEATH MYSTERY

HAMILTON (CP) — A coroner's jury agreed Thursday the death of Donato Nicolo Dicicco, 37, whose body was found Oct. 25 , was a "straight - forward case of homicide." It said Dicicco died from "multiple fractures to the skull, inflicted by a curved weapon and these injuries were caused by a person or persons unknown." Dicicco's battered body was found in a remote area by Constable Gordon Hockridge, who was making a routine check.

STAMPS IN BLACK

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders Football Club has finally wiped the red ink from its ledger. President George McMahon announced Thursday the club showed a profit of $39,-239 in its 1963 operations cancelling out a $19,000 deficit carried forward from the previous year. He said Stamps were in the black for the first time since 1950. The club was $125,000 in debt when the McMahon operating group took over in 1957.

Maroons Shade Bulldogs

WINDSOR (CP) — Don McGregor's goal with seven minutes left in the third period broke up a tight game and gave Chatham Maroons a 3-2 victory over Windsor Bulldogs before 1,275 fans in International Hockey League play here Thursday night.

The victory lifted the Maroons into a fifth-place tie with Muskegon Zephyrs, only a point back of, fourth-place Windsor.

Al Cleary gave Chatham a 1-0 first - period lead and Tom Walker tied it up for Windsor in the second. The game saw referee Jerry Olinski call only five minor penalties plus a pair of misconducts.

Swede Player Suspended For Game

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Karl-Goran Oberg of the Swedish national hockey team, today was suspended for one game in the Winter Olympics championship tournament for throwing his stick and injuring Canadian coach Rev. David Bauer during Thursday night's 3-1 Canadian victory over Sweden.

The International Ice Hockey Federation, governing body of world amateur hockey, was called into special session to discuss the incident.

J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne of Britain, president of the IIHF, said Father Bauer "deserves our protection just the same as the players".

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Doug Sanders shot a four-under-par 68 and Charlie Sifford a 71 Thursday to reach the 36-hold point of the $50,000 Palm Spring Golf Classic tied at 137.

The 30-year-old Sanders, using a different putter for the third straight tournament this year, came in with a 33-35 over the 6,716 yard Tamarisk course. Sifford, a five-time winner of the national Negro championship and a co-leader in the first round Wednesday, scored 37-34 over the Indian Wells test of golf.

The day was again ideal as the pair, both of which includes a small army of amateurs, continued their assault on the four courses in play — Bermuda Dunes, La Quinta, Eldorado and Indian Wells.

Four players were deadlocked at 139—Bob Goalby, British Open champion Bob Charles, Dan Sikes, Peter Littler, 66, and Dean Refram, 69.

Par for all of the courses is 36-36—72.

KNUDSON 16TH

George Knudson of Toronto shot a 70 to move into a tie Wednesday to share 10th place with four others with a total of 141. Al Balding of Lambeth, Ont., was three strokes back at 144 on rounds of 73 and 71.

Knudson, who had a 67 Tuesday, fell to a 71 following his first-round 73, for a 145 and Arnold Palmer cut seven strokes off his opening 78 to trail well behind with a total score of 149.

Bob Rosburg, who tied at 66 with Sifford Wednesday, had a 74 and was grouped at 140 with Dan Sikes, who shot a 71, and Zell Eaton, 69.

Sanders, whose last tournament victory was last April, said he recently bought four putters. He tried one in the Bing Crosby tournament, the second at San Francisco last week and the third one here with one club still to be tested.

Sanders was not over par on any hole but had three birdies with putts of 10, six and four feet on the first nine, and a four-footer for another birdie on the 18th.

Gump Helps Aces Blank Hornets 2-0

QUEBEC (CP) — Lorne (Gump Worsley got his second shutout and 30th career Aces finish sixth victory in a row Thursday night as the American Hockey League's Quebec Aces goalers blanked Pittsburgh Hornets 2-0.

Don Blackburn and Cleland Mortson were the scorers.

Worsley was rarely extended in stopping 25 shots. Hard passes in the Pittsburgh nets had a tougher time, stopping 29.

Blackburn's goal in the first period came when defenceman Jean Gauthier's shot his pucks and tipped in. Mortson's third-period goal also was unspectacular.

The Pittsburgh attack was weakened by the absence of high-scoring forward Art Stratton, out with a charleyhorse.

Finley Rips Baseball Officials

BOSTON (CP) — Charles O. Finley, controlled owner of Kansas City Athletics, said Thursday night it's time baseball officials "wake up and come down off cloud 14" if baseball is to hold its prestige.

Finley was a speaker at the winter meeting of the Boston chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Finley has been at odds for weeks with American League officials over his proposal to move the Athletics to another city.

If the time should come, he said, that any owner of any private business "and that includes baseball" is coerced to the point he cannot sell, move "or give away his property, then the time has come for remedial legislation. . . ."

Saco, Belch's Win Quinte Loop Tilts

Third-period rallies carried SACO and Belch Construction to victories in a pair of Quinte Hockey League games played here last night.

SACO fired three unanswered goals in the final frame to register a 4-2 victory over Horlock Electric.

Belch's outscored Ter-Haar Lodge in the third heat to provide them with a 4-1 decision over the Daubers.

Horocks led SACO 1-0 after one frame and 2-1 going into the third. Jack Calnan potted the tying goal for SACO, George Crabbe fired the winner and D. Day added an insurance marker. H. Reid had the winners' first goal. D. Ray got two assists and C. Allenby one.

B. Wannamaker and B. Lambert were the Horlock marksmen. J. Hill, B. Burrows and R. Poste drew assists.

Belch's moved past Terr-Haay into second place with their win. L. Rowbotham scored twice in the third period and N. Boulier completed the scoring. Rowbotham had an earlier goal and also drew two assists. Boulier, D. Wood and L. Westfall also drew assists.

H. Pointer was the lone Terr-Haay marksman, assisted by B. Jeffery.

Soviet Girl Wins Second Gold Medal

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—Petite Soviet speedskater Lidia Skobikova, a dimpled 26-year-old blonde Russian school teacher, won her second gold medal of the 1964 Winter Olympic Games by taking the 1,500 metre—her favorite mile-equivalent ing championship, breaking her own Olympic record.

Mrs. Skobikova, a teacher from the Urals, was clocked in two minutes, 22.8 seconds, breaking the old mark set in the 1960 games of 2:25.2.

Thursday, the husky champion set the Olympic record of 45 seconds in capturing the 500-metre sprint. She is entered in all four ladies' skating events here and many rink observers believe she could win all four.

Kalja Mustonen of Finland captured the second - place silver medal with 2:25.5 and another Russian girl, Berta Kolokolseva, took the third - place bronze with 2:27.1. The Russians finished one-two-three in the 500-metre race Thursday.

Mrs. Doreen Ryan of Edmonton opened the competition with 2:34.0, outdistancing her opponent Inge Lieckfeldt of Denmark, who finished in 2:36.2. Doreen McCannell, a 16-year-old from Winnipeg, bettered her teammate's time with 2:32.7. She skated against Jarmila Stastna of Czechoslovakia who was well back in 2:42.0.

KEEPING BERNIE

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference Thursday returned down a $26,000 offer from Montreal Alouettes for quarterback Bernie Faloney. "We won't accept a cash offer for Faloney until they find some way to have dollar bills thrown at us," Ticats' president Jake Gaudaur said in an interview. Faloney, 34, has led Eastern and Western teams to the Grey Cup in six of the seven seasons he has played Canadian football.

Alleged Letter Blasts Athletes

Banff Said Opposed To Winter Olympics

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP) Canada's representatives on the International Olympic Committee said Thursday a letter allegedly from a Banff citizens committee was not brought up at the IOC meeting Tuesday which voted to have the 1968 Winter Olympic Games staged in Grenoble, France.

Sidney Dawes of Montreal was questioned in an interview about a letter allegedly signed by J. D. Anderson, who described himself as chairman of the Banff Citizens Committee, telling the IOC to take the 1968 games "elsewhere."

Banff, the Rocky Mountain resort 80 miles west of Calgary, was beaten by Grenoble, 27 votes to 24, in the final vote on the site for the 1968 games.

"I don't want to talk about it," snapped Dawes in the brief interview in a downtown hotel lobby.

SEEN BY BRUNDAGE

Asked whether the letter was seen or read at the closed IOC meeting Tuesday or whether it in any way affected the vote which gave France the games, Dawes bellowed:

"It's a lie. It's a lie—and you can quote me."

The letter received by Brundage and an informant said—written on plain paper, was seen by Dawes, Lord Brigden and Marcel Aubert during a lunchcon break Tuesday a few hours before the vote was taken.

SHOW COPY

A copy of the alleged letter shown to The Canadian Press said:

"Before you decide on a site for the 1968 Winter Olympics, please be advised that most of the people at Banff are vehemently opposed to having them in Banff.

"It is strictly the idea of several promoters in Calgary who are looking for some fast money and who do not care what happens to Banff National Park.

"We do not want you here and will do our best to make things most unpleasant if you decide to ignore our feelings.

"Our town is far too nice to be loaded with so-called Olympic competitors who in the main are just ski bums and that ilk.

"So take your Winter Olympics elsewhere and leave our town for decent people, not Olympic tramps."

Habs Defeat Marlies 7-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Junior Canadiens in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series is living up to his press notices these days.

The 19-year-old right winger is described by Toronto Maple Leafs' King Clancy as "one of the brightest prospects around the country" and a sure bet to make it to the National Hockey League.

Thursday the native of Lachine, Que., fired a pair of goals—Nos. 45 and 46 this year —to help the Canadiens to a 7-3 triumph over the league-leading Toronto Marlboros.

The victory lifted the Junior Canadiens to within seven points of Toronto, leading the league with 56 points.

Other league action resulted in a pair of ties as St. Catharines Black Hawks deadlocked 3-3 with Hamilton Red Wings and Peterborough Petes and Niagara Falls Flyers drew 1-1.

The Hawks, unbeaten in seven games, hold down third place with 47 points. Peterborough and the Flyers are battling for fourth, with the Petes holding a one-point edge with 45 points.

The idle Oshawa Generals, with 32 points, have a 13-point spread over Hamilton in the run for the final playoff spot.

Courtenoyer, who has scored two goals in four games with the NHL Canadiens, and Leo Thiffault each fired a pair. Jean - Claude Hebert, Andre Boudrias and Bill Durocher got one each.

Ron Ellis, Wayne Carleton and Barry Watson scored for Toronto's goals.

Real Lemieux, Nick Libbett and John DeMarco scored for the Wings on home ice. Dennis Hull, Fred Stanfield and Ken Laidlaw replied for the Hawks.

Tonight's games have Peterborough at Niagara Falls and Oshawa at Kitchener.

Expansion In Five Years

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank J. Selke, managing director of Montreal Canadiens, said Thursday National Hockey League expansion may be possible in about five years.

He said Los Angeles and San Francisco, two cities most often mentioned as good possibilities for an NHL franchise, play in the Western Hockey League.

"I have reason to believe that the Western Hockey League would have formed some sort of arrangement, or agreement, to stick together for five years," Selke said. "In other words, no two Western League teams would leave for the next five years."

Selke, elaborating on comments he made on a television broadcast Wednesday night, said he was speaking personally, not as a representative of the NHL or the Canadiens.

He said he is in favor of expansion in the form of an interlocking schedule between the NHL and six western U.S. cities.

"If six of the best cities in the U.S., and Vancouver as a representative of Canada, joined us as a league, and the two branches could form an interlocking schedule and cut down on the travel, it may be personal opinion that this would be the best solution."

He has said repeatedly that there have been no concrete, definite requests from anyone to get into the NHL," he said. "There have been promoters who would have liked to get a franchise and then peddle it. But we don't want that type.

"We would only take cities that are proven big-league cities, and not some fellow building an arena in a town who after a couple of good years leaves a trial of bad debts behind him."

The six-team Western League is composed of Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland and Vancouver.

SUSPEND RIDER

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — The board of stewards of Santa Anita Race Track suspended Ray Velez Thursday for five days for careless riding. The jockey was grounded for crossing over too closely and causing interference at the start, while up on Reign Princess in the first race Jan. 29.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rod Gilbert is still looking for his 20th goal of the National Hockey League season.

But in the meantime he collected three assists Thursday night when the New York Rangers outscored Boston Bruins 3-1 in the league's only game.

That gave the young right-winger 46 points and pushed him ahead of Boston's Murray Oliver into the No. 7 spot alone in the league's point-gathering competition.

Gilbert's teammates Andy Bathgate and Phil Goyette also improved their marks.

Bathgate's 35th assist lifted him into a 48-point tie for fourth spot with Chicago's Ken Wharram. Goyette, with his 16th goal kept pace, a point behind.

Chicago's Stan Mikita leads in points with 63 and assists with 38 while his teammate Bobby Hull sets the pace in goals with 33.

Will 'Throw Book' At Him
Angry Potter Blasts Referee

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—President Art Potter of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said today he will demand "disciplinary action and possible suspension" for Swedish Kari-Goran Oberg as a result of a stick-throwing incident in Thursday's Canada-Sweden Olympic game.

Canadian coach Rev. David Bauer suffered a cut over his right eye when Oberg threw a broken stick at the Canadian bench. Canadian players for a time threatened to make an issue of it but Bauer kept them in check and they went on to win the game 3-1.

Potter, from Edmonton, was furious.

"Something has got to be done about this sort of thing, which is disgraceful," he said early today.

"I know Oberg apologized to Father Bauer but if that stick had been an inch or two lower it could have hit him in the eye and seriously injured him.

"I've been in hockey 27 years and I've never heard of this kind of thing in Canada.

"Some of our Canadian (teams playing in Europe over the years have been called butchers or worse but they've never behaved like this."

Potter also said he would "throw the book" at the three referees who called only a two-minute penalty against Oberg for allowing Canada's Gary Dineen on the play.

"He should have called at least a five-minute major and misconduct for stick - throwing and I'm going to recommend that he be banned from officiating any other game in this Olympics," Potter said.

Kidd Also Wins At New York
Crothers Sets US Indoor Mark

NEW YORK (CP) — Bill Crothers, setting a U.S. indoor record in the process, and Bruce Kidd, making a comeback after a long illness, won their specialties at the Millrose Games Thursday night. Both Toronto runners scored easy victories.

Crothers covered the half-mile in one minute, 10 seconds as he came from behind at the start of the final lap and easily held off the closing challenge of Noel Carroll of Villanova University. The old record of 1:08.2 was set last year by John Dunkelberg of Louisville.

Carroll was timed in 1:20.4. Charles Buchta of the marines school was third and Jim Dupree of Los Angeles fourth.

The 23-year-old pharmacist, running for the East York Track Club, moves on to Boston Saturday night to face Buchta and Dupree over 1,000 yards, a distance over which he has been virtually unbeatable indoors in the last two seasons.

Kidd, out periodically with Achilles tendon trouble, romped home in the three-mile run, setting a new record of 13:32.4 as he finished 30 yards ahead of Bob Kehl of Oxford, Ohio. The old record of 13:38 was set in 1960 by Al Lawrence of Australia.

REVERSE ORDER

The result reversed the placings at the Telegram - Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto last Friday when Schul gipped Kidd for second place behind Albie Thomas of Australia. This time Kidd took the lead in the last half-mile and romped to victory.

Tom O'Hara, from Loyola University of Chicago, won the 1-mile in 4:06.8, finishing 12 yards in front of John Camien of Kansas State Teachers, with Ergas Lepa of Toronto well back in third place.

John Thomas of Boston gave his best performance of the season as he won the high jump by clearing seven feet, 3½ inches, a quarter of an inch better than the meet record set last year by Russia's Valery Brumel, the world record-holder.

Bob Hayes of Florida and M. was the 60-yard dash in 6.1 seconds and Gary Gubser of New York University won his 22nd consecutive indoor shot put with a toss of 62 feet, 6¼ inches.

Why should YOU buy a Studebaker?

Studebaker is a unique automobile, unique among the many motor cars being sold in the U.S. and Canadian markets. Studebaker is unique in its reputation for durability . . . unique in its convenient size and wheelbase — no longer a compact in appearance . . . unique in engineering advancements . . . and now unique in its new concept of enduring styling.

Studebaker automobiles are no longer "stubby" — they have been restyled from bumper to bumper for the 1964 model year with clean, distinctive, modern lines which have earned high praise from the experts of the motoring press throughout the world. This styling will continue to be identified with Studebaker models in the future and we believe it will wear well with our owners — like the rest of the Studebaker automobile.

Studebaker is a SAFE, SOLID automobile investment. It spells security for its passengers with more built-in safety factors than any other car on the North American market. In addition, it is a safe car from the standpoint of investment. It has a built-in freedom from mechanical faults. Tomorrow, it will have built-in resale value, insured by the continuity of our new styling theme.

Studebaker is in the U.S. and the Canadian marketplace to STAY. Studebaker is manufactured today on a basis fully compatible with the selective nature of its market. Some details of our forward thinking and forward planning at Studebaker are set forth here:

A NEW CONCEPT

The past 40 days have been exciting ones at Studebaker. Our production for the world-wide market has been consolidated at Hamilton, Ontario. One of our first decisions was to break away from the wasteful practice of the rest of the industry, that of imposing yearly styling changes on car owners. Studebaker, from here on, will make continuing mechanical changes in its cars. We will not wait 'till the end of a fixed "model year" to offer improvements to our owners. To you, the Studebaker driver, this means a top-quality, trouble-free car with built-in resale value. We certainly have no aim to build the lowest priced car on this continent. We are now building — we will continue to build — the best car in the low-priced field.

OBJECT: PRACTICABILITY

We now have a single objective in design and manufacturing: to build the most durable, useful and practical automobile on the market. Studebaker aims to provide the ideal car for the Canadian motorist. More than ever, Studebaker will be an ideal car for U.S. motorists who seek to combine maximum thrift with maximum function. Our reputation in these two fields has always been outstanding. We will strive to improve it — this year, next year, every year.

WHAT OTHER COMPANY OFFERS AS MUCH?

Studebaker feels it now offers as ideal car for the heavy duty use that practical motorists want from a car. We now offer heavy duty safety-frame construction. Our body metal is of thicker gauge. We have a body coating process that really stops rust before it starts. Our windshield wipers sweep the entire vision field of both driver and passenger. We alone offer super-safety disc brakes as an option on every car in our line. Our 15 inch wheels offer maximum road clearance, fuel economy, road stability and tire life. Our Twin Traction differential moves power from slipping wheel to gripping wheel in deep mud or snow. Our cars are the only ones with fully padded instrument panels in ALL models — even the lowest priced. We alone in the North American industry provide a full dash panel of readable instruments without a glaring blinking "idiot light". We alone have a dash panel clean and free of dangerous switch levers, as still another safety bonus. Our cars have the most head room, flattest floors, greatest interior room, wheelbase considered, of any vehicles in the industry. Our variety of engines, transmissions and rear axle options let you custom build your own power train of your Studebaker for maximum economy, speed, pulling power or acceleration, or an ideal blend of all four. Wide options in paint, body styles and interior trim allow custom ordering for appearance.

WHAT THE EXPERTS THINK

This month, Studebaker was named "Car of the Year" by Canada's Track and Traffic Magazine. They gave us their coveted Golden Wheel Award for the second time in three years. We are holders of an earlier "Car of the Year" award by Car Life Magazine. We were recently named "Recreation Car of the Year" by recreation directors of the United States. Our cars have been singled out for warm praise by every leading U.S. and Canadian auto magazine this year because of the scores of features which are exclusively ours.

WHY MANUFACTURE IN CANADA?

Studebaker has always been a relatively small volume builder of very high quality automobiles. Following our new formula for success, Studebaker will not attempt to out-advertise, out-produce and out-sell the giants in today's enormously competitive U.S. auto industry. From a smaller, more efficient base in Canada, however, Studebaker can continue to build the kind of quality of which we are proud. We can build with a profit in limited volume and continue to sell these quality vehicles to the discriminating motorists who have preferred our kind of quality over the years — both in Canada and the U.S. Our Hamilton plant is perfectly matched to this immediate sales potential of Studebaker.

WHERE ARE WE GOING

We will expand and develop the capacity of our Canadian plant to meet the combined demands of the Canadian, U.S. and world market for our automobiles. The first stage of our plant expansion program at Hamilton is nearly completed. We can build more than 30,000 cars a year in this factory.

Studebaker buyers CAN BE SURE that as demand rises in the marketplace for our cars, Studebaker will be prepared to fill that demand. There may be some short waiting periods for delivery. But a fine product is well worth waiting for.

We want you to know that ample supplies of Studebaker parts and arrangements for the finest kind of Studebaker service will continue in the best Studebaker tradition.

Canadian-built products have already established a strong reputation for quality and durability. Already, the quality of our Canadian-built Studebakers is being noted in our showrooms as a bonus for U.S. buyers.

We agree, Studebaker may not be the ideal car for every buyer — either in the U.S. or Canada. But it is a product for the discriminating buyer who demands quality, durability and smartness over all other things.

Don't take our word for this. Ask any person now driving a Studebaker product. Ask the man who services Studebaker automobiles. I think they will agree with me that a Studebaker will reward you with value, performance, thrift and dependability — this year, next year and into the future.

Leads Junior Loop

Picton Clips Gananoque

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Juniorfs took over undisputed possession of first place in the standings as they defeated Gananoque Islanders 7-2 here last night.

Picton led 2-1 at the end of the first, increased this to 5-1 at the end of the second and outscored the visitors by a 2-1 margin in the final 20 minutes.

The Haddock-Haenell-Hopkins forward line accounted for five of the seven goals. Harold Haddock fired the three-goal hat trick and assisted on three others. Bill Hopkins got one marker and helped on three others. Rory McDonald picked up three assists on the night.

Things were fairly even in the first ten minutes of the game with Bill Hopkins opening the scoring at the 5.33 mark from Haddock and McDonald. Gananoque came back and tied it up at the 10.04 mark, with Murray Rowntree beating Larry Holmes with a drive from close in.

Haddock put Picton into a lead they never lost at the 11.27 mark of the first period as he belted a Hopkins rebound into the short side behind Jimmy Jamieson.

It was all Picton in the sandwich frame as they fired home goals to wrap it up in the second period Jameson stopped 20 shots. At one time in the space of 30 seconds, he stopped three shots from point blank range from the stick of Harold Haddock.

At the 1.16 mark of the second period, Tim O'Grady was rewarded for some fine defensive hockey, when he and Bob Thompson combined on a break away with O'Grady pulling the trigger.

Bob Brown scored one at the 12.28 mark with Haddock and Haenell receiving assists. Haddock fired the last goal of the middle stanza at the 16.18 mark with O'Grady and Hopkins helping.

Haenell and Haddock each fired one, with each assisting the other, to wind it up in the last period.

The officials served notice that they would stand for no nonsense and every minor infraction was called. Some of them bordered on the "cheap" side) but if they had not kept a firm hand on the reins, it could have been quite a donnybrook. As it was they called 19 penalties, including majors to Rory McDonald and Stan Parker when they went at it in the second period.

Parker and Brown had a little to see who would get the most penalties with Brown getting 13 minutes to 11 for Parker. Picton outshot Gananoque 44-26.

Three-Way Battle In Figures

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)— A three-way Holland - Austria - Canada battle appeared to be shaping up today for the ladies figure skating gold medal in the ninth Olympic Winter Games.

With three of the five compulsory figures completed, Holland's Sjoukje Dijkstra was building a lead but not as fast as had been expected of the two-time world champion. The 22-year-old Dutch girl had 2,982 points and ranked first by a margin of the nine judges.

Regina Rindt of Austria was second with 2,810 and Petra Burka of Toronto was third with 2,722 points.

Miss Heitzer also had the other first-place vote.

Back-of-the-packers came little Miwa Fukuhara of Japan with 2,628 and Nicole Hassler of France with 2,340.

CANADIAN RECEIVES AC-CLAIM — French - Canadian bass singer Joseph Rolsau, 34, was acclaimed by theatre critics recently for his performance as King Philip II in Verdi's opera Don Carlos in London, England. Rolsau, from Matane, Que., has been with the famed Covent Garden Opera Company for six years.

Panel Show Is No Cinch Says Witty Gene Rayburn

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Gene Rayburn, the witty and incisive young man who guides NBC's Say-Line Match Game, with the gentle firmness of an English nanny, insists that participating in a panel show is not as easy as it looks.

Players and host not only must concentrate on the game but also give the session "dimensions of vitality, lightness and humor," he says.

Rayburn often turns up as a panelist on other shows.

To Tell the Truth, he says, is the most difficult.

"People seem to think the panel has some advance information about the contestants," he said. "We don't know a single thing until the information is read off. It's a fast game in which a lot of information helps."

Rayburn grew up in Chicago, got into radio by becoming an NBC page boy and moved to announcing. In 1942 he had a radio show on a New York station, then teamed with Jack Sterling (now of Today) for a comedy show and built a reputation for light-headed wit and nonsense. For the last 12 years Gene has worked as a single—announcing, hosting, sitting on panels and occasionally doing a dramatic role.

Jazz Era Over in 10 Years Bemoans Famed Bandleader

By BOB THOMAS

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) "It's sad," lamented Ben Pollack, one of the great names in jazz. "In another 10 years our era will be gone, and there will be no one to show the new generation what real Dixieland is like."

The famed bandleader of the 1920s and 1930s had returned to his home after attending the funeral of trombonist Jack Teagarden last week. Like many of the big names of the Jaza and swing eras, Jack had been one of Ben's boys.

He told how they met.

"For a year, everybody had been telling me what a great trombone Jack played," Ben recalled. "Finally I took the band to New York in 1928, Glenn Miller decided to leave me, and I hunted Jack up in a broken-down room on 10th Ave."

BOUT WITH BOTTLE

Pollack had taking a siesta after a bout with the bottle. He got the message only sketchily at first, but when he heard the name of Ben Pollack, he leaped out of bed, ready to sign. He stayed with the band five years.

Pollack, 60, can look back on a half-century in the music business.

"I really started playing drums professionally when I was 10 and worked for an auto ride and a half a buck," said the Chicago - born musician. "But my first steady work was with the New Orleans Rhythm Band which I joined in 1918."

By 1923 he had formed a band to play in a dance hall near Los Angeles. The next year a boy of 15 arrived from Chicago, and Ben gave him a job playing clarinet. His name was Benny Goodman.

Others who played under Ben's direction included Ray McKinley, Bud Freeman, Matty Matlock, Jimmy McPartland, Charlie Spivak, Ray Baudue, Eddie Miller and Nappy Lamarr.

"I was always an easy touch; I never fired anybody," Ben remarked. "And they never gave me any trouble, either—at least not until they got married."
